Emanuel Breaks Ground for Religious School Building

Envision 500 Weekday Pupils

Ground-breaking ceremonies for the new religious school building of Temple Emanuel were held Sunday morning at the site behind the Temple on land fronting Sessions Street and Taft Avenue. A large gathering of members, friends and neighbors of the Temple attended the ceremonies. Morris Espo, vice-president of the temple and chairman of arrangements for the occasion, acted as master of ceremonies. Samuel Rosen, temple president, turned the first spadeful of earth; Judge Philip C. Joslin, honorary president, who was the first president of Emanuel, turned the second spadeful; Herman J. Aisenberg, vice-president, and chairman of the school board, the third, and Stanley Leibo, president of the temple's school council, the last. The spade used Sunday was the same one used during ground-breaking ceremonies when Temple Emanuel was constructed 26 years ago. It had been in the care of Judge Joslin since that time, and was returned to his safekeeping after Sunday's program. Morton Korn, a student in the religious school, read a Hebrew Psalm, and Harris Savin, another student, read a Psalm in English. A prayer of thanksgiving was offered by the children of the school under the leadership of Aaron Klein, principal. Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen, spiritual leader of Temple Emanuel, gave the Invocation and Benediction.

11 Classrooms

The new building, of brick and cast-stone exterior, will measure 140 by 60 feet and will be a three-story structure. The first floor will include a chapel, four classrooms, a lounge, storage and boiler

Committee Plans Miriam Memorial For Sy Levy

Plans to dedicate a room in the Miriam Hospital in memory of the late Seymour (Sy) Levy were announced this week by Norman Salhanick, chairman of the Sy Levy Memorial Fund Committee. Funds for the memorial, Salhanick said, will accrue from the proceeds of the special Sy Levy Memorial Fund Show, now in rehearsal and being planned for presentation at Hope High School auditorium on the evenings of April 29 and 30. A large number of committees and individuals, representing several organizations for whom Levy performed, are participating in the arrangements for the musical revue. Show officials have predicted a complete sellout, based on the substantial early ticket sales. Lawrence Paley and Joseph Levy are co-chairmen for the event.

rooms, sexton's room, Sisterhood room and lavatories.

On the second floor will be seven classrooms, a library, offices of the rabbi, temple officers and educational directors, and lavatories. A 58 by 86 foot chapel-auditorium will be on the third floor, along with a foyer, coat and powder rooms, toilets and storage rooms. The balcony of the auditorium will contain choir, organ and music rooms.

Barker and Turoff are architects, and the Argenter Construction Co. will erect the building.

Enrollment at the religious school now is 500 Sunday school pupils and 200 for the weekday classes. Aisenberg estimated Sunday that "before long the new school would house between 400-500 at the daily sessions".

Beth-Israel to Hold Bazaar and Carnival

Prizes, bargains, special features, games and a giant auction—all these and more have been listed for the Bazaar and Carnival of Temple Beth Israel, to be held at the temple on the evenings of Wednesday, April 23, Thursday, April 24 and Saturday, April 26. Four grand prizes that will be awarded to lucky ticket holders include a hot point dual oven conference on Jewish Relations, RCA television set and electric rotisimat. Tickets for these prizes may be obtained from Al Raisner, WI 1-8003, ticket chairman.

In addition, there will be special prizes for youngsters every night, and wheels of chance a la Monte Carlo. The giant auction will be held on Saturday evening.

Charles G. Greenstein is chairman of the bazaar and carnival committee, and Mrs. Leo Bojar is co-chairman.

Silverman to Speak At Cranston Ceremony

Archibald Silverman will speak at the cornerstone laying ceremony of the Cranston Jewish Community Center's new building at Park Avenue and Sunset Terrace on Sunday, April 20, according to Albert Cohen, committee chairman.

Governor Dennis J. Roberts and Mayor Hoyt W. Lark of Cranston are expected to attend the ceremony.

The committee is scheduled to meet April 17 at 38 Rolfe Street to make final plans for the ceremony.

