GJC Sets May 18-25 As "C" (Cash) Week

Must Translate Pledges Into Cash

May 18 to May 25 was set this week as "C" (Cash) Week here by officers of the General Jewish Committee of Providence in response to a fervent plea from the United Jewish Appeal for "urgently needed cash" to speed homeless Jews to Israel from overseas trouble spots.

The unprecedented GJC campaign to translate 1951 pledges into cash to meet Israel's emergency needs was touched off by a letter to Alvin A. Sopkin, GJC president, from Joseph J. Schwartz, executive vice-chairman of the United Jewish Appeal.

Calling attention to a National Cash Mobilization Conference in Chicago on May 24 and May 25, Schwartz said: "For a number of weeks we have been struggling

Name Sapinsley Budget Head of Leisure Survey

Milton Sapinsley this week accepted appointment as chairman of the budget and finance committee of the group work and leisure time survey being conducted by the General Jewish Committee of Providence.

His appointment and that of William P. Weinstein as the chairman of the survey's facilities committee was announced by Max Winograd, general chairman of the audit.

Sapinsley is a past president of the Miriam Hospital and the Providence Community Fund. With organization of the two sub-committees on finance and facilities, the group work study moves into the final area of administrative decisions, Winograd noted.

The audit, when finally completed, is expected to serve as a blueprint for the next decade for such organizations as the Jewish Community Center who deal directly with the problem of operating large-scale leisure time programs.

To Mark Israel's Fourth Anniversary at Dinner

Ambassador Eban Guest of Honor

ARCHIBALD SILVERMAN
Toastmaster

Archibald Silverman, regional head of the United Jewish Appeal, will serve as toastmaster for the Israel Bond dinner honoring Ambassador Abba Eban Monday evening, May 19, at six o'clock at the Ledgemont Country Club.

Mr. Eban, Israel's permanent representative to the United Nations, will appear here at the behest of the Israel Bond Committee for Providence, headed by Ben Albert, chairman.

Israel's fourth anniversary as an independent Jewish State will be celebrated on the occasion of Mr. Eban's visit. Governor Roberts will greet the Ambassador on his arrival and introduce him at the dinner, it was announced.

At the seventh annual meeting of the General Jewish Committee, held in Providence on May 5, Alvin Sopkin, President, congratulated the Jewish leaders of Rhode Island for "the excellent relationship established between the Bond Committee and the G.J.C.", pointing out that maximum results for both had thus been achieved. He explained that Israel Bonds represented "new resources" over and above gift money for the new State.

At the Z.O.A. conference in Newport last Sunday, four district presidents reported that Israel Bond sales were being made at a steadily increasing rate among the members. William Strong, president of the Providence district, reported $180,000 sales, Morris Espo of Pawtucket showed a figure of $32,000, and in Woonsocket $84,000 in Israel Bonds had been sold, according to Morris Shoham, head of that district. Dr. Maurice Ball, president of the Newport district, said that $36,000 in Israel Bonds had been sold by his organization.

Hospital Names Department Heads

Full-time directors of the Departments of Radiology and Laboratories have been engaged by the Miriam Hospital for its new institution. Their services will begin in the Fall of 1952.

"Dr. Jacob Dyckman, the newly appointed Director of Laboratories, has had a distinguished career in hospitals as a certified specialist in laboratory sciences and in medical research," stated Michael S. Grobsmith, Executive Director of the hospital, "and he is at present terminating research projects supported by a federal grant at the 1000-bed Mt. Sinai Hospital in New York City."

Dr. Ralph Goldin, newly appointed Director of the X-ray Department, has distinguished himself in training at the Jewish Hospital in Brooklyn, New York, a 660-bed institution, where he has spent three years in concentrated training in cancer therapy, x-ray diagnosis and the medical uses of radioactive materials.

"Dr. Goldin is an unusually excellent addition to our medical staff," Grobsmith said, "and brings to the Miriam Hospital a degree of training and experience consistent with the highest standards of medical care."

New AJ Committee To Meet Tuesday

The opening meeting of the Providence Chapter, American Jewish Committee, will be held next Tuesday, May 13 in the Crown Hotel, starting at 8:30 P. M., according to an announcement by John Sapinsley, Chapter chairman. Guests are invited and there will be no solicitation of funds.

Highlighting the program will be Hal Lehrman, noted author on Israel and international affairs, and Herbert B. Ehrmann, writer and attorney, who is chairman of the Administrative Committee of the AJC and former chairman of its Boston chapter.

