The Surprise of His Life

NEW YORK—Eugene Ginter, 11, a freckle-faced DP boy who cried bitterly when he boarded a ship for the U. S. because he had to leave behind his most prized possession, a mongrel dog named "Poochy," received the surprise of his young life when he arrived in New York. HIAS, the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society, which aided the immigration of the boy and his parents, heard about the boy's sorrow and arranged that he should be met on the pier by a tiny wire-haired terrier, the gift of Gimbel's department store in New York. Shown handing the puppy to Eugene is Henry Fried. Eugene, who was born in Krakow, Poland, resembles a typical American boy except that he wears a concentration camp number tattooed on his arm. Along with his parents, he was thrown into the Krakow ghetto by the Nazis when he was only two years old. The family was later sent to the dread Auschwitz concentration camp.

Faction Tries to Split JWV in Brooklyn

NEW YORK—A faction in the Kings County Jewish War Veterans is threatening to split the organization unless a recently-elected county vice-commander resigns from his trade union. The storm center is Sol Gore-lick, 34 a Welfare Dept. employe who belongs to the United Public Workers.

On Tuesday, the Journal-American and the World-Telegram and Sun blossomed with simultaneous reports that "right-wing elements threatened wholesale resignations" unless Gorelick's election as vice-commander was canceled or he quit the union.

The stories, attributed to Theodore Schneider, past commander of the JWV Alexander Fleischmann Post, said also that some resignations already had taken place. These were called protests against Gorelick's reputed membership in the American Labor Party as well as the UPW.

Schneider and the stories attributed to him were denounced by Arthur Aronson, JWV state commander, who said:

"Theodore Schneider is a leader of a group that got a charter 15

$57,000 Damages for Death of Bernadotte

JERUSALEM—The Israel government has agreed to pay a total of $57,000 in damages for the assassination in Jerusalem of U. N. Palestine Mediator Count Folke Bernadotte, it was learned here this week.

This information will be included in Israel's reply to a Swedish note on the Bernadotte case.

A total of $54,000 will be paid directly to the family of the late mediator, while $3000 will be reimbursed the United Nations for insurance premiums on Count Bernadotte's account.

Attempts to Broaden Cabinet Unsuccessful

JERUSALEM — Israel's silver-haired Premier David Ben-Gurion doesn't seem to be having much luck in his attempts to broaden his coalition government.

The General Zionists have turned down a bid to join his cabinet: A few weeks ago, the powerful Mapam, a leftist labor party, refused to take cabinet posts.

Ben-Gurion has been striving for months to get representation for "opposition parties" in the government.

Mapam refused Ben-Gurion's offer chiefly on a foreign policy issue. Mapam wanted Israel to back up Russia's "Peace Moves," wherever they might be made. Ben-Gurion said Israel would be "neutral."

The Premier's cabinet at present is made up mostly of his own party members in the Mapai. Progressives and the so-called "religious bloc" also are represented.

Egyptians Buy German Planes

MARSEILLES — The Egyptian Government has purchased in Germany a small rocket factory, a small arms plant and several other factories capable of being converted to war production, it was learned here this week.

In addition, the Egyptians have made arrangements for German technicians to come to Egypt to set up and operate the plants.

Israel sources admit that the Jewish state is uneasy over the steady increase of Egyptian war potential through such purchases all over Europe.

Award Scholarship to Self-Taught Scientist

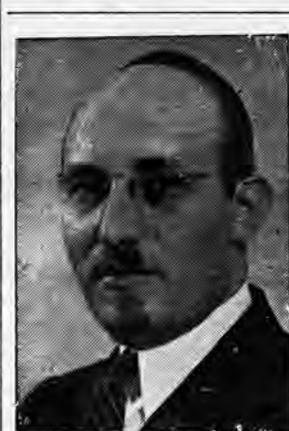

NEW YORK — A 27-year-old German refugee, who stopped his formal schooling at the age of 14, and who is receiving his Bachelor of Arts degree from Yeshiva University June 15 after only two years of college attendance instead of four, has been awarded a scholarship for graduate study to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The youthful scientist, Kurt Eisemann of New York City, who was recommended to Yeshiva University, Amsterdam Avenue and 186th Street, N. Y. C., by Prof. Albert Einstein, has been in this country only two and one-half years.

