600 Algerian Jews Sent Home by Israel

PARIS, France—Six hundred Algerian Jews who arrived at Marseilles on their way to Israel were instructed to return to North Africa by the Israeli authorities in France.

These people were not in possession of Israeli visas, and had hoped to make all the necessary arrangements at Marseilles. Their passage was organized by a body representing Algerian Jewry, and the scheme had the full approval of the Jewish Agency authorities there.

The Israeli Government representatives in France refused to issue visas to the group from Algeria, explaining that their turn would come later, and that they would then receive the necessary papers.

There were angry scenes at Marseilles, but the Israeli authorities, acting on instructions from Tel Aviv, remained firm, and the immigrants were compelled to return to North Africa.

According to a statement by the Israeli authorities, unauthorized immigration invariably creates chaos at the reception centres, and the Government has decided to set an example by its attitude on this particular occasion.

The action of the Israeli authorities has been severely criticized by Zionists in France and Britain.

Herzl Re-burial Set for Aug. 10

TEL AVIV—Jewish Agency officials announced this week that the date for the removal of the remains of Theodor Herzl, founder of modern Zionism, from the outskirts of Vienna to Jerusalem, has been definitely set for Aug. 10.

The remains will be reburied immediately without eulogies but with special prayers, the announcement stated.

Perons Attend Party For Israeli Minister

BUENOS AIRES—Argentine President Juan Peron, Mrs. Peron and other high officials of the government were guests of honor at a reception arranged here this week by the Organization Israelita Argentina for Pablo Manguel, newly-appointed Argentine Minister to Israel. Mr. Manguel is expected to leave for Tel Aviv within a few months to take up his new duties.

President Peron, speaking at the gathering said: "I feel a deep fondness and great respect towards Israel." Lauding Argentine Jews for their honesty and diligence, Peron voiced the hope that Manguel would become the bridge between Argentina and Israel and that he would aid Israel and ask for Israel's aid if necessary. Peron concluded his remarks with the toast, "Long Live Israel!"

Madame Peron declared that

Catholics Name Rabbi to Post

ERIE, Pa.—Rabbi Abraham B. Shoulson, of this city, has been appointed head of a new department of Hebrew and Middle East studies, at Gannon College here, a Catholic institution. The department was inaugurated, according to a college announcement, because "the state of Israel is now a fact and more and more emphasis must be given to Hebrew as a modern language."

The announcement also pointed out that the "course of events has demonstrated the Middle East will play an important role in the future of the family of nations in and outside the United Councils." Rabbi Shoulson, who was named a full professor, is a native of Jerusalem and has four brothers also serving as rabbis in various sections of the United Nations.

the appointment of a Jew as Argentine Minister to the new state proved that Peron repudiates racism. Responding, the new Minister asserted that the Jewish state "repeated David's deed in defeating Goliath." All major Jewish groups participated in the reception and several Jewish leaders including the president of the DAIA, central representative Jewish body in Argentina, expressed the thanks of Argentine Jewry to Peron.

Jews, Negroes Out At Lake Huron

TORONTO—The Ontario Court of Appeals this week upheld a restrictive covenant barring the sale of land at a Lake Huron summer resort near here to Jews or Negroes. Attorneys for the appellants—Mrs. Annie Noble, the seller and Bernard Wolfe, the purchaser—indicated that they will take the matter to the Supreme Court of Canada.

May Offer Jordan Mediterranean Post

LONDON—Israel is reported to be considering the creation of a free zone in the port of Haifa for use of the Kingdom of Jordan as a gesture of goodwill to its Arab neighbors.

Another overture, already forecast by Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett, is expected to be the announcement that women and children among the Arab refugees may return to their homes if their men folk are still in Israeli territory.

Hungarian Jews Flee Country

VIENNA—Although the Hungarian authorities have just about sealed the Austro-Hungarian frontier, Jewish refugees continue to cross the border.

Between 40 and 50 Hungarian Jews daily succeed in reaching this capital, authorities stated. Most of those attempting the hazardous crossing at night are youths. Since the Hungarian side of the frontier is guarded at strategic points by machinegun posts, barbed wire and searchlights, getting over the border is no inconsiderable undertaking.

A less dangerous but more circuitous route is by way of Czechoslovakia. But in recent days the Prague authorities have also redoubled their precautions against the illegal exit of eastern refugees, particularly Hungarians. The figure of 40 or 50 refugees now compares with the weekly arrivals of as many as 3,000 a month or more ago, before the Hungarian authorities made the frontier almost escapeproof.

Under the Haifa plan, Jordan, which does not have a Mediterranean seaport of her own, would be allowed to bring imports into the free zone without paying Israeli customs duty and to carry them overland into Jordan without interference.

It is believed by the sponsors or the plan that establishment of the sea outlet would have more value in promoting friendship with the Arabs if it were undertaken by Israel on her own initiative rather than reserved as a bargaining point.

Another thought is that a trading route will be established between Israel and Transjordan encouraging commerce between the two countries.

Free Speech Reverses Anti-Semitic Fine

WASHINGTON—The U. S. Supreme Court this week refused to consider its recent controversial "free speech" decision which reversed the conviction of the Rev. Arthur W. Terminiello, a Birmingham, Ala. priest, who had been fined $10 by an Illinois court for making an "inflamatory" anti-Semitic speech at a 1946 meeting sponsored by the Christian Veterans of America.

A request for a rehearing was made by Chicago authorities who charged that the Supreme Court "ignored its own rules" in setting aside the conviction in a 5 to 4 decision. The Supreme Court denied the rehearing plea without comment.

Ben Gurion Warns of War Renewal

TEL AVIV—A warning that the Arabs may renew the war against Israel and that the Jewish state may be facing hardships of greater magnitude than those of last year, was sounded last week by Premier David Ben Gurion.

Speaking at Ramat Hakovesh, one of the hardest hit Jewish settlements, Mr. Ben Gurion declared that Israel will not go to war even over territorial disputes but that there is a distinct possibility that the foe may attack the Jewish state.