Lehrman, recent winner of a Guggenheim Fellowship, served as a special correspondent for Fortune Magazine and as National Affairs editor of Newsweek Magazine. He will speak on "Israel and the Middle East."

Ehrmann, who once served as counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti, has a background of legislative and literary achievement. One of his plays was produced on Broadway in 1942. His topic will be "The Aims of the American Jewish Committee."

Peter Bardach is program chairman for the meeting.

Miriam Hospital Nearing Completion; Dedication Committee Is Named

The New Miriam Hospital, now under construction on Summit Avenue, is making "very satisfactory progress," according to Benjamin Brier, president, and the Building Committee "is looking forward eagerly to its completion."

"Even though a considerable amount of work remains to be done—the major portion being the installation of heavy equipment—completion of the New Miriam Hospital on schedule is anticipated," Brier said as he reviewed the progress of the hospital to date.

With the completion date rapidly growing nearer, Brier announced that he already has appointed a committee to plan and conduct the dedication exercises and celebration.

Named to the committee are Alvin A. Sopkin, chairman, and Isadore Paisner and Joseph W. Ress, co-chairmen; Alter Boyman, Mrs. Charles C. Brown, Louis Fain, Archie Finkle, Irving Gert-sacov, Alfred H. Joslin, Alexander Rumpel, Mrs. Joseph J. Seefer and Morton Smith.

The newly appointed committee met for the first time on Wednesday, April 30 and immediately swung into preliminary plans for the dedication affair. Committee members agreed that they must plan "an outstanding and very elaborate program that will be fully in keeping with the importance of the hospital to the community."

Sopkin stressed the importance and significance of the New Miriam to all the people, regardless of race, color or creed, and predicted that it will easily be one of the finest hospitals in the entire State.

Preliminary plans for the dedication program were outlined by Paisner and Boyman and discussed by the entire committee, which intends to meet regularly until the arrangements have been completed.

Hospital Annual Meeting May 22

Irving M. Kritz, chairman of the annual meeting committee of the Miriam Hospital, has announced that the annual meeting will be held on Thursday, May 22 at noon at the Narragansett Hotel. This is an innovation, holding of the Hospital's annual meeting at noon instead of in the evening.

The nominating committee will present its report including names of officers and members of the board of trustees, and committee chairmen will present their annual reports. The meeting will be in the form of a luncheon session.

Other members of the committee planning this meeting are Mrs. William Weinstein, John Sapinsley, Abraham Perceley, Leo Bojar and Frank Licht.

Fraternity Takes Bowling Tourney

By SYD COHEN

The bowling minions of AEPi Fraternity and Fineman-Trinkel Post, Jewish War Veterans, are all wrapped up in a private duel over possession of the Herald Trophy. So far the Fraternity boys are way out in front.

For the second year in a row, AEPi squeaked out a narrow win over the Vets and won this year's annual tournament, held Monday night at the Bowladrome Alleys, this time by a score of 9-7. Last year the same two outfits finished in a dead heat and AEPi won on total league pinfall.

This time it was Fineman-Trinkel that had the pinfall edge, 6115 to 6072; but AEPi scored the points in the close strings, its C team taking two strings by the narrowest of margins, a scant one and two pins.

In view of such spirited battling, the top 20 men of Knights of Pythias had no chance. The Pythians, fighting to the last, were blanked in the points column.

Arthur Flink made it AEPi night all the way by rolling high three of 350. Two teammates, Warren Fish and Murray Hahn, came close with 347. Mort Klibanoff of Fineman-Trinkel had high single of 139, but again it was Fish and Hahn as runners-up at 138 and 137, respectively, and Flink's 133 maintaining the monopoly.

Sabbath Speaker

JUSTIN D. ROTHMAN, assistant executive director of the National Federation of Temple Brotherhoods, will be the featured speaker at the annual Temple Beth El Brotherhood Sabbath next Friday night.

Murry Halpert is chairman of the Brotherhood Sabbath. Other members of the brotherhood who will participate in the 8:15 P. M. service are A. Archie Finkelstein, president; Arthur Markoff, vice-president; William Bojar, Walter Strauss, Samuel Rantz and Stanley Grossman.

Center's Annual Meeting May 21

The annual meeting of the Jewish Community Center will be held on Wednesday evening, May 21 at 8:15 P. M. in the Center auditorium, Bertram L. Bernhardt, chairman of the annual meeting committee, announced this week.