Most Local Agencies Receive Same Amount as Last Year

Climaxing a series of meetings of the Allocations Committee, the Board of Directors of the General Jewish Committee of Providence this week approved the allocation of close to $600,000 in 1951 campaign pledges to half a hundred local, national and overseas agencies. This action by the Board of Directors followed the report of the Allocations Committee. As in the past, the United Jewish Appeal—with $397,500 allocated to it for its work in resettling and rehabilitating immigrants to Israel—was the largest beneficiary of the local fund-raising and coordinating agency. The three agencies of the United Jewish Appeal are: the United Israel Appeal, Joint Distribution Committee and United Service for New Americans. Confronted with requests for increased allocations from numerous agencies—despite the fact that its total allocable funds were $130,000 less than last year—the Committee's decisions this year were not always easy to arrive at, Alvin A. Sopkin, GJC President, pointed out.

In virtually all instances, cuts in appropriations affected national and overseas agencies. The Committee's policy of "holding the line" in support of local agencies was graphically pointed up by the fact that ten of 12 such organizations received identical amounts granted them in 1951.

Representatives of 14 groups appeared in person before the Allocations Committee, at its several hearings, to press their case for larger grants. Communications from numerous others were read into the record and later explored by the Committee.

A "work-book" prepared by Joseph Galkin, GJC Executive Director—outlining the background and finances of each agency, its relationship to other agencies, and the scope and effect of its work—served as a guide to the Committee's deliberations.

In many instances, it was the opinion of the Committee that certain organizations were in special need of additional funds to carry out their work. The Committee's problem, in cases like these, was to grant the largest possible amount within the framework of a diminished overall campaign total.

In essence, the Committee was faced with the same contradictory situation—larger requests versus a smaller financial "pie" to be cut up—that has plagued comparable community-wide fund-raising organizations in recent years.

The list of 49 charitable, educational, relief, youth and cultural groups sharing in the GJC's allocations appears below. It includes, on the local level, grants to the Hebrew Day School, Providence Hebrew Sheltering Society, Providence Zionist Youth Commission, R. I. Founders for Tubercular Patients, R. I. Refugee Service and the Cranston Jewish Community Center.

A $12,000 grant to the Bureau of Jewish Education actually is for the six-month period ending January 1, 1953. The proposed Bureau stems from a recent survey of Jewish educational needs sponsored by the GJC. Personnel to staff this new agency are currently being interviewed by the planning committee in charge of the survey.

A $5,000 allocation to the Jewish War Veterans is listed as "tentative", subject to further study with the local service office. The R. I. Refugee Service's grant was also listed as "tentative", because of the possibility that there may be some changes in its program.

Miss Phyllis Gershman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gershman of Oak Hill Avenue, Pawtucket, was married Sunday to Dr. Norman I. Goldberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Goldberg of Orms Street, in the ballroom of the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel. Rabbi Aaron Goldin of Congregation Ohave Shalom, Pawtucket, officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of ivory Chantilly lace and satin. The fitted bodice of lace was embroidered with paillettes, and the gown was designed with long lace sleeves and a circular skirt of lace and satin en train. Her fingertip veil fell from a scalloped lace crown crusted with seed pearls. She carried a family Bible decked with white orchids and streamers of white lilacs and stephanotis. Mrs. Herbert Gold of Swampscott, Mass. was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Jules Rubenstein of Newton, Mass.; Mrs. Stuart Kofspore of Stamford, Conn.; Miss Allynne Palmer, Miss Barbara-Jane Mills, Miss Sheila Gershman, sister of the bride, of Pawtucket, and Miss Jeanette Berkovic.

Dr. Aaron Gershkoff was best man. Ushers included Dr. Wallace Herschberg of Stamford, Conn.; Dr. Morton Lehman of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Dr. Joslin Berry, Dr. Isadore Gershman, Nathan Eisenstadt, Bernard Goldberg, Abraham Gershman, and Dr. Abraham Safro of North Bergen, N. J.

FERDMAN FAMILY CIRCLE

At a meeting of the Ferdman Family Circle, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Holzman of Dorchester, Mass. last Saturday, plans for the coming family banquet to be held May 3 were discussed. Munroe Abowitz presided. Philip Fox won the white elephant raffle. A buffet supper preceded the meeting.

The laundry of the New Miriam Hospital will be capable of processing 3,000 pounds of laundry during each work shift.