He was described by Dr. Moses L. Isaacs, Dean of Yeshiva's College of Arts and Sciences and himself a renowned scientist formerly on the faculty of Columbia University as "one of the most brilliant young scientists in this country."

Born in Nuremberg, Germany, in 1923, Kurt was forced to leave the country in 1934. After spending one year in France, he finally

Rabbi Klein Resigns From Sons of Jacob

RABBI CAROL KLEIN

Rabbi Carol Klein, spiritual leader of the Sons of Jacob Congregation, this week resigned to accept a position with the World Mizrahi Organization. Rabbi Klein, who is now on a tour of South America in behalf of World Mizrahi, submitted his resignation in a letter to Max Richter, an official of the Congregation.

After two years with the Mizrahi organization, during which time he will be stationed in South America, Rabbi Klein will be assigned to Jerusalem where he plans to make his home.

In a statement issued this week Mr. Richter said, "while we regret losing Rabbi Klein, we extend our best wishes for success in his new post. We will soon begin to interview candidates to replace Rabbi Klein."

Alderman Fined At Mosley Meeting

LONDON—Joseph Kahn, London town councillor, has been fined five pounds for "obstructing the police" last week at the Mosley open air meeting in the East End section.

Mr. Kahn, who was arrested when he attempted to copy the license number of the car in which the fascist leader rode, was given a tongue lashing by the magistrate. "I think you acted like a perfect fool," the magistrate said. "You ought to know as a town councillor what trouble the police have at these meetings and you go and add to their difficulties."

VACATIONS IN ISRAEL

PARIS—French Jewish parents have organized a committee to send their children to Israel for summer vacations. It is estimated that 300 children between the ages of 12 and 18 will participate in the scheme.

Herald Brings Sisters Together

The assistance of the Jewish Herald in helping to bring two sisters together was related this week by Mrs. Esther Pritsker, executive secretary of the Rhode Island Refugee Service, Inc., which conducted the search, for the missing sister.

In a letter to the Herald, Mrs. Pritsker stated:

"...By printing a search request for us in the Jewish Herald, you were able to bring two sisters together.

"Our organization is grateful to you for your efforts and co-operation."

Roger Williams Colony Dedication Tickets Will Be Reserved in Order of Application

General admission tickets for the Dedication Exercises in honor of the official establishment of Israel's famed Roger Williams Colony will be sold as reserved seats, with choicest seats being allocated on a "first come, first served" basis, the committee in charge of the event emphasized this week.

Dr. Ilie Berger, general chairman of the June 14 ceremonies, which will be staged at the new State Memorial Auditorium in Providence, urged all who plan to attend to make reservations as soon as possible.

"Special blocks of seats are being withheld for sponsors, patrons and donors," he pointed out. "All general admission tickets will be sold in the order of applications received, with the best seats naturally being allotted to the earliest reservations."

"The June 14 dedication exercises promise to be one of the most thrilling occasions ever held in this state. I urge, therefore, that you call GA 1-8540 or write to headquarters at 203 Strand Building in Providence, and reserve your tickets at once. They will be promptly mailed to you, upon receipt of your order," he said.

Richard Tucker, the ex-Brooklyn choir boy and cantor who rose to become one of the Metropolitan Opera's greatest tenors, will be a feature of the program of entertainment and ceremony.

A handsomely encased parchment scroll, prepared in Israel by officials of the flourishing settlement, will be presented to Rhode Island Jewry by Gov. John O. Pastore.

A representative of the Israeli government, as well as numerous prominent national, state and city officials, will be present for the dedication exercises.

