Israel, Jerusalem Inseparable: Knesset

TEL AVIV—Attempts to exclude Jewish Jerusalem from Israel are not calculated to establish peace in the Middle East and least of all in Jerusalem itself. Premier David Ben-Gurion declared this week in addressing a session of the Israel parliament. He emphasized that "the Jews will sacrifice themselves for Jerusalem as would the English for London, the Russians for Moscow, the Americans for Washington."

The Israel Premier said that "Jewish Jerusalem is an organic and inseparable part of the state of Israel. His declaration was unanimously endorsed by the Knesset which proclaimed Jerusalem as an inseparable part of Israel, pledging that the city will not be submitted to foreign rule."

That policy was swiftly upheld with the proclamation of Jerusalem as Israel's new capital city following the United Nations decision to internationalize the Holy City.

Silver Denies U. S. Zionist "Pressure"

NEW YORK—Zionists in this country "would do well" to drop the "fictitious issue" raised by charges that American Zionists "are attempting to pressure the Government of Israel through the control of funds," Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, former chairman of the American section of the Jewish Agency executive and the American Zionist Emergency Council, declared here this week.

Dr. Silver spoke at a dinner celebrating the second anniversary of the United Nations resolution of Nov. 29, 1947, establishing the state of Israel through the partition of Palestine. The dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel was sponsored by the Manhattan Region of the Zionist Organization of America.

"No one is trying to direct the policies of the Government of Israel," Dr. Silver stated, "unless the existence of separate Zionist parties in the United States and elsewhere with their inherited programs which antedated by far the establishment of the state is in itself a form of interference. In that case all Zionist parties, left, right, and center, should be abolished."

Heuss, Adenauer Views "Personal"

FRANKFURT—The statements of the Jews in Germany issued recently by President Theodor Heuss and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer were welcomed by Meir Abraham, S. Hyman, newly-appointed American adviser on Jewish affairs to the U. S. High Commission in Germany. However, Maj. Hyman emphasized that the views expressed in these statements do not seem to be shared by the German people.

"Every Jew who is able to retain a sense of objectivity in the face of what Germany under Hitler did and was determined to do to the Jewish people will applaud the forthright statements of President Heuss and Chancellor Adenauer," Maj. Hyman said in a statement to the press.

Borrowing Asked For UJA Needs

NEW YORK—The United Jewish Appeal this week announced that 5,600 Jewish communities throughout the United States had been asked to borrow some sum of money from banks and other financial institutions for immediate transmission to the Appeal in advance of 1950 campaign collection.

UJA General Chairman Harry Mosenbath warned that the present situation in Israel was so critical that a minimum of $4,000,000 must be given monthly to the Jewish Agency to care for the new immigrants.

GJC Plans Salute To Workers Meeting

Still substantially short of its revised goal of $900,000, the 1949 fund-raising campaign of the General Jewish Committee of Providence faced the last two weeks of the calendar year with approximately 700 potential donors unpledged.

In the face of pathetic appeals from relief and rehabilitation agencies overseas, special "mopping up" squads of volunteer workers were active day and night in a feverish effort to bring the drive's final total close to the $900,000 level—considered the absolute minimum needed to meet the most pressing demands of the United Jewish Appeal and the GJC's 54 other organizations who share in its allocations.

Meanwhile, in recognition of the unselfish efforts of hundreds of volunteer workers who participated in the campaign, preliminary plans were being discussed for the staging of a "Salute to Workers" meeting on Thursday evening, Jan. 5 at the Sheraton-Biltmore ballroom.

The Joint Distribution Committee, a major beneficiary of the United Jewish Appeal and chief instrument of the American Jewish and Arab lands, this week reported—through Edward M. Warburg, its chairman:

"In Europe, despite the vast improvement JDC has been able to bring about in their situation since V-E Day, half of the 1,000,000 remaining Jews are still in need of extensive life-saving help. Tens of thousands of others are waiting to learn whether we—in America—will make it possible for them to leave Israel and other havens in 1950."

