Brier, Fine Named Chairmen of GJC Initial Gifts Committee

ABE C. FINE

Benjamin Brier and Abe C. Fine, both seasoned campaigners, were appointed co-chairmen of the important Initial Gifts Committee of the General Jewish Committee's 1949 fund-raising drive, it was announced this week by Alvin A. Sopkin, campaign chairman.

Sopkin also revealed that appointments of a hard-hitting corps of associate chairmen would be announced in the near future.

Tentative plans call for the staging of the Initial Gifts dinner meeting at the new Ledgemont Country Club in September, shortly after Labor Day. This affair—a dramatic highlight of the committee's activities—has featured such celebrities as Henry Morgenthau Jr. and Eddie Cantor as principal speakers in recent years.

Work Underway

Brier and Fine stated this week that preparatory organization of their group would begin at once and that, during the Summer months, a coordinated program of activity would be carried out, culminating with the September event at Ledgemont.

"Reliable reports from Israel indicate that conditions in immigrant camps are sub-standard and housing is most meager, to say the least," the two co-chairmen pointed out.

"This is hardly the fault of the new state of Israel which has Potofsky's union and other American trade unions donated a half-million units of summer clothing for the Israeli Army.

As part of a national plan for the education of Zionist Youth, the American Zionist Fund, in cooperation with the Rhode Island Zionist Region, has made arrangements to award a scholarship for a year's study in Israel. It was announced this week by Frank Licht, president of the Rhode Island Zionist Region.

A board of local judges has been appointed, including Mrs. Archibald Silverman, Rabbi Morris Schussheim and Dr. Ilie Berger.

Under the terms of the award, the Rhode Island Zionist Region will be permitted to select from Rhode Island one young man or woman between the ages of 18-25 years, who, in the opinion of the judges, presents the best qualifications. The candidate selected by the local group is subject to confirmation by the National Board of Judges, headed by Rabbi Armand Cohen.

Winners will be carefully chosen on the basis of 1. potential leadership ability 2. participation in

R.I. Asked to Step Up DP Placement Here

Call Meeting for Wednesday Night

Carlos L. Israels, treasurer of United Service for New Americans, will be the guest speaker at a meeting of the R. I. Refugee Service and representatives of affiliated organizations next Wednesday evening at 8:15 o'clock in the Jewish Community Center, it was announced this week by Myer Tenenbaum, president of the organization, who will preside.

The purpose of the meeting will be to discuss the stepped-up program of DP placement in this country. Rhode Island and nearby communities have been requested to accept 42 units within the next nine months to a year and suitable arrangements will have to be made to absorb the newcomers, a spokesman for the organization said this week. It is expected that by early next year, efforts to bring the Jewish DPs to the U.S. under the DP Act will be almost completed. But meanwhile an urgent situation must be met.

Mr. Israels, a graduate of Amherst College and Columbia University Law School, is a member of the executive committee of the United Jewish Appeal of Greater New York and co-chairman of its speakers' bureau for 1948.

Mrs. Esther Pritsker executive director, will report.

and Ruth Tabernick. Additional major appointments in the YAD will be announced in the near future.
Greater Coverage Seen
Last year the YAD reached a new high in money raised but its numerical coverage dropped from the year previous. That Sundlun plans a most intensive campaign to step up coverage was indicated by his statement this week upon assuming his new post.

"Our job is to set up a real working team to put over this year's campaign. We want to make that homecoming in Israel a big success."
"There are still many jobs open and those interested should get aboard now. Working in the Young Adult Division gives a young person a real chance to show he is going to be interested in Jewish affairs in the city."

A graduate of Harvard Law School, Sundlun spent four years and nine months in active service in World War II. A bomber pilot with the eighth Air Force, based in England during the early phases of the war, he later was shot down over Europe.
For 14 months he avoided capture by relentless Nazi searchers, while he aided the French underground resistance forces.
Sundlun is 29 years old.

