GJC Plans Jewish Educational Survey

Center Considers Census of City's Jewry

Organize Jewish Cultural Society

Steps of major significance to the Providence Jewish community were taken by the board of directors of the Jewish Community Center at a meeting last Wednesday night.

A committee is to be appointed, representative of the community, to lay plans for the conduct of a census-study which is to be reported at the next meeting of the Center board.

Questions which need answering, as brought out by Raymond G. Franks, Center board president, include: "How many Jewish families are there? Where do they live? How many Jewish children are there? What are their ages? What kind of Jewish education are they getting?"

Other business transacted included a decision to organize a Jewish Cultural Council with all Jewish organizations in the community.

A committee to work for more efficient financial Center operation was formed with Dudley Block as chairman, Saul Feinberg, Center vice president, was appointed chairman of the newly-organized Center program committee. Membership on each of these committees is open to all senior Center members and to organized Jewish groups of the community with a special interest in the activity committees' work.

The group accepted the proposal of Morris Kritzman, director of the Center, that before agencies serving the Jewish community could render maximum service, it would be necessary to have more information regarding the community.

Center Sunday School Now Is In North End

The Jewish Community Center Sunday School, which has for many years operated in the Benefit Street Building, will be moved to the North End, where no Sunday School exists. This move, taken upon the request of the newly-formed North End Council of Parents' Association, has resulted in a Community Sunday School in the North End, with classes conducted in both Sons of Jacob Synagogue and Beth David Synagogue.

Representatives from each of the synagogues will be on the Center Jewish Education Committee, which plans curriculum and program.

Registration for the school will take place at both synagogues Sunday at 10 o'clock, with members of the North End Parents Council in charge.

The election was under the supervision of Max Winograd. Rabbi Carol Klein of Congregation Sons of Jacob installed the officers.

Commander Joshua L. Goldberg, district chaplain of the Third Naval District, U. S. Navy, will address a luncheon of the United Service for New Americans New England Conference here at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel this Sunday, it was announced by Meyer Tennenbaum, conference chairman, and president of the R. I. Refugee Service. Commander Goldberg, returning this week from a European tour, will give an up-to-date report on displaced persons in the occupied zones. Sharing the luncheon program will be Albert Comanor, director of National Services of U.S.N.A., who will outline the role of the community and national agency in DP resettlement.

A special feature of the all-day United Service conference will be two morning workshop sessions, beginning at 10 o'clock, in which community leaders and professional workers, representing large and small communities in the New England states, will exchange experiences and set a pattern for 1950 resettlement programs in the region.

The afternoon conference sessions, opening at 3:30 P. M., will feature methods of teaching English to newcomers and a discussion of port and dock activities. (Continued on Page 2)

1400 Cards Outstanding; Total $825,000

As the 1949 fund-raising campaign of the General Jewish Committee inched up toward the $825,000 level this week, drive officials expressed hope that an additional $75,000 could be raised from among the 1400 potential pledges still outstanding.

Approximately 8000 cards have been covered to date. "The amount of effort expended in contacting the remaining 1400 cards will determine to what degree our 1949 drive can be termed a success," declared Alvin A. Sopkin, campaign chairman, this week.

All outstanding cards are in the hands of workers, he added, with the exception of a limited number of non-Jewish contributors to whom a special mailing is being sent.

Noted Educator To Make Study Here

A comprehensive, overall survey of facilities for Jewish education in the Providence community was launched this week with the sponsorship of the General Jewish Committee.

The survey is being conducted by Dr. Uriah Z. Engelman, noted educational authority, under the guidance of the American Association for Jewish Education.

The AAJE is a national service organization whose purpose is to promote and coordinate the standards of Jewish education throughout the United States. It has supervised numerous surveys of similar nature in various Jewish communities during recent years.

Designed to present—for the first time—a complete picture of both the requisites and resources of Jewish education facilities in Providence, the need for such an audit has been recognized by local community leaders for several years.

The formal request of the AAJE to undertake the survey stemmed from the report of a special committee named by the GJC to study the application for an allocation sought by the Providence Hebrew Day School earlier this year.

Following the requested financial appropriation from funds raised locally, the GJC's Board of Directors appointed a study committee headed by Joseph W. Ress—and including Max Berman, Alter Boyman, Benjamin Brier, Paul Chernov and Max Winograd.

The committee's report—submitted Nov. 8—recommended a thorough canvass of all local facilities for Jewish education.

To expedite definite action, the GJC requested of the AAJE that the survey be completed as rapidly as possible. It is the local agency's hope that the complete audit—as well as the drafting of the AAJE's formal conclusions—might be completed within the next two months.