The event, staged under the sponsorship of the Jewish National Fund of R. I., is being acclaimed as "a salute to the Jews of Rhode Island whose generosity made possible the founding and development of the Roger Williams settlement in war-torn Israel."

Alvin A. Sopkin, treasurer of the affair, joined with Dr. Berger in stating: "The exercises on June 14 will long be remembered in this state, because of the outstanding program being planned for that evening. It will be a memorable event, one that every Jew in Rhode Island will want to attend."

Technion Speaker

DR. BERNARD I. COHEN
Dr. Cohen, history of science professor at Harvard University, will be the main speaker at the local chapter of the American Technion Society at Temple Beth El, June 8 at 8:30 o'clock. The subject of his talk will be "Public Responsibility for Science." Dr. Ludwig Regenstein will preside.

of the General Zionists, said they couldn't consider taking cabinet jobs until policy changes were made.

He listed them as:
Active depoliticization of the army; complete theoretical equality of rights under law and in practice; reorganization of control services and liberation of private enterprise; absolute equality of rights for private initiative against collective enterprise and immediate steps to end "the war between educational currents" in Israel and unified state education.

months ago for a dual and dissident organization known as the Military Order of Hebrew Veterans. For this disruptive activity, he has been reprimanded by all echelons of JWV.

"These attacks against Gorelick are another effort by Schneider and his group to serve their own interests at the expense of thousands of Jewish war veterans."

"As department commander of New York, and as a member of a Kings County post, I am thoroughly familiar with the situation. I state categorically that any allusion to Communist infiltration is completely without foundation."

"It is not surprising that the Trojan horse of Communism has been injected where, over the opposition of these dissidents, the Kings County Council of JWV has done yeoman work in combating prejudice in the school system; the renazification of Germany; discrimination in education, employment and housing; and has not hesitated to join issue wherever and whenever democratic processes have been threatened."

SUNDAY'S SCHEDULE
Windsor Rhodes vs Lincoln Woods Dairy at Roger Williams Park; Richard's Clothing vs Court House Auto Laundry at Sessions Street; Etcoff Construction Co. vs Cadillac Textile Olympics at Bucklin Park; Esquire Formal Wear vs Arden's Jewelry at Collyer Field; Miller's Delicatessen vs Technoprint at Hopkins Park.

Undefeated since the opening week of the season, Etcoff Construction Co. moved into a commanding three game lead by downing Esquire Formal Wear's Comets 7-6 and 24-9. Playing without the Golden brothers, the Comets all but wiped out a first game 7-1 deficit by scoring five runs in the sixth inning. When they loaded the bases with one out in the seventh, Lefty Bernie Davidson came in to relieve Carl Lefkowitz, and struck out the next two batters.

The second game was a rout, as Etcoff tallied seven runs in the opening frame and seven more in the fourth. Davidson, leading 13-1, left the game at the end of three innings. Jagoliner had four of the winners' 27 hits, while Sid Jacobson of Esquire got six bingles for the day, including two home runs and a triple and 7 RBI. Jake Chaiken played a brilliant game for the Comets in center field.

Court House Auto Laundry boosted itself to the 500 mark by licking hapless Lincoln Woods Dairy 11-5 and 12-7. For the vets it was their ninth and tenth defeats of the season. Cunningham hit a grand slam homer for Court House, and Rodman also hit for the circuit. Shocket also starred at bat. For the Pineman-Trinket Dairymen, Gene Silverman continued his heavy hitting with five safe blows while also starring in the field.

Fireworks broke out in the Miller's Delicatessen — Richard's Clothing doubleheader, when the Clothing line overruled its manager, Al Abelson, over the use of Bob Doyan, a pitcher, in the second game after Miller's had won the opener 8-2. Abelson resigned when Doyan, reported to be an ace twirler in the industrial league, was used over his protest. Doyan toyed with Miller's, easing up in the seventh in time to let Miller's collect its only hits and runs. The score was 12-2.