The meeting will include reports of all Center activities during the past year, Bernhardt said, and will be featured by a showing of color films of Open House Week, in which thousands of persons participated.

Election of officers and members of the Board of Directors will highlight the business meeting.

Refreshments will be served under the direction of a committee from Parents Association.

BLOOM POST INSTALLATION

Lt. Leonard Bloom Post 284 and its Auxillary will hold joint installation ceremonies Tuesday evening at 8 P. M. at 117 Woodbine Street, Cranston. Installing officers are Everett Levinson, past department commander, and Mrs. Sarah Winoker. Memorial services will also be held for Lt. Bloom.

Colors used in the New Miriam Hospital have been scientifically selected. The walls of patients' rooms will be painted for eye-ease and quiet cheerfulness. There will also be ceilings of sound absorbent material.

Honored in Newport

ELIX ADELSON

NEWPORT — Elix Adelson, father of Dr. Samuel Adelson, former Representative Council chairman, was honored April 27 by friends and relatives for devoting more than 50 years to Jewish religious and educational activities. The program, held at the Jewish Community Center, featured the unveiling of a bronze plaque by a seven-year-old grandson, Jonathan Adelson.

Rabbi Theodore Lewis of Touro Synagogue, who spoke at the ceremony arranged by Congregation Jeshuat Israel, said "the honor sought the man."

The plaque notes that Mr. Adelson became a trustee of Touro Synagogue in 1927 and of the board of education of the United Hebrew School in 1926. He still serves in these offices.

Nathan Ball was master of ceremonies. Present were another son, Joseph Adelson, a Providence attorney, and two daughters, Mrs. Anna Minkin and Mrs. Frances Eisenberg of Newport.

Fraternity Takes Bowling Title

teams dominated their classification, each taking two strings and total pinfall. The reverse was true in the D's. But it was the Fraternity C team that won the match. This quintet took all four points, two of them—as noted—by narrow margins.

Fineman-Trinkel A recorded the best string—580, and the best three string total—1624. AEPi's best was the A team's 553. The vet kers also had the edge in number of 300 totals—13 for the vets, 8 for AEPi and 5 for the Pythians. Fineman-Trinkel bowlers rolled 35 strings of 100 or better as compared to 30 for AEPi and 21 for Knights of Pythias.

Other leading high threes were Ruby Plushner, AEPi A, 333; Harold Golden, Fineman-Trinkel C, 332; and Dave Allen and Phil Shaulson, Fineman-Trinkel A, 331. In the singles department were Plushner 125, Sam Miller, Fineman-Trinkel A, and Feld, Knights of Pythias A, 124, and Golden, 120.

difficult to exaggerate the seriousness of these emergencies and unless we are able to bring together within a very short time a large sum of cash, everything we have worked for and built may be endangered.

Sopkin immediately appointed Sidney Kane, chairman of the GJC's special finance committee, to head up an intensive drive for cash payments of pending pledges.

Kane, in turn, announced he would line up a corps of volunteer solicitors to canvass homes and businesses during the week of May 18 to May 25 in an effort "to obtain the most generous outpouring of cash possible." Names of officers and key workers will be released next week, he said.

In accepting his post, Kane said: "I have every confidence that the people of the greater Providence community will respond to this urgent call for funds."

He explained that the "C" in C-Week stands for cash—"cash to save lives. Israel is long on courage and immigration—but desperately short of food, housing and dollars," Kane said.

 this week as "an inventory of present leisure time facilities projected against a background of future needs." It spells out in detail a comprehensive program of the needs of all groups in the greater Providence Jewish community — from pre-school age children to older adults, he pointed out.
 More than 150 persons, representing all segments of our community, are participating in the survey as a member of one or more of the dozen sub-committees that have been appointed since the survey was first launched by the GJC.

Sapinsley's committee on budget and finance was organized last night at GJC headquarters in the Strand Building. It includes Bertram L. Bernhardt, David Chernack, Irving I. Fain, Maurice Fox, Samuel Gereboff, Milton Kay, Mrs. Arthur J. Levy, Joseph W. Ress, Samuel Rosen, George Savin and Samuel Rapaport Jr.

Winograd said the committee will review study findings to date and assist in drawing up a budget in order to carry out the recommendations advanced thus far.