The Premier's warning was issued against the background of reports that high Israeli officials were giving serious consideration to Arab war threats. The mounting Arab war talk, according to informed sources here, has been accompanied by military preparations and belligerent movements by the Transjordan Arab Legion, which was reported drilling thousands of young men for an assault on Israel. Another indication of Arab belligerence was the decision reached by Arab Palestine leaders, at a conference near Ramallah, to form a Palestine Defense Corps through the conscription of men between the ages of 18 and 45.

Add Two Ships To Israeli Line

TEL AVIV—The Zim shipping company will soon add two ships to the American Israeli line, with a tonnage of 10,500 each, a director of the Zim concern announced here.

By agreement with the United States Maritime Commission, through which the ships are being acquired, the new vessels will carry 50 percent United States loan goods for the next two or three years. The price for carrying loan goods will be ten percent of cargo value. Zim is negotiating for the acquisition of three freighters for the Mediterranean line, one of which would carry fruit.

Negotiations are also under way for a passenger and freight carrier. A total of six to seven million dollars from the Export-Import Bank loan will be spent for shipping. In the next three years it is expected that enough trained Israeli seamen will be available to man the fleet.

TWG YOUTHS ASSAULTED

LONDON—Francis William Shaw, a 21-year-old London youth, was charged this week with assaulting two Jewish youths who were hospitalized as a result of the injuries they sustained. The court refused to release the prisoner on bail on the advice of the police officials who thought that if the prisoner were released, "it might not be too healthy for him."

Scenes at Center South Providence Day Camp

THE PROVIDENCE JEWISH HERALD, FRIDAY, JULY 15, 1949

Doesn't look like much now, but wait till we're through! Girls at the South Providence Day Camp, under the direction of Seena Kovitch, senior counselor, and Marcia Lustig, junior counselor, work on projects during their arts and crafts session.

Around the table, left to right, are Jo An Gordon, Marsha Flint, Carol Hayman, Marlene Gabar, Sheila Hollander, Marcia Krasnoff, Miss Kovitch, Rita Mantell, Ruth Silverman, Ellen Gerstenblatt, Sandra Mendelsohn, Shirley Stayman, Miss Lustig, Barbara Kornisser, Elaine Sandler, and Joan Silverlieb. "Providence Plan" Success in Baltimore

The Women's Division of The Jewish Welfare Fund of Baltimore, Maryland, launched their "G DAY" drive on May 15. This one-day, fund-raising campaign idea was modeled after the "Providence Plan". Publicity, organization and solicitation were copied from the now-famous "M" DAY event used by the Women's Division of the General Jewish Committee last September.

Mrs. Alfred Tavin, chairman of the Baltimore one-day campaign, reported a 300 percent increase over last year's contribution. She attributed this magnificent increase to the one-day drive.

In January, Mrs. Robert Hochberg, publicity chairman, went to Baltimore at the invitation of the Women's Division in that city and explained the workings of the "Providence Plan" in detail. On "G DAY," Mrs. Albert Pilavin was asked to give the kick-off speech to more than 1200 workers assembled at the Emerson Hotel in Baltimore as they started off on their rounds of solicitation.

The Baltimore group presented Mrs. Pilavin with a handsome album of clippings and publicity used in their "G DAY" campaign. This album bears the inscription, "From the Women's Division of The Jewish Welfare Fund of Baltimore, Maryland to The Women's Division of Providence, Rhode Island for their Wonderful Idea and Inspiration!"

Danny Kaye Plans One-Nighter Tour

NEW YORK—After completing his summer tour, Danny Kaye is expected to be launched on a series of theatre-one-nighters during October in conjunction with the premiere of his initial film for Warner Bros., "Happy Times." Danny's circuit around the key cities will be dressed up in well-ballyhooed caravan style as part of the film's promotional push being mapped by the studio. Incidentally, Danny has a percentage deal with the Warners on his picture.

Obituary

HARRY R. ROSEN

Harry R. Rosen, 63, formerly of 8 Edgewood Boulevard, died Monday night in Miami, Fla., after a long illness. He was the founder and president, until his retirement in 1940, of the Franklin Auto Supply Co.

Funeral services were held yesterday from Temple Beth El with Rabbi William G. Braude and Rabbi Morris Schussheim officiating. Burial was in Temple Beth El Cemetery.

Born in Russia, the son of Morris and Bessie Rosen, he came to Providence with his parents when he was 12 years old. In 1915 he founded the auto supply company.

He was one of the founders and first president of Temple Beth Israel, and had been an honorary member of the board of the temple for many years. He was active in the affairs of the Jewish Home for the Aged, the Zionist District of Providence, the Providence Jewish Fraternal Association and the Touro Association, and was a founder and charter member of the Rhode Island Jewish Fraternal Association.

Mr. Rosen was a past master of the Redwood Lodge, F. and A. M., and was formerly a member of the Kiwanis, the Providence Lions Club, the Town Criers of Providence and the Tall Cedars of Lebanon. He served for several terms as treasurer of the Miriam Hospital and had since been an honorary member of the board of trustees. He was a member of the national board of directors of the Automobile Association of America.

He is survived by his wife, Harriet E. (Jacobs) Rosen; a son, Albert L. Rosen; a daughter, Miriam L. Rosen, and three grandchildren.

MRS. SARAH GOLDBERG

Funeral services for Mrs. Sarah (Gere) Goldberg, 77, of 46 Shawmut Street, who died July 8 at her home at Touisset after several days' illness, were held Sunday from her home. Rabbis David Werner and Carol Klein officiated and burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery. She was the widow of Harris Goldberg.

She had been a resident of Providence for 70 years, coming to this country from Kovna, Lithuania. She was the daughter of the late Michael and Bella Gere.

