GJC to Set '49 Goal At Meeting Thursday

Judge Morris Rothenberg, one of the most prominent Jewish laymen in America, will be the principal speaker at a meeting of the board of directors of the General Jewish Committee, Thursday evening, June 23, at the Wayland Manor.

The board, augmented by a number of key GJC workers and officials, will set a specific goal for the 1949 "Homecoming" drive of the local fund-raising agency.

As has been the custom in previous years, a full discussion of the needs involved will take place before any decision is made. The gathering—a cross-section of the greater Providence community—thus will be similar to goal-setting meetings of the past.

A national co-chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, Judge Rothenberg is a member of the Magistrates bench in New York City, to which he was recently re-appointed for a ten-year term.

As president of the Jewish National Fund, which provides the funds for the reclamation and purchase of the land on which the Jewish State will be built, Judge Rothenberg has guided the destinies of the organization which has provided the financial sinews for the pioneers who have made the desert bloom.

During the negotiations which led to the enlargement of the Jewish Agency to include non-Zionist leaders, Judge Rothenberg was named by Dr. Chaim Weismann to represent the World (Continued on Page 2)

Armistice Talks Reach Stalemate

NEW YORK—On the Arab front little progress was scored this week. After seven fruitless weeks of discussions the Syrian-Israeli armistice talks broke off until a new suggestion is forthcoming from U. N. sources. The Israeli-Transjordan armistice commission for Jerusalem met again this week and the results were just as poor.

"Dedication Day" Sunday at the Home

Dedication of new, improved and enlarged facilities at the Jewish Home for the Aged will take place this Sunday afternoon, June 19 when the eventful "Dedication Day" program will be held on the Home grounds, 99 Hillside Avenue. The ceremonies will begin at 2 o'clock, following an hour of open house.

The public is cordially invited to attend Dedication Day.

Among the projects to be included in Sunday's dedication program are the addition of the third floor wings, including infirmary wings; landscaping and beautifying of the grounds; addition of the pavilion and terrace for recreation, and the alterations on the first floor, which have increased the bed capacity at the Home.

Gov. John O. Pastore and Mayor Dennis J. Roberts will head the list of speakers on the program, which will be presided over by Sen. Frank Licht, toastmaster. Other speakers will include Max Winograd, Dedication Committee chairman; Samuel M. Magid, honorary president; Jacob I. Felder, president of the Home; Mrs. Mitchell Sherwin, Ladies' Association president, and Archibald Silverman, president of the General Jewish Committee of Providence.

Winograd will present awards to Magid, Dr. Ilie Berger, Felder, Judge Philip C. Joslin, vice-president of the Home, and Benjamin N. Kane. Judge Joslin will respond on behalf of this group.

The invocation will be delivered by Rabbi William G. Braude and the benediction by Rabbi Morris Schussheim. The playing of the National Anthem and Hatikvah will open and close the program.

JDC Meeting Needs of Jews in N. Africa

NEW YORK—Dr. Joseph Schwartz, head of the J.D.C. European Executive Council, this week reported "encouraging progress" in meeting the needs of the Jews of North Africa—both residents of the area, and transients flocking to the port cities in an attempt to reach Israel. He reported that the J.D.C. had opened aid centers and offices in Casablanca, Algiers, and Tangiers.

Three American Jewish youths, who recently returned from the battlefields of Israel, this week surrendered to Los Angeles authorities to answer charges of having shipped war material to Israel. Ten leading organizations have issued a statement defending the youths and pointing out that they are charged with acting according to American traditions.

Miriam Hospital Is Set Back on Building Plan

The Providence Building Board of Review this week turned down the petition of the Miriam Hospital for a series of relaxations of the building laws in connection with the proposed conversion of the old Jewish Orphanage at 164

Summit Street into part of a new plant there for the hospital.

The hospital intends to build a new structure, but to employ the existing orphanage building for laundry, storage rooms, staff and maintenance rooms, administration offices, and, on the second floor, general hospital rooms.