Reports Given At GJC Meeting

On Monday evening of this week, 175 members of the General Jewish Committee of Providence gathered at the Providence Journal Company auditorium at the GJC's seventh annual meeting and:

1) Re-elected a slate of general officers, headed by Alvin A. Sopkin as president;

2) Unanimously approved three by-laws changes providing for rotation of members of the Board of Directors and a limitation upon their terms of service;

3) Gave applause to Abraham M. Klein, Montreal author, editor and lawyer whose address, "The Pit and the Pendulum," was described by veteran GJC officials as "one of the most moving presentations of the problems confronting the new Jewish homeland of Israel ever heard in this city."

4) Heard Joseph Galkin, GJC executive director, outline the status of two surveys—Jewish educational facilities and leisure time needs—sponsored by the GJC on a community-wide basis.

5) Witnessed Sopkin presented with a framed photograph which will be mounted in GJC's headquarters in a newly established "President's Gallery."

In addition to the 96 Board members elected in units of 32 each for terms of one, two and three years, Sopkin announced the appointment of Joseph K. Levy, Al Saltzman, Raymond Franks, and Meyer Tennenbaum as members-at-large of the Board, bringing its total to an even 100 directors.

Galkin, in his brief remarks, disclosed that appointment of a full-time director of the proposed Bureau of Jewish Education, recommended by the Jewish education audit, would be announced shortly. He predicted that the Bureau would be in operation by early Fall.

Dr. Wotiz to Give Talk on Hormones

It's Up to the Senate Now

In a spirit of hysteria and in an atmosphere of crisis, the House of Representatives by a vote of 206 to 68 passed the McCarran-Walter Omnibus immigration bill.

That the minority who opposed the bill was justified in describing it as legislation based on racial theories, is proven by the admission of Representative John P. Wood of Idaho, who in support of the measure said: "It seems to me that the question of racial origins—though I am not a follower of Hitler—there is something to it."

The irrationality and hysteria of some of those who supported the bill is also evidenced by such contradictory arguments as those advanced by Representative John Rankin and Representative Clare Hoffman, respectively. The former argued that opposition to the measure was a "Communist plot." The latter said of immigrants "... many of them pay a pretty good fee to smart lawyers in New York ... to get in ... and just as soon as they get here they say our government is no good ... and they want to change it, just like Anna Rosenberg, Assistant Secretary of Defense, who wants to take all the boys and girls and put them into the armed services."

Place these arguments side by side and you get the absurd conclusion that it is the Communists who want to intensify the U. S. re-arming program. Yet it is by such arguments that the House was moved to pass the bill.

Now it is up to the Senate. Senators Humphrey, Lehman, Gillette and others are prepared to put up a strong fight against this legislation which is based on the bankrupt Hitlerite racial theories and which undermines the moral position of American leadership in the world. It is not only a question of the future of the prospective immigrants who may make a distinct contribution to the growth and welfare of America, but it also affects the vital question whether the nations of the world can have confidence in our country's protestations of democracy and humanitarianism.

We look to Senator Edward Thyne and the other North-west Senators to join in opposing this vicious measure. We trust that the Senate will take a more serious and responsible position than that of the House. If, however, the Senate, like the House, cannot rise above the spirit of hysteria, then it is up to the President to veto this bill.

"One Man's Opinion"

A Mother's Day Story

BY BERYL SEGAL

The bombs began to fall at night.

Suddenly the stillness of the night broke loose with thunder and lightning, man-made thunder and lightning. Man gone mad caused a rain of fire to shower down on a sleeping little town.

The planes hovered low over the roofs and sprinkled them with deliberation, house after house. Roofs burst in flames. Walls caved in. Pavements squirted stones and bricks. Human shadows rose and fell. Human voices cried out and were quickly silenced.

Before she knew what was happening, and not stopping to learn what was happening, she rushed to the baby's cradle and grabbed the sleeping child. Driven by a force that knew no reason, she ran into the open with the child clutched in her arms. She did not look back, but she knew that no sooner was she out of the doorposts of her house than the four walls tottered and fell under the blow of a direct hit.

She ran blindly, led by a force that knew how to guide her steps, though she herself did not know which way her foot steps would take her. She ran through destruction. She ran past crumbling walls. She ran pursued by maddening outcries. Nothing could stop her, nothing could take her mind off the softly breathing, warm little creature which she held close to her body.

Thus she ran until the burning town was behind her, and only the narrow brook separated her from the white peasant house in the shadow of the blossoming acacia bushes. She waded through the brook, and ran up the narrow path to the door of the house. No sooner was she under the roof of the low house, than she fell to the floor, all life gone out of her body.