The AAJE was also asked to project its findings against conditions existing in comparable Jewish communities—in order that informed decisions can be made locally.

Dr. Engelman, who arrived in Providence over the past weekend, is the author of a number of books and pamphlets pertaining to Jewish education. (Continued on Page 2)

Among them are "Educating the Jewish Child," "Trends and Developments in American Jewish Education, 1947-1948" and "All-Day Schools in the United States, 1948-1949."

He is director of the Department of Research, Information and Publicity of the AAJE.

Declining to make any formal statement until after completion of the audit, Dr. Engelman emphasized, however, that his survey would represent "an all-inclusive study of the local Jewish education program—and its attendant needs—as it fits the modern American scene."

He stressed that "careful thought will be given to every phase of the Providence situation." Findings of the survey will be made available following submittal of the AAJE's detailed report.

"It is of paramount importance," Mr. Tennenbaum said this week, "that we be prepared to implement a flexible national program in the local communities. The job of giving a new start in life to the homeless DP's of Europe can be finished this year if we all get together now to pool our resources and energies."

Ask Delay on Released Time Decision

A representative of Roger Williams Lodge B'nai B'rith and the anti-defamation committee of that lodge, Sidney L. Rabinowitz, this week appeared before the special state commission studying the possibility of a released time program in Rhode Island to ask that the commission delay its recommendations until a pending case has been decided by the United States Supreme Court.

Rabinowitz, a former law revision commissioner, said the program is divisive, has harmed existing programs of religious instruction elsewhere and was open to excesses and abuses.

Referring to the case before the Supreme Court he said, "The last of preliminary skirmishes are now being fought, and a trial on the merits should be forthcoming in the near future. I, for one, in all sincerity, believe that this commission ought not to make any affirmative recommendation for released time until that case has been determined."

He said the group he represented would heartily lend support to "any proper program which will advance the cause of religious education among the children of this state, and at the same time adequately protect those very principles of complete freedom of religion upon which our state and nation were founded."

By the same token, he said, they would oppose any released time program "whether it be mandatory, or whether it be sugar-coated with the sweet-sounding prefix of 'permissive'."

He said the released time program had failed in Stoughton, Mass., because it resulted in disrespect for religious teaching and a startling amount of "playing hookey" from religious classes.

Dr. James L. Hanley, superintendent of Providence public schools, and Dr. Michael F. Walsh, state director of education, also spoke at the hearing.

A Victorious Choice

The Jefferson Military College, which rejected anti-semitic millionaire George Armstrong's offer of $50,000,000 if it would teach racial superiority and white supremacy is the recipient of many donations from all over the country in appreciation of its fine gesture.

A Jewish businessman from Houston, Texas, Nathan Klein, started the campaign by sending in a check for $5,000 to cover the school's debts and to prevent it from closing. Other contributions are also pouring into a fund supervised by Vice-Admiral Aaron Merrill Stanton, including one of $100 from the Washington, D. C. Argo Lodge of the B'nai B'rith. $100 was also sent in by the Chicago Negro Chamber of Commerce "as a token of our interest in your refusal to sell yourself and your school for $50,000,000."

The school rejected Armstrong's offer declaring that "Jefferson College has never taught the superiority of one race over another. No such course is contemplated, nor is one necessary or even desirable." Stanton, who was commander of the famous Pacific Task Force 39 during the war will become the school's next superintendent.

This goes to prove that people are well aware of the dangers of prejudice and are joining together to form a real team to make democracy work.

School Children Contribute to GJC

Jewish Sunday School children throughout the city this week were filling special envelopes with money from their allowances and savings as their contribution to the community-wide GJC campaign.

A letter, accompanying the envelopes distributed by the GJC's Young Adult Division, pointed out that, among the refugees in DP camps in Europe and Israel, "are thousands of young boys and girls your own age."

"Do you ever stop to think that by giving up one ice cream cone a week that you would be able to save $2.50 during the year? That amount could feed a hungry Jewish child overseas for more than a week!" the message stressed.

It was signed by Theodore Low, educational committee chairman, and Bruce Sundlun, YAD general chairman. Distributed last week, the envelopes will be collected at the various schools this Sunday.

A E Pi Bowling

Burt Himelfarb's club maintained its hold on first place by splitting with Don Cohen's outfit 2-2 while Beans Feinstein's crew, breaking the high team three mark with a 1504, closed the gap on the league-leaders to three points by blanking Jerry Frieberg's team 4-0.