Alexander Addeo, building inspector, after a hearing at city hall, said that the orphanage building as it stands does not meet legal requirements for hospital purposes and that the alterations proposed by the hospital did not satisfy the board of review.

The hospital's petition, signed by Samuel Shore, chairman of the building committee, said the hospital authorities thought the proposed changes would make the building safe for hospital purposes. These included installation of new ceilings and corridor partitions, installation of two additional fireproof stairways at either end of the building, and removal of boiler and other heating equipment from the remodeled building to the new addition.

Israel Tightropes Between U.S., Russia

TEL AVIV—Israel's delicately balanced foreign policy of dual friendship—everything to please the U. S. and nothing to offend the Soviet Union—is undergoing one of its severest tests.

The situation was caused by pressure officially exerted on the Israeli government last week by the U. S. to make major concessions to the Arab states.

A government spokesman acknowledged today that they would find it difficult to answer criticism of the new U. S. policy which is interpreted by all factions as support for the Arab demands. Moreover, foreign ministry officials appreciate that public opinion, as reflected in the last few days by editorial comments of newspapers representing all political groups from the extreme right to the extreme left, deeply resents the U. S. stand.

Potofsky Asks More U. S. Interest in Israel

NEW YORK—Jacob Potofsky, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, CIO, this week called for the U. S. to increase its interest in the development of Israel and said the new state would require $800,000,000 in loans during the next four years.

Speaking at a press conference at Amalgamated headquarters, 15 Union Square, following his return from a CIO-sponsored mission to the Middle East and Europe, Potofsky declared that "it behooves the U. S. government to invest in Palestine not only because it will pay incalculable dividends but because the country is a citadel of democracy for the Middle East."

He said that in reporting his findings of CIO president Philip Murray and the CIO executive board, he would recommend voluntary investments by CIO unions and members in American corporations which plan to establish plants in Israel.

Large-scale housing is the immediate and pressing problem facing the Israeli government, he said. Israel expects to double its population to 1,500,000 within the next four years, and bring it up to 2,000,000 within the next 10. This would be equivalent to the admission of 35,000,000 newcomers to the U. S.

Potofsky was accompanied to Israel by Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Union, and Maxwell Brandwen, general Amalgamated counsel.

The second meeting of the newly formed Women's League of the Menorah Community House was held June 13 at the Narragansett Hotel with newly elected officers presiding.

That outfit you see trying on the first place mantle for size in the Jewish Softball League this week is Miller's Delicatessen. The club which is the object of Miller's current affections and to whom the delicatesseneers are blowing those kisses are the Mal's Baby Stores Comets. The Comets are responsible in part for Miller's being up in first place. They exploded Richards from that post by handing the ex-leaders twin trouncings Sunday to tie the race up in a knot.

Now the Comets and Richards are all tied up—and just one game back of Miller's. All three have lost an equal number of games, however, which is important at this stage of the season.

The Comets spotted Richards a five run lead early in the first game, then pecked away to a 9-5 lead which Richards overcame in the fifth inning. Ten runs in the sixth blew the game open and the Comets won going away 19-9. Relief pitcher Bill Del Vecchio was the winner. The second game was strictly no contest as the Comets piled up ten runs in the first three innings and breezed in. Sid Jacobson of the winners had six for nine for the day while Fradin of Richards had a perfect day with six hits. War-

U. S. pressure has not yet crystallized. The most charitable explanation, and one which may be used in the debate, is that the U. S. is anxious for a peace settlement and hopes by pressure to prevent a complete breakdown of the peace talks being held at Lausanne, Switzerland, between Israel and the four Arab neighbors, under auspices of the U. N. Palestine Conciliation Commission.

Another explanation, which appeared in an obviously inspired editorial, is that the new American policy is "yet another example of political expediency which has in the past complicated Israel's relations with the U. S."

On the question of refugees, Israel maintains that although plans might be drawn up for the resettlement of Arab refugees in Israel and the Arab countries, implementation of such plans must await a final peace settlement.