The Miracle of Chanukah Night

(A story for children)

By BERNARD SEGAL

(In place of the column "One Man's Opinion", which appears regularly in this space, we present the following story written by Mr. Bernard Segal especially for the Chanukah holiday.)

It was the night of Chanukah, and in Jewish homes the little children were merry, mothers served steaming latkes, while fathers kindled the lights and chanted:

"These lights are sacred,
And we may not make any profane use of them.
But we may look at them,
And give thanks unto Thy name.

For the miracles of Chanukah."

Not so in the house of Wolf the Miser.

On this night of Chanukah, as on any other night, Wolf counted his money by the light of the sacred candles.

Out of his leather bag, Wolf grabbed handfuls of money and he sat at the table in front of the Chanukah Menorah and he counted and he counted his coins. He piled them up in little columns, pennies to pennies, nickels to nickels, and dimes to dimes.

Wolf the Miser was very content. The piles of coins grew before his eyes, in neat little rows, like soldiers on parade. And there were more in there, in his leather bag, all kinds of them, big ones and small ones, copper ones and silver ones. He had had a good day in his store, a very busy day.

And so Wolf the Miser counted his money by the lights of the Chanukah lamp.

It was a fine lamp, all of silver, wrought by the hands of an old silversmith, long ago. And out of the silver he hammered little bells, and tiny birds, and delicate flowers and vines, all clinging to the sides of the Menorah. And the eight cups on the Menorah were shaped like tulips with their mouths open to drink of the dew and of the sunshine.

And the cups of the Menorah were held aloft by a hand. A powerful human hand, strong and sure, held up the eight little cups, and the hand rested on a solid base of the Menorah. In bold letters, all across the base, the old master wrote the words:

"These lights are holy."

A wonderful Menorah made by the hands of an old silversmith many years ago.

How did this Menorah ever find its way to the table of Wolf the Miser? Did he buy it? Did he have it made for himself in honor of Chanukah?

No, not Wolf.

He would not think of anything like that. Only fools would go about wasting good money on Chanukah lamps that are of no use, except for one week of the year. Wolf was not a fool. A cheap lamp, made of sheet metal, one you could buy for a few pennies, was good enough for him.

This wonderful Menorah once stood on the mantelpiece of a home where it was treasured and loved both because of its beauty and because it was made by a great-grandfather, and it was the joy of Chanukah nights to five generations.

But hard times came upon the owner of the precious Menorah, and the children heeded clothes and shoes for the holidays. So the poor man, who was a neighbor of Wolf, gathered his Passover silverware and the Chanukah Menorah, and he brought them to the house of Wolf the Miser, where he left them for the loan of the money he needed.

As he parted with the Chanukah lamp, made by his ancestor, the man said to himself:

"By the time Chanukah comes, things will surely change for the better, and I will pay back my debts, and I will bring home the Menorah for the first night of Chanukah."

But Chanukah came around, and of better times there was no sign, and the man gave up his hopes of redeeming his grandfather's lamp in time for the kindling of the first light. Not for this Chanukah, anyways. Perhaps for the coming Chanukah.

And so the silver Menorah stood on the table of Wolf the Miser on this night of Chanukah, and he sat in front of it counting his coins by the flames of the little lights. He sat and he piled up neat, round little columns of silver coins, and copper coins—pennies to pennies, nickels to nickels, and dimes to dimes he piled them up. And he was content with his day's profits. He counted the columns, and he moved them across the table, like a chess player moving his figures across the field, while the flames flickered sadly in the cups of oil.

"Why do you do that?" a soft voice spoke to Wolf.

Wolf did not even lift up his eyes, or turn his head from his column of coins.

"What was it you said?" he asked.

His wife was in the kitchen poring over her pots and pans, and Wolf thought it was she who spoke to him.

