B'nai B'rith, Hillel to Present Salute to Brandeis, Wednesday

"A Salute to Brandeis University," the first Jewish-sponsored, non-sectarian institution of higher learning in the United States, will be observed next Wednesday evening, March 8 in the ballroom of the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel. The public is invited to attend the program, which will start at 8:30 o'clock.

Dr. Abram L. Sachar, president of Brandeis University, and formerly national director of the Hillel Foundation, will be the speaker of the evening at the event, which is under the sponsorship of Roger Williams Lodge and Chapter of B'nai B'rith, and the Hillel Foundation of Brown University. Gov. John O. Pastore will serve as chairman of the evening.

Other guests, who will include officials of Rhode Island's colleges and universities, are Lucius A. Whipple, president, R. I. College of Education; Dr. Carl R. Woodward, president, R. I. State College; Dr. Henry M. Wriston, president of Brown University; Dr. Nancy Lewis, acting dean of Pembroke College; Henry L. Jacobs, president, Bryant College; Very Rev. Robert Slavin, O. P., president, Providence College; Albert W. Clafin, president, R. I. College of Pharmacy and Allied Sciences, and Max Sullivan, president, R. I. School of Design.

Charges Religious Census is Illegal

HOBOKEN—Charging that the religious census being taken in public schools here is illegal, a lawyer representing a group of objectors told the Board of Education he intended to take court action, if necessary, to halt the census.

Mrs. Roosevelt Scores Plan for Jerusalem

By MRS. ARTHUR NEWMAN

(Note—The opinions that Mrs. Roosevelt expresses in this story have not appeared elsewhere since her visit to Providence last week. Because of this, and because Mrs. Roosevelt's remarks are deemed of particular interest to the public, we are pleased to print the following interview. Ed.)

The U.N. plan on the internationalization of Jerusalem was not a good idea, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said last Friday afternoon at a press conference in the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel. "It's a foolish stand when both Jews and Arabs refuse to accept the plan."

In reference to minority groups she emphasized in contrast how the Russian delegate at once seizes upon any American instance of intolerance toward a minority group or member of one and uses the U.N. as a sounding board to send word of it to the areas of the world which Communism is seeking to dominate.

AMERICAN JEWISH CONGRESS announces first annual Stephen S. Wise Awards will be presented to President Harry S. Truman, for his civil rights program; Prime Minister David Ben Gurion of Israel for his leadership of the Jewish State; Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, Chairman of the European Executive Council of the Joint Distribution Committee, for his work in aiding the rehabilitation and resettlement of decimated European Jewry; Prof. Harry Austryn Wolfson, who holds Nathan Littauer Chair of Jewish Literature and Philosophy at Harvard, for his distinguished work in the field of Jewish culture and particularly for his lately published work on Philo. The awards, of $1,500 each, will mark March 17, birthday of the late Rabbi Wise, founder of AJCongress.

Testimonial Planned For Archie Silverman

Several hundred friends, admirers and business associates of Archibald Silverman, prominent Providence philanthropist and civic leader, are planning to tender him a testimonial dinner in commemoration of his 70th birthday this month, it became known this week.

The affair will be held at the Sheraton-Biltmore hotel, Sunday evening, March 26, the committee in charge of arrangements has announced.

Alvin A. Sopkin, a close associate of Mr. Silverman in General Jewish Committee activities, is serving as chairman of the dinner committee. Sidney A. Kane is treasurer and Joseph Galkin is secretary. Benjamin Brier will be toastmaster of the affair.

Other members of the planning committee include Joseph W. Ress, Alter Boyman, Charles Rothman, Irving I. Fain and Henry Hassenfeld.

Because of space limitations, the planning committee voted to restrict dinner reservations to men only. There will be no fund-raising in connection with the affair.

Appointment of an honorary "Committee of 100," composed of prominent Jewish and non-Jewish leaders of the community who have worked with Mr. Silverman in various endeavors during the past three decades, will be named soon.