The second point, and one which aroused more resentment, concerns the delineation of Israel's frontiers. Israel's argument is that there was an aggressive attack by the Arab states in defiance of the U. N. decision. The attack was successfully resisted and Israel is entitled to hold what it has won.

There is no divergence of views between the government and the opposition on either of these questions. The point at issue as raised by the opposition is whether or not Israel can successfully withstand U. S. pressure to alter its position on these two questions.

ren Foster held Richards to a single run in the fifth.

Harold Moskoff's pinch double with two men on in the seventh inning broke up a 2-2 deadlock and gave Lefty Davidson a 5-2 win for Jack's Old Timers over Miller's Delicatessen. It was Davidson's sixth victory. Another Lefty, Myer Jarcho, turned in a brilliant performance in the nightcap as Miller's gained a 2-0 win for a split—and undisputed possession of first place for the first time this year. Jarcho was aided by snappy defensive support.

The Olympics of Cadillac Textile moved up a notch in the standings by clipping Fall River twice, 8-5 and 10-5. Abe Lobel and Bernie Cohen turned in the wins on the mound, with each being aided by a Fred Zisquit home run. The Olympics led all the way in the opener, scoring in the first five innings. The Kavodians failed to hold a three run advantage picked up in the first inning of the second game.

Philip Dwares' Orioles stretched their winning streak to five out of their last six against Krasnoff's Creamery. A 17-hit attack, backed by Labush's 5-hit pitching and Joel Pressman's home run paced the way to a 12-2 opening game triumph. It was not that easy in the nightcap, as the Orioles spotted Krasnoff's five runs in the first and finally pulled out in front 6-5 in the fifth. Krasnoff's tied it in the sixth, but in the seventh Jerry Winograd squeezed Weiner home with the winning run.

Windsor Rhodes bettered its league standing and its prestige by walloping Arden's Jewelry 8-4 in their opener as N. Schwartz held Arden's at bay with a six-hitter and Harriet clouted a homer. The winners made their eight hits count. In the nightcap Arden's twice overcame three run deficits before exploding for a 13-7 win on only 11 hits. Karambales hit for the circuit.

Thirty-Seven Years at the Home for Aged

The Jewish Home for the Aged this Sunday celebrates "Dedication Day" at ceremonies designed to commemorate the completion of the recent construction and improvement program at the Home. Sunday's celebration, which is open to the public, affords an excellent opportunity to the Jewish people of Rhode Island to inspect the Home for the Aged, to see how it is operated and to note what pains are being taken to provide a pleasant, comfortable and secure life for our aged.

More than that, the Home on Sunday also will be observing its thirty-seventh anniversary, and it is noteworthy to review the progress and development of the Home from its humble beginning on Orms Street in 1912 to the modern plant which now stands on Hillside Avenue.

There are other phases of the work of the Jewish Home for the Aged of Rhode Island that demand consideration. First is the ever growing list of membership, which shows an increasing public interest in the Home and an awareness of its importance in the life of our community. Second is the public relations program conducted by the Home itself to eliminate the old-time stigma that formerly was attached to such an institution. Through this intelligent and adult educational program the administration of the Home has gradually dispelled that idea in the public mind, until today it is rather generally accepted that a Home for the Aged such as we have here in Providence is the place that can most successfully provide the kind of home and atmosphere and program that will enable our aged to spend their remaining years in peace and contentment.

We urge those members of our community who have not yet inspected our Home for the Aged to do so at their earliest convenience; and we offer our congratulations to the Home for its modern program and achievements. May the next thirty-seven years be as successful as the first.

Arab Soldiers

Kill 2 Israelis

TEL AVIV—Two Israeli soldiers were killed by Arab legionnaires while being escorted back to their own lines which they had crossed, according to an Israeli government communique this week.

The incident occurred near Baqa El Gharbieh south of the new lines and in full view of Israeli troops. According to the communique, the responsible legionnaires escaped to the hills.