Irv Kelman established a new individual high three score of 354, bettering Art Flink's record by eight pins. Art came within one pin of equalling his high single mark of 144 as he bowled the night's best string.

Other leading performances were three of 342 by Cohen, 328 by Flink, 326 by Bob Krovitz (vet-eran Bob, that is) and 303 by Frieberg. Good singles were rolled by the following: 136 and 117 by Kelman, 117 and 115 by Cohen, 117 and 114 by Krovitz and 114 by Frieberg.

Two Hundred Attend Mizrahi Conclave

Harry Kraft, president of the New England regional Mizrahi, addressed more than 200 people at Ahavath Sholom Synagogue last weekend at the first semi-annual conference of the group ever held in Providence.

Disputing the current theory that because Israel has been established there is no longer any need for religious Zionism, Kraft said, "It is all a question of spiritual union with Israel no matter where in the world it may be located."

Rabbi Morris G. Silk, presiding at Sunday night's session, emphasized that "A state of Israel without a Jerusalem is an impossibility—and an impracticability—both in the maternal and spiritual sense."

Other speakers at the sessions were Archie Smith, president of the host congregation; Rabbi Harry Wohlberg of New York; Rabbi Kadish Waldman, executive director; Rabbi Carol Klein; Rabbi Abraham Chill; Rabbi Hyman Bick of Lynn, Mass.; Mr. Bin-Nun of Israel, and David Rubinsky of Portland, Me.

Sermon Topic at Ahavath Sholom

Rabbi Morris G. Silk will speak on "The Century of the Child" at the new Ahavath Sholom Synagogue late Friday night services this evening dedicated to parents of pupils in the Hebrew and Sunday Schools. Cantor Nathan Zolondek, assisted by the school choir, will chant the Sabbath service.

Saturday morning services start at 9 o'clock and daily worship are held 7 o'clock mornings and evenings.

Hebrew School sessions are held daily from 3:15 o'clock and Sunday School begins at 10 o'clock.

"One Man's Opinion"

After the Hearings, What?

By BERNARD SEGAL

Now the hearings on the advisability of Released Time for religious education, through the Public Schools of Rhode Island, are over. Now all who had something to say for or against the proposed legislation, have done so. The Governor's special commission to study the matter is now ready to deliberate and to recommend one way or another.

But out of the hearings, and the conduct of them, some pertinent facts emerged.

All the Catholic witnesses spoke in favor of Released Time.

All the Jewish witnesses opposed the plan.

The Protestants alone differed in their views as to the merits or the dangers of such a program. They alone showed greater independence of thinking than the other religious groups.

Frankly, I am puzzled by the solid front of opposition presented by the Jewish speakers before the commission. One would gather that this is the general Jewish attitude toward Released Time, that Jews everywhere would have none of the program.

Well, this is not the case. There is no such thing as a unanimous Jewish opposition toward the whole idea.

New York's System

I have before me a report on the work of the "Committee for the Furtherance of Jewish Education", an agency working in New York City. The Committee was organized in 1941, when Released Time was legalized by the State of New York. It is the function of this agency to provide religious education for the Jewish children who are released for this purpose at the request of their parents.

At the annual convention of the "Committee for the Furtherance of Jewish Education" held last April, it was reported that 10,000 Jewish children of the Greater New York public schools are taught in 60 schools by a staff of several hundred teachers. The teachers are recruited from among the college students, especially from the Yeshiva-University. The convention discussed problems of methods, program, and means of expansion.

Nobody spoke of conflicts with other faiths, of attempts at proselytizing, of divisive influences among the pupils of the school, of pressure on the part of teachers on the children who do not participate. If anything, there was a report of interdenominational understanding, and of some 3,000 children out of the ranks of the released time classes joining weekday Hebrew schools.

As for the legal aspect of the program, these teachers are apparently content to let the U. S. Supreme Court pass judgment on that, which is only proper.

Nor are they apparently disturbed by the fear that a released time program in the school tends to label children by the faiths of their parents. As if the children do not know who is Jewish, Catholic, or Protestant among their classmates! And who wants to hide religious identities, anyway? Aren't we asking the Public Schools to release our children for the Jewish holidays? Aren't the other sects doing the same? How would a released time program accentuate these religious differences?

Not Enough Time

Now, I do not for a minute insist that a released or dismissed time system would solve the problem of Jewish Education. We have too many things to teach our children. We can hardly do it adequately in one hour. Jewish education is more than the reciting of a prayer, the telling of a Bible story, or the performance of a ritual.

So, if we are to be dissatisfied with Released Time, it is not because of the evil potentialities in it, but because it is not sufficient for the planning of a program of Jewish Education worthy of the name.

