Hospital Appoints Nursing Director

Benjamin Brier, president of Miriam Hospital, this week announced the appointment of Miss Emma Eig, R. N. as Director of Nursing Service at the Miriam.

Miss Eig comes to Providence from Lebanon Hospital, Bronx, N. Y., where she served as assistant to the director of nurses. A graduate of the New York Post-Graduate Hospital Nurses Training School in 1927, she holds a B. S. degree in nursing education from New York University and is working for a masters degree in hospital administration.

The new nursing director, in addition to three years of private duty, has served as instructor in operating room technique and teaching supervisor of an obstetrical division at Cumberland Hospital in Brooklyn. She served for more than two years with the Army Nursing Corps in the European Theater of Operations.

Doubts He Tipped FDR on A-Bomb:

Einstein 25 Years Behind Times, Israeli Math Prof. Declares

DENVER (AJP)—A Jerusalem mathematician asserted this week that Prof. Albert Einstein has failed to keep pace with atomic developments and said he doubted the Jewish scientist tipped off President Roosevelt about the possibility of an atomic bomb.

The mathematician, Prof. Abraham H. Fraenkel, of the Hebrew University, charged that Einstein had not kept pace with modern trends in the last 25 years.

Answering a question posed by Robert Gamzey, editor of the Intermountain Jewish News, Professor Fraenkel told a radio audience here that "it is almost tragic that Einstein shows a lack of understanding of physics today."

Asked by Gamzey if he himself understood Einstein's noted theory of relativity, Prof. Fraenkel, who has known Einstein intimately for the past quarter-century, declared

"The theory of relativity is one of the easiest to understand. Our grandchildren will be astounded that this generation didn't understand it."

A one-time secretary to Einstein, Prof. Edwin Sears, of the Denver University law school, said the famous scientist's favorite story about his theory concerns one yokel trying to explain it to another yokel. "You see, when you are in the dentist's chair, five minutes seems like an hour. But you have a beautiful girl in your arms, an hour seems like five minutes." That's Einstein's theory of relativity.

Predicts Action if Jordan Partitioned

DENVER (AJP) — A leading Denver Reform rabbi who has just returned from Israel said last week that if the Arab states carry out announced plans to partition Jordan, Israel will take over Arab Palestine.

The prediction was made by Rabbi Robert Friedman, who organized the recent summer institute in Israel of the Central Conference of American Rabbis. Rabbi Friedman made the prediction in an interview with the Intermountain Jewish News.

GIVE CHURCH FLAG

LOS ANGELES (AJP)—A Jewish veterans group will present an American flag to a Christian church next week as part of an Americanism program.

Presenting the flag to the Christ Temple Church here will be Commander Harry Lipson.

Eva Le Gallienne, internationally famous actress, will be the guest speaker at the Vital Gifts Luncheon of the Women's Division of the General Jewish Committee campaign on Tuesday, September 25, at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel at 12 o'clock noon.

She is the founder and director of New York's Civic Repertory Theatre, and in 1947-48 was co-director with Margaret Webster and Cheryl Crawford of the American Repertory Theatre.

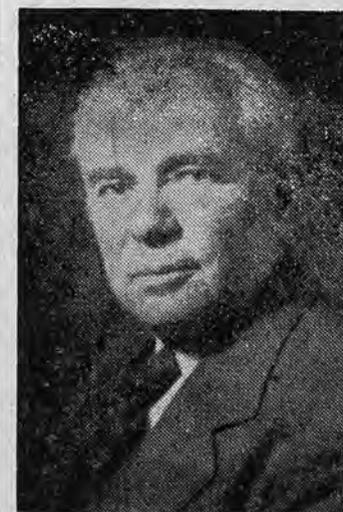

Mrs. Burton Finberg, chairman of the Vital Gifts Luncheon, said "The presence of Miss Le Gallienne is of great satisfaction to us. We know that the women who attend the luncheon will share in an afternoon they will long remember." Mrs. Archie Fain, chairman of the Women's Division, said, "Miss LeGallienne will bring us a

16 Golfers Head For Final Round

Sixteen golfers, survivors of two rounds of match play in the Jewish Herald Golf Tournament at Ledgemont Country Club, battled to move closer to the finals as this issue of the Herald went to press.