Because 1950 rounds out 30 years of unparalleled activity by Mr. Silverman in many civic, business, fraternal and philanthropic fields, and also marks his 50th wedding anniversary, the proposal for a

Paper is Target of Swastika Painting

LOS ANGELES—A swastika was painted last week on the sidewalk leading into the entrance of the B'nai B'rith Messenger, Los Angeles Anglo-Jewish weekly.

David Weissman, editor of the publication, said the sign of the Nazi emblem had not yet been erased because the vandals used a paint of unusual composition. The police were notified and an investigation is on.

A fire of undisclosed origin last week burned down the Free Synagogue in the San Fernando Valley.

Social Agency Workers Form New Group

Yesterday marked the holding of the first regular meeting of a new organization in Providence—the Committee of Professional Workers in Jewish Social Agencies—designed to coordinate activities and planning among the various groups and institutions operating on the social welfare level in the greater Providence community.

Headed by Joseph Galkin, executive director of the General Jewish Committee of Providence, the group includes Burton Rubin, representing the Jewish Family and Children's Service, secretary, and the following charter members:

Maurice Kritzman and Bernard Marks, Jewish Community Center, Max Alexander, Jewish Home for the Aged; Mrs. Eva Schaffer, Jewish Family and Children's Service; Mrs. Genevieve Nesby, Miriam Hospital, and Mrs. Esther Pritsker, R. I. Refugee Service.

The organization's founding stems from a recent meeting of the above social welfare agency executives at the Jewish Home for the Aged, called to discuss common areas of activity where duplication of service could be eliminated and the same energy channeled into more intensive programs in other areas.

The idea of an "informal" organization, whose members would meet periodically to review day-by-day activities and preview contemplated long-range programs, was advanced by Galkin. The suggestion won unanimous approval. Regular meetings are slated for the first Thursday of each month.

"We look forward, in many instances, to working out cooperative programs among our various member agencies that inevitably will lead to expanded and improved service to the people of the greater Providence Jewish community," said Galkin this week.

"It has been our experience that, frequently, when one of our members initiates a project of public service, it touches upon the sphere of activities of other members. By discussing in advance our programs and combining our talents and resources, we should be able to do a better job for a greater number of people," he commented.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attired in a gown of candlelight satin fashioned with a scalloped neckline and long torso, long sleeves and flowing train. Her cap of matching satin and chantilly lace held a full length veil of silk illusion applied with lace, and she carried white orchids and stephanotis.

Attending the bride were Miss Deborah Rosen, her sister, maid of honor, and Mrs. Ralph N. Cardozo III, sister-in-law of the groom, matron of honor. Miss Rosen wore a gown of pink nylon net over white satin, styled with an off-the-shoulder neckline and puffed skirt. Her large picture hat matched her gown. The matron of honor was gowned in pink tulle, fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, and a matching pink cap. Both attendants carried pink camellias.

Ralph N. Cardozo III was best man for his brother, and ushers were Herbert Hurwitz and Myron Markell of Brookline, Jack Stanzler of Providence, and Fred Neher, Kent Moore and Hart Cardozo of St. Paul.

A reception with music by Herbert Sulkin was held at the Country Club.

After a wedding trip to Beverly Hills, California, the couple will make their home at White Bear Lake, St. Paul.

The bride attended Pembroke College and Mr. Cardozo was graduated from Brown University.

HEYWOOD - WAKEFIELD

This suite features concave and convex drawer fronts which not only add a newness not heretofore evident in Modern design but which also give off lights and shadows that are interesting and colorful. The convex surfaces are recessed at the ends to act as drawer pulls. The base is off the floor for easier cleaning and less bulkiness. The mirror has a plate glass inside of a wood frame at the bottom. The Modern pull-up chair is fully upholstered and has a spring cushion. Other pieces in the Koh-i-noor suite include a Mr. and Mrs. dresser, a dresser with a deck top, vanity, night stand, and vanity bench with a revolving top. Beds are available in single and full sizes.