"You should not do this, Wolf," the soft voice said again.

Wolf raised his voice this time, very much annoyed.

"What are you mumbling out there in the kitchen? I cannot hear you. Talk louder if you have something important to say. I am busy here," he shouted toward the kitchen, still thinking that his wife was speaking to him.

"Do not shout, Wolf. I am right here in front of you. Look up from your coins for a while, and you will see me."

Only then did Wolf the Miser lift up his eyes toward the Menorah, and behold, there was the face of a woman he never knew was there, looking at him, and her lips were whispering to him:

"Not for this, Wolf not for the counting of your profits was Chanukah given to you."

And the face of the woman was beautiful, and her eyes looked sadly at him, and she pleaded softly:

"Look at the words on the base of the Menorah, Wolf. What do they say? 'These Lights are Holy'."

"Look into the eyes of my seven sons on the cups of the Menorah. What do you read in them? 'We gave our lives joyfully for the faith of our fathers, so that these lights may be kindled in holiness'."

"Look at the flames trembling in the cups of the Menorah, Wolf. What are they trying to tell you? 'We are the reminders of the souls of heroes who did great wonders in the days of the Maccabees'."

"Do not count your pennies by the light of this Menorah, Wolf."

Was he dreaming? What was all this?

But as he looked closely at the Menorah he noticed seven little faces of seven little children peering at him from under the petals of the flowers clinging to the cups of the lamp.

"Who are you? I never saw you before", he finally asked, and his voice was weak with fear.

"Of course you don't know us. You never looked for us. We were here all the time. All you looked for in this Menorah was its value in gold and in silver. All you wanted to know was 'How much is it worth?' and not 'What does it tell?' Now that you finally see us, you will know that I am Hannah, and these are my seven sons. You surely remember the story of Hannah, and these are my seven sons who died for their faith at the hands of a tyrant king long ago."

Wolf was about to say "Bah, this is a lot of nonsense," and he was about to go back to the sorting and counting of his money.

But the voice of the woman came back to him from the Menorah:

"Don't, Wolf. Don't start again. Besides, you have no right to kindle this Menorah at all. It is not yours, Wolf."

"Not mine!" This time Wolf was angry. "It is mine until I get my money back. That's what way we agreed upon."

"Nevertheless, you should have returned it on the eve of Chanukah!"

"Return it? Who ever heard of anything like that. Return it, and never see my money back again?" Wolf was now good and angry, and he almost shouted.

But the voice of the woman came back to him just as softly as before.

"Money, money, money. That is the only thing you ever think of. Go over to the window, Wolf, and look across the lawn to the house of your neighbor. What do you see?"

Wolf was full of resentment. Who was she, anyways, to order him around. But he obeyed, and he walked over to the window, and he moved the curtain apart slightly, and he peered at the house of his neighbor across the lawn.

And what did he see?

He saw faces of little children, their noses flat against the glass of the window. They stood peering the darkness on the winter night with their black eyes, across the lawn, toward his own house. And as the curtain of his window parted, the little children pointed excitedly toward his house, shouting:

"Here it is! Grandfather's Menorah! Our Chanukah lamp!"

And one of the children ran and brought the mother over to the window, pointing and shouting:

"Here, mother, here it is, our Menorah!"

And the mother came and she stood beside her children by the window, and she embraced her children one by one. And it seemed to Wolf that the face of the mother was like the face of the woman on the Menorah, and the eyes of the children were like those of the seven sons of Hannah.

Now Wolf withdrew from the window, and he came back to the table where the columns of coins were standing in rows. But he did not see his money, and he counted it not. He stood in front of the Menorah and he gazed at the flames in the cups of oil.

"It is not too late, Wolf," the voice came to him again. "You can return it even now. You can still delight these children and their mother. Their father can still kindle the remaining lights on Chanukah in their grandfather's Menorah."