Plenty of Hitting Power at Beth El Sports Show

Wards in the New Miriam Hospital will be small. Wards will contain a maximum of four beds.

Don't let the baseball equipment fool you—there was a different kind of hitting power at the annual Fathers and Sons Sports Show, sponsored by the Temple Beth El Brotherhood a few Sundays ago. Holding the baseball is George Araujo, Providence lightweight who made a big hit in last Friday's boxing show from New York. Continuing to the right are Raymond Dieu and Robert Villemain, French boxers who reside here; Young Montreal, old-time fistic warrior, and Murray Trinkle, chairman of the arrangements committee. Committee members at the left are Harold Roberts, Nat Alterman and Jay Isenberg. Oh yes—the equipment was awarded to the sons of Brotherhood members. Photo by Joe Marcello Sudakoff's 336, Strumfeld's 328, Goldenberg's 304 and Sklaroff's 302 helped Fraternity take three from Unity and kick them out of a tie for top spot. Loyalty holds the league lead by clipping four from Liberty who dropped to the cellar with Justice. Jaffa's 330 and Smith's 325, with two strikes on his last two balls, gave Security three over Justice who were tied the first two games.

Some other high scores were Seltzer 346, Rose 329, Shaw 328, G. Labush 321, and Azroff 312, Pedlikan 128, Delerson 127, Glantz 116, Koppleman 110, J. Connis 109 and Jagolinzer 106.

Colors used in the New Miriam Hospital have been scientifically selected. The walls of patients' rooms will be painted for eye-ease and quiet cheerfulness. There will also be ceilings of sound absorbent material.

Bowling Tourney Dates Announced

Three bowling tournaments, all sponsored by the Herald, will take place later this month and early in May, to settle the question of supremacy among local Jewish men's and women's leagues for 1952.

Two of the tourneys—both involving the men—will be four-league pairings. The women, in tournament competition for the first time, will present five leagues on the firing lines.

The women's classic will get the tournament season under way on Sunday evening, April 27 at the Casino Alleys, starting at 8 P. M.

Temples Emanuel, Beth El and Beth-Israel and Cranston Jewish Community Club will follow suit one day later, on Monday, April 28, also at the Casino Alleys at 8 P. M. This marks the first year that the three temples have not bowled as a separate entity. Cranston's application to be included as one of the temple groups was accepted by the three competitors who first started the Herald's bowling competition. Thus, for the first time, these four leagues will bowl as one group.

The third tourney will pair A E Pi Fraternity, Fineman-Trinkel Post JWV, Providence Fraternal and Knights of Pythias. This event will take place on Monday, May 5 at the Bowladrome Alleys on Smithfield Avenue.

Each of the men's leagues will present four teams of five men each, while the women will work with three teams, each comprising four Keglers.

Representatives of the men's and women's leagues set up rules and regulations governing the tournaments at two meetings in the Herald office.

These will be announced in next week's Herald.

GERALD M. CLAMON AUX.

The Juggernaut Grinds On

In Romania, according to a report released by the Institute of Jewish Affairs of the World Jewish Congress, the entire Zionist movement has been liquidated and many Jewish leaders are under arrest. "Jewish charitable institutions have been nationalized," the report states, "synagogues are forced to re-organize according to the dictates of a willful group of the Communist Jewish section. All Jewish cultural bodies are compelled to abandon their normal activities and to concentrate on spreading communist ideology."

In Czechoslovakia, Jack Raymond reports in the New York Times, the Communists are planning to purge Jews from scientific and cultural fields. In Warsaw, he states, the police established a watch over the Israeli legation and arrest Jews observed entering delegation offices. After long interrogation by the police, the arrested Jews are threatened with severe consequences if they are caught again entering the delegation building.

Thus the Communist juggernaut is grinding under its standardizing wheels whatever is left of Jewish life in the Soviet satellite countries, even as it has done in the Soviet Union where all Jewish schools, newspapers, publishing houses and communal life have been forced out of existence. The present drive against "Zionists" in the satellite countries follows the pattern set in the Soviet Union. It leads to a drive against "cosmopolitans" which is a euphemism used by the Communist dictators for all Jews whom they want to liquidate.