Even though you may not need furniture at this time, you will enjoy seeing this display at the Modern Furniture Company in Fall River. Be sure to ask or write for your complimentary copy of Modern's new booklet, illustrating the Heywood-Wakefield Collection.

6 Kirshenbaums' Firm
In New Location

From a one-employee firm that began in 1929 in a small garage and specialized in greasing, washing and parking—to a spacious, new, ultra-modern auto body and radiator shop that employs 15 men—that is the outline story of the Friendship Body and Radiator Works, which only last week officially opened its new plant at the corner of Point and Chestnut Streets.

Owned and operated by Morris and Sam Kirshenbaum, who organized the firm on Friendship Street 21 years ago, Friendship Body and Radiator Works is now in its third location, the present home being termed the most modern and best equipped auto repair service in New England.

The Kirshenbaum Brothers remained at their first shop until 1936, when they moved to a larger plant on Chestnut St. and added three employees. One year before, they had added body work to their service. Their new plant on Point Street is two and a half times as large as the Chestnut Street location, and was constructed especially for the firm.

A second generation of Kirshenbaums, in the persons of Selwyn and "Babe," are now working their way up in the business.

Completing its recent change of location to its new building after several months of intensive preparation, Friendship Body and Radiator Works has put together in this imposing structure an auto repair shop with streamlined production and assembly-line efficiency which is open day and night.

Among the features to be found in the new plant are a new car and truck aligning and balancing service with equipment that discovers and corrects unbalanced wheels, misaligned frames and bent axles and provides a thorough safety checkup. Wheels can be tested at speeds up to 100 miles per hour, while the new electric eye tests and corrects unbalanced wheels.

Mrs. Roosevelt Hits Jerusalem Plan

This is a difficulty that always faces an occupation government."

When asked about Federal aid to colleges, she said, "It should in no way affect the curriculum of the college." To demonstrate she cited the example of Cornell, which has been receiving Federal aid. This is in contradiction with the stand taken by Henry W. Wriston, president of Brown University who contends that Federal aid to colleges would soon involve Federal control of the subjects taught.

An to an amendment to the constitution on equal rights for women, Mrs. Roosevelt believed that it could be accomplished through State laws.

Mrs. Roosevelt was a guest of the World Affairs Council of Rhode Island at a meeting last Friday night in the State Auditorium. Mrs. Albert Pilavin was chairman of the arrangements committee.

"One Man's Opinion"

The Old Beth-Olom

By BERNARD SEGAL

Where Central Falls, Lonsdale, and the Town of Lincoln meet on a knoll overlooking Scot's pond and the Lincoln Woods, lies the resting place called Moshassuck Cemetery. Today it is bordered by two busy highways, a giant industrial plant, high steel towers for power transmission, and a thickly settled neighborhood. But in 1868, when the cemetery was laid out, Moshassuck was a peaceful country site, amidst woods and ponds.

The cemetery has no church affiliations, and is administered by a board of trustees selected by the owners of land within its gates.

In one section of this inter-denominational cemetery lie the earthly remains of some two hundred of our early Jewish settlers in Providence and Pawtucket. You walk along the gravelled paths between family plots, over well-kept lanes of grass, and your eye suddenly falls on a row of stone markers that are different. You come closer and you notice the Hebrew lettering on the monuments, and you know that your feet are treading on the old Jewish Beth-Olom of the Congregation Sons of Zion.

Purchased In 1876

The records of this 75-year-old congregation tell us that in the year 1876, just one year after the congregation was organized, the Moshassuck plot was purchased. That much I knew from the records. But I did not know that it was a section of a cemetery for all creeds. This makes it a very unique burying place, the only one of its kind in Rhode Island, and I lingered much longer among its plots, and I came again when the elm trees were in full foliage and the hollyhocks climbed high beside the iron fence.