It certainly can do no harm. What if our neighbors, the Catholics and the Protestants, who spoke in favor of the plan, were to turn to us, who spoke in opposition, saying:

"Very well, you do not have much use for this Released Time idea. What do you suggest in its place? How do you, Jews, solve this problem of religious education for your children?"

What if they did ask this of us? What could we, of Providence, tell our neighbors?

Where are the Talmud Torahs in South Providence and on the North End teeming with children in the after-school hours?

How many pupils are in our Congregational schools on weekdays? And are we completely happy with results achieved in our Sunday classes?

Where is our community council on Jewish Education that would plan and advise and guide parents and teachers? We, of Providence, who are one of the very communities without such an agency, what are we to council our neighbors?

So I say, we who opposed Released Time, and did it with so much fervor, let us also undertake with an equal degree of vehemence a positive program for Jewish Education in our city.

Then, and only then, can we feel right about opposing a Released Time program.

Beth-Israel Bowling

By SAUL HODOSH

Does bowling aggravate ulcers? An interview with Lenny Cort indicates that the answer is yes. Perhaps his answer was prompted by Barney Coken, who uses the red line as a foul line and pitches the ball. Next week we'll have spiked shoes to help Barney's slide.

Meanwhile Myrow's Army team was living up to its name as Moe Press's Princetonites absorbed a 4-0 blasting. When the smoke of battle cleared, Army had the league lead by one game as Columbia (Myer Epstein) and Connecticut (Beanie Feldman) faltered.

The scores continued to mount this week with Jack Epstein getting a new high three of 384. Good sheets were turned in by Sussman 346, Nelson 342 and Myrow 339.

A new high single also went into the records as Lefkowitz hit 149, then Dave Roberts (no one believes it) made a 138 and Jack Epstein carved out 134.

Olympic Bowling

By HOWARD COHEN

That "Ol' Debil" Handicap reared its ugly head last week and cost two teams three-point losses.

Bernie Cohen's men took a 3-point loss from the I. Levines and dropped into a tie for second place. Steady bowling plus the handicap did the trick. "Meesh" Satloff with a 121 single and 330 triple led Irv's boys to the win. Brother "Reeve" Zatliff was high man for his side with 123 and 326. Bernie's five had been hotter than fire the first four weeks, but they're coolin' down.

The other handicap victim, Jim Hochman, lost 3 to Teddy Leonard's boys. A three-pin handicap sounds small, but it gave the Leonards two strings and pinfall. Hy Mandell with 114 was the pace setter, and Hasky Walliek's 137 single after a rocky 79 saved one point for Jim's men.

Merle Rodyn with 110, 122 and 135 paced his gang to a four-point win over the last place Malatts, and Abe Lobel with a 306 triple helped, too. Al Zawatsky's 112 was best for the Malatts, who have only gained three points of a possible 20 thus far this season.

The Howie Cohens took sole rental on first place by winning 3-1 over the Joe Schwartzes. Howie and Joe waged a merry individual battle ending with 351 and 350, respectively, but better support gave the Cohens the win. Litwin, Teitelman and Woloff were the steady hands.

High averages are: Rodyn 111, H. Cohen 106 and Greenberg 104.

SYD COHEN:

Here We Go Again

It was at a club meeting a few weeks ago that Harold Teitelman rushed over to show me a clipping of which he was very proud—and decided me on this week's column. It had to do with his brother Mark, an 18-year-old southpaw in New Haven, Conn., who recently signed a Class C contract with the St. Louis Cardinals. Young Teitelman's first contract in professional ball includes a small bonus provision, and he reports next March to the Pocatello, Idaho club.

Harold is understandably proud of his kid brother's achievement. I know how he must feel. My own kid brother showed great promise not so long ago, and I thought—as did some impartial observers—that he might make the grade. He's a right hand pitcher who had a baffling curve and knuckler, and good control—and he was an outfielder of better than average ability, with a throwing arm that was a delight to watch. With all this, he was also a fine hitter.

Wounded In Action

Unfortunately, a severe battle injury during the war set him back considerably and took the edge off his ambition to make a career in baseball. He did make a few half-hearted attempts, and even attended a tryout camp conducted by the Cards; but it rained that day and he never did get a chance to show his stuff. And that was the end of what might have been a successful career.

My brother's case is not presented as a family history or as a big brother's possibly inflated opinion of his kin's ability. There is a deeper reason, and it affects all the kids who show some ability and who MIGHT get somewhere if they could exploit their opportunities to the full. My brother is only an example of what may have happened in the past and what may be happening at present and what may happen in the future to other kids who can play ball.