A member of many Jewish civic organizations, Mrs. Goldberg was a founder of the Ladies' Union Aid, and a charter member of the Sons of Zion Synagogue and the Jewish Home for the Aged.

Surviving are four sons, Barney M., Thomas H., Philip B., and Leo M. Goldberg, of Providence; three daughters, Mrs. Mary Horowitz and Mrs. Gertrude Harris of Providence and Mrs. Milton Epstein of Glendale, Long Island, and 10 grandchildren.

PHILIP SADLER

Funeral services for Philip Sadler, husband of Katharine (Wolfe) Sadler of 163 Camp Street, who died Monday after a short illness, were held Tuesday from the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Rabbi Carol Klein officiated and burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

A veteran of World War I, Mr. Sadler was part owner of the Sadler Leather Findings Company in this city. He was born in Odesa, Russia, May 2, 1891, and came to this country 47 years ago, residing for the past 25 years in Providence.

Besides his wife, he leaves his mother, Mrs. Rose Sadler; two sons, Harold and Norman Sadler, a brother, Max Sadler, and one grandchild, all of this city.

ELI HARRISON

The funeral of Eli Harrison of 71-A March Street, who died Sunday, was held Monday at the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Rabbi Morris G. Silk officiated. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Mr. Harrison, who came to this country from Russia, 45 years ago, was employed at the Davol Rubber Co. for the past 12 years, and was a member of Congregation Ansher Kovner.

He was the widower of Mrs. Dora Harrison. Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Samuel Jacobson of Pawtucket; two sons, Irving Harrison of Everett, Mass., and Samuel Harrison of Providence, and four grandchildren.

HOLLYWOOD—Ezra Stone, the "Henry Aldrich" of radio fame who refuses to grow older, is a contented man. And he plans to stay that way by continuing his career according to present recipe, which is a measured blend of acting, directing and farming.

Ezra, with his well organized, smoothly-running schedule, is as much of an antithesis as can be found to the character he has portrayed for more than ten years on NBC—bumbling, confused Henry Aldrich of "The Aldrich Family."

Stone is one of those happy persons who always knew what he wanted, went after it hammer and tongs, and achieved it. As a teenager, he made up his mind to be an actor. His first two chances on Broadway turned out to be duds, but when he landed in a hit, "Three Men On A Horse," he didn't rest on his laurels as many young actors might have been tempted to do. Instead, he made full use of this chance to study stage management at first hand, producing and casting with veteran George Abbott, who put on the show.

When Abbott produced his next, "Brother Rat," also a hit, Ezra was cast as a bewildered boy who got into one scrape after another. Ezra didn't know it then, but when he played that role he was preparing for Henry. He continued to study stage management and direction under Abbott.

Ezra's next role was in "What A Life," another long resident on Broadway. Now Ezra played Henry himself, and when author Clifford Goldsmith decided to adapt the play for radio presentation, Ezra went along. He has been playing Henry ever since, and laughs at any suggestion that he might tire of the role.

"How could I?" he inquires. "There's a completely new script every week with a different storyline and all new sides for everyone, including me."

The effect of a changing voice is a vocal trick Stone learned when he was barely past the boy-into-man stage himself, and he can summon it at will. Someone recently asked him what he'd do if his son, Joseph, now five years old, should challenge him for the role in a few years. Stone replied that he wouldn't mind Joseph's becoming an actor, but wouldn't yield his own part even to his son.

Ezra caters to the bucolic side of his nature by running a big Pennsylvania farm, to which he continually is adding acreage. Although practical in the management of his place and competent in its every chore, Ezra betrays his profession in little ways that are distinctly unrustic. For instance, he has hit on an ingenious scheme for naming his cattle. He is giving them names of Shakespearean characters in alphabetical order, so that when he wants to know how old they are he'll remember the A's are older, the B's are next, etc.

Stone hasn't let that George Abbott training get rusty. He directs a play every season, always with those acute comedy touches that characterize Abbott. Last year it was "Me and Molly" (based on the famous Molly Goldberg family of Radio). Then came "At War With the Army." He also lectures at universities on the various phases of his art.

And, each week, there's always Henry to remind the competent farmer-director-lecturer-writer that primarily he's an actor. "It satisfies the ego in me," Ezra confesses.

Klein-Frank

The marriage of Miss Doris Ruth Frank, daughter of Mrs. Harry Frank of Twelfth Street, to Perry Klein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Klein of Carr Street, took place Sunday afternoon in the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel. Rabbi Carol Klein officiated.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Jacob Frank, the bride was attired in a white organdy dress with a sweetheart neckline and full skirt, and a fingertip veil. She carried a Bible marked with an orchid.

Miss Muriel B. Frank, sister of the bride and maid of honor, wore yellow eyelet and carried Talisman roses. Louis Sherman was best man.

After a wedding trip to Lake Placid, N. Y., the couple will reside at 60 Twelfth Street.

Shechtman-Cohen

Miss Ruthe Sutelle Cohen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Cohen of Fall River, was married to Charles Sanford Shechtman, of 5½ Salisbury Street, son of Mrs. Bessie Shechtman of 62 Lippitt Street, at a 6 o'clock ceremony performed July 3 at the Ahavath Shalom Synagogue. Rabbi Morris G. Silk, assisted by Cantor David Einstein, officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, chose an ivory-colored gown of imported brocade metallic silk fashioned with a chapel length train falling from a bustle back, and a fingertip veil of tulle. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses with an orchid center and streamers of lily-of-the-valley.

Miss Pearl Cohen, who was maid of honor for her sister, was attired in a pink taffeta gown with a bustle back and a headpiece of pink roses matching her cascade bouquet.

Sidney Shechtman of Fall River was best man, and ushers were Harold Cohen, Martin Beckenstein, Arnold Elman, Murray Kravitz, Irving Shechtman and Simon Shechtman.

The couple have returned from a wedding trip to New York, Washington, Maryland and Virginia and are now residing at 5½ Salisbury Street.