An Israeli protest was lodged with the Transjordan Arab Legion. Permission for the Arabs to cross the lines for the harvesting was suspended, it was stated, until an explanation is given by the Amman government and the guilty punished.

"One Man's Opinion"

The Home on Hillside

By BERNARD SEGAL

Each time when I approach the Home for the Aged, I stop at the gates for a while to take in the pleasing view of the building and the grounds. Truly a thrilling view. The impression is just as satisfying when you enter the Home from the rear, on the Chace Avenue lawn, as it is on Hillside Avenue. Of the three institutions who own their locations, the Home is by all standards the better housed, the better kept, and the more capable of giving the visitor that strange feeling of civic pride.

I visited the Home last Sunday, when the day was at its June best, and the sprinklers played lively arcs of sparkling water across the lovely green lawns. Several residents were seated on the terrace and in the cheerful pavilion, whiling away the after breakfast hours. As we came near the seated group, the president, Jacob Felder, and myself, were greeted with a "Welcome to our Home" by one of the residents. I looked up at the sprawling three story brick building, at the sunlit terrace, and at the rolling lawns, and I remembered an evening in September, that seems only yesterday, when these grounds were overgrown with Fall weeds and the trees were shedding their yellowed leaves. And everywhere the crowds milled, and the barkers called, and the wheels of fortune turned, and sandwiches and soda stands did a booming business, at a Carnival for the benefit of the New Home.

The Home News of last week showed two photographs. One of the old Home on Orms Street, and the other of the present Home. The past and the present side by side. And what an impressive contrast. These are pictures that speak more than words. They speak of great strides in the span of 37 years. But who knows of all the tireless planning, the numberless meetings, of teas and luncheons, of dances and concerts, of bazaars and carnivals, of drives and solicitations that went into these contrasts in the picture of the Home of the past and of today. At the Home last Sunday, the director, Max Alexander, piled in front of me folders containing hundreds of reports and notes, and news stories and pictures compiled and clipped during the 37 years. I recognized men and women who looked, oh, so young, on these pictures and headed drives, as so many of them do now, and some of them were even at this very minute discussing the dedication program for this Sunday in the next office, their voices reaching me as I looked at these youthful faces of the days when this building was but a dream.

Tireless, unselfish men and women to whom all praise is due. Some of them are no longer with us, two of them are now residents at the Home they helped to build, and all of them will be present at the dedication on Sunday.

They will reflect on the changes within these 37 years their eyes have seen and their labor has brought about. Great changes, deep changes and not only physical and external changes. They will remember that when the Home moved from Orms Street to Hillside, only twenty-five souls were brought up from there. Now the Home houses eighty people. They will also think of the changes in the attitude towards the Home that time has wrought. The Home for the Aged is no longer the dingy gloomy place of former days. No longer do people shudder at the very mention of the name. It now provides a comfortable, safe, well appointed residence, with meals planned for health and nourishing values suited to the aged, and a supervision which is scientific, yet sympathetic and understanding. No longer is the Home an institution where the resident is the ward of the community, where his life is regimented, and where seldom does he hear a friendly word. The fears of sudden sickness are greatly allayed by the presence of a well equipped infirmary, which last year cared for 30 chronically ill and handicapped. By a rotating system of service, the Home is visited by a staff of physicians, dentists and chiropractors, to give the residents a periodic check-up, and to care for their ailments. A program of entertainments, festivals, tours, visits and occupational therapy activities, are calculated to brighten the drabness of existence that was so characteristic of life in Homes of a past age.

In the files of the Home is a unique item. It is a square wooden frame guarding under glass a large brass key and a typewritten card which reads:

Sold at the opening of the Jewish Home for the Aged June 14, 1914

The Key bought by Sima Bader. And I am told that Sima Bader paid one hundred dollars for the key, a considerable sum in those days, and a tremendous sum for Sima. She was a poor woman, and the one hundred dollars might well have been her savings of many years of hard work.