The Jewish boys of this area somehow do not play baseball—as a whole, I mean. A few of them, with exceptional ability, may get into the various amateur leagues during the summer, but most of them, if they play regularly at all, do it in pick-up games and for informal teams, just for the fun of it, with no real chance of developing their talents and getting anywhere.

There are no Jewish leagues of the type that could and would induce the boys to play ball, instruct them in the fundamentals, advise them how to go about finding out whether they have the stuff or not.

Sure, the amateur leagues are available, and a boy can try out with some of those teams; but a kid who needs first to play ball regularly and gain confidence in his ability, who can not learn by sitting on a bench and watching others play, is handicapped.

And that is where the Jewish leagues should come in—get them playing baseball so that they may take advantage of whatever talents they possess, so that they can move into faster company if and when they have proven themselves. The amateur leagues operate on Saturdays, when many of the Jewish boys work and cannot place future careers ahead of present income. The Jewish leagues also could take care of that.

But there aren't any leagues of this kind, and there is no agitation for them. Not having baseball, the boys of the younger generation are content to play softball and let it go at that.

That last statement is a constant source of wonderment to the fellows of my age group—the late twenties and early thirties. When we were kids we never dreamed of playing softball. It was baseball every chance we got. Only after the war, when families and businesses came into being, when we couldn't practice weekdays, did we switch to softball on Sunday mornings.

What to Do?

What to do about it? Let the younger fellows go their own way, and the devil with them? No, I can't agree with that point of view. I think the job is one of education. The older fellows should see to it that baseball is made available to the youngsters. Let us organize it for them and they will do the rest, and about that I am reasonably sure. - That baseball league for kids 8 to 12 years old, still in the talking stage, should be the first step. As the boys outgrow that one, there will have to be advanced leagues for them to step into. But that takes care only of those who are in the 8-12 category now. Must the present teen-agers go without baseball leagues that would help develop them?

Again I think the young men of the community should offer a helping hand. I see no reason why we cannot have strong leagues for all age groups within a few years at the latest. And the first step should be the formation of a Jewish Athletic Association, or something like that, to plan and organize these leagues.

When that day comes, maybe we'll have more success stories about fellows like Harold Teitelman's kid brother, instead of "what-might-have-been" stories about brothers like mine.

New Miriam Plans To Be Ready Feb. 1

In order to avoid any flaws in the designing of the new Miriam Hospital, the plans and specifications for the building will not be submitted until February 1. Henry Turoff, representing Barker and Turoff Architects, announced at a meeting of the executive building committee November 3.

"Both the architect and the committee are trying to develop a hospital which will be . . . second to none in the country," he reported, "and a great deal of thought is being given to the arrangements of various rooms, departments and utilities."

Mr. Turoff's report went on to state that the committee members have visited numerous hospitals throughout the country in order to familiarize themselves with the latest design in hospitals, and during these visits they have found that not one, regardless of the cost of building, was without flaws.

On the committee are Samuel Shore, Milton Sapinsley, Jacob Temkin, Joseph Pulver, Joseph Ress, Harry Schwartz, Henry Levaux, Mrs. Genevieve Nesby, administrator of Miriam Hospital, and Miss Giblin.

Representatives of the architects present at the meeting were Lloyd Turoff, Charles McTammany and William C. Dyer.

Dr. Willinsky, administrator of Beth Israel Hospital, Boston, was also present.

Emanuel Bowling

By JOE PRIMACK

"Who's going to stop the Browns?" is the cry around the league now. It will take more than talk to accomplish this as Mal Paynor's team won four again and now have a record of 22 won and 2 lost. The Browns spotted the Reds 16 pins each game and yet won the total pinfall, 1829 to 1509.

Everyone is waiting for Paynor's team to crack and instead they are getting better each week.

Next week Hy Weinberg's Tigers, with a record of 17 and 7, and in second place, meet the Browns and this should make an interesting match, as the Tigers will be spotted about 20 pins.

For the third time this season Mal Paynor (my gosh, doesn't anyone else bowl in the league) jacked up the high three to 382. He also holds the high average with 117. Other high threes were Jerry Tessler 362, Miles Goldberg 359, Eddie Lang 355, Frank Goldstein 349, Mike Miller 348, Jules Zucker 337, Buddy (Wild Ball) Gerber 337, Sam Chase 334, Sonny Baker 335, Al (Shorty) Chase 324, and Leo (Radio) Miller 323. Tessler also had the high single for the night with 148, missing the season high by one pin.