Wolf turned quickly, and he walked over to a cupboard, and he brought out of there his own lamp made of sheet metal, and he placed it on the table beside the silver Menorah. He put out the lights in the Menorah, and he kindled his own. Then he cleaned the Menorah and he wrapped it in a cloth, and he called to his wife in the kitchen.

"Come, Breine, hurry. Put on your coat and your shawl and come with me. Be quick about it!"

Breine hurried to her husband and she watched with amazement as he wrapped a scarf around his neck and pulled his cap over his ears, and struggled with his heavy winter coat.

"Come, come, woman! Stop staring at me. Come with me to our neighbor. How can they kindle Chanukah lights when their Menorah is here? Come,

Chanukah -- The Festival of Lights

Chanukah, or the Festival of Lights, commemorates the first successful struggle for religious freedom in human history.

During this season the Jew rededicates himself to his religious faith and by precept and example indoctrinates his children with the principles of religious freedom. Every evening songs are sung in the home, candles are lighted, increasing in number till the eighth night when the Menorah, or candelabrum is ablaze with light.

In 165 B. C. E., the Syrian conqueror Antiochus decreed the death of the Jewish religion. Immediately the Jew raised the banner of revolution, inspired bands of guerillas, under the leadership of Mattathias and his five sons, harassed and defeated the great armies of Syria. Jerusalem was recaptured, the Temple was cleansed and rededicated to the worship of the Invisible God.

In our day we have seen the forces of reaction and bigotry try to stamp out the flame of freedom. Again men of good will have successfully sprung to arms of their God-given rights and liberties.

This Festival of Light and rededication calls on all men, regardless of race or color or creed, to unite in creating a world of freedom, understanding and peace.

hurry! We have to return it to them right now!

On that very night, the night of the fifth Chanukah light, the silver Menorah stood on the window sill of the house of the man whose great-grandfather wrought it with his own hands for his children and his children's children. The flames shone brightly into the street, and the eyes of the children who stood and watched them shone even brighter.

And anyone who happened to pass by that house on that night

The Temple Beth El Brotherhood will close the year with a program featuring Emil Cohen, a rising Jewish comedian, Wednesday night at 8:15 o'clock in the vestry of the temple.

Cohen has made numerous appearances before men's clubs throughout the country but this will mark his first performance in Rhode Island. His stints at Grossinger's in upper New York State and Miami have been welcomed by audiences appreciative of Jewish humor.

Nat Alterman, program director of the Brotherhood, urges that members and their guests arrive early, since a large turnout is expected.

of Chanukah beheld a great miracle.

All around the table the family sat and sang the songs of the Festival of Lights, and the mother served platterfuls of brown steaming latkes to every one. And who would be sitting at the head of the table? Who, but Wolf the Miser and his wife, Breine.

And when the plates were empty and filled again, and all the singing and the chanting were over, Wolf stood up and he lined up all the children, all seven of them, in front of the Menorah. And right there in the sight of Hannah and her seven sons, Wolf gave to each of them a handful of Chanukah-gelt. Each child, in his turn, came up to Wolf and held up his hands, and each one of them, all the seven of them, came away with a heap of silver coins, given in honor of the Chanukah by Wolf with his own hands.

Truly a great miracle.
(This story I dedicate to all my pupils of today and of yesteryear, and to all who believe in miracles.)
I hope they like it, and that it adds to their enjoyment of the Festival of Miracles and Lights.)

Parents Hold City-Wide Meeting

Mrs. Leo Borenstein presided at the city-wide meeting of the Parents Association of the Jewish Community Center last Tuesday at the Center.

Chanukah and its observance was the theme of the meeting, which wound up the Chanukah workshop, held throughout November to help bring into the homes of the participating mothers the spiritual enlightenment of the "Festival of Lights".

69 DORRANCE STREET

SYD COHEN:

... and Justice for All

Once upon a time, a full generation ago, there lived a major league ball player who was regarded as one of the greatest hitters of all time. The best example of this man's ability is contained in the record of his performance for one World Series, of which everyone has heard.