This Sunday at the dedication ceremonies on the lawns of the Home for the Aged on Hillside Avenue, Sima Bader will be there. She will be peering from behind our shoulder to see how much of our earnings and of our savings are we willing to part with, when memorial units are being offered for sale. Sima Bader of 1914 will be watching us buying rooms and units, and fence sections in 1949.

May we not put to shame the spirit of Sima Bader and those of many more like her.

Israel's Foremost Woman

By PAUL KRESH

In the first chapters of Israel's history as a new democracy the deeds and words of Golda Myerson are inextricably woven. It was she who declared, when testifying in a British military court in Haifa on behalf of two Palestine Jews on trial of "illegal possession of arms," that "every Jew in Palestine is a member of the Haganah," which was the unofficial army. She participated, too, in the fast of Jewish Agency executives when the British forbade a refugee ship to leave an Italian harbor in April, 1946. In fact, she suggested this Ghandi-like measure to the eleven members of the Jewish Agency executive. The leaders broke their fast only during Passover—when they consumed tiny fragments of matzoth and drank tea. Their fast had its effect. The British, after 101 hours, allowed the ship to sail for the Holy Land.

Mrs. Myerson was brought to the United States at the age of seven. When she was graduated from high school in Milwaukee she was class valedictorian. Later, as a teacher in the Milwaukee schools, she won the hearts of youngsters. But a new concern was capturing the young schoolteacher's imagination: Labor Zionism. After working with various Labor Zionist groups in the United States, Mrs. Myerson and her husband embarked for Palestine in search of a new life. They settled in Merhavia, one of the first agricultural cooperatives.

The young ex-schoolteacher, who had never before lived on a farm, found herself raising poultry. Mrs. Myerson as poultry-raiser is a chapter in her life which didn't last long. Three years later she was summoned to the Histadruth offices in Tel Aviv, to work in the building of a new cooperative. Since then she has served on the Women's Labor Council. She has been a director of Histadruth's aviation firm. She has served as the only woman member of its five-member secretariat.

Then there was the period of war-time service as a member of the Palestine Government's Economic Council, membership in the National Council of Palestine Jews; on the Actions Committee of the World Zionist Organization.

In 1946, she was chosen to fill one of the key diplomatic posts in Palestine—Chief of the Political Department of the Jerusalem section of the Jewish Agency. When she was sent to Moscow last fall as Israel's first Ambassador to Russia, her reputation was already established.

Today, Mrs. Myerson sometimes finds it hard to believe that she who helped to establish a new nation is now one of its first citizens. She says, "I have learned to think in Hebrew, as well as to speak it and write it, but somehow I don't suppose I'll ever learn to count by the Hebrew method. I have to do all my arithmetic in English and then translate it back."

Last spring, while in Boston, Mrs. Myerson received an overseas phone call from Israel. Israel had established its independence only three days before. "When I heard the long-distance operator say 'It's the Minister of Transportation of the Government of Israel,'" Mrs. Myerson recalled, "I realized for the first time it was official."

Arthur Rosen Heads State War Vets

Arthur Rosen of Providence was elected commander of the State Department, Jewish War Veterans at the fourth annual convention at the Crown Hotel, June 12. Mr. Rosen is succeeding Esmond S. Borod, also of Providence.

Resolutions adopted at the conclave include one calling for slum clearance and support of Senate bill 1070 which urges public housing units, research, and urban development. Others are in support of legislation prohibiting discrimination against applicants for admission to secondary non-secular schools because of race, creed, color, or national origin, support of opposition toward all Communist ideologies, increased compensation to disabled veterans and benefits for their dependents, liberalization of immigration laws, denial of entry into this country to those who have shown adherence to subversive ideologies, and a resolution calling for a program of education for troops in the Army of Occupation.