Miller's won the first game despite suffering its fifth injury to date. Morris Rose, replacing Sid Bander who was forced out of the lineup, slugged a home run and fielded flawlessly while making his first appearance of the season. Don Schwartz racked up his fourth straight win.

There was no report of the Arden's Jewelry—Windsor Rhodes double-header.

Technoprint took two from Cadillac Textile's Olympics, 11-3 and 4-3, a two-run seventh inning rally deciding the second game. Technoprint led all the way in the opener, falling to score only in the fifth. Jack Steiner scattered eight Olympic hits as his mates slugged 14 off Bernie Cohen. The second game was a pitching duel between two southpaws, Harold Warren for Technoprint and Abe Lobel for

Foster-Segal

The wedding of Miss Geraldine Ruth Segal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Segal, to Warren Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abraham Foster, took place last Sunday at Temple Beth El. Rabbi Meir Lasker of Temple Judea, Elkins Park, Pennsylvania, cousin of the bride, officiated. Traditional Hebrew wedding music was played by Arthur Einstein.

The bride wore a lace gown fashioned with a sheer jewel neckline. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a coronet of lilies of the valley and she carried a white prayer book covered with white orchids and a shower of ribbons and lilies of the valley. Miss Gertrude Broder of Montreal was the maid of honor and Miss Anne Foxman was the bridesmaid. The junior bridesmaid was Esther Waxman and the flower girls were Jerry and Sharon Waxman. The bridesmaids carried cascades of spring flowers.

The bride's mother was attired in a powder blue chiffon gown and the groom's mother chose a royal blue lace topped gown with a chiffon skirt and matching lace gloves. Both mothers wore corsages of white orchids. Jack Hockman, brother-in-law of the bride, was the best man. The ushers included Mark Mendelson, Newark; Avrum Jackson, Hartford; Robert Lipson, Providence; Gabriel Broder, Montreal; Seymour Finklestein, Montreal; Robert Dworkin, Worcester; Franklin Fogelson, Lynn; David Cohen, Lawrence; Kevin Golod, Manchester; and Robert Forman, Brookline.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the Crystal Room of the Narragansett Hotel.

The bride is a graduate of Pembroke College and the groom will graduate from Boston University this week.

Golden-Berman

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Berman of 110 Hillside Avenue announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Arlene Berman, to Seymour Golden, son of Mrs. Irene Golden. The ceremony was performed at the Narragansett Hotel on May 28 by Rabbi Abraham Chill.

Mrs. Alexander Woolf, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Mr. Shelton Golden, brother of the groom, was the best man.

The bride was attired in a princess style gown of ivory brocaded taffeta, high neck, bustle and long fan train. She wore a coronet of orange blossoms and lilies of the valley and carried a hand bouquet of white orchids and gardenias. The bride's mother chose a champagne lace and crepe gown and the groom's mother wore a blue gown of crepe and lace.

The couple will spend their honeymoon at the Concord Hotel in the Catskill Mountains and on their return will make their home at 110 Hillside Avenue.

Cadillac. Each suffered from defensive lapses and only one run on either side was cleanly earned. Warren gave four hits, Lobel five. Technoprint came up in the last of the seventh trailing 3-2. With two out and a runner on third, Kaplan reached on an infield hit and scored the winning run on Paul Paris' double to right center.

THE PROVIDENCE JEWISH HERALD, FRIDAY, JUNE 2, 1950
 Providence Masada will sponsor the pageant "This is the Music of My People" Sunday night, at 8 o'clock at the Jewish Community Center in Providence. The program includes specialties on religious, chassidic, American and Israeli folk songs and dances, presented by a group that has already performed in various places throughout New England.

David Kessler, President, announces that the group received its charter from the National Zionist Organization of America and will now be known officially as the Young Zionist District of Providence, affiliated with the National Young Zionist organization. The charter was presented at the New England Region Z.O.A. convention held last Sunday, and the Providence District was the guest of the New England Region. Delegates were: David Kessler, Miss Ethel Gollis, Donald Jacobs and Miss Helene Korb; alternates: Misses Barbara Russin and Marian Malenbaum.