Premier Ben-Gurion stated that the Israeli government asked the Soviet authorities to permit the emigration of Jews from Soviet Russia to Israel. We do not know how many Jews there are still left in the Soviet Union. But it is evident that there is not much time left for the rescue efforts of the Jewish remnants in the satellite countries. The communist juggernaut rolls on mercilessly.

"One Man's Opinion"

A Column For Pesach

BY BERYL SEGAL

I am in a tough spot, my friends. I had planned on a Passover column months ago. I had it all rehearsed in my mind. The story of Pesach was in it. Spring was in it, too. And childhood memories of the Seder nights were in it. I wanted it to be a bright, happy story—worthy of the bright happy festival of Passover.

But something went wrong. Either I looked at an old calendar, or I had my dates mixed up. And now I find myself with an out-dated story on my hands. It was too early for last week, and it is too late for this week.

The first three days of the festival are over. The Seder nights are gone. The little boys have unburdened themselves of the Four Questions and are back to school again. The out-of-town guests who came for the holiday have departed. The Matzohs have lost some of their crispness, and people begin to yearn for some foods of all the other days and nights of the year.

No, the time is no longer right for the kind of Pesach story I had in mind.

But a column with something of Pesach in it must be written. So I will tell you a Sholom Aleichem story out of the volume of his Festival Tales. Sholom Aleichem stories are always in season.

A Rabbi was returning home from his travels to be with his family for Pesach. The last stretch of his journey he made in a wagon driven by two horses. The driver, like coachmen sometimes will be, was a talkative fellow, and he told the Rabbi all the latest news of the home town, little minding the road.

Suddenly the wagon jerked, and there was a crash, and the driver scratched his head sadly as he examined the wheels:

"Trouble, Rabbi! One of the wheels broke. What shall we do?"

But the Rabbi was not dismayed. He stroked his beard, and he reasoned with the driver as if he were chanting a passage in the Talmud:

"Consider a sulky with but two wheels, and yet people ride in it. Your wagon with three wheels will surely bring us home for Pesach!"

So they drove on, on three wheels, but not too far. Soon there was another jerk and a crash, and the driver shook his head mournfully:

"Another wheel is gone. What shall we do now?"

But the Rabbi was hopeful as before, and he chanted:

"A velociped, which, as you know, has one big wheel and one small wheel and yet people ride on it. Your wagon, which has two big wheels, will all the more bring us home for Pesach!"

The driver settled himself back on his seat and the horses pulled the wagon on the two remaining wheels. But not too far this time, either. There was another crash and the wagon toppled over on one side and stood still.

The driver turned to the Rabbi, and just looked at him darkly, shaking his head, as if to say:

"Well, Rabbi, what will you say now?"

But the Rabbi sat calmly, and stroked his beard, and again reasoned in a Talmudic chant:

"How is it a sled, which has no wheels at all, and yet people ride in it? Your wagon, having one wheel, is all the more fit for driving. It will surely bring us home for Pesach!"

This time the wagon hardly moved seven paces when the last wheel broke in splinters. The driver and his passenger came down with a thump, and the wagon rested on solid ground.

"What now, Rabbi?" the driver asked in despair.

But do you think the Rabbi was disturbed or alarmed even now? Not at all. You don't know our Rabbi. He put his hands reassuringly on the driver's shoulders, and he chanted:

"You take balloons, suspended in mid-air, neither in the skies nor on the earth, and yet people fly in them. Your wagon, standing on solid ground, will all the more bring us home for Pesach!"

And who do you think was right? The Rabbi, of course. They reached home in time for the Seder, and a happy Pesach it was, too.

What has this Sholom Aleichem story to do with my out-dated Passover column?

Well, the Rabbi in the Sholom Aleichem story would surely chant out some relationship, and convince you of his logic.

But even if you can't see it, I don't fret. The story is delightful. I like it, and so will you.

And a happy Pesach to all.

In the New Miriam Hospital there will be oxygen outlets in the wall beside each patient's bed. Oxygen will be supplied centrally from basement storage tanks.