A special conference of young adults—for the purpose of lining up key workers and shaping preliminary plans for the forthcoming GJC campaign—will be held at the Sheraton-Biltmore hotel on Wednesday evening, June 15 at 8 p. m.

Israel and the American Zionists

An earlier report that the mood has changed in Israeli official quarters towards American Zionists has been confirmed by Mr. Louis Segal, secretary general of the Jewish National Labor Alliance and member of the Zionist Actions Committee, who has just returned from Israel. Apart from being a prominent leader in the American Labor Zionist movement, Mr. Segal is also an acute and level-headed observer of the Jewish scene who can be trusted to report impartially on a situation.

According to Mr. Segal, leading Israelis, in and outside the government, seemed to be much distressed by the recent controversy between the leadership of the ZOA and the Jewish Agency and they are now eager to bring about a real understanding and peace. A continuation of the quarrel between Tel-Aviv and New York, which seemed to loom high on the horizon several months ago, is now out of the question. Prime Minister Ben-Gurion, not known for his friendship for the Americans is now the prime mover for peace and conciliation with the ZOA.

The Actions Committee has worked out an elaborate plan of action for Zionists in the immediate future. The program includes (1) An internal loan among Jews to help Israel in the present economic and immigration crisis; (2) Launch a large "Halutzim" (pioneer) movement for Israel in America and in other countries of the Diaspora with a view to sending American Jewish young men and women to Israel; (3) Mobilize private capital investments in America for Israel; and, (4) Start a big educational campaign to clarify the new situation which has arisen with the emergence of the Jewish State and the need of re-orientating the relationship between Zionists from abroad and Israel.

The report of Judge Simon Rifkind was widely advertised before the Zionist convention and it was ably presented at the convention, but oddly enough it received no consideration at all. No sooner was the report presented, than it was referred to the future administration and forgotten. Yet it was a highly significant report. Its purpose was to deal with the profound inner changes wrought in the Zionist movement by the emergence of the Jewish State and to propose plans how these changes are to be expressed in new forms to meet the changed situation politically, culturally and organizationally. It was prepared by a Committee of fifteen leading intellectuals of the Zionist movement with the cooperation of many outsiders, including Zionists of other parties and even some non-Zionists.

The report itself, although it did not offer a comprehensive plan for the reorganization of the Zionist Party, nevertheless contained many interesting suggestions which indicated that the authors looked deeper than the surface. It was too bad that it was so unceremoniously sidetracked without even a word of discussion.

Thoughts on Graduation Day

By BERNARD SEGAL

Did you see the pictures of the Commencement at Providence College last week? I looked at them long and longingly. There was one picture running half the length of the front page of the newspaper, which showed the entire procession in one shot. It was a skillfully taken photograph, embracing the line of march from the origin to the end, as it winds through the campus, moving past a flower bed, waving along the path lined with trees and shrubbery and onlookers. Faculty, guests, and graduates, 300 of them, all in one view, and a goodly portion of the campus besides.

As my eyes lingered on the black-gowned procession and on the vistas of Hall and Chapel and Campus, I found myself rolling back the layers of time, to a day some twenty-five years ago, when I first heard of Providence College. It was a June day and many of us were loitering under the elms on the lower campus of Brown University. Somebody had a morning paper and he read aloud:

"Providence College graduates sixteen."
 "Providence College? What is that?"

P. C. at that time was a young institution with a student body of less than a hundred, occupying a single building. Wise people on and off the Brown campus shook their heads doubtfully:

Impossible P. C.

"They can't make it. There just isn't a chance for another college in Rhode Island. Here is Brown steeped in tradition and high in the world of learning. There is Boston right next door with Harvard and Boston University, and Yale is not far away. Then there are scores of old and revered colleges all over New England. How can a new college ever hope to get a foothold here? In the West and in the Midwest, perhaps, the days of founding new seats of learning are not gone. But here, in New England? Impossible. Absolutely impossible."

I remember that phrase distinctly. It was repeated with great emphasis. Impossible. How many times do we hear it from the mouths of those who know? How many times did we ourselves say it? Will we ever learn not to say it again?