Newport Hadassah Elects Mrs. Josephson

Mrs. Joseph S. Josephson was elected president of Newport Chapter of Hadassah and was delegated to represent the group at the national convention in New York August 20. Mrs. Ire Mason, retiring president, conducted the business period Wednesday evening in the Jewish Community Center, Newport.

Other officers elected were Mrs. David Levin, first vice-president; Mrs. William Hahn, second vice-president; Mrs. William D. Newman, treasurer; Mrs. Conrad A. Strauss, financial secretary; Mrs. Isaac Lulkin, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Max Berman, Mrs. Samuel S. Friedman, Mrs. Jacob Seegal, Mrs. Allie Horvitz and Mrs. Joseph Perlmutter, directors.

The nominating committee was Mrs. George B. Gold, chairman, Mrs. Maurice Ball, Mrs. Nathan Gold, Mrs. William Desotnek and Mrs. Harry Herz.

Albert J. McAloon, prevention coordinator of the juvenile court, was the speaker. He outlined causes of family disunity and suggested remedies. He told the group that schools place too great an emphasis on "training for white collar jobs." He also stressed the point that youths might do well to seek apprentice training in industry in after-school hours and during vacation periods.

McAloon mentioned the arrival of DP's in this country and said that marked family unity has been observed. In many cases, those selected for entrance to the country refused to come here without their families. He contrasted such unity with the disunity too often

Walter Rutman, Managing Editor; Syd Cohen, News Editor. Entered as Second-Class Matter at the Post Office, Providence, R. I., Under the Act of March 3, 1879.

The Jewish Herald invites correspondence on subjects of interest to the Jewish people but disclaims responsibility for an endorsement of the views expressed by the writers.

Anti-Communism and Anti-Semitism

Two English-Jewish newspapers raised their voices against the excesses of the loyalty hysteria and Communist witch-hunting which now prevails in certain sections of Congress and the American Press.

The militant Chicago Sentinel warned that the hysteria once started will hurt the Jews as a group first and most, as experience has shown amply during the last two decades, especially in Central Europe. "No country has thus far been able to embark on a program of unrestrained loyalty hunting without eventually ending up by Jew baiting," states Mr. J. Fishbein editorially.

The Brooklyn Examiner goes a step further and claims that the campaign against Communists has already engulfed the Jews and cites the case of eight members of the Teachers Union of New York who were summarily suspended without pay despite terms of satisfactory service ranging from 11 to 28 years in the schools, by Superintendent of Schools, William Jansen. All of the dismissed teachers are Jews, and the Examiner advances the theory that this is no 'coincidence,' but a direct overpouring of anti-Communism into anti-Semitism.

Have Jewish communities gained from past experiences—particularly in the over-all financing of new institutional buildings? Most of them certainly have . . . and learned their lessons well. During the 1920's and 1930's, chaotic conditions existed in many cities.

Mortgages on Jewish institutions such as Homes for the Aged, Community Centers and synagogues could not be paid. In addition, the necessary costs to maintain these buildings could not be met.

Today, however, the picture is vastly different—and more wholesome. Central community organizations now take a major role in planning capital developments on a sound basis, and assume a large measure of jurisdiction over the capital projects of their affiliates. Or, in some instances, the agencies conduct their own campaigns, but only after full clearance and approval by the Federation or Welfare Fund.

The experience of Los Angeles reflects the new awareness for the necessity of sound financing of communal facilities. Its Home for the Aged, faced with a waiting list of 125 applicants, recently broke ground to construct a five-story building which will enable the institution to house an additional 90 aged men and women. The total capacity of the Home will thus be enlarged to 300.

Sound planning went into this project—the agency realized that at least $450,000 would be required to finance the plant. Only after 75 per cent of this sum had been collected was the order given to commence construction. There are sufficient outstanding pledges and commitments to cover the other 25 per cent. Consequently, by the time the building is completed, there will be enough funds to meet the entire cost.