Summer Recipes

Now is the time for a real "cuttin' up." We usually think of ice cold watermelon for a refresher but the large sweet canteloupes coming in from the Salt River Valley of Arizona and the San Joaquin Valley of California are perfect for the "cuttin' up."

If you are the "picking and squeezing" kind of melon buyer the Western Growers Association has several suggestions for you. They say "when canteloupes are mature, they separate from the vine of their own accord and at this stage are known as "full-slip." They separate cleanly from the stem leaving a slightly sunken, smooth, well-calloused scar. The netting of mature melons is coarse, corky and grayish in color. A slight softening at the blossom end may indicate ripe, mature melons, but it is not an infallible test by any means. Don't be a pincher. Remember pinchers before you may have softened the unripe melons and then you are misled. Depend on the "full-slip" and quality of the netting as your guides in choosing canteloupes.

"Wash the melons and allow to dry before placing in the refrigerator for chilling. Wrap well in wax paper and then in heavy paper bags before placing in refrigerator. Maybe that sounds silly but it does keep the flavor in the melons where you want it and keeps it out of the butter, margarine, and other foods which easily pick up other flavors. Foil or film wraps don't need the extra covering of the paper bag. Chill melons thoroughly. Never dilute the flavor by trying to chill with ice cubes in the cavities.

"Melons are excellent for breakfast, a refreshing appetizer and delicious dessert. They are high in vitamins and low in calories."

RAINBOW COCKTAIL

3 cups chilled canteloupe balls

1 cup fresh strawberries gingerale and sprigs of mint

Make canteloupe balls with small cutter or with a measuring spoon. Combine with strawberries. Serve with a dash of "zesty" gingerale and garnish with the sprigs of mint. Serves four.

SEA BREEZE COOLER

2 small canteloupes, chilled
1 pint lemon or pineapple sherbet

Cut melons in half crosswise. Remove seeds and fill cavities with sherbet. If desired place fresh, sweetened berries in the cavities first. You will probably recognize this as just a variation of the old vanilla ice cream favorite-canteloupe a la mode. Serves four.

SEA BREEZE SALAD

1 large canteloupe
1 cup fresh, sweetened fruit (apricots and cherries)

Cut chilled canteloupe crosswise into slices about an inch thick. Remove rind and arrange the melon in circles on Iceberg lettuce cups. Fill the circles with a combination of the fresh fruits including balls or "chips" made from the ends of the melons. Add a few of those tiny, cool, green Thompson seedless grapes. For the dressing use fresh lime juice sweetened with honey. It will add (Continued on Page 6)

Program for Jewry

Considerable discussion should result from the interesting address made to the Rabbinical Assembly last week by Rabbi Ira Eisenstein, leader of the Society for the Advancement of Judaism.

Calling for the establishment of a common religion arising from this country's "brief but magnificent history as a nation," Rabbi Eisenstein stressed that we must continue to recognize the rights of all men to worship as they please. Beyond creedal differences, however, he urged that all Americans unite in expressing the religious feeling which is part of our common heritage, principally through spiritualizing our national holidays and exalting the great events which they celebrate.

"When Americans meet on neutral American spiritual ground," Rabbi Eisenstein said, "when they find a means of experiencing the emotions of religion through the sacred moments and memories of American life, the sharp edge of their separate and conflicting traditions must be blunted."

"When the American holidays are spiritualized, the best values of religion will be communicated to the vast number of Americans, who, for one reason or another, have held themselves aloof from the institutions of religion."

In light of the recognition that as American Jews we must work out our own destiny and thereby make a maximum contribution to the society in which we live, Rabbi Eisenstein's other suggestions should be equally evocative of fruitful discussion.

As a religious community, Rabbi Eisenstein declared, American Jews can best contribute towards our national ideals through the following program:

1. American Jewry must develop a truly democratic community in which the ablest command positions of authority.
2. The pulpit must remain completely free for the articulation of honest opinion. A guarantee of freedom of speech should be incorporated into the by-laws of every synagogue.
3. The triumphs of the people of Israel in the field of social justice must become a source of religious teaching. (The study and interpretation of Jewish life in Israel thereby constitute a contribution to American democracy.)
4. The teaching of social justice through the synagogue pulpit must be supplemented by active participation in contemporary social issues.
5. The special contribution of religion to the strengthening of democracy lies in developing individual faith so that the soul may be fortified against discouragement and disappointment.

Underlying Rabbi Eisenstein's suggestions is the apparent conviction that the American Jewish community can and should be in the forefront of efforts to defend and strengthen our democracy.

A similar belief is implicit in the statement made by Dr. Jacob R. Marcus, newly-elected president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, a statement worthy of complete endorsement.

"The American Jew is determined to do what lies in his power to further what he conceives to be the finest in the American hopes of personal and spiritual liberty. He needs these rights for himself to survive as a human being. He believes that only through these can America itself survive. Because of his love for this land, he is determined to help it to be true to itself."

British Release

Six Million in Funds

TEL AVIV—The British Government will release $6,000,000 in contributions by British Jewry which had formerly been prohibited to Israel, British Minister Alexander Knox Helm advised David Horowitz, Undersecretary of the Israeli Treasury. This concession was made at the Anglo-Israeli financial talks, opened earlier by Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett.

In his opening remarks Sharett pointed out that the conference was called at the request of the British who desire to settle outstanding problems which arose as a result of the termination of the Palestine Mandate.

Career Counseling of Jews

from The Congress Weekly

By WALTER DUCKAT

Young people come to the Jewish vocational and other agencies to learn among other things occupational information and its relationship to their individual interests and abilities.

Older People Hurt

A very difficult type of applicant is the older man or woman who lacks a marketable skill. Employers often refuse to interview highly qualified persons above forty-five. If this is true of older non-Jewish workers, it is generally even more acute among Jews who have two strikes against them: their age and their religion. This is a lamentable waste of human resources because only a small percentage of Jewish workers have accumulated sufficient funds to carry them for any extended period. Social security benefits throughout the country average only $25.00 a month. Consequently, many of our older persons who are still able to work become dependent, either upon their children or public or private relief.

