Everybody Wanted to Get In On the Act--And They All Did!

When Fred Kelman and Syd Cohen made their annual safari to Narragansett Pier last Friday afternoon to take pictures for the Herald they ran into a situation without parallel in this newspaper's long history. The mere appearance of Kelman's camera on the beach resulted in a mob scene that would do Hollywood proud.

Everybody seemed to want his or her picture taken for the Herald and would not take no for an answer. The two men were mobbed by a swarm of youngsters who descended on them from all parts of the beach and made work impossible. Backed into a corner and decidedly up in the air as to what to do, they finally compromised with the crowd by taking the picture shown above, with the promise that it would appear in the Herald if they were not molested for the remainder of the afternoon.

A two-page section of the pictures taken at the Pier will appear in next week's Herald.

So spontaneous was the demonstration that many people ran to the scene without any idea of what was going on. At the height of the clamor for pictures, while Kelman was afraid both he and his camera would be torn apart by the "mob", one youngster rushed up and asked:

"Where's the fish?"

Defeat Recognition of Red Mogen Dovid

GENEVA—An Israeli resolution to extend International Red Cross recognition to the emblem of the Red Mogen Dovid was defeated here this week at the Red Cross conference which is redrafting the Geneva Convention for the protection of civilians in wartime. The vote was 22-21, with seven abstentions.

Red Cross president Dr. Paul Ruegger and the Swiss and Syrian delegates argued against recognition, while the French, Argentine and Israeli representatives favored the motion. The Israeli representative pointed to the precedent set in 1929 when the Red Cross extended recognition to the Moslem Red Crescent and the Iranian Lion and added that non-recognition of the Red Mogen Dovid left its institutions and personnel open to being fired upon

Consider Bond Drive for Israel

NEW YORK—The Israeli Government may float a $250,000,000 loan soon in this country, with Henry Montor as sales supervisor, it was revealed this week. The entire project is now being discussed in Tel Aviv, with plans to conduct the sale parallel with the United Jewish Appeal drive.

There are Zionist leaders in New York who do not want the UJA continued once the Israeli Government loan is launched in this country. They counsel against paying serious attention to the announcement made this month in Tel Aviv by Dr. Israel Goldstein that an understanding has been reached in New York for renewal of the UJA in 1950.

These leaders contend that Israel would benefit much more if Zionists in America would concentrate on making the $250,000,000 loan a success rather than

Syrian PW's Don't Want to go Home

TEL AVIV—Twenty-two Syrian prisoners this week refused to return to their homeland when they were brought to the Syrian-Israeli border as part of a group of Arabs who were to be exchanged for 32 Israelis.

The Syrian authorities refused to go through with the exchange when the 22 insisted upon remaining in the Jewish state. They demanded that their compatriots be forced to return. The 22 then appeared before U. N. officials and made a declaration that they wished to remain in Israel. At this point the Syrian authorities agreed to the exchange and the 22 were permitted to stay in the Jewish state.

by the armed forces of the nations surrounding the Jewish state.

The Israelis withdrew a request for a roll call vote on the issue, when the Australian representative charged that the request was made to apply pressure on those who voted negatively or abstained. The Israeli spokesman retorted that pressure was being exerted in this instance but not by Israel. It has been learned here that Britain has been lobbying against recognition of the Jewish emblem. It is considered possible that Israel will sign the new convention with certain reservations.

Summer Frolic at Newport Tomorrow

The third annual Summer Frolic sponsored by the Newport Chapter of B'nai B'rith will be held tomorrow evening at Easton's Beach, Newport. Dancing will be from 9 until 1, with the "Music Makers" providing dance music and Nilda Lane singing the vocals.

The Summer Frolic, first held as a welcome home affair to Newport's servicemen after the war, has become the outstanding event of the summer season. The scene of this year's dance provides a refreshing, cool atmosphere for dancing; it is in a large, airy ballroom with a balcony overlooking the ocean.

Bernard Kusnitz heads the arrangements committee.

May Conduct Bond Campaign for Israel

splitting their forces on two fronts—the sale of the bonds and the UJA campaign.

The entire idea of the loan grew from the fear in Israel that the UJA will not be as successful next year as this year; and some of the Israeli leaders feel that it may be easier to raise $250,000,000 in this US for Israel by selling government bonds than to raise even a third of this sum through the UJA.