This player, in just one Series, cracked out 13 hits, one more than the established record, and was officially credited with 12 when the scorer changed his mind after one game on a hot grounder that the shortstop could not handle. His average for the Series was .375, and he hit the only home run of the classic.

In one of the games, he scored all the way from first base on a single and thereby won it. On defense he was equally outstanding, handling 30 balls in the outfield without an error or allowing any runner to take an extra base. He threw out FIVE—that's not a misprint, but five—men at the plate and missed three others only because of bad cutoffs.

Quite a record for one guy, you'll admit; and it would seem at first thought that he should be easy to identify, that he should be as famous for that Series as is Pepper Martin for 1931.

Yet, unless you read his story recently in Sport Magazine—or, unless you are a fan of the last generation and followed baseball fairly closely at the time, chances are ten to one that you cannot name him without reading any further than this line.

A little more about this player. His big league career lasted for 13 years, during which time he compiled the gaudy average of .356; and he was one of the finest throwing outfielders of all time.

If you haven't guessed by now, the following might give it away—the mighty and immortal Babe Ruth himself was impressed with this man to the extent that he copied his batting style—the inimitable style that those of us who saw him play (the Babe, I mean) thought was his, and his alone.

That player, who once batted over .400, was Joe Jackson, Shoeless Joe, of the Chicago White Sox—the infamous Black Sox who threw the 1919 World Series, the Series just mentioned, to Cincinnati's Reds.

You can't find Jackson's records in the books, for he was thrown out of baseball forever by the newly appointed Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis back in 1921. Despite that fine performance in 1919.

So what, you say? Why waste a column on a subject like this? I dunno—guess it goes along with a columnist's privilege of sounding off in the public prints whenever he has something on his mind—and this has been on my mind continually since I read about it.

It's not so much the amazement you must feel that this man could be convicted of participation in the throwing of a Series following a performance like that, although that could be enough. It's not so much that this man—now, for the first time, to my knowledge—proclaims his innocence to the baseball world. It isn't even the calm manner in which he tells his story, and the proof he details—incidents that were witnessed and sworn to by reputable sports figures whom he names.

Much more than all of these is the fact I never knew till now—that when Joe Jackson was tried in a Chicago court in 1921, he was acquitted of all charges in connection with the plot to throw the Series.

Despite this acquittal, he was banished for life from baseball. It almost makes you certain, without hearing the other side, that A. B. Chandler is not the only one of baseball's two commissioners who has made mistakes.

Innocent, Yet Guilty

What particularly intrigues me is Jackson's statement that he was told, when suspended, that he would be reinstated if acquitted, a promise that the former federal justice Landis completely ignored—and that the whole scandal and public fuss resulted from the hatred of Ban Johnson, American League president at the time, toward Charles Comiskey, White Sox owner, over some bad fish, and a desire for revenge at all costs. If these charges were to be investigated and found true, it would undoubtedly be the greatest fish story of all time, with a pretty rotten smell.

Yes, there's a reason for this column. It has to do with justice and the democratic ideals in which we believe. As a member of a minority group that has known much innocent suffering and false accusation, I can feel most strongly for a man like Joe Jackson, a great performer in the game I love, who deserves at least a public hearing and investigation of the charges he has made—especially when he has so much of what looks to be the truth on his side.

I would feel prouder of baseball if the case were re-opened regardless of the outcome and the final verdict. An American is innocent until proven guilty; but Joe Jackson is still guilty, though proven innocent—almost 30 years ago.

Fineman-Trinkel Bowling

By JERRY FRY

Despite the cold outside, the boys at the East Providence Bowling academy were plenty hot.

Les Friedman bowled the pins over to the tune of a neat 364 last week and Chicky White got in the groove and bowled a total of 363. Other good threes were Sam Miller 341, Lenny Summer 345, Silverman 327 and Runstein 324.