The Jewish community of Los Angeles has ample reason to be proud of the new addition to its Home for the Aged. Not only will it help to alleviate a serious communal problem, but the building will be free of mortgages.

Community Briefs: Denver has expanded the scope of its Allied Jewish Council. Under the new title of Allied Jewish Community Council, the organization will be responsible for the community-wide planning of communal services and will conduct the annual fund-raising campaign. A new constitution has been drafted, following a comprehensive study and analysis of the constitutions of more than 30 Jewish Community Councils . . .

The Jewish Federation of Chicago and its affiliated institutions have scheduled a series of events during a six-week period to celebrate the Federation's 50th anniversary. High spot of the celebration program was the 50th anniversary meeting at which Illinois Governor Adlai Stevenson made the featured address . . .

Boston University School of Social Work is offering its Jewish students a course designed to familiarize them with those phases of Jewish life, problems and institutions which affect social work practice. The program, in which the Training Bureau for Jewish Communal Service is taking a major part, will be the first of its kind offered by an American university . . .

Camp Time Is Here

By BERNARD SEGAL

Ann and Milton Kay are too young to qualify for the title of Mother and Father of Camp Centerland. But they are the good Uncle and Aunt of the camp. They have taken this project of the Jewish Community Center close to their hearts, and are giving to it all their devotion.

Fortunate indeed is a communal project that is adopted thus by a family. It is bound to prosper.

I remember a trip to Centerland last summer with the Kays. All through the ride, both ways, the two of them spoke of the camp with affection, like two people in love with an ideal—the ideal being a camp site owned by the Jewish Community Center.

It all began back in the summer of 1947, when the Center day camp was conducted on the grounds of the State-owned Goddard Park. The Kays visited the camp, and were distressed by the shortcomings of the facilities. There were no provisions for shelter in inclement weather. Bathing was a long distance away from the camp grounds. Sanitary conditions were not of the best.

But the greatest defect was the lack of privacy. Goddard Park is a public place, and the camp was merely a temporary tenant there. The need for a permanent site for a camp, owned by the Jewish Community Center, was clearly indicated. The Kays credit one another with being first to dare dream of buying a camp site. But they both, then and there, pledged themselves to see that this dream was fulfilled.

In his report of the camp season at Goddard Park, presented to the Board of the Jewish Community Center, Mr. Kay concluded with the following remarks:

"For the next season, I recommend that we start immediately to find a site which we can call our own. What is needed is 100 or more acres of woodland and fields, with a source of water for safe bathing—either a pond or a brook which may be dammed to make a pond. The location should be within 20 miles of the city."

The next season Camp Centerland was opened on land owned by the Jewish Community Center, at Hope, Rhode Island. It had all the things spoken of in the recommendation. Acres of woodland, and level fields, and a stream, and buildings, and above all, the desired freedom to change, to equip, to rearrange, to adapt the grounds to the needs of the camp.

"A camp site we can call our own . . ."

In his report to the Board at the end of the camp season, 1948, Milton was able to open his remarks with this little story:

"The other day I flew to New York, and as the plane circled

Pittsburgh has initiated an intensive campaign to secure a minimum of 100 jobs for refugees who have recently settled in the community. A volunteer committee composed of leading business executives is spearheading the job placement effort in conjunction with the Jewish Social Service Bureau, a beneficiary agency of the United Jewish Fund, which has over-all responsibility for the immigrant program which includes financial assistance and adjustment, personal counseling and advice in Americanization . . .

over the Scituate area, I looked down, and there was our camp. It did my heart good. Now we have a camp. It is our own, and we are going to make it a good camp."

Today, the two day camps sponsored by the Jewish Community Center—Centerland and Camp-town—are household words at the home of the Kays.