Jewish vocational agencies struggle with this problem but find that at best their efforts are pitifully inadequate. They do special solicitation and attempt to arouse the public to the importance of having older workers. A good public relations job enlisting newspaper, radio and movies, subway posters and other mediums was recently launched by the Federation Employment Service of New York City. It led to a substantial increase in the number of jobs secured for older persons registered with the agency. But gratifying as the results were, the number of applicants greatly exceeded the number of jobs available. It is an agonizingly slow process to educate employers to face up to this problem.

In the last few years a great number of Jewish veterans have been served by Jewish vocational agencies. According to a recent census, most of the veterans of World War II are either employed or in training. It is likely that this applies to the bulk of Jewish veterans.

Oscar Ewing, Federal Security Agency Administrator, recently noted that 97 percent of all World War II veterans in the civilian labor market are now employed. Of the approximately 14,500,000 male veterans, about 1,100,000 are in various schools and outside the labor market.

High On Education

It is a reasonable conjecture that of the more than a half million Jews who served in our armed forces a somewhat higher percentage of them may be in training than non-Jews. This is based on the traditional Jewish zeal for education.

What may be an interesting shift in Jewish occupational preferences is the widespread interest in skilled crafts. More people are recognizing that incomes in skilled occupations are generally higher, economic security greater than in some of the more genteel professions such as law, or teaching in many communities.

Many Jews still manifest a strong interest in various professional occupations but a diffusion of occupational interest appears to be under way. There seems to be a greater receptivity towards lesser populated professional fields.

In recent years, most of the Jewish vocational services throughout the country have had to cope with the vocational counseling and placement of emigres.

This group posed staggering problems. Victims of indescribable hardships, they frequently manifested physical and emotional problems which required unusual skill and effort to deal with. In addition to their pressing financial needs, usually met by the United Service for New Americans, they needed sympathetic orientation to American work habits, and a host of other practices which were strange to them. Many had to learn English before they could be employed.

Few of them possessed marketable skills. A small percentage who were experienced in the needle trades were readily absorbed upon their arrival here. Probably the most difficult segment of the employables among them were the professionals, those who were formerly doctors, dentists, lawyers and religious functionaries. Because of a variety of reasons, among them professional licensing, it proved enormously difficult to reestablish them within their professional callings. It is an involved process to salvage their training or to redirect them into new fields.

Emotionally Upset

Another substantial portion of applicants are clients who may suffer from a variety of emotional disturbances ranging from a mild neurotic condition to psychotic disturbances. Frequently, it is possible to aid lesser distributed clients with both their vocational and personal adjustment problems simultaneously. Ordinarily, the vocational service will attempt to diagnose personal problems of such clients and refer them for treatment to an appropriate community agency.

Very often, young women holding down well paying jobs seek our services. Upon analysis it is found that there is little amiss in their vocational adjustment. The real problem turns out to be that the client's social life is inadequate. Suggestions are often made concerning hobbies, cultural and fraternal and communal activities which may enrich their leisure time activities and reduce their feeling of frustration, often common among unmarried women.

A noteworthy recent development is the growing number of young men and women, chiefly members of youth Zionist groups, who seek information on trades and professions which may be useful in Israel.

Play Pivotal Role

The Jewish vocational agencies serve a pivotal role in Jewish communal life, and through their special knowledge of occupations, labor market conditions, educational conditions and community resources, they broaden the social and economic horizons of their applicants. They often serve as trouble shooters in spotting emotional disturbances early and referring such clients to appropriate community agencies. By working with clients early, they may spare them and the community the needless waste of time, money and effort otherwise spent in making a wrong vocational choice. They may help strengthen Jewish loyalties by encouraging their applicants to identify themselves with Jewish communal life.

They not only serve individuals who apply directly for such services but the clients referred by a network of Jewish agencies in the community who turn to the Jewish vocational adjustment. Many individuals coming to J.V.S. often have additional problems requiring help, viz. financial aid, recreational, social, medical and

More About New York ...

There are legitimate theatres offering the great hits, for shows that survive into this period are all lusty and hardy ... Within easy drives are locality playhouses with several others, and "straw hat" tryout and revival productions ... You have a wide choice of concerts, indoor and outdoor opera, a dozen swanky or swift cabarets and a hundred minor ones ... There are three big-league baseball teams within a taxi hop from Times Square, always one and often two at home ... There are a half-dozen boxing shows each week, al fresco or, like most of the burg, air-conditioned.

There are whole little worlds not geared just for tourists—Chinatown, Little Italy, Harlem, Yorkville, the remnants of the Ghetto, Japanese settlements, Persian and Turkish and gypsy localities, even a white Russian colony.

The Stage Door: Paulette Goddard, twitted for exotic evening dress (without hosiery), observed the following afternoon anking (and such ankles) along 5th avenue with more sensible covering. Leonora Corbett of the British stage is a new Yankee Doodle Dandy ... Not too many playgoers know it, but "The Importance of Being Earnest" was dashed off by Oscar Wilde when he was happily married, and not after his famous fumble ... Clark Gable told reporters he considered himself lucky to wind up with $1,000 after a year of earning $6,000 weekly. Lucky is right. One columnist we know (he makes almost twice that much) winds up owing his heirs 10 times what Gable keeps.

Sounds in the Night: In the Mermaid room: "Some big name actors have talent, but most have press agents." ... In the Copacabana: "She didn't mind his wife, at all. She couldn't stand his girl friends." ... At Howie's: "Instead of giving Hollywood newlyweds best wishes, everybody gives them odds." ... At Yank Sing: "He does the stage more ham than good." ... In Bradley's: "Many a true word is spoken in whispers." ... At Pallini's: "A typical society triangle—him, his wife and her money."

psychiatric facilities. Because they are familiar with community resources, the counselors can direct their clients to group guidance programs reaching thousands of Jewish youth and adults throughout the community where information germane to Jewish vocational adjustment is presented and discussed.