Interest currently is centered on Divisions I and II, each of which is in the semi-final stage. Having started with 16 men, these two groups were able to advance to the semi-finals in two elimination rounds. The third division, on the other hand, contained 32 competitors in the opening round and, consequently, will not reach the semi-finals until next week.

the present conditions in Israel. A question period will follow. The public is welcome.

Dr. Ilie Berger will report on the National Economic Conference for Israel held last week in Washington. A scroll will be presented to Aaron Klein, retiring president of the district.

Position Outlined In NCRAC Letter

NEW YORK CITY (AJP)—The Union of American Hebrew Congregations, representing the Reform temples of the United States, said this week it was ready, willing and able to follow a MacIver Report recommendation that it take over all interfaith activities in Jewish civic defense—with or without the cooperation of other branches of American Judaism.

The UAHC made known its position in a report to the National Community Relations Advisory Commission, the national organization representing all Jewish defense agencies, of which the UAHC is a member.

The MacIver Report had suggested, in making its proposal, that this be done in cooperation with the Synagogue Council of America and the Orthodox and Conservative groups. The three branches are represented in the Synagogue Council.

The UAHC said "we heartily concur" in the MacIver recommendation, asserting that it was in line with the UAHC position, that interfaith work should be handled by a specifically religious organization.

While indicating its readiness to follow the recommendations for cooperation with the other religious groups, the UAHC stressed its doubts that anything could be done through the Synagogue Council.

The reform group said that each organization in the Synagogue Council had a veto power and that nothing could be done except by unanimous agreement.

The UAHC said that it felt nevertheless that cooperation with the other two branches could be achieved, explaining that "there will be no difficulty in gaining the active and full-hearted partnership of individual congregational bodies and of congregations differing in this matter with their own national congregational bodies."

The Reform group informed the NCRAC that such congregations would be "invited to join with the Union in a joint interfaith community relations program."

LUCKY GUY

NEW YORK (AJP)—A 17-year-old Jewish youth, Ronald Feldman, was the first male student to register last week at Hunter College. The formerly all-girl school launched a new four-year co-educational program.

Robinson On Special Broadcast Monday

Edward G. Robinson, the noted stage and screen star, will be featured in a special United Jewish Appeal broadcast in a dramatization entitled, "The Man Who Was Exalted". This High Holiday program on a nation wide hookup over the Mutual Broadcasting System will be carried locally by Station WEAN from 10:30 to 11:00 P. M. on Monday night, September 24.

Following the drama, Joseph W. Ress, General Jewish Committee Campaign Chairman, will deliver a special three minute message to the local Jewish community.

M & F, Waldorf Down Bankers

M & F Insurance and Waldorf Tuxedo, top two clubs in the Jewish Softball League, found no difficulties presented by floodlight ball as they soundly trounced a set of representative teams from the Providence Bankers League at Conimicut Stadium last Friday night.

M & F fought an uphill battle to break through with a 15-12 win over Hospital Trust. Spotting the opposition seven runs in the first three innings, M & F finally hit pay dirt, with a batting entente of Seymour Goldin, Jim Lioni and Warren Foster leading the way with home runs.

Lefty Hal Warren turned in a superb relief job on the mound after the bankers had found Foster's deliveries quite tasty. Syd Jacobson stood out at bat, while Gene Silverman, drafted for this game, and Sheldon Golden turned in excellent fielding performances. Edine for the losers slammed a homer, triple and a pair of singles.

Citizens Savings took a four run lead over Waldorf in the first inning on faulty fielding and shaky hurling. Lefty Davidson then settled down and Waldorf went on to an 18-9 win. Waldorf came back with a 3-run second and 4-run third.

Jagoliner, Stro Shorin and Bill Del Vecchio led the way at bat. Herb Weintraub hit a long home run to center field. Abe Lobel turned in a fine relief job for Waldorf late in the game.