Passing comment from one of our leading Beverly Hills rabbis: "If a care is too small to be turned into a prayer, it is too small to be made into a burden."

SUNDAY'S SCHEDULE

Miller's Delicatessen vs Krasnoff's Creamery at Hopkins Park A; Jack's Old Timers vs Richards Clothing at Roger Williams Park; Pinkerson's vs Arden's Jewelry at Hopkins Park B; Philip Dwares Orioles vs Cadillac Textile Olympics at Sessions; Mal's Comets vs Windsor Rhodes at Collyer Field. All games start at 9:30.

As the Jewish Softball League goes into its final regular week of play, only three teams are assured of playoff berths, and four others are still battling for the final three spots.

Those clubs certain of going into the championship round of games that will start August 21 are Miller's Delicatessen, Mal's Baby Stores Comets and Jack's Old Timers. Those still in the running are Cadillac Textile Olympics, Richards Clothing, Philip Dwares Orioles and Arden's Jewelry. One of these four must be eliminated Sunday, or else a special elimination game will be required. If such a development comes about, it will see a pairing between the Olympics and Richards or the Orioles and Arden's. No other combination is possible.

As a result of Sunday's games, league leading Miller's still needs one win or one Comet defeat to clinch first place. Both clubs were idle but the Comets crept a game closer with two forfeit wins. Each team is favored to sweep its double header Sunday, which gives the edge to the Hope Streeters.

A look at the schedule reveals that Arden's has the best chance of the other four to make the playoffs. The jewelers meet Pinkerson's, which now sports a losing streak of 18 straight in 18 games. The Orioles and Olympics clash in the day's feature meeting, with the Dwaresmen needing a sweep to assure themselves of staying in, the Olympics needing but a split. The slumping minions of Richards Clothing face the Old Timers, who can drop in the standings but not out of the playoffs. Richards needs one win to reserve its spot in the finals.

Because of the August 15 holiday, the playoffs have been moved back one week to the 21st.

Orioles Win Two

The Orioles had a tough time beating Pinkerson's in the opener of their clash, a four-run sixth being required to pull out the game. The winners lost the services of Jerry Winograd, catcher, who injured a knee while stealing. The second game was a rout, as the Dwaresmen unloaded a 16-hit attack, with Joe Primack batting in five runs and Stu Resnick twirling 1-hit ball for six innings.

Arden's Jewelry backed up Pitcher Carl Lefkowitz with a heavy attack that featured Greg Karem-belis' home run in downing Richards. George Leiberman received credit for the nightcap, in which Arden's came from behind to win. Jack Pearl's hitting featured.

One big inning, good for six runs, gave the Old Timers an opening win over the Olympics and clinched that playoff spot. Then the Old Timers faded and the Olympics rallied to pull out the nightcap. Two wild pitches brought across the winning run, which was preserved by a game-ending, unassisted double play.

On Keeping Young

Whether searchers will ever find the legendary fountain of youth is a matter belonging to the realm of conjecture. Until that miracle happens, it seems, man must look to other sources for rejuvenation as he grows older.

There is a Jewish saying "ask the patient and not the doctor" when inquiring about a health situation. On that basis it would seem only right to turn to the aged for advice about keeping young. Is keeping young conditioned by a good body? Or is youth the by product of a good spirit? If we knew the answer we would not have to be closeted in an editorial office in order to gather enough butter for bread. Were the Methuselahs we read about in the newspapers every once in a while agreed on a recipe for long living, the key to longevity would be on the way to discovery.

However, no two Methuselahs seem to agree on what kept them going beyond the expected age. One centenarian recently said it was smoking three cigars a day and consuming a quart of gin with his evening meal that enabled him to survive time and trouble. Another one was sure he lasted because he neither drank nor smoked. One old woman was sure she lived to 103 because she never read the newspapers and their stories about war and famine. Another old woman said she outraced time because she knew her job in the world had not yet been completed.

Yes, we all want to keep young. But what are we to do about it? The latest centenarian, a 104-year-old Jewish woman, has a simple formula. Avoid mental isolation and you will retain your youth, she says. Another way of keeping young, in her opinion, is to keep up with what is going on in the world. But how a troubling and troubled world can keep you from growing old when you think about it is a question only the old lady can answer.

Is It A Depression?

Experts Seem to be Guessing On What the Future Holds

By TOM O'CONNOR

How Consumers Feel

Slichter cites as evidence of the builtup backlog of demand the fact that a survey last January showed an increasing number of people who thought of themselves as better off than a year before, and that more than a million families planned to buy homes this year.