Center Camps Plan Reunion Parties

Reunion parties for Camp Centerland and Campdown will be held in the East Side, North End and in South Providence next Friday, at 1 o'clock.

Camp movies and entertainment by children of the after-school groups in the different communities will highlight the parties, to which every child is invited. Parents will be informed of the exact place by mail.

This will be the first of the Center's programs for children during school vacations in their own communities.

Bowling Banter

By BETTY COHEN

It took Lou Boren and her crew to do it, but Dot Leonard's bowling quintet was finally toppled from first place, the position they've held for the past three weeks. The Borens took all four points and now hold the league lead by two points.

The winning team was helped tion November 11, 12 and 13 in Worcester. The schedule included: Senior Executive meeting, Friday afternoon, followed by a basketball game between Providence and Worcester, with the latter winning 33-26; Friday evening services; Saturday services and an Oneg Shabbat; a dance, a district meeting and banquet.

by Mimi Rodyn who continued her fine bowling, having a first string of 95, and Elaine Aiken, surprising everyone with her bowling, finished her evening with a 104 to raise her triple score to 265. Helped by a string of 109, Dot Strashnick chalked up a triple of 277. Rita Levin and Estelle Cohen tried hard for the losers and ended up sharing honors for high single of 110. Rita's triple for the night was 282.

On the other alleys, Miller's and Winn's gals fought hard for the cellar spot and the Millers won out. Shirley Levin perked up the Winns by taking high three for the night with 289, aided by Betty Cohen's 259. Esther Miller, as usual, led her pack with a three of 281, closely followed by Fay Malatt with 278.

Cranston Bowling

By DR. HAYVIS WOOLF

For a new league, two strike-on-strike plays makes hot news.
In fact, it was enough to give our sec. Ed Lang, high single for the night with 126 and he tied Morris Filler for high three with 329.

Max White says he doesn't want bowling shoes for a Chanukah present; it may put the Yankees out of commission. The Yanks had high pinfall this time with 1411.

New members of the Over-100
Club are Al Levy, 108; Ben Mel-lion, 122; Morris Filler, 116, and Irv Rubin, 111. But the best thing
Len Slavitt and Doc Burt Litchman find at the Bowladrome are the hotdogs.

Guest spares for the evening were by Jerry Fish, Dave Sugerman, William Deitsch and Aaron Riccles. We're still looking for new members for the league, and Doc Dan Kouffman and Ed Lang say that we probably could make up six-man teams with a few more bowlers. Get in touch with us, if you have any ideas.

Beth-El Bowling

By JOE GUTTERBALL

The 16 teams of the Temple
Beth-El Brotherhood Bowling League returned to action last night after taking last week off to attend the organization's formal dinner-dance.

There are some good marks for the keggers to shoot at during the coming weeks, and reports reaching Nat Alterman, league secretary, have it that the present leaders will have to keep on their toes.

Finklestein's Fearless Five, headed by Archie himself, still lead the league, according to latest available statistics. Right behind that team are the aggregations of Joe Alterman, Leo Kopit and Lenny Triestman, all tied for second. Triestman's Terrific Team has the high team-single mark of 574.

Others with Lenny are Harry Gordon, William Wexler, Eddie Feinberg and "Doc" Pritzker. The high team-three score of 1626 is retained by Don Zion's team. And Irwin Silverstein of the same quintet has the high individual three-string score of 389. Dick Barber's high single of 161 has not been bettered.

There will not be any league bowling next Thursday night because of the Thanksgiving Day holiday.

LOUIS KORNSTEIN HONORED

Louis M. Kornstein, president of the Rhode Island Jewish Fraternal Association, was honored at a testimonial dinner given November 10 at the regular meeting of the advisory board of the group.
An engraved silver tray was presented to Mr. Kornstein, who is to be married to Miss Beatrice Teverow November 27.

BROTHERHOOD MEETING

The next meeting of the Temple Beth-El Brotherhood has been called for Wednesday, Dec. 21. The committee arranging the evening's program has disclosed the entertainment for the occasion. It will feature Emil Cohen, known as the "comedian who brings Jewish humor with a Grossinger twist."

Mrs. Darman Tells of Trip to Israel

Mrs. Arthur I. Darman addressed approximately 300 members of the Woonsocket Chapter of Hadassah and their escorts at the annual donor's supper-dance held recently.