Now her child was safe. Now she need no longer be blind and deaf to the world around her. Now she was no longer under the spell of that super-human power she never knew was within her. Now she was a frail woman, sobbing, crying.

The peasant and his wife revived her, fed her, put her to bed, and comforted her.

She was awakened in the morning to the twittering of birds in the bushes, the warmth of the sun through the little window and the stirring of life on the farm, but also to the persistent knocking on the door. A soldier of the invading enemy, formidable in helmet, girdled with hand grenades and bayonet, gun held ready, stood outside and wanted to know who lives in this house, how many in EAVESDROPPING... At McCarthy's Steak House: He doesn't have to worry about talking in his sleep—his wife and girlfriend have the same name... At the Copa: What a wonderful night. The moon was out and so were her parents... At the Cafe Costi: I got rich by a lucky stroke—my rich old uncle had one... At the Singapore: I shouldn't complain. What can you expect of a day that starts with getting up?... At the Latin Quarter: I've got phone numbers even the phone company don't know about... the family, and if there are Jews hiding on the farm. Better get rid of them, or be prepared for the severest punishment, he warned.

The farmer's wife, a childhood friend of the woman whom she sheltered with her baby, quickly picked up the child and claimed it as her own, and the mother she hid among the potato sacks in the dark cellar.

But by noon of the same day soldiers came again knocking at the door, warning against hiding Jews, threatening with the same fate that befell the Jews of the town all those who disobeyed.

At nightfall the decision had to be made. Which shall it be? Take the path into the depth of the forest in the faint hope of escaping with the child, or leave the child here, sure of remaining alive, but never to see it again?

She stood by the cradle. Mother looking at her sleeping child. Tears dimming her vision. Dim visions swimming through her mind. Hushed sounds filtering through her moving lips. Then the same force that brought her here on the night when the bombs fell, that same blind force came over her again.

She turned sharply and ran out of the room, out through the door, down the garden path, and over across the narrow brook, without once looking back to the farm house hidden in the blossoming bushes of acacia.

Her child is saved. Whatever happens to her now does not matter. No harm will befall the child, and what more can a mother ask?

A sad story for a day of gifts and flowers and rejoicing? Sad indeed. But in it is the greatest tribute to the Mother, to the idea of Mother.

Self sacrifice. Devotion unto death. Source of life. Protector and preserver of life. Love stronger than death. Love defying death.

The story was told to me by one mother who escaped the man-made hell. She told it to me after I explained to her the meaning of Mother's Day. It was her first year here and the wounds were still fresh, and our ways were still strange. She liked the idea of Mother's Day. And as she searched among her memories for a suitable tribute to mothers, she picked up this story of a mother and her child from among the ruins of a world gone mad.

Mother snatching her child from the brink of inferno.

Mother defying all perils for the sake of her child.

Among man turned beast, she is forever Mother.

BOWLING

CRANSTON MEN
 by Phil Chopak

Seymour Kriss' Pirates broke their first-place tie with Joe Potemkin's Yanks when they defeated them 3-1. This important match featured a 332 triple by Ed Feinberg on the winning side and a 325 trio by Harold Warren for the losers. Moe Bernstein's Tigers kept themselves in the running by overrunning the Dodgers 3-1, with Ed Lang pacing the Bengals with 350, while Hy Wasserman posted 319 for the opposition. The White Sox claimed the Senators as victims in another 3-1 series.

High three string scores were rolled by Al Samdperil 351, Ken Sackett 349, Moe Kessler 338, Bill Deitch 328, Wally Shwartz 321, Mike Miller 320, Jack Dreyfus 313, Al Levy 311, Sid Levy 310, Joe Potemkin 315.

Double strikes were rolled by Wally Shwartz in a 127 string, and Sam Flescher, 105. Other high singles were by: Dave Hoffman, 121, Milt Kaufman and Al Cohen 119, Max White 118, Jack Steiner and Bernie Wexler 116, Henry Stampel and Irv Berenbaum 113, Norm Bomzer and Max Levy 112, Ernie Namerow 110, Jerry Fish and Moe Cofman 108.

FINEMAN-TRINKLE
 by Jack Jacobson

Interest is still high in the Fineman-Trinkle Post bowling league as the race in both divisions evidently will have to go down to the wire after this week's results.

Phil Shaulson returned to top form with a 348 total (122-116-110) and ably assisted by Benton Goldblatt (304) and Moe Goldman (305) the Braves took three out of a possible four from the Senators and they now have an outside chance of attaining first place.