How consumers thought of themselves last January, right after the peak of the boom, doesn't prove much about how they think of themselves now—or will think of themselves in the fall.

The housing argument is plain silly, Slichter says. "Many consumers will be disappointed because the output of houses, as indicated by new housing starts during the first five months of 1949 will fall short of the number demanded.

In other words, people are panting to buy houses, but builders, for some reason of meanness or stupidity, are not building enough so everybody who wants one can get one. This proves prosperity is just around the corner.

The housing situation, as a matter of fact, is a prime example of what has gone wrong and why renewed prosperity isn't just around the corner.

The postwar housing boom reached its peak in April and May, 1948. By August the rate of new starts per month was less than in 1947. New starts this year continued to run under the corresponding months of 1948. In June the value of new residential construction was 10 per cent under the corresponding month last year.

The total number of housing starts even at its peak never came near a rate which would satisfy need. The highest it reached was about the same number of starts as in 1925 when the population was much lower and the accumulated shortage much less.

Priced Out of Market

What stopped the housing boom before it got fairly started was the fact that the cream was quickly skimmed off. Houses were built to sell at prices which most families could not afford. The major part of the house-hungry population was priced out of the market.

As the demand of those who could buy was satisfied, construction had to slow down or prices come down. Prices have come down only a tiny amount. Instead, construction has fallen off. As more people lose their jobs or go on reduced income, demand—which has nothing to do with need or desire—will fall off still more and so will private house building.

3. Consumption running ahead of production. Slichter argues that production has dropped because businessmen decided to cut inventories, and they have been reducing inventories while selling approximately as much goods to consumers.

He says that retail sales for the last six months have been "about the same as last year in both dollar and physical volume." This disguises the fact that the trend has been downward. Nationwide department store sales, the most reliable index of consumption at the retail level were down 11 per cent in the week ending July 2 under the corresponding week a year ago, for the 4 weeks ending July 2 down 7 per cent, for the first six months of the year, 4 per cent. In New York City the drop was more precipitous; the corresponding figures were 16 per cent, 10 per cent and 7 per cent.

It wasn't the fact that inventories were too large that started the cutting. Indeed, they were generally smaller in relation to sales volume than pre-war. It was the fact that consumer demand fell off that started inventory liquidation.

As the Council of Economic Advisors put it in the concluding paragraph of its report just given the President:

It should be stressed that the downturn began with a failure of consumer markets to expand

To Build Luxury Hotel in Tel Aviv

MIAMI—A $3,000,000, 200-room luxury hotel will be built on Tel Aviv's seashore by Leon Ell, hotel owner and Zionist leader here, it was reported this week. Mr. Ell will leave for Israel in September to begin construction of the hotel, which will be financed by American, British and South African businessmen, the report said.

in line with total output."

Slichter ignores entirely the cumulative effect of unemployment, part-time employment, the shorter work week, etc., in reducing consumption. These effects are only now seriously beginning to be felt in retail sales. The more extreme they become, the more is production cut further and unemployment increased. That's what they mean by "the spiral of depression."

"I'm In Love With A Wonderful Cause"

(with apologies to Rogers & Hammerstein)

The Women's Division of the General Jewish Committee of Providence introduced its 1949 Campaign Song at a rally for "M" DAY Division Leaders and Captains held at the home of Mrs. Samuel Chernov, 67 Bay Road, Barrington. Committee Chairmen and summer residents of Barrington joined with this group in planning for the spirited one-day fund-raising event to be held this fall.

Mrs. Albert Pilavin, overall Chairman of the Women's Division, charts some "M" DAY plans with Chairmen Mrs. Burton Finberg, Mrs. Samuel Chernov and Mrs. Morris Baruch. Mrs. Nathan Traber of the Public Relations committee was one of the speakers.

This tuneful quartet presented this first public rendition of the new song: Mrs. Arthur J. Levy, who composed the lyrics; Mrs. Morris Baruch, Mrs. Ephraim Feingold and Mrs. Samuel Schneider, accompanied by Mrs. Louis Efros.