Lenny set a new high single record with 148, while Chicky with 143 and 136, Miller 128, Silverman 127, Bob Schwartz 121, Runstein 124 and Les 141 were not far behind.

Hal Cohen's team stayed at the top of the league in spite of a 3-1 loss to Les's boys, and Gene Silverman's hot shots slid right into second place via a 3-1 win over Steingold's five. Another 3-1 loss was sustained by the Goldbergs.

Dear Sir:

Congratulations on your purchase of "Prize Winning Cattle" sent to you today. Also on the fine selection you made.

No doubt you are giving careful thought to the preparation of displaying these outstanding cattle of the 1949 International Live Stock Exposition to your discriminating customers.

The thought has come to us that your trade may desire some information regarding the breed of these animals. They are known as Aberdeen Angus and have won more honors in beef competition than any other breed. This breed is uniformly black with a short head, a compact low-set body, and is naturally hornless. It was imported into America about 1873 from Eastern Scotland and it has found the most favor in this country by people of discriminating taste, because of the fine texture and quality of these cattle.

We are enclosing a Blue Ribbon certifying that the meat you have purchased from us has won a prize at the International Live Stock Exposition held at Chicago.

Permit us to thank you for your order and to hope that you will feel free to call upon us about any matter in which we may be of service to you.

Very truly yours,

Magier-Perelman

Miss Sandra Edith Perelman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard A. Perelman of 58 Garfield Avenue, was married to Irving David Magier of New Bedford, Mass., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Simon Magier of Bendzin, Poland, Sunday at the United Commercial Traveler's Hall. The 6 o'clock candlelight ceremony was performed by Rabbi Carol S. Klein beneath a canopy of white chrysanthemums, floral Star of David and ferns.

The bride, given in marriage by her parents, was attired in a candlelight satin gown, infantia designed, with a portrait neckline accented with puffing, and a fitted bodice. The bouffant skirt, with hip puffing, fell to a long train, and her fingertip veil of imported French illusion was held by a crown of seed pearls. She carried a Bible with an orchid and bouvalla.

Miss Charlene Perelman, as maid of honor for her sister, was dressed in a satin gown of seafoam green, with a square neckline, cap-sleeves, fitted bodice and hooped skirt. She carried a colonial bouquet of American beauty roses matching a tiara of roses.

Attending the bride were the Misses Janice Brososky, Leahbelle Korn, Selma Mae Schmuger, Joyce Granoff, Patricia Porvas, Norma Ludman, Sema Pollock and Joan Charifson. They wore gowns of mint green, lavender, pink, light blue, orchid, apple green, American Beauty rose and powder blue, respectively, and headpieces of flowers. They also carried colonial bouquets.

Judith Kaplan, dressed in blue net and pink ribboned tiara, and carrying a basket of pink roses, was flower girl, and Roberta Perelman, sister of the bride, and Riesha Kaplan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Kaplan of New Bedford, in gowns of deep blue satin, opened the gate leading to the altar.

Joseph Magier of Bronx, N. Y., was best man for his brother, and Gerald Kaplan of New Bedford was ring bearer.

Ushers were Leonard Kaplan, Carl Perelman, both of Providence; Melvin Harriet of Pawtucket; Arnold Fabricant of Brockton; Herbert Glimcher of Roxbury, all cousins of the bride; Morris Kiel of Brooklyn, and Nat Isenberg and Jerry Kapelus of New York City.

Mrs. Perelman chose a grey-blue dinner gown of tissue faille with accents of small blue beading and rhinestones, while Mrs. Louis Israel of New Bedford, was gowned in black lace. Both had orchid corsages.

Two hundred guests from Bronx, Brooklyn, New York City, Boston, Brockton, Roxbury, New Bedford, Dorchester, Alliston, Revere, Pawtucket and Providence attended. Music was furnished by Bernie Perelman, father of the bride, and his orchestra, with Happy Stanley as master of ceremonies. Miss Arlene Miller sang "Because" and "I Love You Truly".