Other leading scorers were: Dave Allen, 335; Mort Klibanoff, Reeve Zatlouf and Sam Feldman, 327; Murray Gordon, 323; Harvey Stein and Donald Cohen, 319; Stue Steingold, Phil Feldman and Jack Jacobson, 315; Sid Brown, Chookie White, Morris Factor, Sam Shaver and Gene Silverman, 307; Wally Genser and Hal Levin, 306; Abe Lobel, 304; Nat Agid, 303; Lou Millen, Irving Schaeffer and Danny Saltzman, 301.

First to Win New Cup

Arthur B. Flink helped A-E Pi sweep the honors at Monday night's bowling tourney. His high three mark of 350 won him a leg on the new PFC Bernard J. Trinkel Trophy, placed in competition this year by Benjamin Trinkel. Flink, left, is congratulated by Murray Trinkle, representing his father.

Prizes Awarded at Beth El Banquet

A $50 donation to the Temple Beth El building fund was presented last Sunday night by the Brotherhood bowling league at its annual banquet in the Narragansett Hotel.

The check was accepted by the president of the congregation, Walter I. Sundlun. Trophies won during the year by the league were turned over to Rabbi William G. Braude. The outgoing president of the league, Murray Trinkle, was given a special plaque by Nat Alterman, incoming president, in recognition of his two years of service. Dr. Samuel Pritzker was toastmaster.

After team and individual prizes were presented to the bowlers, movies taken during the season by Milt Weisman were shown.

The list of award winners follows:

Pardon My Glove

By CHARLES W. PINE

(Note—This column was written before Sugar Ray Robinson finally accepted the bout with Joey Maxim. Ed.)

WHETHER OR NOT "Sugar" Ray Robinson and Joey Maxim tangle for the latter's light-heavyweight crown this Summer or Fall was uncertain at this writing. The match has been "on again" and "off again" more times than Jack Britton fought Ted Kid Lewis—and that was at least twenty!

This writer is hoping the match will be made for a number of reasons. For one thing, it offers Robinson the opportunity of being champ of three different weight divisions—no mean feat when you stop to consider that only the immortal Bob Fitzsimons and the latter-day "Hammerin'" Henry Armstrong accomplished it in the annals of boxing.

Secondly, it would pit two of the best boxing fancies in the game against each other. Joey Maxim, it's true, would have trouble breaking eggs for an omelet with his fists, but he's as clever a boxer—especially with his educated left jab—as you'll find around today.

"Sugar" Ray is equally clever and definitely a harder puncher. The latter advantage, however, is offset by the fact that Joey would enter the ring at just a few ounces under 175 pounds, whereas Robinson, a middleweight, would only tip the scales at about 160, and possibly a pound or two less. You can't brush off a weight difference like that with a shrug of your shoulders.

Otherwise, they shape up about the same in height, reach and age. "Sugar" Ray being 32, or two years older than Maxim, the Cleveland "cutey."

Against heavyweights, Maxim hasn't looked particularly good—especially with Ezzard Charles, his long-time nemesis. But in the light heavyweight division, only Archie Moore, Harold Johnson and Harry Matthews would extend him.

Joey admits he's no knockout artist but he has sublime confidence in his left jab and its ability to keep an opponent off balance while, at the same time, it piles up precious points.

We recall being in Maxim's dressing room after the Irish Bob Murphy bout at Madison Square Garden last October when a New York boxing scribe said to him: "Joey, you threw more punches at Murphy than an alley dog has fleas. I thought sure you were going to stop him on a couple occasions."

"Aw," said Maxim deprecatingly, "you know I don't hit people hard enough to knock them out!"

Then he added brightly: "But I sure had that left hand working tonight, didn't I?"

THE EUROPEAN BOXING UNION, in conjunction with the British Boxing Board of Control, will stage its annual meeting in Brussels this month and there's talk that a universal code for regulating world boxing may be adopted.

Invariably, sensible suggestions come out of a EBU meeting. Two years ago the EBU made it mandatory on the part of every European champion to defend his crown against the outstanding challenger, the latter to be determined through an elimination in which Europe's best contenders would be given an opportunity to compete. This put a desirable stop to the hand-picking of opponents for title matches and the result has been a definite improvement in the European crop of champions in the past few years.

Here, in this country, New York's energetic new commissioner, Bob Christenberry, has adopted another EBU ruling—the one pertaining to return bout contracts. In Europe, no champion is permitted to sign a contract for a title defense containing an automatic "return bout" clause in the event of a loss. If the National Boxing Association will follow in the footsteps of the New York board, an international code will be adopted in Brussels this month ending for all time such contracts and "private pacts."