To the tune of "I'm In Love With A Wonderful Guy"

With apologies to Rogers and Hammerstein

We are ready to start our campaigning—raising more money than ever before.
 So that the thousands of people remaining are brought home to Israel's shore.
 We are out to get bigger collections—and ease the hardships so many endure
 And we will over rule any objections, as giving makes none of us poor.
 From across the sea, tales of austerity reach us, and stir every heart
 We can't let them say that in the U. S. A., people have not done their part
 Women of GJC, let's start campaigning, giving as much as we can over here.
 Working and giving, we'll make lives worth living.
 We'll give and we'll give and we'll give and we'll give
 And we'll make this a Homecoming Year.

Words by Mrs. Arthur J. Levy

LAKE SUCCESS—A general settlement of the peace in Palestine is omitted from the provisional agenda of the forthcoming session of the United Nations General Assembly which was released here this week. The session opens Sept. 20 at Flushing Meadow.

The agenda reveals that there will be a discussion of the internationalization of Jerusalem, the protection of the Holy Places and assistance to the Palestine Arab refugees. Other items of major interest to Jews on the provisional listing are the conversion of the genocide convention into international law and the conversion of the human rights declaration into an international covenant.

Tel Noar Choral Group in Program

A program of Israeli folk songs was presented by the Tel Noar Choral Group over Station WEEI (CBS), Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Cantor Jacob Hohenemser of Providence, musical director of Tel Noar, who directed the group, also wrote the narration and the special arrangements and was the piano accompanist. The presentation portrayed the working, building, fighting and playing spirit of the Yishuv and the accomplishment of its goal, the creation of a Jewish state.

Visitors at the lodge in Hampstead, N. H., over the weekend, included three Israeli students who are studying at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for the summer. Dr. Saul Kraft, director, announced. These students are the first from Israel to be invited for the Foreign Students Summer Project by the National Students Association of America. At Tel Noar for the first time are Avraham Many of Jerusalem, Jacob Sklarewitz of Haifa and Moshe Waldhorn of Rehovoth, who had the opportunity of meeting American-Jewish students from America's leading colleges who are vacationing at Tel Noar Lodge.

SYD COHEN:

Paging Mr. S. Messiah
Continued

Last week this column complained about the quality, mostly the non-existence, of civic leadership in the local Jewish sports community. The article was written first because it has been building up in my mind for some time, and second, because of two isolated but related incidents that prove my point, or at least, illustrate it. They seem to demonstrate what I complained about last week—our lack of leadership, failure to heed opportunity's knock, our timidity and fear of trying something new and our failure to take constructive action.

The column has been plugging golf for two years, trying to get an annual open tournament established. In this we have received much encouragement but little help. A few weeks back I passed on one man's idea that his organization sponsor the tourney by itself, and offered liberal use of these pages in publicizing the event if it were held.

The administration of that club met, discussed the matter and turned it down because it would mean some work and because it is too late to plan such an affair. Too late? I rather believe it is a fear of a new idea, a trait that dominates too much of our local thinking. At any rate, the idea was dropped and no other organization has displayed any intention of picking it up. The very same organization, by the way, has sponsored golf tournaments for its own members and has been so ashamed to publicize the actual number of entries that it has represented the figure at two and a half times its actual size. Yet the club passes up a golden opportunity to get a large entry list, a fine, worthwhile annual event that would give it the jump on all other clubs, and the reams of favorable publicity that would enable it to sell the organization to outsiders as well as its own membership.

The Crowning Blow

The crowning blow is this. A group of ardent golfers, who once tried to purchase the old Ledge-mont Country Club with the intention of opening its rolls to about 200 members, held a tournament which was concluded only last Sunday. As I get it, the tourney was not restricted; everyone presumably was welcome to enter—yet, whether deliberately or unwittingly, the tourney was held on a small scale, with no publicity whatever, and with no attempt to get the golfing public interested.

This same group admitted at the time that they erred in not trying to interest the public in their plan to purchase the old Ledge-mont, instead of simply buttonholing men they know. Their leaders said they regretted not coming to the Herald. It may have caused their failure. So the next time they had a chance they did exactly the same thing.

Are we to assume that these two groups, and all others who maintain such a discreet silence, are interested only in their own exclusive sports participation and that they have no desire to involve themselves in community-wide activity? I don't believe it. I think it is simply another of several examples of our lack of coordination, of initiative—and of civic leadership.

Before any or all members of these two groups rise in righteous wrath and tell me to mind my own business and that if they don't choose to sponsor a community project it is none of my affair, let me be the first to agree with them. It is none of my business to tell them, or anyone else, what to do—and I am not doing it. I am simply illustrating my theory about our lack of progressive leadership as a serious handicap in our community life.