Our Own Early Schools

And while my thoughts were still on that June day twenty-five years back, I was reluctant to leave it, and stayed a little longer with memories of that time when as a young man I first came to Providence. I was a student by day and a teacher in late afternoon hours. My school, the Yiddish school of the Arbeiter Ring, on Benefit Street, was a busy hive, with classes every day, and clubs on Saturdays, and singing, and dramatics, and dancing groups on Sundays. So well did it go with us on Benefit Street that we opened a branch of the school in South Providence, on Willard Avenue.

During that time, in Providence, the Talmud Torah on Orms Street was at the height of its scholastic career. Under the capable direction of Reb Chayim Lasker the school attracted from two hundred to two hundred and fifty students, who came daily to classes of two hours each, and stayed long enough to study Chumosh with Rashi, and a tract of the Talmud.

In South Providence, on Chester Avenue, flourished the modern Hebrew school, whose teachers stressed the knowledge of Hebrew and grammar to some two hundred children.

These three schools were community schools in the true sense of the word. They were not attached to any one synagogue, and they enjoyed the financial support of the entire community.

Then there were also afternoon schools at Ahavath Sholom, at the Hebrew Institute, and Sunday Schools at Beth El and Beth Israel.

Such was the situation in Jewish Education when Providence College was in its infancy and when wise people shook their heads and said "Impossible".

Well, on this the 30th anniversary of the founding of Providence College the graduating class of 1949 numbers 300 strong.

Where Are We?

And where are we? What have we to show in Jewish education now, 25 years after? Here is our inventory as of today. There it is, printed on the news pages of the Herald, for all to see, and to ponder over.

Emanuel Hebrew School graduates six in the elementary department, and three in the High School department.

Beth El Religious School graduates five from the High School department.

Talmud Torah Sons of Abraham lists eight in the graduating class.

Jewish Community Center will graduate two from the High School.

And that is all. Yes, that is all! Count them, add them up, and look at the miserable total. Twenty-four! Let us not probe into their achievements. Ask not how much they know, what have they learned, and how prepared are they for further studies. Just look at the number.

Even if they were all scholars, all imbued with a love for Torah, all eager to delve deeper in the riches of Jewish learning, they are still merely twenty-four. Numerically a grain of sand on a wasteland, a tiny flame in a fog of Jewish illiteracy.

What will these twenty-four elect avail amidst hundreds of their friends who know nothing and care even less? How long will their learning stay with them, surrounded as they are by so many who do not even know that there is something more to Jewish learning than the Bar Mitzvah performance which they left behind them?

But, more important, what are we doing about it?

Day School Approved By City Officials

Elmer R. Smith, assistant superintendent of schools, has recommended to Dr. Hanley, superintendent of Providence Public Schools, the continuance of the Providence Hebrew Day School under its present set up.

In a letter to Rabbi James I. Gordon, Principal of the school, Mr. Smith stated, "The pupil-teacher relationship in all classes was excellent... the instruction observed was very good... the materials quite adequate."

Mr. Smith was accompanied on his visit by Miss Catherine E. Monahan, supervisor of elementary grades.

Israel's Foremost Woman

By PAUL KRESH

The car speeding along the highway from Jerusalem to Tel Aviv screamed to a dead stop as splinters of glass from the wrecked window splattered to the road. The single bullet that had penetrated the window had done much damage, but none of the people inside had been killed. A few inches further forward, and an Arab sniper would have been a hero for taking the life of perhaps the most important woman in Israel—Mrs. Golda Myerson, at that time Israeli Administrator of the Jewish section of Jerusalem and only woman member of the Provisional Council of Government.