PASSOVER RECIPES

MATZO MEAL PANCAKES

3 eggs
1/2 cup cold water
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup matzo meal
1 small onion, grated
Melted shortening (vegetable or oil) for deep frying
Beat eggs in a mixing bowl and stir in water, salt, 2/3 of the onion (grated) and matzo meal to form a stiff batter that will drop from the spoon. Heat the shortening in a deep frying pan and add the remaining part of onion. Drop the batter from spoon to form round or oval cakes as soon as the onion is light yellow. Lift out onion and let pancakes cook in enough hot shortening to almost cover them. When brown on underside and puffed, turn to brown on underside. Lift out one at a time and drain thoroughly before serving hot with applesauce, mixed fruit compote, cranberry sauce or plain with meat or cheese dishes. When frying these pancakes, do not crowd them, thus permitting a crisp product.
Yields 12 to 14 pancakes, depending on size.

NUT CAKE

9 eggs, separated
9 tablespoons sugar
6 tablespoons matzo cake meal
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 cup finely ground almonds (not chopped nuts)
Beat egg yolks till light and creamy. Fold in lemon juice and grated rind gradually till well combined. Beat egg whites, adding sugar gradually while beating till the mixture is stiff. Fold into the first mixture with an over and over stroke, adding the finely ground almonds in the final strokes. Sprinkle the matzo cake meal over the top and fold in very lightly. Turn into an ungreased spring form and bake 45 minutes at 325 F without opening the oven door.

GRATED POTATO KUGELACH

1 1/2 pounds potatoes (6 or 7 medium size)
1 medium size onion
3 eggs, separated
1/2 cup Matzo meal
1/2 cup melted shortening (schmaltz or vegetable shortening)
1 teaspoon salt
A dash of pepper, optional
Pare and grate the potatoes into a large mixing bowl. Press out excess water with the hand or through a fine strainer. Grate in the onion, add egg yolks, matzo meal and 1 tablespoon fat, salt and pepper if used. Stir well and let stand at room temperature while beating the egg whites till thickened. Grease 16 muffin rings, 2 inch size. Light the oven and bring heat up to 350 F. Stir or fold in the beaten egg whites and turn the mixture into the well greased muffin rings. Bake 25 to 30 minutes or till nicely browned on top and the edges are crisp. Unmold and serve hot. Yields 16 Kugelach.

BETH-DAVID MEN

The annual Monte Carlo night and Penny Sale of the Beth David Men's Club will be held sometime in May, it was announced at the March 24 meeting. Members voted to change the meeting night to the fourth Tuesday of the month, and the Talmud Torah drive held in February was reported successful. H. Webster Youden, Providence Journal sports promoter, was guest speaker. Refreshments were served.

SYD COHEN:

April Fantasy

The spring training camps are shut tight, and the ball clubs have come home. The players who "can't miss" but did miss have departed. The super-terrific rookies are down in the minors for more seasoning. The veterans are back in shape for another year.

The races are about to begin, and most of the baloney is packed away in the publicity deep freezers for another season. Now we get a slightly different brand of malarkey—based on the appearance of each club as it left the South or West around April 1.

On every floor of the New Miriam Hospital will be dictating telephones for the convenience of quick recording on discs located on machines in the administrative offices.

For instance, the Phillies—champions of two years ago—are shaping up very well. Writers who have seen them say Eddie Sawyer's austerity program is paying off. You know, no wives, autos, etc.

This is April phantasy. The Phils are looking good because they have a wonderful pitching staff—including young Ridzik, who, I am sure, was not concerned about the austerity program. They have added Howie Fox, and soon will have Curt Simmons. Curt's return automatically boosts Philly stock several points.

The Phils also look better—and this is important—because the Giants have lost Irvin and will lose Mays. Tough training rules don't mean a thing, except as an excuse for the manager.

The Phils—once you look through the haze of April—have several weak spots. Yet, they might win the pennant, because every National League club is in the same boat.

The Giants, for example. No Stanky, no Mays, no Irvin, no bench. Players like Lockman and Thomson and Thompson, who were successfully shuttled into strange positions last year, now must go back to their old haunts to cover the loss of the two outfielders. Will the moves prove successful again?

Yet, the Giants still have the pitching, and so figure to be tough. And it is not impossible that they should win this year, although they don't look better than third.

The Dodgers probably will be picked to win. Here is a sound ball club, with a strong front line and good reserves. Yet there is lots wrong—mainly, pitching uncertainty, advancing age, and a psychological handicap.