After a wedding reception, the couple left for a motor trip to New York, Washington and Virginia Beach. For her going-away outfit, Mrs. Magier selected an ensemble of royal blue Forstmann's wool with black accessories and a grey Persian coat with matching hat.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the University of Paris and Ecole de Model, Paris.

Art Flink and Bob Krovitz, shared individual honors for the evening. Art had high three of 324, two higher than Bob, who had the best single of 127.

The vastly-improved Weegi Feldman came up with a 313, while Himelfarb had 309 and Ray Gertz 304. In the singles department, Flink and Gertz both rolled 114, while other good scores were 113 by Feldman, 112 by Feinstein and Himelfarb and 110 by Freiberg.

In next week's headline attraction, the runner-up Feinsteins will test the Himelfarbs' mettle.

Mr. Alprin also reported that a program of prominent speakers, entertainment, dancing to music by Jack Brill, and singing by Victor Gerstenblatt has been planned.

Other officers are Max Parness, recording secretary, and Isadore Friedman, financial secretary, to be installed by Rabbi Morris G. Silk, and William Gerstenblatt, vice president, to be installed by Rabbi Carol Klein. Rabbi David Werner will install the board of directors, while new members will be welcomed into the organization by Mr. Alprin, representing the board.

Chanukah Program Sunday at No. End

Children of the North End will celebrate Chanukah at Congregation Sons of Jacob Sunday at 1:30 o'clock in the vestry of the synagogue, with a program of singing, dancing and a Chanukah playlet, presented by the children of the Jewish Community Center. Gifts for each child and refreshments have been prepared by the Sisterhood.

Bowling Briefs

By RUTH TANENBAUM
Competition was keen when the Strippers met the Pin-Ups in battle last week. Doris Graubart rolled 94 and 92 but Ruth Tanenbaum swept ahead of her with 94 and 106. Lil Tarsky followed with 84 and 90 and honorable mention goes to Sylvia Gilden, who rolled 81 and 92.

Pin-Ups looked like this: Kayla Jagolinzer 99 and 89, El Bida 95 and 111, and while the other scores on the team weren't spectacular, the Pin-Ups spare, Eve Tanenbaum, rolled 90 and Hylda Edelman surprised us by making a strike on strike.

Per the Bloomer Girls vs. the Pin-Downs, nothing terrific, although Millie rolled a 94, Ruby Koritz 92 and 89, and Betty 80. Helene Preblud's 99 and 103 were the only strings worth mentioning for the Pin-Downs.

"Al Tashlichenu"

There are many people who, because of their advanced years, become homeless. Family and children have no room for them and they are unwanted guests at their tables. And there are others, who because of ill health or poverty are a burden to those surrounding them. They are being tossed from child to child, spending a week here and another there. They remember the years and days when they had a home of their own, when they were independent and even prominent in the business world; and suddenly, old age has made them homeless and dependent upon the mercy of others and even the mercy of children. Thus, the prayer, "V'al Tashlichenu", means, "Cast us not, O Lord, in our old age into homelessness."

We are fortunate in Providence to have our Home for the Aged which prevents this homelessness of the aged. Here we have aged from all walks of life who have found happiness and security and a real home. They are being made to feel that they are wanted and they consider their advanced years as a blessing.

The spirit that exists in this Home is remarkable, both in its physical set-up and in its environment. May the hands of those who uphold it be strengthened and may they find satisfaction on their beneficial deeds. May the Almighty reward them with His blessings.

(Excerpts from the remarks of Rabbi Carol Klein of Congregation Sons of Jacob at the 17th Annual Meeting of the Home, on November 13.)

Annual Chanukah Appeal For Membership Is Launched

Chanukah week has been appropriately chosen as the occasion for the Home's annual appeal for membership. The membership committee, under the chairmanship of Harry Blacher and Dr. Ilie Berger, urges every family in the state of Rhode Island to become a member of the Home.