But don't forget—one of the groups mentioned did come to this column in the two different instances—asking for publicity about their projects. Each time, unfortunately, they came too late, a matter that I regret more than they.

Maybe Some Day ...

I'm still hoping that some day we will lose our individual and collective apathy and work together for the common good. I shall keep on plugging for more, bigger and better events. And I shall maintain an anxious watch for the man or group we seem to need to lead us out of our sports wilderness—our Sports Messiah.

Silverman Describes Visit in Letter

From far-off Israel this week came a message to his friends in Rhode Island from Providence's own "ambassador of good will"—Archibald Silverman, president of the General Jewish Committee.

Mr. Silverman, who expects to return from abroad next week, found time to visit many of the reception camps erected to shelter the thousands of refugees pouring into Israel monthly. He also inspected numerous permanent settlements, was a guest of President Weizmann, conferred with leading officials of the new state, and reviewed the July 17 Army Day parade.

His personal letter follows:

"I have been in Israel almost four weeks now, and I have visited many, many places. Most of these places are dependent on funds from abroad. The one place most dependent on our fund-raising is the Pardess Hannah Immigrants Reception camp, where at present 15,000 new immigrants live.

"Most of these immigrants are still in tents, but there are some fortunate ones who live in barracks left behind by the British: just sitting there and waiting to find employment, if and when the Jewish Agency gets enough money to help them settle outside the camp. They are fairly well fed, as well as you can feed them having so many.

"These reception camps, of which I have seen many, are the dark part of Israel today, and I hope and pray that they will be brighter parts in the future.

"I also saw several Youth Aliyah children's projects, one of which was for Yemenite children, about 350 of them. When they reached the camp, they would not sleep in beds, because they had never before seen beds. The surprising thing is that after they have been in the children's camp for a few days, they do become human beings. Then I saw another camp for children which is also run by Youth Aliyah, at Rana, which is beautiful, even nicer than what we have for our children in Narragansett. They have a swimming pool, wonderful flowers, etc. So you see, there are many dark, but ever so many more bright spots in Israel.

"I have been so impressed with everything I have seen here, that I am extending my trip an extra week. I have also visited many kibbutzim, where I found perfect harmony and understanding. I will give you a brief description of one. Children Farmers

"There are about 200 souls, 100 of which are children. They raise wheat, apples, pears and other fruits and vegetables, which are all sold to Tenuvah, the Histadrut."

Mr. Levin attended Davidson College, North Carolina, and was graduated from Bryant College, Providence. He served for three years in the Army Air Forces, one year of which was in the Pacific Theatre.

The couple will be married December 4 at the Beacon House, Brookline, Mass.

Women Become Israel's First Lobbyist

TEL AVIV—A delegation of women became Israel's first lobbyists when they buttonholed members of the young state's Parliament in the corridors of the Parliament building to demand equal rights for women under the proposed new income-tax law. Shrewdly, the women selected a day when the important foreign affairs debate assured a full house for their pressure tactics.

Floor leaders of the various parties were informed by the women that the proposed income tax imposes an unfair burden on married working women by denying them the right to file separate income tax returns. As an example, they cited the case of a married man who earns $3,000 yearly and who would pay $150 income tax. According to the proposed law, if the man's wife works and earns $2,400 a year, the income tax on the couple's total annual income of $5,400 would be $600.

The women also asked that exemption be allowed them for domestic help, and they warned that promulgation of the proposed law would drive teachers and nurses from their jobs.

The lobbyists were promised support by the left wing United Workers party, but they could not convince the government majority party, the Israel Labor faction, of the justice of their demands. The United Religious Bloc parties favor joint returns.

PLAN JEWISH SETTLEMENT

A project for a middle-class settlement of English Jews was outlined at a conference of the British Zionist Federation. Land adjoining the township of Gederah has already been placed at the disposal of a British Jewish settlement.

Labor Leaders Differ in Report on Israel

NEW YORK — Differences of opinion with regard to Israel developed this week between Louis Hollander, president of the New York State CIO, and Israel Feinberg, a vice-president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, both of whom were members of a delegation which visited Israel recently under the auspices of the Jewish Labor Committee.

Reporting their impressions at a luncheon of the American Trade Union Council, one of the groups supporting the Histadrut, Mr. Hollander decried the unwillingness of visitors to Israel to criticize the Jewish state in any particular.