Four Clubs Split in Softball Playoffs

By STEVE ESPO

The second, or final round of playoffs in the Providence Jewish Softball League will get underway at Hopkins Park Sunday around noon, but not until the opening round has been completed by the four competing teams. No decision was reached as the playoffs opened last week for the simple reason that all teams split their double headers.

SUNDAY'S SCHEDULE

Waldorf Tuxedo vs Richards at Hopkins Park; M & F Insurance vs Arden's Jewelry at Richardson Park (both single games). The two winners will play the first game of the finals at Hopkins Park immediately after the conclusion of the first games.

Little Stuij Resnick came with in two innings of pitching Richards Clothing to a stunning upset double victory over highly favored Waldorf Tuxedo Sunday morning. But when the dust had settled over Hopkins Park the two clubs were even, with the deciding battle of the best two-out-of-three game series scheduled for this Sunday.

Resnick did a superb job of stifling the feared Waldorf hitters over that span of 12 innings.

He shut them out 9-0 on two infield hits in the first game, and had a three hitter going at the end of five innings of the nightcap. Richards was leading 5-1, the only Waldorf run of the day so far being unearned.

But Waldorf was bound to have one big inning, and it came in the sixth, at the same time that the heat and the tension were robbing Resnick of his effectiveness. The league champions stirred a potion of five hits mixed with two costly Richards errors and came up with a brew of six runs—and a 7-5 win that prevented them from being eliminated from the playoffs in the very first round.

Richards shelled Abe Lobel off the mound with four runs in the fourth inning of the first game after scoring four in the first and one in the second. Southpaw George Leiberman relieved Lobel and put out the fire. Three errors, one by Lobel himself, contributed greatly to Richards scoring splurge.

Lefty Davidson's normally superb control was conspicuous by its absence as the second game got underway. Bernie gave up four of the six Richards hits, plus six walks, in the first two innings, wherein Richards scored all its runs. The Clothiers got only two singles and two walks the rest of the way, no more than one per inning. Gene Silverman (drafted for the playoffs, along with Bob Goldis) drove in the first two with a bases loaded single in the first, while Goldis, Erwin Summer and Len Rodman batted in the trio in the second.

In the Waldorf sixth, Herb Weintraub's double, singles by Ernie Steck, Jerry Lobel and Stro Shoren, a triple by Bill Del Vecchio, a walk to Billy Holt, two sacrifice bunts and two errors piled up the six runs that meant victory.

A four run rally in the top of the sixth inning gave Arden's Jewelry a 6-3 win over M & F Insurance in the first game of their playoff double header. A combination of hits, walks and errors delivered the four runs and gave Carl Lefkowitz the victory over M & F's Nate Ludman in what had been a tight pitchers duel to that point. Lefkowitz registered a 5-hitter.

Arden's led early, piling up a two run lead on a miscue home run by George Karembelas and a run-producing hit by Earl Tetralt. M & F, trailing 2-1, forged briefly into the lead in the fifth on the strength of a 2-run homer by Jim Houston.

The nightcap developed into a seesaw affair, with M & F blowing a three run lead and trailing 4-3 before coming up with the winning rally. The same ingredients—a home run by Houston, this time with two men on, and also in the fifth inning, decided it.

Jewish Education Month

Two great controversies of the most basic nature have occupied the attention of American Jews during the spring and summer of this year. One centers around the MacIver report, dealing with community relations activities on the home front; the other, around the struggle within the Zionist movement, with its international implications reflected at the recent Jerusalem congress.

These controversies, despite the wide disparity of the questions at issue, present two striking similarities. They have, for one thing, evoked the most militant partisanship seen on either side of a controversy in Jewish life for some years, and, secondly, they are both deeply related to the central question agitating American Jews today: what is to be the future pattern of American Jewish life?

Whatever the merits of the positions taken on either side of either issue—and it is not the purpose of this editorial to assess them—it becomes increasingly evident that strong feelings are aroused among American Jews on any issue in direct proportion to the way that issue relates to the question of the future of American Jewry.