Jackson J. Holtz, Boston attorney and candidate for national commander, called for military and moral security for the future. "In the military we need a well-organized, modern army with constant training and tactics as well as modern weapons, backed up by the National Guard and reserve corps. Moral security should be divided into four points: a clear cut view toward communism, civil rights—so Russia won't be able to propagandize to the world—immigration liberalization, and not deluding ourselves as far as Germany is concerned as a buffer state."

Others elected to office were: Joseph Dickens, Providence, senior vice commander; William Bos-lowitz, Providence, junior vice commander; Harold Winston, Pawtucket, judge advocate; Leonard N. Levin, Providence, quartermaster, and Harry A. Hoffman, Providence, representative to Veterans Council.

Other speakers were: Rabbi Abraham Chill, department chaplain; Adjutant General James A. Murphy, representing Gov. John O. Pastore; William L. McGrory, of the Veterans Council; Sidney Long, convention chairman; Hoffman and Paul Robin who installed the officers.

Rabbi Gordon Re-Appointed School Head

Rabbi James I. Gordon will continue as principal and director of the Providence Hebrew Day School, it was announced at the organization's annual meeting on June 6. A graduate of Yeshiva University and ordained by the Rabbi Isaac Elchanan Theological Seminary, Rabbi Gordon assumed his position in September, 1947 for a two year period.

The Providence Hebrew Day School was only a half year old when Rabbi Gordon arrived as its head. With some fifty students and a small staff, the Day School has since gained steadily in popularity from every quarter in the city. Today the Hebrew Day School boasts of close to a hundred pupils, representing a cross-section of the Providence community, with a faculty of four full time and six part time instructors.

The program of the Hebrew Day School is designed to produce a well informed and well trained laity which will be equipped to play a competent and understanding role in future Jewish

SYD COHEN:

Sharing the Baseball Wealth

The column has not touched on any phase of the national sports scene for some time. It seems that every time it does, so much happens suddenly in the five or six days between the writing of the column and the appearance of the Herald in the home that the column is out-of-date, repetitious and much ado about nothing. Having been bruised often, the typewriter's nose has been kept clean for some time. So this week we talk about—major league baseball.

Successive Winners

Last year it was pointed out here that if the Cleveland Indians won the American League pennant, they would be the fifth different team to win in five successive years—that is, a different city would have had the championship every year of five, with no repeats and no one city getting more than one title. It had never happened before in the majors.

Well, the Indians won, a new record for World Series participation was set, and the championship lineup looked like this: 1944—St. Louis; 1945—Detroit; 1946—Boston; 1947—New York; 1948—Cleveland.

To a lesser degree the National League featured the same sort of race, and when the Braves wound up on top they became the fourth club (no repeats, as in the American) to win in a period of four years. This was also a record.

So—here we are, at the one-third mark of 1949, with two good races in progress, and with several clubs in each circuit remaining in the running. Let's see what chance there is of extending the two streaks.

Three in American

In the American League, the three teams that have not yet participated in the record are Philadelphia, Washington and Chicago. It has been 18 years since the A's last were in a World Series; it has been 16 years for the Senators, and a long, long 30 years for the White Sox. Unless a miracle occurs, the Sox will have to wait at least another year. By next year the Pale Hose rookie crop that played so well for the first month of this season may be capable of making a real fight of it.

Next—Washington. Here is a club that was supposed to battle Chicago for the cellar, or thereabouts. Up to now it hasn't developed that way, but it is hard to see the Senators continuing to challenge the leaders for long.

If either of those three clubs becomes the sixth different team to win in succession, it will be Philadelphia, which has an outstanding pitching staff and a strong front line of attack and defense. Infield reserves are their bugaboo. This, and a lack of consistency to date. But the A's definitely are a contender. So, if you like the idea and the possibility of this league streak, climb on the white elephants' bandwagon.