"Some of the Zionists," Mr. Hollander said, "work the same system towards Israel that the Communists use when they see nothing wrong in Russia. In Soviet Russia, if they dare to criticize the country, they are called red-baiters. Then Zionists who don't say everything is wonderful in Israel should be called Jew-baiters."

Declaring that he is not a Jew-baiter, Mr. Hollander urged Jews "to analyze the situation" in Israel. He asserted that despite the best efforts of the United Jewish Appeal, the Jewish state will need $900,000,000 in the next three years to build up her industry. This money, he declared, can and should come largely through Marshall Plan aid. The Government of Israel, he declared, has refused to request that aid for fear of antagonizing the Mapam and other leftist groups.

Mr. Hollander said that something must be done in the United States to counteract misconceptions in Israel on the status of the Jews in this country. He charged the Israeli press with giving a distorted picture of the life of the Jews in the United States, spreading the impression that there is far more widespread anti-Semitism here than actually exists. "I would not want to see Israel over everything" but "Israel part of everything," he stated.

Histadrut Criticized

The CIO leader also criticized the Histadrut for assuming leadership in the field of enterprise in Israel. He called for a division of the Histadrut's functions, with the labor organization giving up its control over various industries. Both Mr. Hollander and Mr. Feinberg agreed that the Jews in Israel would die rather than yield the country to Stalin. They emphasized that Russia and its satellites are not popular in Israel.

Mr. Feinberg said that Israel's was essentially an economy offering equality of opportunity. With such an outlook, he stressed, Histadrut was not being inconsistent in aiding workers and at the same time operating industries.

Mr. Feinberg predicted that Israel would soon receive Marshall Plan aid. He said that while he is strongly opposed to Communism, he could understand the Israeli Government's caution about offending Russia, especially since that nation had supported Israel in the United Nations.

On the question of "Israeli chauvinism" raised by Mr. Hollander, Mr. Feinberg said that during the early years of a nation when great sacrifices are necessary in war and in peace, it is natural for young people to be enthusiastic about their country. "This is not chauvinism but the kind of patriotism necessary for the building of the new state," he pointed out.

9,000 Children Reach Israel Since Oct.

JERUSALEM — Nine thousand children from 52 countries have arrived in Israel since last October. Moshe Kol, head of the Youth Aliyah (immigration and resettlement service for Jewish children), announced this week. Kol said immigration from Eastern Europe is being cut and Youth Aliyah is concentrating on bringing in children from North Africa and other Arab countries.

ruth marketing co-operative which distributes the produce of all collectives throughout the entire country.

"The children all sleep in the children's dormitory, away from the parents who work in the fields and other branches of the settlement throughout the day. However, in the evening, after work, the children all visit with their parents for an hour or so.

Democracy In Action

"They all seem very happy, leading this kind of life. Every member of the settlement gets an annual vacation, and at the end of the year if the general accounting shows a surplus, every member gets his share of it. There are a great many such settlements throughout Israel. The members join of their own free will because they want to, and once they have joined, they are not compelled to stay. They are free to leave the Kibbutz again any time they want to.

"Now that I have given you a glimpse of the children and the kibbutzim, I should like to tell you about some of the thrills that I have received while here.

"On Sunday, July 10, I was invited to a big reception held at the home of President Weizmann. The guest list included many dignitaries, British, American and other diplomats, Arabs, Priests, etc., and I got a great thrill out of approaching the President's home with the soldier guard of honor lining the road to the house. And to realize that all that was Jewish gives you a real feeling of belonging, a feeling of security, and you know that at long last the Jews have a home and can go there when they want to.

"The next thrill was the big Army Day parade which took place on July 17, and took 92 minutes. It was overpowering to see all the military equipment that this young nation already possesses, including tanks, field-artillery, mortars, fighter planes, heavy and light cannons, etc.

"It was a big thrill to see the different branches of our service, the Infantry, Navy and Air Force marching along in new uniforms, well-organized and well disciplined.

"After the parade there was a great big reception at Hakirya (the seat of the government in a formerly German suburb of Tel Aviv), at which time I met the Prime Minister, David Ben Gurion; Kaplan, the Minister of Finance; Golda Meyerson, Sharett, Foreign Minister, and many other dignitaries. And what a kick it was to realize that these were all Jews, running their own State.