Yet it appears that this central question will be answered, ultimately, not by great debates on public issues, but by the quiet, day-by-day action taken by individual Jews, in the small towns and neighborhoods of America. In the long run, it is highly probable that the number of parents who enroll their children in Jewish schools—or fail to enroll them—this September and October, will do more to affect the ultimate American Jewish future than all the full-dress debates splashed over a thousand front pages.

These thoughts are occasioned by the announcement that the period from September 10 to October 11 has been set aside by the American Association for Jewish Education Month, during which time the Association, the major national agencies and the local communities of American Jewry call upon all parents to enroll their children for a Jewish education in the schools of their choice. If this call is properly heeded, we will insure that the public debates—which will certainly not be resolved for all time by our generation—will be approached and will be settled from the viewpoint of an intelligent, informed and well-oriented American Jewish Community.

Broadway Tales

BY BEN FEINGOLD

Broadway Vignettes:

George M. Cohan once sent a telegram to a swanky hotel, asking for a reservation. Inadvertently, his name on the wire was spelled "Cohen". He received a return telegram stating the hotel was sorry—they were packed.

Cohan, knowing full well that the hotel was half-filled at best, returning friends having told him so, and suspecting that an operator had spelled his name "Cohen", not "Cohan", on the wire, as had so often happened in the past, rushed the hotel another wire. It read: "I see we both made a mistake. You thought I was Jewish (Stop) I thought you were Americans!"

Night Life Hashes:

Comedienne Jennie Goldstein offers this succinct bit of philosophy—"The perfect love—is one that marriage can't spoil!" . . . Right up there at the top of the heap, with the leading songstresses of America, is beautiful Fran Warren (nee Frances Wolf), of the Bronx. When God gave out vocal chords, He lined Frannie's pipes with velvet! . . . The movie that catapulted Sid Caesar into fame was "Tars and Spars." Because of his great success in the pix, Sid now owns expensive autos and smokes the best cee-gars . . . Sid Luckman, of the Chicago Bear play-for-pay pigskinners, who is well-liked, has appeared in dozens of games, with real big $$$ riding on the results, but remains, as always, a perfectly calm gent. That's when the stakes are really high; each play a game in itself. But when he's playing handball at the Brighton Beach Baths in Brooklyn and by chance wagers a buck on himself, an adverse decision by the umpire sends Sid into a near-towering rage. He forgets his anger, however, the moment the game is over! . . .

"One Man's Opinion"

BY BERNARD SEGAL

As The School Bells Ring

A little less than two years ago the General Jewish Committee sponsored a survey of Jewish Education in our city. Experts were engaged, and a large group of volunteers, including Rabbis, teachers and members of various school boards, helped in collecting data for the self-study.

Now the report on the findings is available. It is a 50-odd page book of facts and figures on all phases of the status of Jewish Education in Providence, with interpretations and recommendations. The highlights of the report appeared in a series of articles in the Herald during the summer months. The complete report is available to all who care to read it.

Now, a survey is not an end in itself. Rather, it is like the road sign at intersections of the highway. It tells you how far you have travelled, in which direction you are going, and how far you are from your destination. Merely standing beside the road sign and looking at the arrows will not bring you anywhere.

Even so it is with a survey. Merely reading the report, studying the charts and graphs, and then putting it away with a sigh and a wish, will not bring us one step closer to our goal. If the survey is to have any purpose at all, it must be used as a guide on the road ahead of us.

On the opening of the school term, in this year One A. S. (After Survey), one can see encouraging signs. Some of our schools took definite steps forward, and we are adding one new school to our system. No one can say whether this is a result of the survey, or a mere coincidence. Strange are the ways of social trends, and it is not often wise to guess at causes and effects. One thing is sure. The report of the survey would sound less dismal were the study made now instead of two years ago. To such an extent has the picture changed this year that portions of the report are already out of date.

We are glad to note these changes for the better. Truth of the matter is that the portrait of ourselves as reflected in the survey was not very flattering. Gladly do we give a brief account of the new things to greet our youngsters as they go back to their schools of Jewish learning.