The committee has issued the following statement to explain "Why you should be a member and continuing member of the Home:

It Serves The Entire State of Rhode Island.

For 37 years the Home has provided a haven of refuge for the aged and infirm of the State of Rhode Island and offered them comfort, security and contentment in their declining years.

It Needs Your Support

The Home is not affiliated with the Community Chest or any other fund-raising agency and it depends, for the major part of its operating cost, on membership income. Membership dues range from $5 to $200 a year. It has, at present, 2,000 members but it needs more members and more continuing members.

It Is A Resource of All Classes.

The Home makes no distinction between rich or poor; all classes are entitled to its services if they need the Home for religious, social or medical reasons.

It Serves The Aged In Sickness or In Health.

Chronic illness and infirmities are one of the major reasons for admission. The Home serves, through its Infirmary, the handicapped, the chronically ill and the bed-ridden, for whom there exist no facilities in their own home or hospitals.

It Serves You and Your Future.

Your membership helps provide a modern, progressive Home, which, through your support, is the pride of this community and the entire state. Your parents, your relatives, or you, yourself, may some day benefit by the Home's service.

It Needs Your Participation.

Making suggestions as to programs, voting in the elections of the Officers and Committees, helping as co-worker in the Membership Appeal, will give you personal satisfaction that comes from acknowledging your share of responsibility. By helping to bring security and happiness to the aged and infirm you are fulfilling an ancient Jewish religious obligation, honoring your parents and the aged of your community.

By MAX ALEXANDER
Executive Director

During the five years that I have been affiliated with the Home, I have seen it make great forward strides—both in its physical expansion, in its popularity and in the broadening of its services to the community.

However, the Home's strength does not rest in its physical or financial soundness, it rests in the spirit of the people who guide its policies—the Board of Trustees, on their awareness of the problems of our aged and their response to

P. F. A. Bowling

With a rearrangement of the teams and the handicap system, the P. F. A. Bowling League is off to a good start. After bowling only a short time on polished alleys the boys are making very good progress as shown by Herbie Wagner's high 3 string 384 and Louis Schechtman's high single 158.

The surprise score of last week's bowling was Harry Tolchinsky's 150. Harry is toward the end of the list on the averages but he says he has found "The Eye". Herbie Wagner with an average of 115 last week bowled a mere 136. George "Hot Diggity Dog" Labush bowled 342.

218-Year-Old Torah Dedicated In New Home

The 218-year-old Torah that was presented to the Congregation Sons of Abraham Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. David Baum is shown here as it was placed in the Ark by Louis Trostonoff. A standing room throng of more than 700 witnessed the dedication of the Torah

Congregation Sons of Abraham this week is in possession of what is believed to be the oldest Torah in the city of Providence. The Torah, written in Germany in 1731, was formally placed in the Holy Ark Sunday following the presentation and dedication ceremonies witnessed by more than 700 persons.

Governor John O. Pastore, Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen, president of the Rabbinical Association of Rhode Island, and Rabbi Abraham Chill of Congregation Sons of Abraham, were featured speakers at the historic event.

Eighty-year-old David Baum, to whom the Torah was handed down through succeeding generations of his family, carried the Torah to the "bima" beneath a canopy borne by Mitchell Shulkin, Harry Nozick, I. Goldstein and Ted Zilman. Other Torahs were carried by Samuel Mossberg, congregation president; Michael Orzeck, chairman of the board; Morris Kirshenbaum, secretary; I. Brodsky, Hyman Shindler and David Kelman. Rabbi Chill placed a new mantle on the venerable Torah, and Isadore Lazarus placed a crown on the holy scroll.

The committee that arranged the ceremonies was headed by Lazarus and included Orzeck, Louis Trostonoff, Louis Bedrick, Charles Bresler and Herman Auster, vice president, ex-officio.