"I want all my friends in Providence to know that all the money they have given in all these years, they have been fully repaid for a thousandfold, for I believe that the Jews of Israel did more for the Jews of the rest of the world, than world Jewry did for Israel. For it was the Yishuv (population of Israel) who made it possible with their blood, sweat, and tears to make this home possible.

"Of course many Americans who come here find fault because there are not enough hotels, and there are four meatless days a week, but for myself, I can say that that is very insignificant. I have had plenty to eat without meat.

"In closing, I want to say that I would not have missed this for the world. You can see the progress that is being made here practically every day. Most of the roads on which I have travelled are good. We haven't any four lane highways yet, but that too in time will come.

"The Keren Hayessod and Keren Kayemeth have been just marvelous to me. I have had cars at my disposal to visit all the places, and my latest visit was to the Weizmann Institute of Science, which I believe is going to be one of the most important institutions in the world for creating many new ideas both in Chemistry, Agriculture and life saving. It is beautifully kept and is a credit to the Jews of the whole world.

"I hope that those of you who are reading this message will remember it when we are launching our 1949 UJA campaign. The least we can do is to help create a home for the homeless, and give dignity to the Jews of the entire world.

"I hope to see you all again very soon!"

ARCHIBALD SILVERMAN

Between You and Me

By BORIS SMOLAR

Diplomatic Notes: A mysterious communication sent out by the State Department to American diplomatic representatives in the Middle East is causing much apprehension among Zionist leaders in the United States... And, of course, also to the Government of Israel... So confidential was the nature of the communication that the diplomats were instructed to destroy it after becoming acquainted with its contents... One outsider who read it gained the impression that the U. S. Government is giving indirect encouragement to the Arabs to renew their war against Israel... The State Department seems to be determined to force "territorial adjustments" upon Israel and to compel the Jewish state to admit a large number of Arab refugees under all circumstances... And it was this determination that actually broke up, temporarily, the Arab-Israeli peace talks arranged in Lausanne by the United Nations... It has now come to a point where high officials of the United Nations are practically distrustful of their own U. N. Conciliation Commission which conducted the Lausanne negotiations... They have the feeling that each of the three members of the Commission acted in Lausanne under instructions from his own government rather than in the spirit of the United Nations... This, they believe, is not only with regard to the American member, but also with regard to the French and Turkish members of the Commission... They would, therefore, now prefer to have a one-man U. N. mediator conduct the Lausanne talks rather than the three-man Commission... Specifically, they would like to see Dr. Ralph Bunche take over the job.

Israeli Notes: With American pressure on Israel not slowing down, the population there is again living in a war scare atmosphere... Characteristic of the situation is the case of Col. Yigal Yadin, Army Chief of Operations... For several days Col. Yadin was seen traveling around in the streets of Jerusalem in a tank, instead of in his regular military car... This was taken by the population as indication that renewal of the war could be expected at any moment... Actually, Col. Yadin's automobile was being repaired, and having no other car, the military leader had no choice but to use a tank

Brandeis Converted Douglas to Zionism

HAIFA—U. S. Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas this week revealed here that he was "converted to Zionism" by the late Justice Louis D. Brandeis. "I pledge to continue my sympathies for Israel and to do whatever I can for its welfare," he added.

Justice Douglas made this statement here in an address to a group of young Jewish lawyers. Earlier, he spoke to a conference of scientists and educators at the Haifa Institute of Technology at which he depicted the waste, devastation and oppression of people which he found in other countries in the Middle East in contrast to the revitalization of the land and the people in Israel.

Emphasizing that he sees Israel emerging as "the great teacher" in the Middle East, he declared: "Here, in Israel, is a force that can give direction and content to the social revolution which is on its way." He contrasted the turning of fertile soil into desert in the Arab countries with the transformation of desert land into fertile soil in Israel, and advised the Institute to send its technicians throughout all the neighboring lands to train students.

"You have in Israel a testing ground for vital projects and for the rejection of the feudal system that has no longer held the peoples of the Middle East in its grip. The work of Israel has just begun," he declared.