The guest speaker, who last month returned from an extended tour through Europe with her husband, centered her talk on child welfare and rehabilitation work of Hadassah in Israel. She told of a central kitchen in Jaffa that supplies 3,500 well-balanced meals in one sitting for children and 20,000 a day; and of the pre-natal care for mothers. She described conditions in a crowded but clean 125-bed tuberculosis hospital, and she described the unavailability to the Jew of the modern, spacious buildings on Mount Scopus in old Jerusalem when the space and facilities are needed so badly.

Mrs. Darman called Israel "a life-long dream becoming a reality" and pointed out that as it becomes stronger, the position of Jews elsewhere becomes more secure.

The Darmans' tour was diverted through Marseilles and Rome transit camps and thence to Israel by Mrs. Archibald Silverman of Providence, who also attended that donors affair.

By JERRY FREIBERG

Hal Cohen's powerful keglers continued their phenomenal rise to a tie for first place. They accomplished this by taking four points from Lenny Summers Sluggers. In other contests Les Friedman's Flyers topped Doc Goldberg's Givers 3 and 1. Stu Steingold's Stalwarts defeated Sam Feldman's Ferocious Five 3 and 1.

No new individual or team records were set but good scores were turned in by Silverman with 329, Rosen 321, Friedman 318, Goldberg 314, Levin 320, and Stu Steingold 319. High single strings were bowled by Levin 121, Dubinsky 116, Silverman 116, Rosen 116, Friedman 115, and Runstein, 115.

What's New At the Home

On November 2 the B'nai B'rith Young Women entertained our folks with games and singing under the chairmanship of Mrs. Elaine Buckler.

The following served as hostesses: Mrs. Joy Field, Mrs. Sylvia Krasner, Mrs. Frances Hecker, Mrs. Helene Sandler, Miss Marion Malenbaum, Miss Ann Geller, Mrs. Helen Newman, Mrs. Elaine Buckler, Mrs. Apline Weinberg, Miss Hilda Barad.

On Tuesday, November 8, our folks enjoyed, for the first time, a television set, which was donated by Dr. Ilie Berger, in honor of his birthday. It is a portable set which can be used in any part of the Home and will be particularly helpful in our infirmary.

Felder Sees Need for Further Building Expansion Program

Inadequacy of the present Home facilities, in spite of the four year building program that was completed only last spring, was brought out by Jacob I. Felder in his report at Sunday's annual meeting. Reminding his listeners that the bed capacity had been doubled from 45 to 90 beds, the newly re-elected president stated:

"We find that already we are crowded and there are six applications pending for whom immediate space is not available. What we thought would suffice for the next decade has proven inadequate within five months after the completion of our building program."

"If I may be permitted to prophesy," Felder went on, "I predict that we shall have to think of enlarging our present facilities within the not too distant future. I feel that our present facilities are already overtaxed and for this reason I am happy that we shall be able to set aside each year certain parts of our income toward a reserve fund which can be used, if needed, for a future building expansion program."

Felder also pointed out that the home had "underestimated the need for facilities for the chronically ill and handicapped in our state." "While we provided for 21 infirmary beds," he said, "we have been caring for an average of 32 chronically ill patients..."

Home Assumes Burden
Discussing the problem of whether or not to accept as residents those applicants who are chronically sick, Felder asserted: "To (the Admissions Committee's) credit, it must be said that at the annual meeting. The main feature of the new by-laws is the establishment of an endowment fund, to be administered by a committee of seven.

Elected to the endowment committee were Morris R. Waldman, chairman; Alex Rumpier, Alvin A. Sopkin, Mrs. Mitchell Sherwin, president of the Ladies Association, Samuel Rapaport Jr., Mr. Felder and Mr. Brier.

Announcement that $34,590 already has been earmarked for the endowment fund was made by Brier in his treasurer's report. The treasurer reported also that of this sum, $28,500 was given by the Ladies Association, representing their life membership fund.

The Home's budget for the current fiscal year (Oct. 1, 1949 to Sept. 30, 1950) was estimated at $82,965, consisting of the following major expenditures:

Kitchen and Dining Room Expenses	$32,710
Infirmary and General care of Guests	21,660
Building Maintenance	13,545
Administration and Office Expenses	15,050

Director's Report
Max Alexander, executive director, who completed his fifth year as Administrator, reported that the Home's population rose from 77 to 85, the average monthly population being 79. There were 21 new admissions, 11 deaths, and five withdrawals or discharges. The numbers of days' care increased to 28,708 as compared to 26,917 the previous year.

He also reported that the percentage of chronically ill and handicapped has been increasing. Of the 21 admitted last year only 5 were in normal health for their age, while the other 16 were either infirm, chronically ill or incurable. Six of them came directly from hospitals.

