ELECTRICITY IN BEERSHEBA

TEL AVIV—Ancient Beersheba now has electricity for the first time in its centuries of existence. Israel Launches Medical College

NEW YORK—Five hours after the formal opening of Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School in temporary headquarters in Jerusalem, a dedication ceremony was held here at the Israeli Consulate.

Sponsored by Hadassah, the ceremony featured the presentation of a slab of Vermont marble to be placed in the cornerstone of Israel's first medical school. The marble is the same being used in the construction of the permanent United Nations' headquarters here.

In a message from Ambassador Warren R. Austin, head of the United States United Nations delegation, the marble slab was described as "a symbol of shared faith."

Ambassador Austin said "more important than stone, is the faith and creative devotion to the works of peace, from which the United Nations derives its strength, that will also be the true cornerstone of Israel's first medical school... soon to rise on Mount Scopus."

Mrs. Haim Yassky, widow of the Hadassah medical director slain in Jerusalem on April 13, 1948, while traveling with a medical convoy, received the marble.

Morris Kritzman Named to Head Center

The appointment of Morris Kritzman as executive director of the Jewish Community Center was announced this week by Alex Miller, chairman of the Center's personnel committee. Kritzman, who at present is executive director of the Y. M. and Y. W. H. A. in Trenton, N. J., will assume his new post on or about June 15. He succeeds Simeon Kinsley, who will become director of the Jewish Community Center at Passaic, N. J.

A native of Boston, Kritzman comes to Providence with a rich background of group and social work and experience behind him. In addition to the Trenton post, he has served as consultant in the Research Center for Group Dynamics at M. I. T. in Cambridge, Mass.; project services advisor for the Federal Public Housing Authority in Boston; co-ordinator of recreation for the WPA adult recreation project, also in Boston, and executive director of the Jewish Community Center Association in Mattapan.

He also has been at various times a club organizer and leader, national sports director for Masada, and chairman of several committees in relation to planning, developing and directing recreation programs on youth and adult levels.

Kritzman received his college training at Boston University and Calvin Coolidge Law School, from which he took his LLB degree. He did graduate work at the Boston University School of Social Work and studied health education at William and Mary College and at B.U. He also took selected courses at Harvard.

THE THEATRE

THE PROVIDENCE JEWISH HERALD, FRIDAY, MAY 20, 1949

The Men's Club of Temple Emanuel presents "So Let 'Em Foreclose", staged and directed by Matthew Millman, with musical direction by Robert Kaplan and written by Lewis W. Weinstein.

Taking a satiric poke at Jewish communal life provided much fun and laughter at the Temple Emanuel Men's Club musical show given Wednesday and Thursday evenings at the Nathan Bishop Jr. High School. Given a professional touch in its music, chorus work, adapted and directed by Bob Kaplan, formerly of the Broadway hit show, "High Button Shoes", and well directed by Matthew Millman, the show was well received in its two performances.

Al Goldberg, Bernice Gerstein, Sy Levy, Norman Shalhanick and Ruth Tanenbaum did creditable work in the leads. They were assisted in minor roles by Sylvia Levy, Maxwell R. Carter, Gershon Salhanick, Anne T. Berger, Eve Tanenbaum, Martin Curran, Ben Kaplan, Adele Snyder, Fred Pinkney and Jerry Finkleman.

Kaplan, Adele Snyder, Fred Pinkney and Jerry Finkleman. The plot, like most musical comedies, was slight, but the numerous songs and chorus work, showed off to good advantage the voices and delivery of the numbers. The comedy was carried by Sy Levy and Norman Salhanick. The standing room audiences will remember for many months the scene between the two in the selection of a menu for Salhanick's "Nahum Schwindler's" marriage.

Al Goldberg, who dominated the second act, did a splendid job as the new rabbi who pleased all factions in the Temple. Bernice Gerstein, as the female lead, was more than satisfactory. Her interpretation of "It's Tough to be a Rebbitzin", drew a goodly round of applause. Other songs that were warmly welcomed were Sy Levy's "Max Has Changed His Name to Mason", Adele Snyder's, "An Organization Widow", and Sylvia Levy's "Prattle Prattle". Ruth Tanenbaum as the sisterhood president lended color to the show.