THE EMANUEL PLAN

Recognizing the limitations of the Sunday School, even at its best, Temple Emanuel is embarking on a long range plan that will bring more Jewish learning to greater numbers of children. Under this plan attendance in the week-day school will no longer be a voluntary affair, but a requirement of all pupils who have had their first three years of Sunday School.

A child begins at five and continues in Sunday School for three seasons. On the fourth year this child will come to school two afternoons a week besides the Sunday morning.

This current school year only one class, of the eight-year-olds, comes under this plan. As the cycle of years goes by, more and more classes will find themselves included in the three-day-week-plan, until the entire school, except the 5 to 8 age group, will be involved in the intensive curriculum.

The wider horizons for instruction that a plan like this opens need hardly be belabored. But with it will also come greater needs. More teachers will be needed. More class rooms will be needed. We are told, accordingly, that Emanuel is getting ready to put up a large school building on the lot adjacent to the Temple.

This is a great year, indeed, for the school of Emanuel.

Year One A. S. saw the birth of a new era in Jewish Education in Providence. I have no doubt that others will follow the example of Emanuel.

AT SONS OF ABRAHAM

There are so many things a Jew-

Duke Rosenberg, the East Side wit, has a pal who is looking for a school teacher with a lot of class—and no principle! Hope the guy has better luck than us. Your Typewriter Jockey seems to get the school teachers with lots of principle—and no class!

Takka, A Question:

Milly Picon had friends at Ratter's Dairy Restaurant howling with her classic about the East Side father who took his five-year old son to the Prospect Park Zoo for the first time.

Pointing to the lion, the "tatta" said—"Moishila, that's a fierce lion—a murderer if I ever saw one. If he ever broke out of his cage, he would eat your father up." "Papa", Moishila plaintively asked, a near-tear in his eye and a quiver in his voice—"if he should takka eat you up—what number bus do I take home?"

Here and There On B'dway

Ex-Sergeant Mike Donaldson, who, together with erstwhile three-striper Alvin York earned plaudits as the outstanding hero of World War I, carries a mazzuzah in his pocket at all times. Mike told us how well he got along with his Jewish neighbors when he was a kid, and how well he gets along with them today. He's truly a great friend of the Jewish people . . .

The square targe of the nationally-famous funster Ben Blue—is Bluestein . . . Nat Perlow, editor of the famed Police Gazette, is a crack Rhumba and Mambo dancer. When he isn't doing tricks with his features—he's doing tricks with his feet . . . Wrestler Dave Weinstein, of Belgium, who is fast climbing to the grappling heap, spent three years in Buchenwald and Dachau. Dave now lives in Jersey City and constantly carries with him a small bag . . . it contains the first American soil he kissed as he left the ship at New York Harbor . . . Did you know that Jake Pitler, coach of the Brooklyn Dodger Baseball team, is an Orthodox Jew? You'll find him in the synagogue, not the dugout, come the Jewish holidays . . . At a recent benefit affair, Henny Youngman, who was emceeing the show, introduced Milton Berle. After Berle had concluded his shenanigans, Youngman said—"Thank you, Milton Berle, 'the American Aly Khan!' To which Berle fired, "Thank you, Henny Youngman, the Gaarbage Khan!"

ish child ought to know, so many things a good teacher wants to tell his pupils, and there is so little time for it on a one-day-a-week basis. Teachers despair at the fetters imposed on them by the Sunday School. What miracles are they expected to perform in two hours, on one morning, with six day intervals in which to forget most of the things studied on that morning?

And so the Talmud Torah of Sons of Abraham, on Prairie Avenue, wants to give the teacher more time for more instruction and less days for forgetting. With the opening of the current school season the school will ask all children who have passed the age of ten to come for instruction three times a week. No child over ten will be accepted to Sunday School unless that child also registers for the week-day Talmud Torah.

One step leads to the other. With more children in the Talmud Torah, that congregation will soon find that the facilities in the vestry are far from sufficient, and Sons of Abraham will have to think of a well equipped school building, outside of the Synagogue.