The oldest grave in this Beth-Olom is that of Henry J. Drescher, who died just a few months after the plot was purchased. Curiously enough, the name is not found in the list of members of Sons of Zion. The original marker was obviously replaced recently (see picture).

The grave stood alone until a year later when it was joined by another one. That, too, bears the name of a non-member. The English face of the marker reads:

Moses Eizek Mannheimer,
July 16, 1879.
Aged 89 years.

And the Hebrew face repeats it, and adds that the deceased was a native of the Medinah Galicia. The most arresting marker is the one over the grave of Reb Yosef Shoel Rabinowitch. It is seen in the front row of markers, with two bullet-like holes through the heart of the stone.

Early last Fall I wrote about this unusual man, the pioneer teacher in our community, and of the high esteem in which he was held by the congregation of the Orms Street Shul. At that time I transcribed the legend on the stone, and the translation of it by Rabbi William Braude. The text is even now hard to decipher, and will become entirely un-readable in a few years, because of the erosion of the soft stone by the elements.

First Jewish Doctor

At this Moshassuck cemetery rests the first Jewish physician in Providence. The monument on his grave, of modern gray granite, was no doubt erected recently to replace the old, thin slab of white stone that is typical of all but a few of the graves. In gold lettering the English upper part reads:

B. Cohen, M.D.
January 13, 1891
Aged 57 years.

And the Hebrew part reads:
Here rests Friend
Beinush ben Zeev Wolf Cohen.

Born in the year 5594.
Died in the year 5651.

This marker started me off on a piece of detective work that merits a detailed account. Fortunately, there is still Miss Bessie Butekan with us (may she be spared for many years more), who knew this doctor in her childhood, and from her I pieced together the story of the pioneer Jewish M. D. in Providence.

At the very outskirts of the cemetery, adjacent to the Sons of Zion plot, is another Beth Olom of a later date. It is entered through an ornate iron arc, with an oval shaped plaque (see picture).

The year 5650 is, of course, 1890, and the organization to whom this plot belonged, the R. I. Hebrew Medical Aid Association, is no longer in existence, to my knowledge. May I ask my readers who know something of this organization, or of its records, to do me the favor of writing me about it.

Lubar List, the organizer, was known as the Sheriff, and was a familiar figure in communal life among the immigrants of the early part of the century. The grave of his wife Rose, who joined him in the family burying place in 1937, was the last one to be dug on this Beth Olom, Home of Eternal Rest, in the Jewish section of the Moshassuck Cemetery.

Salute to Brandeis

A group of Brandeis University students returning to the campus of the nation's first Jewish-sponsored, nonsectarian institution of higher learning, after an outing on the nearby Charles River. Shown in the background is The Castle, beautiful fieldstone, ivy-covered structure which is the largest of ten major buildings comprising the university's home.

Ludwig Lewisohn, noted author, critic, and lecturer, causes his students to chuckle during a class in English Literature. Classes at Brandeis are small, in accordance with the favorably low faculty-student ratio of one to nine.

Student Body, Faculty Are Already Doubled

Brandeis University in Waltham, Massachusetts, which launched its first academic year in the fall of 1948 with the admission of a freshman class of 100, has today more than doubled both its student body and its faculty. Now 240 young men and women of various faiths and nationalities attend classes on the University's beautiful 100-acre campus near Boston, overlooking the winding Charles River. The atmosphere of a small, high quality institution characterizes the new university where students are privileged to enjoy the exceedingly low faculty student ratio of one to nine.

Included on the Brandeis faculty are men of such prominence as Ludwig Lewisohn, internationally known author and lecturer; and Max Lerner, eminent political scientist. Aiding the University in the development of the newly formed School of Music are Dr. Serge Koussevitzky serving as University Consultant in Music, and Leonard Bernstein, a member of the Music School's Consultative Committee. Serving as University Consultant in Science is Dr. Selman Waksman, noted scientist responsible for the discovery of streptomycin and neomycin.