The piano music was provided by Lillian Summerfield and Daniel Jacobs and was more than adequate. Samuel C. Ress was property manager. The stained glass windows and the pictures used in the sets were constructed by the R. I. Photo Laboratories and the Ben Kaplan Advertising Agency.

All in all, the production was

Til Freedman picked off five Oriole base runners at first and one at second to make it easy for Lefty Myer Jarcho to win 17-6. Mal's Comets climbed back into the pennant picture by knocking Jack's Old Timers from their undefeated perch and first place. A 2-run seventh turned the trick in the opener 7-6 as Red Foster bested Lefty Davidson. The Old Timers tried to get back on the victory trail by grabbing an early 2-1 lead in the second game, but an 8-run fourth by the Comets blew the game sky-high and the latter went on to win 14-3. Nate Ludman held the Old Timers in check, while Seymour Golden's 3-run homer led the attack.

Arden's Jewelry managed to stay out in front all the way to take a 13-10 slugfest from Fall River's Kavodians, with Lenny Abrams pitching a six-hitter. Seymour Rekant slugged two homers and a triple, while Joe Wuraffic and Greg Karembelas also got four baggers. An 18-hit barrage in the second game made it a clean sweep for Arden's as they won 14-6.

Windsor Rhodes finally broke into the win column by taking two from Pinkerson's, 11-9 and 14-8. A seven run first inning by Pinkerson's wasn't enough as Windsor Rhodes scored in six innings, going ahead with three in the 5th. In the second game Windsor Rhodes scored ten runs in the first two frames and won handily.

The Jerusalem Issue

We hope that Cardinal Spellman, as a result of his recent conference with Israel's President, Chaim Weizmann, will explain to His Holiness, the Pope, that the adamant position taken by the Vatican with regard to the internationalization of Jerusalem can not contribute to interfaith goodwill and to peace in the Middle East.

The Israelis have decidedly shown that their long experience as a persecuted minority group has bred in them an understanding of the problems of minorities unmatched by any other state or people. Catholic clergy have testified to the sensitive understanding and deep sympathy shown by the Israeli authorities in treating with them and their institutions. The Israelis have shown similar fairness in their dealing with Moslem clergy and their institutions. Spain, a Catholic state, could learn much from Israel.

By insisting that all Jerusalem be internationalized, despite Israel's offer of international guarantee for the holy places, the Vatican shows an unwarranted and offensive distrust of Israeli pledges. By seeking to extend internationalization beyond the Old City, site of the sacred shrine, to the secular New City, the Vatican is striking at Israel's vital economic and military interests. Israeli planners are seeking to develop new Jerusalem as a great industrial and commercial center that will provide labor and homes for tens of thousands of new immigrants. Israelis must be in control of Jerusalem to insure the new, small state from attack by contiguous Arab forces.

No pressure, no implicit intimidation, can force Israel to yield the new city of Jerusalem which is entirely the product of Jewish labor in the last twenty years. Vatican intransigence can, however, generate a great deal of ill will and misunderstanding. It can unwittingly encourage disruptive elements in the Middle East, roil up conditions in a sensitive area, seriously affect interfaith relations in many countries. Cardinal Spellman will render a great service to the advancement of a final settlement in Palestine by conveying to the Pope a sympathetic presentation of the case outlined to him by Dr. Weizmann.

"One Man's Opinion"

Your Family and Mine

By BERNARD SEGAL

Teachers have learned by experience that the way to a pupil's heart is through his family. A sullen youngster faces his teacher on the first day of school. He is suspicious of the stranger, and does not trust the other children in the class room, and certainly is not impressed with the teacher's theories of education, no matter how lofty they may be. Then teacher asks about mother, and what does father do, and where is big brother, and what is the baby's name, and in what grade is sister now, and the ice slowly begins to break, till it melts altogether.