The J.V.S., throughout the country, also cooperates in clearing job orders, exchanging information on job seeking and discriminatory experiences of Jews and related activities. They work cooperatively with the public employment services and other related agencies on behalf of their clients and the general community. They engage in a variety of other interpretative functions through releases and occupational studies which are significant to the Jewish community. Although comparatively new on the American Jewish communal scene, Jewish vocational agencies have attained significant stature in recent years.

SYD COHEN:

That Gordon Affair

Once in a while a sports columnist turns out a story that somehow appeals more to the reading public than does his other offerings; it may not meet with general agreement, but it makes enough of an impression to evoke some comment, and that is more than happens in nine cases out of ten. It need hardly be said that such a response is gratifying and flattering, whether favorable or otherwise.

Two weeks ago, following the story in this column about the current problems of Sid Gordon of the New York Giants, the comments started to flow in like a rising tide. Friends and casual acquaintances alike made it a point to discuss the article, which treated on anti-semitism on the part of the fans.

It is only being honest to report that at a ratio of two to one the comments were not favorable, to the extent that the boys thought I erred in bringing the story to light—that a subject like that should be left alone and ignored. Yet, the fact remains that these readers were very much aware of the story, that it interested them no little, brought out a subject that made them do considerable thinking—and therefore was entirely newsworthy.

Does it do any good to hide or ignore a story that deals with reported anti-semitism in the sports world? I don't know. Maybe we make too much of a fuss over such things, maybe not enough. My purpose was in relating a surprising and disturbing story involving a nationally famous Jewish athlete, probably the most outstanding of current Jewish sports figures.

At any rate, the story was not out of proportion to its importance, in view of what happened immediately after this column picked it up. The very next week, in the June 29 issue of the Sporting News, the following item appeared, with a New York dateline:

Deny Reports

"Reports that Pitcher Gerald Staley of the Cardinals had thrown a duster at Sid Gordon of the Giants and that the St. Louis team had made insulting remarks about the Jewish third baseman's religion during the Cards' last visit here were dismissed by President Ford Frick of the National League as baseless.

"The day after the game two of the New York papers mentioned the reports, which were promptly and vigorously denied by Manager Eddie Dyer and the Cardinals.

"Staley did not throw at Gordon and anyone who says any member of my club insulted Sid is a liar," Dyer said heatedly. "We got a lot of respect for Gordon as a ball player and as a man."

"When Commissioner A. B. Chandler was asked about the report, he said:

Eternal Light Starts Summer Series

The Eternal Light will launch its special summer series, a discussion radio program based upon selected passages from the Bible, and entitled "The Words We Live By." The first program heard Sunday afternoon over WJAR, will offer a spontaneous discussion of Jacob's dream from the Book of Genesis. Participating as special guest will be Ben Grauer, well-known NBC radio and television personality, and narrator of its documentary program "Living—1949".

Doctor Judah I. Goldin, associate professor of religion and Hillel director at the State University of Iowa, will serve as moderator. Members of the regular panel featured with Mr. Grauer will be Marvin Lowenthal and Marie Sykin, both of whom have written and lectured extensively on Jewish affairs.

This Eternal Light series, which will be presented as a public service of the National Broadcasting Company, will run for a period of ten weeks.

Have you arranged to take the Herald with you on your vacation?

mon Lightman, vice chairman; Harry Finkelstein, financial secretary; Isadore Wuraffic, assistant financial secretary and recording secretary, and Dr. P. M. Phillips, treasurer.

On the executive committee are Harry Richman, chairman; Mr. and Mrs. Max Berman, Mr. and Mrs. Alter Boyman, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. Black, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Shprecher, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Schuster, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Schwartz, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Waxman, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Chaet, Mr. and Mrs. Israel Resnick, Mrs. Richman, Mrs. Korman, Mrs. I. Perler, Arthur Einstein, Abraham Grebstein, Martin Gross, Joseph Levin, I. A. Segal, Charles Lappin, Joseph Biller, Eli Wein and Abraham Meltzer.

Mr. Boyman will speak about Dr. Theodor Herzl, and Dr. Phillips will talk on Chaim Nahum Bialick, whose memorial is observed this month.

Refreshments will be served by Mr. and Mrs. Lightman in honor of the marriage of their son, Benjamin Lightman, last Sunday.

All members of the Poale Zion are invited to attend.

In charge of arrangements are Mr. Lightman, Mr. Resnick and Nathan Izeman.

Marcus Biography High School Project

NEW YORK—A juvenile biography of Col. David Marcus, West Point graduate who was killed last year in Jerusalem while serving with the Israeli Army, will be published next fall by the Bloch Publishing Company as a result of an assignment given to a group of Brooklyn high school students, it was reported recently.

The seniors, including one non-Jewish student, were asked to portray the life of a great American and wound up with the Marcus biography. Representing the work of eight boys and girls, the volume—to be entitled "Mickey Marcus"—will serve as source of income for the Col. Marcus Scholarship Fund of the Hebrew University in Jerusalem since all royalties will go to the fund.

U. S. Action Urged to Bar Escape of Nazi

NEW YORK—Pointing to the recent disappearance of a Nazi war crimes suspect who was released from custody pending his trial in the U. S. Zone of Germany, the World Jewish Congress has urged American authorities to see to it that Martin Weiss, notorious SS officer who was in charge of the Vilna Ghetto, be kept incarcerated until his trial.

The request was communicated to Col. Edward H. Young, chief of the Army's War Crimes Division in Washington, in a letter, made public on June 29, over the signature of Dr. Robert S. Marcus, Political Director of the World Jewish Congress.