The entire Dodgers outfit must have a complex. They came so close to winning in 1950 and 1951—not within one game, but within one inning each year. They will hear the taunts of the fans all season long, they will never see Branca take the mound without remembering, and they will never be quite sure in their own minds whether they really have it.

Sentimentally, we would like to see the Braves win the league, as they say in hockey—and why not use hockey terms when the season is still with us? But the Braves have a rough road ahead. Too many aging veterans and untried rookies. Too shallow a pitching staff, with Chet Nichols gone. Too many ifs.

Eddie Stanky's Cardinals have looked impressive in spring training. They may have a gas house gang similar to that of the early '30's. Even so, are they impressive looking enough to warrant a winning pick? Too many apparent weak spots.

The safest prediction that can be made on this mid-April date is that one of the five teams mentioned above will be the National League champion of 1952. The Phils and Dodgers look best right now.

The American League

The problem is much simpler in the American League. Probably every writer in the country will name the Indians and Yanks to finish one-two, with general disagreement, of course, as to who will finish on top.

Leaving these two for the moment, we find the Tigers rated first division again, but depending on Art Houtteman to have a big year. That is a tough bet, in view of poor Art's continued siege of tragic luck. Tiger pitching behind Houtteman is not solid enough to go anywhere.

The Red Sox—finally broken up—sport a pile of new faces, which should answer some of the critics. The attack definitely must be weaker with Williams gone. The spring pitching has not been good.

Here's an ominous note—The players, according to anonymous interviews with out-of-town writers, do not take to the Boudreau method, and are far from being imbued with the spirit and hustle that Lou promised a while back.

'Tis rumored Yawkey would trade five pitchers to the marines for Ted.

The White Sox might be big favorites if they had a deeper pitching staff. Rogovin isn't ready yet, and he and Billy Pierce are not the "stoppers" that all managers like to have. Don't be surprised though, if Chuck Stobbs develops into a 20-game winner under Paul Richards. And with all that speed on the base lines...

So that leaves the Indians and Yankees, and here again you take your pick. Cleveland figures on Simpson to replace Sam Chapman. Sam Jones, a promising rookie pitcher, has a bad arm. They say Lemon will win more than 17. OK, but will Feller hit 20 again? Last year the hurlers were overworked; as a result, they blew sky high in the final ten days. If more pitchers share the load this year, the big four will win fewer games. The Injuns expect better hitting. They seem to have supreme confidence, and they talk like champions. Just like last year.

But the big factor in the pennant race will be this: Can the Indians overcome their psychological fear of the Yankees and take the big games between the two clubs? Inability to beat the Yanks lost the pennant last year and the year before.

The Cleveland management is pounding away at that theme—telling the world that without DiMaggio the Yanks won't be in the race. Can they get the players to believe this, especially when the reports from Florida term the Yankees the best club around?

Don't underrate the Yanks. They are a strong club, with so many top notch men that they may never present a team of eight regulars. First base, and an understudy to Rizzuto, constitute the major problems. The first base problem has not lost them a pennant yet, and Rizzuto is still healthy.

All this, however, is "paper" talk. How a club shapes up on paper and how it performs in the field are often very much different. You also have to figure the intangibles. What kind of intangibles? Well, the Giants' loss of the Stanky spirit and the Cardinals' acquisition of same... The Yanks' loss of the DiMaggio "lift"... injuries to key performers... and trades. There may be quite a bit of trading before the June deadline. Every deal may affect the races.

Boil it all down, and it means simply that a guy is a sucker to make a forecast during the days of April fantasy as to who will be on top in September.

Prospective fathers of babies born in the New Miriam Hospital will have for their use an especially designed waiting room.

In Memory Of My Father

In my heart — in my memory father lives. I remember many things.

I remember his stories about the old country — his struggles to make a life here in a new land. I remember how steadfast he was in his religion;

how anxious he was that his children become good Jews, good Americans — kind, honest men and women.

In my memory father lives, and in the memory of our neighbors and friends too, because I have established, in his name,

an everlasting memorial in the new Miriam Hospital.

A memorial in the new Miriam Hospital gives in two ways. It honors your loved ones and it gives necessary additional hospital facilities to the community. Memorial opportunities are still available. For details consult any member of the Memorial Committee.