Four in National

In the National League, the four clubs that have not yet joined in winning pennants in the last several years are the Giants, last heard from in 1937; Blue Jays (all right, the Phillies), way way back in 1915; Pirates, in 1927, and Reds, 1940. All except Pittsburgh are currently in the running and could conceivably win, although New York shapes up as the only real pennant possibility—on paper, that is. The Pirates were supposed to be contenders, but have flopped dismally so far. Maybe they will wake up.

Have you noticed how strongly the current trend has been toward more evenly balanced teams in the majors, resulting in really terrific races? Just before the war, it was customary to find a one-team race going on in the American—three years out of four, anyway—while the National featured a pair of contenders marching neck and neck to the bitter end, eight or ten games ahead of the rest of the pack.

Now, with generous millionaire owners and growing gate receipts, and with practically every club fighting to obtain the best possible talent, competition is keener and the clubs more evenly balanced. Result: More even distribution of talent, closer races, more contenders, more interest, more fans, more money. If only the St. Louis Browns franchise were moved, the picture would be complete.

Softball team of the week: The Comets of Mal's Baby Stores, who created confusion in the standings by whipping Richards Clothing twice. The Comets moved into a second place tie with Richards and within one game of the new front-runners, Miller's Delicatessen.

Contradicts Statement

Dear Editor:

Once again I must contradict a statement made by Mrs. R. Fleisig in a letter to the editor. It is true that Mr. Rosenblatt lived here many years ago, but Mr. Lifschitz was not the first butcher here.

The first butcher was Moritz Cohn. He lived here about 80 years ago and sent kosher meat to Pawtucket and Woonsocket.

If I remember correctly Mrs. Fleisig is Mr. Rosenblatt's daughter, and I can understand her interest in this subject.

I am in my 79th year born in Providence, and what I write, I have witnessed.

Reports List Gains at Miriam Hospital

Establishment of the Isaac Gerber Lectureship and "an excellent and modern library" and creation of a new department were three of the gains listed by Dr. Herman P. Grossman, president of the Miriam Hospital Staff during 1948, in his annual report delivered at the recent annual meeting.

Expressing the hope that the Gerber Lectureship "will be a perpetual institution", Dr. Grossman said the staff's plan is "to invite a man of outstanding achievement in a medical or surgical field to address the medical profession of this state upon a topic of his choice." He added that the purpose of the lectureship is to contribute to the "cultural and scientific advancement of the local medical profession", and to honor Dr. Isaac Gerber.

The new department set up last year is the Genito-Urinary Service, Dr. Grossman reported. This service will be headed by Dr. Nathan Chaset.

Treasurer Notes Increase
Increase in the net worth of the Miriam Hospital from $116,016.78 on January 1, 1948 to $128,355.98 on December 31 was noted in the treasurer's report. Total assets for that period were listed as $140,301.96, total liabilities as $11,945.98. An operating deficit for the year of $38,797.41 also was reported. This was in direct relation to the operating income and expenses, including payroll, for the year. The deficit was overcome by other income listed by the hospital, such as Community Fund, cities and state appropriations, donations, interest and garage rental, in the amount of $46,091.47.

Party Manners

for pleasant party lines

It pays to be poised. Party line neighbors are quick to respond to those who are calm and collected when they ask for the line in an emergency. By sharing courteously, everyone benefits... and party line service is smooth.

It's good to be gracious. When a series of calls must be made, it's nice to remember the others on the line by allowing time between calls. This, too, helps give all party line neighbors their fair share of service.

It's polite to be prompt. Answering the telephone as quickly as possible shows consideration for the person who is calling. Telephoning at "off peak" hours — in the middle of the day, or evenings after 8 — is also appreciated.

A NOTE to all party line users

As a general thing, party line service is good enough to meet the requirements of most party line users.

Right now, however, many people who would normally have individual service are on party lines — because this is the only way in which we could supply telephones to the thousands who have asked for new service in the past three years.

Until the time comes when we can provide everybody with the exact grade of service desired, won't you remember that party line service is largely what you make it. We'll do our best to handle your calls smoothly and efficiently. But, in the long run, the quality of party line service depends a great deal on how it's used.