In my early days of teaching there were invariably younger and older brothers and sisters in the family of every pupil in my classes. There was nothing unusual in having two and more children of the same family in various grades of the school during one and the same school-year.

But that was twenty or twenty-five years ago.

Today when you ask a pupil about brothers and sisters you don't get too far. There simply aren't any more at home. Every once in a while a youngster will volunteer the information that mother is getting a baby in Spring, or that aunt Mary brought one home the other day. But the general rule is the one and two-children family. Rare indeed is the child that can name more than one brother and sister in the family.

Confirmed by Survey

These personal observations of the changes in the Jewish family were recently confirmed by a survey published during the past year. The survey, conducted with the aid of polling and questionnaire, and presented in technical terms, with numerous graphs and tables, shows these interesting findings.

One, that the families of American-born Jewish parents are smaller than the families of their immigrant parents. This in spite of the fact that a great number of immigrant families were separated during a considerable period of child-bearing age, due to the practice of the bread-earning member of the family leaving for the New World ahead of the mother and the children.

Two, that the families of American-born Jewish parents are smaller than those of American-born Catholic and Protestant parents in the same area.

Three, that the size of the family is entirely dependent upon widespread practices of birth control among American-born couples. One survey of maternity hospitals led the investigator to conclude that "the substitution of the birth control pill for the old-fashioned 'contraception' is a Jewish phenomenon." A survey of Jewish marriages in New York City showed that the average number of children born to a Jewish couple was 1.7, while the average for a non-Jewish couple was 2.1.

The survey offers a few suggestions that you might want to hash over with your friends.

People who live in big cities have smaller families than couples of the same age living in towns and villages. American Jews being city dwellers primarily, and big cities at that, would naturally fall into the small family group.

Couples who are high-school graduates have a lower birth-rate than couples of the same age who have not graduated from any school above the grade school level. Married couples who are college graduates tend to have even smaller families than the high-school parents. With the large number of high-school and college graduates among the American-born Jewish parents, no wonder that the birth-rate tends to be so low.

White collar workers and professionals bring up smaller families than unskilled workers or people engaged in farm or factory labor. Consider this in the light of the economic positions occupied by the American-born Jewish parents within your own circle and among the children of your friends, and draw your own conclusions.

Ambitions Thwart Child-bearing

The more the parents strive for economic security, for social advancement, for higher standards of living, the less do they consider a large family a desirable objective. The rearing of a large family would deprive the children of the social and educational opportunities for which the parents strive. One investigator found that the desire to climb the social ladder on the part of one or both parents is often the cause of a low birth rate. How true is this in cases known to you?

Lastly, parents who are indifferent to matters pertaining to religion will have fewer children than religious-minded couples of the same age.

Now, the American-born Jewish sons and daughters of the first and second generation, being high-school and college graduates, living in big cities, engaging in the professions, being subjected to the keenest competition, striving toward a higher standard of living, being very ambitious for their children, and given to ex-

Home Dedication Day June 19

Announcement that Home Dedication Day will be held on Sunday, June 19 was made at a recent meeting of the Dedication Planning Committee, headed by Max Winograd, which is busily preparing for this important event in the life of the Home for the Aged.

Among the civic and religious leaders who are expected to attend are Gov. John O. Pastore and Mayor Dennis J. Roberts.

Winograd also announced that there would be no intensive fundraising effort, and that a number of memorials, which already have been purchased, will be dedicated on that day.

Among the completed projects that will be included in the program of Home Dedication Day will be the addition of the third floor wings, including infirmary wings; landscaping and beautifying of the grounds, and the addition of the pavilion and terrace for recreation; and the alterations on the first floor, which have increased the bed capacity at the Home.

Dr. Ilie Berger, chairman of the Memorial Dedication Committee, has reported that there will be a great number of opportunities for the purchase of perpetual memorials in memory of loved ones. There also will be a dedication of rooms and facilities for those who make financial contributions in honor of themselves or members of their families. Dr. Berger emphasized that those who purchase memorials or "In Honor Of" tablets before the dedication ceremonies, will see them dedicated on June 19.