Economically speaking, Alexander reported, the newly admitted residents fall into the following categories: ten are recipients of old age assistance, three paid small admissions fees, two are paying for partial maintenance, two were admitted free of charge, and four are paying for full maintenance.

Jacob I. Felder, in his presidential report, stressed the need for building up a reserve fund for expansion of the Home's facilities. Excerpts from Mr. Felder's report are quoted elsewhere on this page.

Mrs. Mitchell Sherwin, president of the Ladies Association, reported on the work done by that body during the year.

Max Sugarman, chairman of the memorial committee, reported the addition of 21 new memorial plates which perpetuate the memory of "their loved ones" and also present a source of revenue to the Home.

Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen of Temple Emanuel gave the benediction.

A moment of silence was observed in memory of two members of the Board, Mrs. Rachael Rosen and Charles C. Brown, who passed away during the year. The names of the eleven residents who died during the year were also read and included in a silent prayer.

Association, including the establishment of a motor corps, to provide transportation for residents to and from parties at summer homes, and a new occupational therapy program. "We hope to expand the occupational therapy classes to include the infirm and the handicapped," she added.

Rabbi Bohnen's Prayer at Meeting

"Our God and God of our fathers. It is in keeping with our desire to do Thy will that we gather to review the work done on behalf of the aged of our people. Keep ever before us the desire to make their lives free from concern and worry in their declining years. Help us to look upon them always, not as objects of our beneficence, but as men and women created in Thine image whose care Thou hast entrusted to us as Thy agent. Do Thou give us wisdom so that we may plan for the future of this Home in ways which will make it possible for us to do Thy will in even better fashion than we have in the past. This we ask in Thy name, Oh Lord, who art the protector of the Aged. Amen."

Some people think...

that this is the kind of furniture the MODERN carries ... that they have to mortgage the old homestead to buy here. Some people are wrong! And we're getting tired of that old bromide—"Oh, but Modern is So expensive!" They've never seen the wealth of furniture we feature tagged with more than modest prices ... and they don't know about the real kick we get out of helping folks with limited budgets who want to live well.

If by any chance you're one of them why don't you come in and see for yourself? Take a stroll through our spacious store one of these fine days—you'll discover that good quality furniture doesn't have to command sky high prices.

If it is inconvenient to visit us during regular store hours any member of our owner-managed staff will be happy to arrange an evening appointment. Drop us a card or call Fall River 6-8291.

At a candlelight ceremony in the Indian Room of the Narragansett Hotel Sunday, Miss Pia Jurmann of Providence, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ira Jurmann, was married to Hyman Lipet, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lipet of Pawtucket. Rabbi Morris G. Silk assisted by Cantor Joseph Schlossberg performed the double ring ceremony.

PROCLAMATION
THANKSGIVING DAY
By John O. Pastore
Governor

Once again we stand at the completion of a cycle of growth. Another year is drawing to a close, a year which has embodied the awakening, the promise, the growth, the maturing, and finally the harvest. This is the time when we may see what our sowing has brought us; a sowing, not only of crops of the field, but also of the crops of the spirit. Just as wheat planted produces wheat in the reaping, so the seeds of spiritual growth produce a harvest of spiritual blessings.

More than three hundred years have passed since our Pilgrim forefathers first gave collective thanks to God for His benevolence. In those three centuries, many changes have taken place; indeed, progress has been the keynote of those years, and our country has experienced an expansion and development unparalleled in the history of the world. Though our way of life today little resembles that of our forefathers, in our hearts we feel the same gratitude to our Lord. The same emotion moves us to come together in devout thanksgiving for our many blessings.

Particularly in these times, when so many peoples of the world are suffering in arrest and tribulation, should we realize how much reason we have to thank our God. As citizens of the United States, we are privileged indeed. Ours is a land of plenty and a land of opportunity. Our harvest of security and prosperity has been bountiful far above that of any other nation on earth. It is only fitting that we should perpetuate the custom begun by our forefathers, that of setting aside one day in which to give thanks to God for His infinite goodness; AND NOW, THEREFORE, DO I, JOHN O. PASTORE, GOVERNOR OF THE STATE OF RHODE ISLAND AND PROVIDENCE PLANTATIONS PROCLAIM:

THURSDAY, THE 24TH OF NOVEMBER, 1949, AS

asking that the Lord continue His loving-kindness toward us, and bestowing His guidance through many more seasons of harvest and many more years of happiness and prosperity for ours, the greatest nation on earth.

IN TESTIMONY WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the State to be affixed this 1st day of November, in the year of Our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and forty-nine, and of Independence, the one hundred and seventy-fourth.