Among the members of the Brandeis Board of Trustees, headed by George Alpert, Esq., prominent Boston attorney, are Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the late president, Dr. Isador Lubin, economist and statistician, and Judge Joseph M. Proskauer, noted philanthropist and attorney.

First Jewish-sponsored Non-sectarian School

BRANDEIS UNIVERSITY was founded as the first Jewish sponsored, nonsectarian institution of higher learning in the western hemisphere. It came into being because of the desire of the Jewish community to make a corporate contribution to American higher education in the tradition of the great universities which have stemmed from denominational generosity. The Universities, in order to create that wholesome environment which may best stimulate the sincere pursuit of learning, has opened its doors to all students who meet academic standards, without reference to race, color or religious affiliation.

Brandeis University will always be small in size and will strive for highest quality. Enrollment will be limited to maintain a high ratio of faculty to students. Applicants are judged on the strength of their academic record. Faculty members are selected on their ability to enrich and strengthen the intellectual development of the student body. There will be no compromise with quality. The ideal of Brandeis University is best expressed in the Psalmist's words—truth even unto its innermost parts. At Brandeis, the temper and climate of the mind will take precedence over the acquisition of mere facile talent. An institution named for Justice Louis Dembitz Brandeis must emphasize intellectual integrity and must encourage the discipline of industry and thoroughness.

Every man and woman who enjoys the opportunities and privileges resulting from our democratic society has a stake in the success of this venture.

Curriculum Based On General Education

The Brandeis curriculum is based on the general education concept. This plan requires the student to participate in an integrated sequence of "core" courses which, by general consent, appear to provide the best means of establishing a solid general foundation of knowledge about our cultural heritage. An attempt is made to avoid the dissipation of energy which accompanied the aimless and unreasoned selection of courses under the old "free elective" system. Such a program does not prevent a student from pursuing a related sequence of courses in some preferred field of concentration. But it does make certain that, along with specialization in a particular area, the student will be introduced to the major experiences of our social evolution, and to those significant scientific achievements which should be the common possession of educated men and women.

The College of Arts and Sciences at Brandeis is not organized in the traditional departmental system. The courses of instruction

The Master Plan Of Brandeis U.

The master plan was evolved under the direction of the Brandeis University Board of Trustees Building Committee. Chairman of the Committee is Meyer Jaffe, of Fall River, paper manufacturer and prominent philanthropist. Serving with him on this Committee are Jacob Shapiro, shoe manufacturer, and Mr. Alpert. Execution of the master plan and coordination of its various aspects will be under the supervision of Dr. David S. Berkowitz, Director of University Planning for Brandeis University.

The firm of Saarinen, Saarinen and Associates have long been prominent in architectural circles and Eliel Saarinen, senior member, was this month awarded the Royal Gold Medal for Architecture by the Royal Institute of British Architects. Winners of many famous architectural competitions, the firm has designed campus plans for William and Mary, Antioch and Drake University.

under the Faculty of Arts and Sciences are offered by five schools designated as the School of General Studies, the School of Social Sciences, the School of Humanities, and the School of Science. A School of Fine Arts and Music completes the offerings on the undergraduate level. By avoiding the administrative structure of many small departments and divisions, Brandeis hopes to facilitate a spirit of cooperation and cross-fertilization of ideas among the faculty and produce a better integration of knowledge during the undergraduate period.

Students may pursue courses leading either to the Bachelor of Arts degree or the Bachelor of Science degree. The fields of concentration planned are as follows: The School of Sciences will offer Mathematics, Biology, Chemistry, and Physics. Fields of study in the Social Studies include History, Political Science, Economics, and Psychology. The School of Humanities will provide instruction in Comparative Literature, Romance Languages, and Literature, English and American Literature. Students will be able to study Classical or Semitic Languages and Civilization by devising an integrated program from the wide range of appropriate courses offered by the Schools of Social Studies and Humanities.