It would be well, too, if interna-

Program Chairman

HAROLD MOSKOL

Rep. Harold Moskol, a board member of the Jewish Family and Children's Service, has been named as program chairman for the twenty-third annual meeting of the agency.

Alter Boyman, president, announced that the meeting will be held at the Jewish Community Center, Tuesday, May 20 at 8 P. M. The program will feature a prominent lay person long identified with the social work field.

Dr. Joseph Smith is chairman of the nominating committee. Assisting will be James Goldman, Max Brodsky, Nathan Temkin and Philip Ostrow, the latter two being community members at large.

This year, in addition to election of officers and board members, the nominating committee has been charged with revising the corporation membership so that it will be expanded to include a broader community representation.

The meeting will be open to the public.

tional agreement could be attained on the scoring of a fight when it ends between rounds. New York says that, when a fight ends between rounds, it goes into the record book as a knockout taking place in the round just ended.

Pennsylvania and many other states list the KO as occurring in the succeeding round. When manager Bill Daly refused to let Lee Savold answer the bell for the seventh round against Rocky Marciano, the Pennsylvania Commission ruled it a seventh round kayo!

A uniform rule, in this connection, would seem quite in order. Here's what the Marquis of Queensberry, the man who wrote the rules that have guided boxing since 1879, had to say on this subject:

"A round consists of three minutes of fighting and a one-minute rest period. Therefore, the rest period belongs to the round terminated. That being the case, if a fight ends between rounds, the official verdict is a knockout for the victor in the round last fought."

Pennsylvania, please note. It seems rather silly to score a fighter as being knocked out in a round that hasn't even begun!

SQUARING THE RING: If an Araujo-Carter lightweight title bout is staged anywhere in New England, it'll be in Providence and not Boston. Dave Egan to the contrary . . . Vince Martinez, the flashy 20-year-old welter from Paterson, N. J., who KO'ed Tony Pellone in the first round last Friday, wasn't even ranked among the first 10 contenders in his class but already he's being bracketed with Billy Graham and Gil Turner as the "next champion" in the welterweight division . . . Jim Norris, the International Boxing Club boss, says that Marciano versus the winner of next month's Walcott-Charles title match should gross more than a million dollars, including TV and radio receipts.

Despite the surprising ease with which he disposed of Vic Cardell, we can't see Ralph Zannelli doing

BOWLING

CRANSTON PLAIDS
by Elayne Chopak

The Indigos are still in first place with a five point lead and with only one more week of bowling left they can't lose. Gloria Cohen's Yellows and Kathleen Miller's Greens are battling it out with only one point separating them.

Fran Rodinsky was top girl for the evening rolling a strike with two spares for a string of 114, and a three string total of 320, the second time she has made that total.

Other high strings were rolled by Bea Sydney 109, Shirley White 107, Dot Alcott 105, Sippy Kessler 103, Norma Baker 102, Kay Jagolinzer 101, Isabel David, Bertha Davis and Lil Silverman 99, Cookie Shwartz 98, Sybil Levinson 96, Florence Cohen 94, Gert Smith 95, Adele Brynes 93, Helen Feinberg and Gert Lang 92, Dot Book-much damage to Kid Gavilan when they fight here in Providence later this month . . . Incidentally, a Gavilan title bout with Gil Turner, the boy from Philly who nosed out our own Georgie Araujo for "rookie of the year" honors in 1951, should make for one of the largest gates of the Summer or Fall season. And a Gavilan-Graham bout in New York City would also draw mighty well at the box office. The "Keed" from Cuba has more financially attractive bouts in the offing than any other fighter in the game today!

High threes were B. Sydney 285, B. Davis 282, L. Silverman 276, D. Alcott, S. Kessler 274.

SUNNYSIDE DEBS

by Estelle Weiner

It looks like a fight to the finish. Muriel Rothstein's team A took four points to bring their total up to 27 but Mimi Rodyn's team B also took four points and they now have a total of 26. It's going to be quite interesting because team A and B bowl each other next week.

E. Weiner hit high three for the evening with a total of 801. Some good scores were as follows: M. Tragar 100, M. Rodyn 96, L. Altman 94, and D. Strashnick 89.