Weiss was a fugitive from justice for more than four years before his apprehension in the American zone. He is scheduled for trial by the German authorities. Dr. Marcus, expressing fears that Weiss may again flee the jurisdiction of the court, urged the U. S. Army authorities to instruct the Germans not to release him pending trial.

incidents, we do not disregard them, but check them for accuracy. However, this is primarily a case for Ford Frick, as president of the National League, to investigate. We have the right to assume he will not let any such incident pass without taking proper steps."

Right after this second page story, a syndicated Jewish sports column carried this version of the affair:

"The National League is agog over the accusation made by Manager Leo Durocher of the N. Y. Giants against the St. Louis Cardinals. Leo the Lip doesn't like the racial epithets the boys are tossing at his favorite Sid Gordon. A rhubarb threatened on the recent eastern swing made by the Cards when Gerry Staley, their young hurler, flattened Sid with a couple of bad pitches. Durocher protested to Umpire Bill Stewart and then blew off steam to the effect that the westerners have been calling Gordon naughty names all year.

"Manager Eddie Dyer of the Cards swears his boys are not using racial words on Gordon and in fact goes out of his way to say that he wished he could have nine guys like Gordon on his team even if it seemed like tampering with players. Gordon is quiet on the subject since he is a tough cookie who can take care of himself with his dukes. It is no secret he has contended with this sort of pressure before although he never said a word about it to anyone. Only recently he confided to a mutual friend that one player, new out of the league, was very vicious in this respect."

Recalling the comments made in this column, it will be noted that players, as well as fans, now are reported to be in on the deal. Their denials may be perfectly honest, and I am willing to accept them on that basis, but now the situation has gone beyond the mere comments of a columnist. It is considerably more important than one man's opinion of good material when a major league manager complains openly about it, when the league president and the commissioner of baseball are brought into the picture and when the "victim" reportedly admits that he had trouble with other ball players in the past because of his religion. When all this happens it is no longer a time to be quiet and a matter to ignore.

For the time being the case may be considered closed. National League players undoubtedly will refrain from racial riding of Gordon, possibly for good, at least until the heat dies away—if they did it at all.

Rolls Merrily Along

And in the midst of all the turmoil, the player in question, Sid Gordon, goes his merry way, slugging at a healthy clip and serving as the Giants' trouble-shooter, patrolling third base, left and right field—wherever Leo Durocher needs him. A regular without a regular's portfolio at any single position, Sid just goes along playing a brand of ball that should gain him considerable attention when the most valuable player award is made, even as the fans voted him a respectable second at third base for the All-Star game.

London-Goldstein
 The marriage of Miss Pessy Irma Goldstein, daughter of Mr. Charles Goldstein of Calla Street, to Morris L. London, son of Mr. Hyman S. London of Hartford, Conn., took place July 3 at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Saul E. Faber of Whitmarsh Street. Rabbi Abraham Chill officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father and Mrs. Faber, was attired in a gown of pale pink imported organdy. A coronet of shirred pink illusion and satin held a fingertip veil of pink illusion. She carried her mother's prayer book with a colonial bouquet of pink and American Beauty roses with streamers and pink rosebuds.

Mrs. Samuel J. Stepak, cousin of the bride, matron of honor, chose a gown of American Beauty imported organdy and carried a bouquet similar to the bride's. David N. Goldstein, brother of the bride, was best man.

Mrs. Faber selected a gown of gray imported organdy over burgundy, while Mrs. Harry Koritsky, sister of the groom, wore pink linen. Both had corsages of orchids.

Guests were present from Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, West Virginia and Rhode Island.

The couple are now residing in Hartford.

 Miss Jeanette Ruth Edelston, daughter of Mr. Abraham Edelston of Congress Avenue, and Dr. Charles Bernstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Bernstein of State Street, were married July 4 at Temple Beth Israel. Rabbi Morris Schussheim officiated.

Carrying a Bible marked with white orchids and streamers of stephanotis, the bride was attired in an imported French organdy gown with eyelet batiste bodice, long full sleeves and bouffant skirt. Her fingertip length veil fell from a Juliet cap of shirred illusion and seed pearls.

Mrs. Harold Edelston, matron of honor, was gowned in lilac marquisette over taffeta and carried a bouquet of pastel flowers. The flower girl, Deborah Smira, was dressed in yellow organdy and a flowered tiara.

Abraham Goldstein was best man and Harold Edelston and Marshall Edelston, brothers of the bride, were ushers.

For her son's wedding, Mrs. Bernstein chose an aqua crepe gown and an orchid corsage.

Miss Willeen Tabor sang, accompanied by Al Rosen.

Local Girls Attend Cape Music Center

Four Providence girls are attending the Cape Cod Music Center, East Brewster, Mass., to study dramatics and music this summer.

The four are Joan Workman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Workman; Audrey Chase, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Chase; Grace Kestenman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kestenman, and Sandra Markoff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Markoff.

Pioneers Plan Summer Bridge

Plans for a summer bridge to be held August 16 at the Anawam Inn, Mathewson Street, Narragansett, were made at a meeting of Pioneer Women's Association, Monday, at the summer home of Samuel Goldman, chairman, at Narragansett.

Proceeds of the affair will be used toward housing the children arriving in Israel in ever increasing numbers. The local chapter of PWO has pledged $1500 toward the Building Expansion Fund.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Harry Dress presided.

Summer Recipes

the just right sweet-tartness. Serve with nut bread-cream cheese sandwiches, with plenty of cheese in the sandwiches, please. Iced tea for the beverage and you have a luncheon menu that will tempt the most finicky summer appetite.

LIME LEMON SALAD

1 1/2 cups canteloupe balls
1 package lime gelatin dessert
1 pint warm water
Dissolve gelatin dessert in water and allow to chill. When slightly thickened, fold in the melon balls which should be about 1/2 inch in size. Chill until firm. Unmold on crisp lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise or serve plain as dessert. Serves six.