AT BETH EL

The Jewish school, even more than the Public School, must put up standards of teaching and develop effective methods of instruction. The Jewish school needs standards and methods to offset the limitation of time allotted to it by external circumstances. Every lesson must count. Every hour must be purposeful. Every skill must be employed. Temple Beth El, therefore, always insisted on engaging men and women with teacher training, graduates of schools of higher learning, as instructors in the Religious School.

This staff of professional teachers will now work with a newly appointed Director of Education. She is a young woman of a rich cultural background, with considerable experience as teacher and supervisor. She brings with her new ideas in the field of Jewish Education for which she will find fertile ground for development at the new Beth El school to be erected on Orchard Street.

In the meantime Beth El will encourage children with aptitudes for language to increase their knowledge of Hebrew in the special classes provided for that purpose. These classes are held twice a week at the Temple proper, and twice a week at Nathan Bishop Junior High School on Elm Grove Avenue.

All children at the Sunday School, from Kindergarten to High School, have one hour of Hebrew as part of the program. Sabbath morning classes in Hebrew and Judaism are open to Pre-Bar Mitzvah and Confirmation age groups. The Sabbath morning program includes two periods of study and a service of prayer.

What of the other schools? What of the Hebrew Day School? And the newest member of our school network, the Talmud Torah of Beth David on Oakland Avenue?

We will visit with them on another occasion.

Who shall wander?

Who shall be at rest?

“On the first day of the year, it is inscribed . . . who shall live and who shall die . . . who shall be at rest and who shall wander . . .”

Who shall be at rest . . . and who shall wander?

These words of the Rosh Hashonah service are on the lips and in the hearts of 300,000 Jews in Rumania, 60,000 Jews in Iran, thousands more in Hungary, Libya, Tunisia and other Eastern European and Moslem lands.

Who shall be brought to Israel—and who shall be left behind?

Who shall live and who shall die?

The New Year brings new hope. What will you do to fulfill it for those who wait in lands of darkness?

The year 5711 brought rest and peace for more than 200,000 Jews. With your help, through the UNITED JEWISH APPEAL, they reached Israel.

But for the year 5712, your help is needed still. Misery, oppression and danger do not end with a single year.

From Eastern Europe and Moslem lands, 60,000 can be moved in the next three months—if you act now. In an Iron Curtain land, thousands of Jews are in danger of being deported to nameless villages and an uncertain fate. You can help feed them while they hope and pray for permission to go to Israel.

From the DP camps, 10,000 can be helped to come to the U.S. this fall. In Israel, 20,000 temporary housing units must be built for 80,000 newcomers—before the rainy season begins.

Yes, in the days, the weeks to come, you can determine who shall be saved and who shall not.

Give to the United Jewish Appeal through your local campaign. Give generously—Give now.

DYNAMIC SPEAKER—Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr. told audience "The job is only half done—and time is running out."

WOMEN OF G. J. C. HOLD SUCCESSFUL INITIAL GIFTS LUNCHEON

On Tuesday, September 11, the Sheraton - Biltmore Hotel was thronged with Jewish women of Providence and Blackstone Valley who came to see and hear and to give. The occasion — the Initial Gifts — $100 minimum luncheon of the Women's Division of the General Jewish Committee.

The speaker — the dynamic, handsome son of an illustrious father and famous mother — Franklin Delano Roosevelt, Jr. Roosevelt, one of New York's representatives in Congress, spoke with sincere feeling and from deep knowledge of the needs in Israel.

The luncheon was the first of two such events which were planned by the Women's Division of the G. J. C. The next, the $36.50 Minimum Vital Gifts Luncheon, will be held this Tuesday, September 25, at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel. The speaker of the day will be the famous, glamorous actress Eva LeGallienne.

SYD COHEN:

Alias John Doe

The pages of the most voluminous book on baseball that I have yet seen—The Baseball Encyclopedia, by Hy Turkin and S. C. Thompson—continue to interest me. Here is a volume of 620 pages, all of it baseball facts and figures and stories and personalities and rules and records.