The proposed school of Advanced Studies will complete the offerings in the liberal arts by providing doctoral and postdoctoral instruction and research facilities.

The University will also develop a program on the graduate and professional levels by organizing a School of Law, a Graduate School of Administration, and by creating a Medical Center which will train doctors, dentists, veterinarians, nurses, public health specialists and furnish postgraduate instruction and research in the medical field.

Plan 50 Buildings In Next Ten Years

Brandeis University, one of the nation's newest institutions of higher learning, has adopted a master plan for the development of its 100 acre Waltham, Massachusetts campus which provides for the construction of 50 new buildings during the next ten years at a total estimated cost of $22,715,000, it was announced today by George Alpert, Esq., President of the University's Board of Trustees.

The master design, created by the firm of Saarinen, Saarinen and Associates, internationally prominent architects, will be executed in two stages: the first calling for the erection of facilities for the Brandeis University Faculty of Arts and Sciences, and the second providing for the needs of the University's projected professional and graduate schools. It is anticipated that the entire expansion program will be completed by 1960.

The first stage of the building activity will be launched at once and calls for the erection of 30 buildings at a cost of $13,215,000. When completed it will include all required instructional, laboratory, housing, and extra-curricular facilities for the undergraduate college. Ground will be broken within 30 days for the construction of a group of residence facilities, the first of the new buildings.

The University will announce at a future date building plans for the housing of the professional and graduate schools to be established at Brandeis. Mr. Alpert stated that this second stage of the University's master plan would probably call for 20 additional buildings which would cost approximately $9,500,000. Preliminary sketches for this portion of the University's expansion program have not yet been drawn.

Speaking in behalf of the Brandeis University Board of Trustees, who had just voted approval of the plans, Mr. Alpert stated, "We who have taken part in the founding of Brandeis University are extremely pleased with the conception of the new Brandeis campus, long envisioned by the Trustees and now so well designed by Saarinen, Saarinen and Associates. The enthusiastic reception with which Brandeis University has been greeted throughout the nation justifies our confidence that the Saarinen plans will be realized in the near future. We understand, however, that in the last analysis this fine physical plant is only the structure within which the nation's first non-sectarian university to be established under Jewish sponsorship may realize its high academic objectives."

Dr. Abram L. Sachar, President of Brandeis University, declared, "The acceptance of this master design for the future Brandeis University by the Trustees, men of vision whose faith resulted in the establishment of Brandeis little more than a year ago, manifests anew their confidence in the ideals of the University. It represents one more advance in the already rapid growth of our institution. It is a bold step, imaginatively executed and fully warranted by the realities of the University's early experiences."

The plans for the new buildings, which are presented in a University publication "A Foundation

For Learning:—Planning the Campus of Brandeis University," are characterized by modern functional design. The central quadrangle of the campus will contain all instructional buildings and the Library. Also located in the central portion of the campus is the Creative Arts Center, dominated by a circular auditorium which will seat 2,000 and contains entrances on all sides. The Library, for which funds have already been received, will contain 250,000 volumes and will be known as the Walter A. Jaffe Memorial. The unique Chapel, reflecting in architectural design the University's nonsectarian principle, will preserve the integrity of each form of religious worship.

Surrounding the quadrangle will be three clusters of dormitories, each containing seven units. Each group will have its own dining hall, and recreational facilities.

Backstage With Mel Allen

Chatting with Mel Allen behind the scenes is naturally different from hearing him on the speaker's platform, so this week's column is devoted to a resume of the information gathered by discussing baseball and broadcasting with him before and after his guest appearance last Tuesday at Roger Williams Lodge, B'nai B'rith's annual sports nite.

Anything repeated from what he said publicly is done for the benefit of those who did not see or hear him last week or last month, during his previous Providence appearance.