Mrs. Myerson's associates pleaded with her to give up her frequent journeys between the beleaguered cities but, characteristically, she refused. She continued to travel the length and breadth of Palestine, conferring on matters concerning the new Jewish State and pausing frequently to bring comforting messages to mothers whose sons or daughters were fighting with the Haganah. Mrs. Myerson could know how they felt: her own 17-year old daughter was on duty in an isolated settlement near the Egyptian border. Bitter fighting had been going on, and there had been no word from Sarah for many weeks. As for Mrs. Myerson's son, Menahem, he too was going to fight for Israel. He was giving up his musical studies in New York to return home and join the ranks of the Israeli Army. Worries enough for a mother of two grown children! But Mrs. Myerson had many more.

It is easy to picture Mrs. Myerson in the role of mother—gentle dark eyes, kindly face, no make-up, hair parted in the center and drawn back in conservative fashion. It is more difficult to envision her as a political leader. Yet this gentle-seeming woman gave up her post as a Milwaukee school teacher in 1921 to start life over in a Palestine agricultural settlement, to rise to positions of importance in the Labor Zionist movement, and later to be a diplomat of international renown.

Only recently, Mrs. Myerson relinquished her post as the first Israeli envoy to the Soviet Union to become the Minister of Labor and Reconstruction in the Israeli Government, top woman leader of the Jewish State.

Four days after Israel proclaimed its independence, Mrs. Myerson was holding down two jobs the responsibilities of which would awe most men—administrator of the Jewish section of Jerusalem and only woman member of Israel's Provisional Council. Soon afterwards, she made two trips to America to speak eloquently on behalf of the United Jewish Appeal campaign in all parts of the country.

Mrs. Myerson's present visit is her third official one to the United States. The Israeli Government, faced by the critical needs of immigrants streaming to its shores at the rate of 4,000 a day, has given Mrs. Myerson a leave from her cabinet post to take part in the decisive phase of the current United Jewish Appeal drive. She arrived here early in June and is in the midst of an intensive two-weeks tour of major communities to bring home to Americans the desperate need for their financial help if the gates of Israel are to remain open.

Another Testimonial to Our Service

Since our son's Bar Mitzvah a week ago, we have received numerous compliments on the catered buffet luncheon, also requests from our guests and some of the congregation of Temple Beth El who were present, for the name of our caterer. You may be sure the requests were fulfilled. Let us add our compliments to those of our friends. The tables were artistically set and so attractive; but most important was the fact that the meats were freshly cut and the salads strictly fresh and crisp.

Now that I know what a satisfaction and comfort it is to have the "Star" cater an affair, I am convinced that "Let Julie do it" is a good slogan, and you have my permission to use it whenever the occasion presents itself. Of course, you may also use this letter in any way you wish, with our permission.

Yours very truly,
(Mrs) Miriam S. Oglio

COMETTES MEETING
The last meeting of the season of the Comettes Club was held last week at the Jewish Community Center. Plans for next year were discussed. An executive committee meeting was held after the regular meeting. A picnic, to be held June 26 at George Washington Reservation, is being planned by members of the organization.

SYD COHEN:

Playoffs, Umpires and Insurance

With the Jewish Softball League Season lacking but a few weeks before the July-August layoff, players already are discussing playoff plans and probabilities. League headquarters also has been giving the matter some thought, which is only logical. Final action and public announcement of the method of selecting playoff contenders should be forthcoming very soon. Otherwise, the season will be drawing to a close and some teams may complain if they stand to lose out by a small margin. Actually, playoff rules should be known in advance of the season. So much was accomplished this year in getting the league operating on a sound basis that the playoffs were left for the last. In future seasons it will be easy to set up the championship games, with this year's experimentation serving as the springboard.

Right now, from the stray rumors that are in circulation, it seems that six clubs may be named to the playoffs in September. This would mean the elimination of five teams at the end of the regular schedule. The league may decide on only four playoff contenders, or five. Whatever the decision, it should be announced quickly, so that the teams that have a chance to make the grade may have this added inspiration—and no false assumptions—before them as they go into their final games.

Note Improvements

After much earnest plugging, league officials have succeeded in getting many clubs to use two umpires per game. While this is more expensive and may cost the players money every week, it is a worthwhile investment, for it assures better officiating, fewer arguments and less hard feeling. Definitely a change for the better, and it should be incorporated into league rules from now on.