One night I thumbed through the alphabetical list of players who have appeared, at any time, in the major leagues, and I was startled to see six Cohens listed. It's strange. The name of Greenberg is far more famous in major league history—but Hank is the only Greenberg big leaguer to date, while six fairly nondescript Cohens made the book.

This I couldn't resist as potential column material, so I dispatched a note to co-author Turkin at his New York Daily News desk, asking permission to use his book as the springboard for a few columns. He graciously granted the request; so here we go on some little-known facts of Jewish participation in major league ball.

The top of Page 57 of the Encyclopedia details the ball-playing Cohens who collected big league pay checks, or infinitesimal parts thereof. First, there is Alta Albert Cohen, born in New York in 1910, who played the outfield for the Dodgers back in 1931 and '32 and for the Phutle Phillies in '33. This Cohen slugged the ball for a gaudy .667 average his first year up. Trouble is, he only got into one game.

He was really busy his second year, breaking into the lineup nine times, with a slight falling off in hitting—to .156. With the Phillies Alta got his name in the box scores 19 times, and climbed to .188. Exit one big league career.

Next—the relatively famed Andy Cohen of the Giants. This column has written about him before. Andy also played three years, getting into 262 games in that period. He batted .257, .274 and .294, then was dropped by John McGraw. Nobody else seemed to want him.

Following the alphabet takes us back in time to 1902, when a pitcher named Harry Kane came up with the St. Louis Browns. Klondike Harry, they called him, although he hailed from Hamburg, Arkansas—and his real name was Cohen. Harry twirled one year with the Browns, and one with the Tigers, then went to the Phillies for two semesters. Total record—two wins, six defeats.

No wonder we haven't heard much about the Cohens of the Big Leagues. Four out of the seven (including one named Cohn) didn't play under their real names. Here's another one, Reuben Cohen, who became Reuben Ewing. The new name was no help. Cohen, or Ewing, came up as an outfielder with the Cardinals in 1921. This Russian-born character played three games, wound up with an easy-to-read average of .000.

But wait! A ray of sunshine enters the dreary picture. Just as we are beginning to despair of finding a Cohen who can play more than three games, or three seasons, here comes a knight in shining armor, aboard a gallant charger—name of Samuel Arthur Cohen of San Francisco, who played in the majors for seven—that's right, 7—seasons!

You think maybe that Billy Dale Goodman is versatile? Look again. Here is a guy who played every position except catch and pitch. A National Leaguer all the way, Cohen started as a shortstop with the Cards in 1916, dropped out of sight for four years, then came back with Cincinnati in 1921 to play first, second, third, short and the outfield at various times up to and including 1926.

After playing 25 games with the Reds in 1926, Cohen was traded to Brooklyn, where he played 47 more. That was his final season, but before that he had really distinguished himself. For instance, Sam hit .285 in 153 games at second and third in 1921. He played 100 or more games as a busy utility man in each of four successive seasons, then slipped to 73 the year before he was traded.

Never a .300 hitter, Sam did range between .252 and .285, except for 14 games with the Cards in 1916. Although he got into 663 contests. Why, then, don't you recall ever hearing of his name?

Alas, it is very simple. Samuel Arthur Cohen, it seems, also did not think Cohen an effective name for a ball player. He was known as Sam Bohne!

It remained for Sydney Cohen, brother of Andy, to break the spell. Syd, like Andy, was a Cohen through and through—and it wasn't long before he was through. He was with Washington in 1934, '36 and '37, hit .273 briefly as an outfielder, and had a southpaw pitching record of three wins, seven losses.

But the topper for name changing was provided by Philip Cohn of the 1905 Highlanders (Yankees to you). Unlike Samuel Arthur Cohen, alias Bohne, Phil did not play a dirty trick on the Cohen public relations department when he hid his name. Cohn, a third baseman, got his name into exactly one box score. That one game represented his entire major league career. He failed to get a hit.

No, the luck of the Irish definitely was not with Phil Cohn, even though he courted the good wishes of the Blarney Stone by playing as Phil COONEY!