I have before me a folder containing neatly typed minutes of the meetings of the Camp Committee. All but one of these meetings were held at the Kay's home, were presided over by Chairman Milton, and recorded by Secretary Ann. You read the pages of these minutes, and you realize that the Jewish Community Center is in the camping business in a big way. No longer is it the amateurish affair in the backyard of the Center on Benefit Street, where the Day camp program originated five years ago. The two Day Camps of the Jewish Community Center are offering summer camping to more than 300 children, with a staff of 100 counselors and attendants, at a budget amounting to $21,000 dollars.

Camp Centerland, situated in Hope, is equipped to care for 250 children. Busses take the children to and from camp every day. At camp the children spend the day in a well-planned program of activities, under the supervision and care of 48 counselors. They are provided with all the safety and health devices needed for the protection of the children and for the peace of mind of the parents at home.

Camp-town, an experiment started by a group in South Providence last year, gives the children of that part of the city a supervised camping program on the grounds of the Joseph Williams Park, just across the road from the more famous Roger Williams Park, on Elmwood Avenue. Through the courtesy of the City's Recreation Department, the camp has the free use of the grounds as well as the use of the chateau. It accommodates 60 campers, who are brought to the park by a system of bus service. Noon-time lunch, including hot soup, is prepared for the children. Though limited in scope, this camp, too, provides an enjoyable schedule of activities under the direction of ten able counselors.

These, then, are the two Day Camps offered to the children of Providence by their Community Center. They are offered at a great expenditure of money and work. They are only one example of the things the Center can do with proper support and devoted leadership.

Would that the Center had similar good fortune in other projects! The Center is, after all, a year-round concern. Summer camping is merely one phase of the recreational and educational purposes of the Center. The responsibilities of the community do not end with the coming of the vacation season. On the contrary, with increased hazards lurking on every city corner during the summer months, these responsibilities are even greater.

The Community Center is taking the camping activity very seriously. I have a feeling that we see now only the beginning. Greater expansion in the camping program can be expected, and I can see the day when Camp-town, too, will move to its wooded acres, with field and pond and shelter, to meet the greater demands of South Providence and Cranston.

But—and there is always a but—financial problems are still very much with the two Day Camps of the J.C.C. Proper programs, good supervision, adequate service, constant improvements of the facilities, are costly. And here is where we come in. We are to help cover the costs.

Let's we forget, the Camp Committee reminds us that not all the children who need a season at camp can afford to go there. As a matter of fact, the greater the need, the less can the family afford to pay the fees of a season in either of the two camps. We can, and we ought to see to it, that these children are not left to the heat of the city and the dangers of the streets during the summer. We can do it through the system of Scholarships established by the Center Camp Committee.

An individual, an organization, a society, a family circle, a brotherhood and sisterhood of a synagogue or temple, can send a child to one of the Day Camps by paying the required fees. Many charitable people and organizations have already done so. More scholarships are needed.

Camp season is around the corner. Many children, over 300 of them, will enjoy eight wonderful weeks of physical and mental health. May no deserving child be left out of it because his parents are unable to pay!

SYD COHEN:
 The Luckiest Man . . .

"For some time now I've been reading about what a bad break I got; but today I consider myself the luckiest man on earth."

With these words, a great ball player became one of the immortals of his time, and a legend; and so it is that on this, the ninth anniversary of his untimely death, the name and reputation of Lou Gehrig remain fresh in the minds of millions of Americans.

Remembering Lou Gehrig, and writing about him, is easy when he is your favorite ball player of all time. Sure, you worshipped the Babe and thrilled every time he hit a home run; but you could idolize the Babe and still have a favorite ball player. That's how you feel about Gehrig. That's why you still glance briefly at first base before the start of each game you see the Yankees play—as a silent tribute to old Biscuit Pants.

It is not the record books that have made Columbia Lou so great an American figure. Other men compiled higher batting averages, a few had more home runs, many were classier fielders, others had the same hustle. It was not his unparalleled consecutive game streak that made him so beloved when for many years he had been so grossly overlooked.