DR. ILIE BERGER

Jacob I. Felder, president of the Home, in a statement to the public, urged every member of the community "to avail himself (or herself) of the gift and memorial opportunities, not only to perpetuate the memory of a loved one or to do honor to some of the living, but to help the Home to carry on its humanitarian work in caring for the aged and the sick."

"The proceeds from the Memorial and 'In-Honor-Of' tablets," Mr. Felder said, "will go toward the building up of a much-needed Endowment Fund."

The list of memorial and gift opportunities that are available to the public are listed below.

SYD COHEN:

A Review of
The Softball League

The Jewish Softball League season will have reached the half-way point by this Sunday—assuming rain does not put a crimp in the proceedings—and it is time to take a look at the goings-on up to this point. While it is still too early to determine the ultimate pennant winner, it is not too early to note a definite trend—how the various clubs are shaping up and what their probabilities are.

Surprise of the league so far are the Old Timers of Jack Swartz. Not considered too seriously for championship honors when the season opened, this team swept through its early games with ease. The question now is whether the team will bound back after its double defeat last Sunday.

In all-round strength, this column would have to string along with Miller's Delicatessen. Winners of last year's first half championship and runner-up in the second half, this team is probably the best-balanced in the entire league. It is a team which has everything but a speed ball pitcher, and with Jarcho and Hersch breezing along in good shape, why worry about the fastballer?

Let's not overlook the defending titleholders, Mal's Comets. This team has started slowly and has met its keenest opposition (the Old Timers and Miller's) on successive Sundays. Considering this, and the fact that they finished strong after a slow start last year, it would be unwise to count them out. I look for the Comets to start climbing. They should be one of the top three by season's end.

Of the other clubs, the column would judge from past performances that Richard's Clothing and Arden's Mfg. Co. rate consideration as probable first division material. Both appear at least a shade better than the six clubs not named so far. Whether they are good enough to wage a strong battle for the top spot remains to be seen. Richards, the only unbeaten club to date, naturally must be assumed of championship timber unless and until it is proved otherwise. We'll know more when they meet the other top clubs.

On the Fringe

On the fringe—right around the 500 mark all year but just a shade out of the first division—should be the Olympics, Krasnoff's Creamery and Kavodians. All have been unimpressive to date, lacking that extra balance and polish and all-round strength that would enable them to push the leaders. (This is a nice way to make enemies, incidentally, and to spur several teams on to make me eat my words. It also could get me benched.)

The Orioles so far do not appear to be much improved over last year although they definitely should break into the victory column with far greater regularity than in 1948. They are not holding back the league: which is something that can not be said for the remaining two clubs, Windsor Rhodes and Pinkerson's. On the basis of what these two have shown against the other clubs, they are way over their heads in deep water.

Windsor Rhodes, undefeated champions of last year's junior division, has been particularly disappointing. Either the calibre of their former league was very bad or that of our present circuit is surprisingly good. Hope it's the latter.

Which brings us to the point that from now on the Jewish Softball League should attempt to set up some standards relative to admission. It may be a hard thing to do and will undoubtedly require considerable thought and experimentation. In the interests of a fast, constantly improving softball league, it will have to be done.

Good Administration

A word of praise for the present administrative setup. The league is rolling along smoothly with a minimum of complaint—which borders on sheer genius, if you know the fellows in the loop—and there is a confidence and know-how that naturally were not evident in the inaugural season last year.

Sid Green has asked all clubs to consider seriously having two umpires work each game. It would mean added expense, but also better officiating and fewer rhubarbs.

Official averages continue to be a pain in the neck. This column has volunteered to try to set up a softball service bureau, but without complete box scores of each and every game, that job cannot be done. If the scorers will get these box scores to the Herald by Monday each week the league will get better coverage

For Homes . . . rich in True Traditional Charm

CONANT BALL

presents solid rock maple Early American Furniture

One of the most interesting features of Conant Ball furniture is the adaptability of many of the pieces to meet your particular requirements. The table is a masterpiece of flexibility, closed, it is a compact dropleaf table with a 40" x 25" top. Open, and fully extended, it has a sturdy top measuring 40" x 78" . . . large enough for a table setting for eight.