Well, the Kid has gone; and already the fans have shaded their eyes from the brilliance of the sun that was Williams. They talk about Grand-slam Throneberry out in right field, and they have a new, refreshing optimism. Ted contributed only two games to the cause, yet (at this writing) the Sox are in first place. You can't stay mad or sorrowful for long with a setup like that.

The King is dead—Long live the King! That kind of stuff. Life goes on. A man leaves, and before long his absence becomes an accepted fact, as if he never were there in the first place.

Despite the tone of the few paragraphs already written, this is not to be an obituary of Ted Williams. It isn't time for that. Ted will be back. Besides, this column has sided with him and defended him vehemently and consistently, and so no crocodile-ducted farewell need be composed.

I just got the idea that, along with Ted's going, and the recent barrage of criticism of present day players (Williams included), it might be interesting to review the overall record of the Splinter—with a special eye on the three years he already missed while in the Marines during World War II.

There isn't much mention made about it, but actually, Ted Williams should have been a big leaguer a full year before he came up for good in 1939. As a rookie up from San Diego in 1938, he impressed everyone who saw him—a fine hitter who couldn't miss.

His behavior—plus the Red Sox' surplus of slugging power at that time—determined the Boston masterminds to send the Thumper to Minneapolis for another year. That may or may not have been a mistake. The Sox lost to the Yanks by nine and a half games. Ted's inspirational bat might have made a big difference—who knows?

At any rate, Williams—who had

batted only .271 and .291 while impressing Cronin and Collins at San Diego—promptly busted loose at Minneapolis with .366, 142 RBI, 43 homers, 9 triples, 30 doubles, 130 runs scored and 193 hits.

My only point is that some of these figures might have rubbed off on his big league overall record had the Sox kept him around, even if only for part of the season. But that's water over the dam. Just a sidelight.

What comes next is no sidelight. Williams, in his first four years as a Red Sox, hit .327, .344, .406 and .356. He led the entire league in hitting twice, in scoring thrice, in RBI twice, in homers twice, and in walks three times again.

Then came three years away from baseball—but I mean away from baseball. Other ball players got a chance to play almost every day, to keep in shape for their return. Not Williams. He played seldom, and under protest when he did get into uniform.

Three years is a long time—yet he picked up his career with .342, 123 RBI, 38 homers and 142 runs scored.

This, then, is my thesis. What records might the Thumper have achieved had he not run into a war? His overall batting average, now .346, certainly would be in the .350's. No argument about that. Only Cobb and Hornsby among the immortals have beat it.

Ted hit 36 and 37 homers his last two pre-war years and 38 on his return. That figures to roughly 110 homers in the three years he missed, which, added to his 324 as of last week, would put him within hailing range of the astronomical figures compiled by Jimmy Foxx, Mel Ott and Lou Gehrig—leaving Babe Ruth out of the discussion.

Ted left with 1765 hits. Taking the average only of his last two pre-war years would have given him another 555, or over 2300—within a little more than a season's distance from 2500—and how many big leaguers can you name, past or present, who were that good?

Similarly, at the rate he was going, he would have added between 400 and 450 runs scored, for a grand total in excess of 1700. And in runs batted in, he would have had a cool 500 more, for a whopping personal total of 1750 or better.

Just in case that runs batted in figure fails to impress you, Ruth and Gehrig, the all-time champs, only went slightly over the 2,000 mark. Gehrig, of course, was struck down in his prime.

Well, that's my tribute to Ted Williams. Strictly hypothetical, I admit. Mighty impressive, though, for a stubborn guy who refused to try to beat the shift by hitting to left. Not bad, for a guy who they saw held back his team. Even Ty Cobb, who lost only part of one year (along with everybody else) because of another war, couldn't sneer if he looked at this record.

This is the guy who left last week, maybe for good.

Your Gift to All People

In Rhode Island we have hospitals sponsored by Protestants, by Catholics, by most of the larger religious groups. Now, the newest, most modern hospital in our State will be the new Miriam, planned and built by our Jewish people.

As always, we are doing our part — contributing our share for the general good of the community. The new Miriam Hospital will serve all religions — all races — all people.

If you have been thinking of establishing a memorial for your loved ones or making a direct gift to the hospital — please do so now! Your help at this particular time will be especially valuable. It will assure that construction schedules will be maintained — it will mean that the hospital opening will not be delayed.

Remember, your gift to the hospital is a gift to all people.

A memorial in the new Miriam Hospital gives in two ways. It honors your loved ones and it gives necessary additional hospital facilities to the community. Memorial opportunities are still available. For details consult any member of the Memorial Committee.