Hot? Just Don't Think of It

Taking one's mind off the heat is supposed to be one way of obtaining relief during a hot spell such as existed last week. Everyone to his own taste, we always say, but 22-month-old David Shiro and three-year-old Mark Weiner seem to have evolved an excellent system for their own use. The boys are pictured as they kept busy on the beach at Narragansett Pier. Photo by Fred Kelman

Emma Lazarus Honored by Pilgrimage

New Yorkers who cherish the memory of Emma Lazarus made a solemn pilgrimage last week to the Statue of Liberty there to read her immortal lines on the pedestal:

"Give me your tired, your poor,
Your huddled masses yearning to breathe free,
The wretched refuse of your teeming shore.
Send these, the homeless, tempest-tost to me,
I lift my lamp beside the golden door."

Emma Lazarus, child of the mid-19th century, was born into a wealthy family, one of seven children; lived close by Union Square (which was then "uptown" New York); wrote verses from an early age; became the friend of Emerson, Browning, William Morris, the journalists Gilder, Dana and Godkin; and in the 38 years of her life established herself as a skillful writer, a charming conversationalist, and a striking literary personality.

At best, she would have been worth a footnote in any American literary history. But as she arrived at her 30th year, a thin, dark-eyed, frail, intense woman, events in Tsarist Russia stirred her to a greater articulateness than she had ever before achieved.

The 1879-1881 pogroms against the Jews, the arrival of the first immigrants escaping Tsarist terror, the shock the world then felt at the brutalities—akin to the effect of the Hitlerism massacres—inspired Emma Lazarus to the eloquent championing not only of her people, but all the oppressed and the down-trodden of the earth.

She wrote:
"Until we are all free, we are none of us free."

As a result, she is now ranked with those other women writers who spoke up in 19th century America for the rights of man—Harriet Beecher Stowe, Julia Ward Howe, Margaret Fuller.

She died Nov. 19, 1887, of cancer, unaware that her verse would some day figure on the great statue at Bedloe's Island or that some day it would be set to music and sung in a Broadway theatre—as it is nightly these days, in the current hit "Miss Liberty."

The sonnet "The New Colossus" from which the lines on the statue are taken was written in November, 1883, in answer to an appeal from a committee which was trying to raise funds to provide a pedestal for the Statue of Liberty, which had not yet arrived from France to be set up in the harbor. The committee auctioned off manuscripts by Longfellow, Walt Whitman, Mark Twain and Bret Harte, and for them she set down the 14 lines that establish her in the annals of American poetry.

Millions Know the Lines
Actually, the verses were not put on the pedestal until 16 years after her death, in 1903. Since then they have been read by millions who, nevertheless, have paid little attention to the name of the writer.

There is little known about the details of Miss Lazarus' life beyond the record of her writings. But a biography has just been published, "The World of Emma Lazarus" (Schocken Books), written by H. E. Jacob, and a full-length scholarly biography has been promised by Arthur Zeiger of New York University.

Her work has not been reprinted to any degree, but in 1947 Morris U. Schappes edited a pamphlet anthology of some of her verse and prose, published by the Jewish Peoples Fraternal Order, IWO, which has gone into a second edition.

And it is the women's organization of the fraternal order, the Emma Lazarus Division, which organized a rally at the sea-washed island where the "Mother of Exiles" stands.

They made the occasion an appeal to fight for the liberties Emma Lazarus defended and a protest against the current deportation drive and attack on civil liberties. They also urged the passing of the Barrett bill to outlaw anti-Semitism and the sending of Negro race hate propaganda through the mails.

LONDON—The British Broadcasting Corporation will start a full service in Hebrew beamed to Israel, it was learned last week. The program will begin in about six weeks.
 There has been considerable behind-the-scenes argument over the new Hebrew program. The Foreign Office believes that the program should be used to counter anti-British propaganda by the Israeli wireless and to continue the kind of political warfare that was customary during the Mandatory regime.
 But this view seems to have been overruled and the present intention is to conduct a sympathetic, rigidly objective news service, mainly about Britain and British interests in the Middle East. This will be supplemented by cultural features. The authorities responsible for the new service insist that they want to build up goodwill and mutual understanding without interfering or unduly meddling in politics.

LAKE SUCCESS—The services of Dr. Ralph J. Bunche as U. N. acting Palestine mediator may be terminated this week when the Security Council receives his final report on the armistices concluded between Israel and the Arab state. Dr. Bunche considers his mission completed.
 This was announced by acting U. N. Secretary-General Byron Price at a press conference here. Mr. Price said he could not comment on the possibility that the Council may recruit Dr. Bunche to assist the Conciliation Commission in its efforts at Lausanne to achieve a permanent Arab-