The 1950 season also should bring with it a compulsory insurance provision as one of the requirements for teams desiring franchises. Sid Green tried hard to get the insurance idea passed this year but the delegates voted it down, because of the expense involved. It is my belief that in the future this issue should automatically become law and every team should be required to subscribe to the insurance plan.

Why, in one two-week stretch this year there were so many accidents and injuries that involved doctors' care and hospitalization that it was an outright shame that the players were not covered. No less than half a dozen cases cropped up, with Hilton Bader spending one week in the hospital with a damaged eye, Harold Teitelman fracturing an ankle after recovering from a shoulder dislocation, and Gittleman being given hospital treatment after ripping himself open on a wire fence, to name three that come immediately to mind.

There are few schoolboys in the ranks of the Jewish Softball League. Most of the players are business and family men, fellows who have jobs and careers. The personal expense involved in injuries is harmful not only to the players but to the best interests of the league. They should be covered.

Cranston JCC Plans Annual Installation

The Cranston Jewish Community Club will hold its annual installation and dinner dance at the Coco-Cabana on Wednesday evening, June 15 at 7:30 o'clock. Mortyn Zietz, chairman, is assisted by Sydney Shapiro, Newton Frank, Herbert Kanter, Mrs. Murray Botvin and Abel Gurwitz, ex-officio. For reservations call Mrs. Botvin at HO 1-5067.

you might figure he had had enough softball for one year. Yet, Harold Teitelman of the Olympics not only shows up for every game, but coaches at third base, although it means he must throw his weight on the cast on his foot continuously. I would suggest to the softball gods that the guy be permitted to play a full season next year. He deserves it.

Softball Team of the Week: The Orioles of Philip Dwares Co., which has taken three games in two weeks of play after failing to win a game throughout the 1948 season and the first several weeks of the current campaign.

That Golf Tourney

Last week's launching of the golf tournament idea drew no response, which was as expected. No matter—the column will keep plugging away, with every intention of staging the tourney this summer. Rome wasn't built in a day, and neither was the softball league. We'll have the golf tourney—I hope.

Committee Honors Benjamin N. Kane

A welcome home party in honor of Benjamin N. Kane, who has just returned from a trip to Israel, was given Wednesday evening by the Dedication Committee, following a business meeting at the Home regarding the forthcoming June 19 dedication ceremonies. Kane, long an ardent worker for the Home, was chairman of the building campaign in 1943-44, in which $150,000 was raised for the expansion program that is now being completed. The committee announced that invitations for the dedication will be printed in booklet form, listing the names of donors to the building fund and all current members of the Home.

An Invitation To the Public

The Jewish Home for the Aged of Rhode Island invites you to visit the Home and to inspect its modern facilities. To gain a full appreciation and understanding of the work of the Staff, the Officers and the Board of Trustees, it is essential to see these elderly people living in these comfortable and beautiful surroundings. You will be impressed and proud that the Jewish community provides and supports this beautiful home for the aged.

Mal's vs Richards Is Sunday's Feature

THE PROVIDENCE JEWISH HERALD, FRIDAY, JUNE 10, 1949

SUNDAY'S RESULTS

Miller's 5	Windsor Rhodes 4

The battle for first place between Richards Clothing and Miller's Delicatessen continues without letup, with Richards still leading by percentage points; but the league leaders face the defending champion Comets of Mal's Baby Stores this Sunday in one of the crucial meetings of the season, and the results of those games will undoubtedly determine in large part which of the three clubs will get the edge for the stretch drive.

While the Comets were idle last week, both leaders won double headers from second division clubs, thereby gaining a full game on the three other contenders, the Old Timers, Arden's Jewelry and Cadillac Olympics, all of whom split doubleheaders.