With the large major pieces representing the basic decorative theme of a room, chairs become the grace notes . . . the added touch of personality. For the upholstered look, use the "Cromwellian" type chairs as shown in the room above . . . and don't be afraid to use contrasting fabrics such as the side and arm chairs shown. Or, if you want the simple dignity of solid wood, the lovely Sheraton Windsors at the top and to the right are but two of many different styles you can use.

Even though you may not need furniture at this time, you will enjoy seeing this display at the Modern Furniture Company in Fall River. Be sure to ask or write for your complimentary copy of Modern's new booklet, illustrating the entire Conant Ball collection.

3 x 2 Boys

The birth of three sets of boy twins is the highlight of this week's events. From Springfield comes the news that Jack and Evelyn Resnick are proud parents of twin boys born May 13. Jack and Ev (both formerly of Providence) also have an 18 months old daughter, Marilyn. The Norton Rappaports, since March 14 when their twin sons were born, boast of a family of three sons, the oldest being four years old. Friday the 13th wasn't unlucky at all for the Paul Fields. Joy (formerly Joy Goldberg) was wishing hard for twins—and twins were born to them. At present writing the twins, whose names haven't been decided upon yet, are being called "A, You're Adorable" and "B, You're so Beautiful".

One of a Kind

The Howard Lewises have announced the birth of their first daughter, Nancy, born on May 7. The new mother is the former Shirley Brier. It was a second son for the Charles Winklemans of Sumter Street on May 13. The older boy is four years old. Nancy Karen, born May 11, is the first child of the Burton Botvins. A third child, a baby girl, was born to Dr. and Mrs. Walter Nelson on May 14. The child was named Deborah Ruth.

Bridal Luncheon

Barbara Oberhard, of Newport, a Pembroke graduate, will be the guest of honor at a luncheon tomorrow at the Wayland Manor. Hostesses are her aunts, Bessie and Ruth Abrams, also of Newport. Barbara is engaged to a graduate of Brown, Herb Epstein.

Two in One

Norma Gladstone and Harriet Fishbein were hostesses Tuesday night at a double shower honoring Glenna Robinson and Jeanne Wexler. Both girls will be married soon—Glenna to Phil Mazel, and Jeanne to Arnie Fellman.

To Have Bridal Shower

Mrs. Jack Resnick and Mrs. Joseph Greenberg will be hostesses at a shower next Tuesday at the Dreyfus Hotel, honoring Florence Greenberg. Florence will be married to Sidney Resnick soon.

Happy Birthday

To Bryant College's Phil Furie who's celebrating his birthday today.

Model Pledge

Of all the SDT pledges at R. I. State, Marilyn Dorkin was chosen as the model pledge.

Hillel Outing

Sunday turned out to be an ideal one for an outing after the threatening clouds of the morning cleared away, and a tremendous crowd appeared at Lincoln Woods for Hillel's second annual outing. Rabbi Nathan Rosen was seen playing volleyball while Mrs. Rosen was busy chasing her year-and-a-half old son all over the field—David was having the time of his life watching first the girls playing softball and then the volleyball game. Brown scored over Bryant, 4 to 3 in the baseball game, but R. I. State walked away with the trophy by beating Brown 12 to 1.

Housing Needed For JCC Director

A request of the public to assist the Jewish Community Center in obtaining housing facilities for the family of the Center's new executive director was made this week by Alex Miller, chairman of the personnel committee.

Scheduled to take over his duties at the Providence Center in a few weeks, Morris Kritzman, the new director, must find suitable living quarters for himself, his wife and two children before settling down in his new position. His requirements are five or six rooms, with two or three bedrooms.

Any persons who can be of assistance are requested to call the Center, DE 1-6730 or DE 1-6175.