MELON SALAD RINGS

1 large melon
1 package any flavor gelatin dessert
1 pint warm water
Prepare gelatin dessert by dissolving in water. Chill. Remove one end from the melon and take out seeds. Cut slice from other end so that melon stands up. Drain out any juice. Pour chilled gelatin dessert into the cavity until gelatin is firm. When ready to serve, cut with sharp knife crosswise and peel. Serve rounds on crisp lettuce plain or with any desired dressing.

PLAN DP ASYLUM
 TEL AVIV, Israel—The Israeli Government is planning an asylum for Jewish immigrants now arriving in Israel who are insane from their experiences in Nazi concentration camps, it was revealed this week.

Hospital Revised Plans Approved

A series of exceptions to the city building code was granted this week to Miriam Hospital by the building ordinance board of review in connection with the proposed conversion of a building at 164 Summit Avenue into part of a new hospital there.
 Given leave to withdraw a petition for exceptions last month, the hospital returned to the board yesterday with revised plans providing for construction of fire refuges, the installation of a sprinkler system in the basement, first floor, and service rooms of the second floor, masonry subdivisions, and protection of all ceilings.
 The hospital plans to put up a new building but to use the existing structure, the old Jewish Orphanage, for laundry, storage rooms, staff and maintenance rooms, administration offices, and general hospital rooms.

Tight Wire Artists At Rocky Point

A combination of skillful juggling and audacious unicycle performance will be brought to the outdoor stage at Rocky Point Sunday, July 17, by Roland and Janice Marcelli.
 This young couple have a brilliant repertoire of tight wire stunts which they have developed for audience delight and amazement.
 Unlike most tight wire artists, the Marcellis disdain the use of parasols in balancing on their slender steel wire. While he balances precariously on one foot, Roland twirls a hoop on his free leg and juggles a dozen large rings in an extraordinary combination of footwork and dexterity.

CARNIVAL COMMITTEE

A combined meeting of the men's and women's Divisions of the Carnival to be held August 28 and 29 by the Providence Hebrew Day School at the Narragansett Pier Casino was held recently and encouraging reports were given by the committees. Jack Laufer is chairman of the project.

Tune in The Jewish Herald Radio Hour this Sunday afternoon at 6:30 o'clock, station WHIM.

Italians Occupy Jewish DP Camp

ROME—Italian police this week occupied the Jewish displaced persons camp of Trani in an effort to prevent Jewish refugees passing through Italy en route to Israel to escape from the center prior to embarking on Israel-bound vessels.

Vacation Time

By DAVID SCHWARTZ

My friend, Socrates Maimonides Spinoza Solomon—we call him Et Cetera for short—came around the other day and apparently found me a bit perturbed.

"Why so gloomy, did the wife you never had desert you or did you lose the fortune you never acquired?" he asked.

"Worse than that," I said. "I am stuck. I've got to write about vacation and I can't think of a Jewish approach."

"Such a simple thing," he said. "I don't want to write about that old trite business of vacation hotels discriminating against Jews."

"Oh," he said, "so you discriminate, too. Well, why don't you write on the Bible and vacation?"

"The Bible has nothing on vacation," I said.

"Oh, no," he said, "why, do you know the Bible is the best guide book to vacation there is? Take Adam and Eve. Eve walks around clad only in a fig leaf, just like in our summer camps today. And why was she eating apples? She was trying to reduce."

"And what's the matter with Solomon? He wrote: 'Go to the ant and learn wisdom.' Where did Solomon find out so much about ants, if he didn't go on vacation?"

"Then again take the Israelites at the Red Sea. Even when they are running away from the Egyptians, they take time off to go bathing."

"Take the Sabbath. The Jews started that one day of vacation every week, which is now copied throughout the world. If you think it over, the Jews went in big on the matter of vacations, only they always called them holidays. Very clever, I'll say. Did you ever think what would have happened, if they hadn't? They would never have stuck."

"Suppose it had been commanded that the people just take a day of rest every week for vacation. Some would have said, what do you want to do—make loafers out of the people? But by giving the vacation idea an idealistic significance, the objectors were overcome."

"Do you know what?" asked Et. Cetera.

"What?" I repeated.

"The man in the Bible who thoroughly gave expression to the fundamental philosophy of vacation was Balaam."

"That guy!" I said. "Why, he was hired by the enemies of Israel to curse Israel."

"Yes, I know," he said. "But he didn't curse Israel. He ended up by blessing them. I know he wasn't much of a man. We get the impression from the Bible that his donkey saw some things better than he did, but for all that, he knew the secret of inspiration—and that is the thing I am concerned about."

"What is the secret?" I asked.

"Do you remember when first he couldn't find words to speak, he moved to another place and kept moving from place to place? To get a new view of things, you've got to go to a new view. In the same environment, we tend to go stale. And that's the whole philosophy underlying vacations."

So spoke Socrates Maimonides Spinoza Et Cetera.

R. I. Diaper Service
 Marks 2nd Birthday

When Mort Schachter and Jack Jessel organized the Diaper Service of Rhode Island, Inc. two years ago their total assets were a limited amount of machinery, a station wagon and their own willingness to work. Today they are established in a large, new building with a staff of more than a dozen men and women and a fleet of delivery trucks.

Diaper Service has the proud record of never having missed a delivery in its two years of operation, regardless of weather conditions. The firm services practically all of Rhode Island (including Narragansett Pier and Newport) and neighboring Massachusetts. Deliveries are made twice weekly.

Diaper Service has been introduced to thousands of mothers in this period, and has been featured by the delivery of folded diapers, use of the same diapers throughout the service, liquid deodorant and a germ and rash proofing process. All diapers are sent through an hour and a half of washing and rinsing in many changes of water, after which they are damp dried by centrifuges. The tumblers then turn them out a soft fluffy dry. Folding and wrapping completes the job.

The preparation of diapers is both complicated and interesting, and those who would like to inspect the Diaper Service plant are invited to call PAwtucket 5-5522 and arrange for a tour of inspection with Mort or Jack. The address is 1040 Charles Street, North Providence. Adv't