Richards swamped Pinkerson's 21-1 and 17-1 in maintaining its position. The first game was called at the end of five innings. Pinkerson's made three hits off Al Press and committed 10 errors. Fradin, Decof and Pomeranz homered for Richards. Sixteen Richards hits and seven Pinkerson's errors marked the nightcap.

A 6-run first inning paced Miller's to a 12-1 win over Windsor Rhodes, with Harold Hersch hurling a 4-hitter for his fifth win. Herb Weintraub and Aaron Wish hit for the circuit for Miller's. Backed by good defensive support, Myer Jarcho racked up his fifth win in the second game for Miller's, 5-4. Ben Trager homered for the winners.

Lefty Abe Lobel shackled Arden's Jewelry as the Olympics of Cadillac Textile took a 6-3 win. The winners piled up all their runs in three innings before Arden's managed to score. The second game developed into a tight duel between Carl Lefkowitz of Arden's and Bernie Cohen of the Olympics. Arden's broke a 1-1 deadlock by scoring three times in the eighth inning.

Reports of other games were not submitted to this newspaper.

Mrs. Miller Speaks at Hadassah Conclave

Mrs. Daniel B. Miller, newly-elected president of Providence chapter of Hadassah, delivered the key-note address at the Youth Aliyah Session of the New England Regional Convention of Hadassah held in Magnolia, Mass., the weekend of May 28.

Describing the tragic conditions under which thousands of Jewish children are living, Mrs. Miller told of places where they have "only a terrible past to look back on, an impossible present to live in, but a wonderful future in Israel" and the aid which Youth Aliyah gives such children.

Mrs. Miller was principal speaker explaining the activities of the Israeli armed services and outlining the contributions of Jewish youth from all over the world to the upbuilding of the new state.

Delegates from Providence were Mesdames Rose Cowan, Samuel Ganzer, Jacob Hohenemser, Samuel Michaelson, Abraham Percelay and Morris Pritsker. Representing the Business and Professional chapter of the local chapter were the Misses Rose Miller, Evelyn Bader, Fay Miller, Sally Bader, Esther Bilgore, Jennie Miller, Ida Snell, Evelyn Simon, Dora Sherman, Dorothy Porman, Mildred Schwartz, Ethel Scobard and Hannah Scobard.

An exhibit, made by Miss Jeanette Brenner of decorations used in the recent Providence Donors' Affair was shown at the convention, along with a copy of the Shoppers Guide, prepared with Mrs. Harry Alberts as chairman and printed by the Jewish Herald described as an example of the best in Shoppers Guides in New England.

Mrs. I. N. Silverman Honored at Luncheon

Mrs. Irwin N. Silverman, retiring president of Providence chapter of Hadassah, was honored at a luncheon given Monday by the Hadassah board at the Wayland Manor. She was presented with a Golden Book inscription and a gold bracelet with an inscribed key in appreciation of her work as president. Mrs. Nathan Temkin, a past president, made the presentation.

Mrs. Abraham Percelay gave the invocation, followed by a toast to Mrs. Silverman by Mrs. Jacob Hohenemser. Mrs. Archibald Silverman, organizer and first president of Providence Hadassah, paid tribute to her daughter-in-law for her many years of service to Hadassah.

An open letter from Mrs. Daniel B. Miller, new president of the chapter who was unable to attend the luncheon, was read by Mrs. Percelay. Mrs. William Rojar entertained with readings from imaginary entries in Mrs. Silverman's diary, telling what she really thought in private about various events during the year.

Mrs. Silverman stressed the need of continued and even greater efforts by Hadassah to care for the influx of 1000 Displaced Persons daily into Israel.

Mrs. Walter Rutman was chairman of the arrangements committee.

Mrs. Harry Gershtman, chairman of Youth Aliyah, is planning a bridge party in Barrington.

Mrs. Phillip Huk, treasurer, reported on the recent New England Conference of Hadassah held in Magnolia, Mass. Representing the Pawtucket-Central Falls chapter were Mrs. Alperin, Mrs. Gershtman and Mrs. Julius Robinson.