No "How About That"

Strangely, no one in the audience or backstage last week gave out with the battle cry "How About That," with which Mel took the sports world by storm last year. Mayor Dennis J. Roberts did bring it up when he was introduced to Allen and tried to explain what an intense rivalry exists between Red Sox and Yankee partisans in Providence, but he forgot the remark and after fumbling around for the three words had to accept relief from an onlooker. To which one might add: How about that?

"That's a funny thing," Mel said to me when I asked how the remark came into being. "I've been saying 'how about that' all my life and it never made an impression before. As a matter of fact, I used it several times on the air in previous years and nothing happened."

How, then, did it catch on so suddenly?

"I guess it must have been the exciting pennant race last year, when every game was so important, or looked so important," he said. "Possibly I put more into my voice last year when I used it than I ever did before."

"The first I knew about it," he added, "was when I came into the Stadium one day and the fans started to yell it at me."

Two Years Behind

Dan Parker reported in the Daily Mirror last week that Allen had just signed a four year contract with the Yankees and asked if the pact didn't make Mel the highest paid broadcaster in the nation. To which Mel replied: "I don't know where he got that. I just finished two years on a four year contract. Dan's two years late finding out about it."

Whether he is or isn't the highest paid sports announcer shouldn't concern Mel a bit. He is under personal contract to the Yankees, who are reported to pay him between $35,000 and $50,000 per year. Earnings from his other activities boost that sum to a figure not far distant from what Ted Williams and Joe DiMaggio are supposed to be getting.

And that brings us to what Mel admits is the $64 question everywhere he goes: who is the better player, Williams or DiMaggio?

Steering a middle course, Mel gives what he says is the almost unanimous opinion of managers, coaches and players in baseball, and he selects Eddie Dyer, manager of the Cardinals, as an expert example of that opinion.

In a conversation held at St. Petersburg last March, Mel asked Dyer for his opinion of the greatest ball player of the day; and Eddie, who has a guy named Stan Musial on his payroll, remarked that he was looking for a center fielder—and despite the all-around brilliance of Musial, he was still looking for a center fielder. That summation prefaced Dyer's conclusion—that Joe DiMaggio is the greatest all-around player since the days of Ruth, Speaker and Cobb. Williams is by far the better hitter, Eddie said, with Musial close behind. Others can field better than Joe, run faster, throw better, but none comes close to doing all of these things as superbly as the Yankee Clipper.

And, adds Allen, those are the sentiments throughout baseball...

On the subject of last year's final and decisive game, Allen again offers no personal opinion, instead quotes the Red Sox players, who certainly should know. They lost the game.

The argument still rages as to whether Joe McCarthy was wise in lifting Ellis Kinder for a pinch hitter in the eighth inning with the Sox trailing 1-0. You'll recall that the Yanks swarmed over Kinder's relief for four runs, and that Vic Raschi then stood off a three run Boston rally in the ninth. To the argument that had Kinder stayed in the Sox would have won by 3-1. Mel says the Red Sox players themselves admit that Raschi was in complete command and would have won the game 1-0 if he had to.

Then, too, Joe DiMaggio later said he never would have gone out to play the ninth in his weakened condition had the game hinged on that one run. With a five run spread, the Clipper figured he could go the route—and, says Allen, the Sox three runs came as a direct result of Joe's inability to chase Bobby Doerr's long fly which fell over his head for a triple. With a healthy center fielder, say the Sox and Yanks alike, Raschi would have had a shutout.

The point is that McCarthy could not afford to go with Kinder. He needed a run more than another well-pitched inning and he had to make a try for that run. Incidentally, Mel adds, Tommy Henrich's homer off Parnell was the blow that broke the Sox and won the game for the Yanks. Again, he quotes the players as his authority.

And, finally, here's a surprise for the fans, and now Mel Allen voices his own opinion. Next to Ralph Kiner, he lists Boston's Walt Drogo as the player with the best chance of breaking Babe Ruth's home run record.