Rather, you get the idea that it was his sincerity, his humility, his heart-breaking bewilderment and gratitude for the affection belatedly showered on him by the fans that elevated him to such a unique spot in our history.

Writing about the Iron Horse is not so easy, after all, when you have so much to remember about him, and you really don't know where to begin. You keep thinking of your prize possession, an American League ball that he autographed for you at Fenway Park, in September, 1936 despite the fact that you almost pushed him down the stairs leading to the clubhouse, in your anxiety to get to him before the ushers got to you—and he exclaimed: "Never push a ball player!"—and then signed your ball.

Remember that picture in the paper years ago showing the unusual—an umpire changing his decision on the field because Gehrig argued with him and convinced him he was wrong—and persuaded him to reverse himself right then and there?

But you come back eventually to the true greatness of Lou Gehrig, off the ball field—his incredible courage in joking about his fatal disease and telling his stunned teammates of the wonderful work being done at the Mayo Clinic, where Lou first found out that he was dying.

How can you ever forget the three times you saw him in 1939 after he had left the lineup. The first time he was like the old Gehrig, except that the crowd applauded him spontaneously when he appeared on the field.

The second time—a few months later—you couldn't fail to see that he had lost weight from the waist down—that his legs were thin and that he walked with short, mincing steps.

And that terrible third—and last—time, when a large group of Yankees suddenly appeared on the field together, walking from the clubhouse steps at Fenway across the field to the Yankee dugout in a close circular formation—with Lou Gehrig inside the circle.

Offhand, it looked innocent enough, that circle. But you had followed the reports of Lou's progress carefully, and you realized that his mates were making sure that he would not stumble and fall on his face in public, as he had done in the clubhouse.

And then you go back to July 6, 1941, a month after Lou's death, when they unveiled his monument in center field in the Stadium, and Bill Dickey broke down as he made a dedicatory speech. You had driven to New York for the July 4 dedication, but rain had cancelled the affair, and so you drove down again two days later—because you simply had to pay final respects to Lou.

And you still get a thrill out of seeing thousands of fans cross the Stadium turf after a game, and stop silently before that monument—as if they feel the way you do.

You suddenly realize that Lou was not being polite and facetious when he called himself the luckiest man on earth, at Lou Gehrig Appreciation Day Ceremonies at Yankee Stadium in 1939, after he revealed to the world that he was through.

Here was the true greatness of Gehrig. The man was dying, he could no longer play ball, he was losing ground every day, and yet he could see beyond that and realize that he had achieved something far more valuable than health and life—the love and respect and devotion of an entire nation. For 15 years he had been taken for granted, all attempts to build him up as a colorful figure had failed, his greatest achievements had gone almost unnoticed—and now he was overwhelmed that all of America cried openly (Continued on Page 15)

for him when he was stricken. He had broken enough records in the past; he might have broken more, but it didn't really matter. He had played in the majors for 15 years; he might have played seven or eight years more, but even that didn't matter. He had heard the crowds cheer him, and he might have expected more cheering in the future; he had made a fortune at baseball and could have expected to make twice as much more. He was at the height of his fame, and there was more to come.

All of this, though, could only be an anti-climax to what he had already accomplished. Of these things he had gained more than one man's share. A little more or less was relatively unimportant. But this sudden realization of the esteem in which he was held by his fellow men, this was more than any man had the right to expect, this was worth living for—and worth dying for.....

And so Lou Gehrig, with tears streaming down his cheeks, told the truth when he choked back the sobs and said: ".....today I consider myself the luckiest man on earth."

Is there anyone who can say Gehrig was not right? After all, how many men are there on earth who can inspire unsolicited memorials such as this—a full nine years after they have departed from the life we know?

At the Miriam Hospital's 25th Annual Meeting

More than 350 members and guests of the Miriam Hospital attended the 25th annual meeting held last week at Ledgemont Country Club. Interest in the affair was heightened because of the approaching construction date of the new Miriam. Shown here are some scenes from the dinner-meeting, which taxed even the facilities of the spacious Ledgemont.
