Rabbis Urge Jewish War Vets Not To Parade On May 30

NEW YORK (AJP)—Because the first day of shavuoth occurs on Memorial Day, May 30, the Jewish War Veterans have been urged to refrain from their traditional participation in public celebrations and attend religious services instead on that day by the Synagogue Council of America and the New York Board of Rabbis.

In a letter to J.W.V. National Commander Paul Ginsberg, Rabbi Simon G. Kramer of the Synagogue Council and Rabbi Morris M. Goldberg of the New York Board of Rabbis said: "We are aware of the general custom of the Jewish War Veterans to join with their comrades in other veterans' bodies in parades and public exercises. However, such public activities on a festival day are contrary to Jewish religious practice and would offend the religious sensibilities of American Jews."

J.W.V. headquarters in New York made it clear that it had been considering the problem created by the occurrence of Shavuoth and Memorial Day on the same date and that it agreed with the Rabbis that participation in parades would be inconsistent with Jewish religious practice. National Commander Paul Ginsberg, in a letter to J.W.V. posts throughout the country, specifically directed them not to participate in any Memorial Day parades, but rather to observe Shavuoth at synagogue services. J.W.V. posts were also advised to write to the chairmen of their local Memorial Day committees explaining why members could not participate in parades. J.W.V. posts were urged to request that the J.W.V. colors be carried by other veterans in the parade.

Gov. Dennis J. Roberts this week issued a statement of welcome to Israel's Ambassador Abba Eban on behalf of Rhode Island residents, declaring that Mr. Eban

Gov. Roberts "represents the people of Israel with such eloquence and energy that today, he is recognized as one of our most brilliant younger statesmen. It is an honor to extend this welcome to him."

Ambassador Eban will be the guest of honor and main speaker at a dinner at the Ledgemont Country Club Monday evening, May 19, appearing here in support of the Rhode Island State of Israel Bond campaign, headed locally by Benjamin R. Albert, chairman.

Governor Roberts, who will officially receive Ambassador Eban and introduce him at the dinner, also expressed "warmest sympathy for the mission which brings him here—one designed to fortify the economy of a new and friendly nation, which today faces the task of building a thriving, vigorous democracy in the very teeth of adversity, and those especially acute problems rising out of Israel's obligatory policy of unlimited immigration."

Israel more than doubled her population in the first three years of her existence as a free State, and expects to receive 650,000 more within the next three years. To prepare for this mass influx of new-comers, who come from surrounding countries without private resources, the State of Israel has floated a $500,000,000 government Bond issue in the United States, seeking investment funds for a vast program of industrial expansion and a full scale exploitation of natural resources.

Bond leaders here report that dinner reservations have exceeded expectations, and that arrangements are being made to accommodate an overflow attendance. However, reservations are being honored in the order of their receipt, and all who expect to attend are urged to phone the Israel Bond office immediately to secure their table at the dinner.

Archibald Silverman, regional head of the Allied Jewish Appeal, will serve as toastmaster for the Israel Bond dinner honoring the Envoy.

JWV Convention Sunday, May 25

Members of the R. I. Department of Jewish War Veterans will gather at the Narragansett Hotel on Sunday, May 25 to hold their seventh annual convention.

The one-day conclave will be highlighted by an address by Paul Ginsberg, national commander of the JWV, who recently returned from a trip around the world, including a visit to the front lines in Korea.

Beginning with registration and breakfast at 9 A. M., the convention will be concluded with a dinner and dance in the Hotel's Indian Room, starting at 6:30 P. M. Ginsberg will be guest of honor and officers elected during the afternoon session will be installed.

Pay Pledges Now, GJC Urges City

Sparked by a rally of volunteer solicitors last night, the "Cash Week" collection campaign of the General Jewish Committee of Providence was ready for its community-wide debut this weekend. The special drive to translate unpaid GJC pledges into needed cash for Israel's emergency needs will extend from Sunday, May 18 to Sunday, May 25.

Similar campaigns are being undertaken in major communities throughout the nation to speed the flow of cash to the United Jewish Appeal—the primary source of funds used to finance rescue and relief projects for hundreds of thousands of distressed Jews overseas.

Sydney A. Kane, chairman of the local "Cash Week" campaign, today urged 1951 GJC contributors to "turn your pledge into cash now. Don't wait for the solicitor to contact your home or business.

Every day saved can well mean the saving of many lives."

Kane pointed out that the drive for cash funds is "the answer to the desperate calls for help from uprooted Jewish men, women and children — and from a young democratic state which richly merits our support."

He said cards were distributed last night to members of his committee at a rally at GJC headquarters in the Strand Building where a running daily total will be maintained of all pledges redeemed in cash during the week of May 18-25.

On Friday, May 23, a special report luncheon for "Cash Week" workers will be held at campaign headquarters at 12 noon.

"GJC collections are always excellent," Kane disclosed, "and before our 1952 UJA campaign opens this Fall, the overwhelming majorities of all pledges will have been converted into cash.

"However, because of the critical food and housing situation this very moment confronting Israel and thousands of the 600,000 immigrants who have been absorbed into the new Jewish homeland, we are asking for pledge payments now—during our 'Cash Week' drive."

Joseph Galkin, GJC executive director, said today that pledges paid by mail or in person at the Strand Building headquarters within the next few days "will lighten the load of our volunteer solicitors and enable them to make a maximum number of calls during May 18-25."

Scores Bonn Failure to Meet Jewish Claims

NEW YORK (AJP)—Strong dissent from the view that there is merit in the German argument which seeks to cast doubt on the ability of the Bonn Government to pay Israel's claims because of other demands by foreign creditors is expressed by Howard M. LeSourd, Boston University dean of the School of Public Relations and Communications.

In a letter to the N. Y. Times, this week, Dean LeSourd said: "To this writer it seems that West Germany is using the London debts conference as an excuse to bargain with the Hague negotiators, because there is no substance to the claim of Germany's inability to meet the Israeli demand immediately and in full."

Citing statistics of German industrial prosperity issued by the Office of the U. S. High Commissioner for Germany, Dean LeSourd pointed to the fact that Israel's trade balance is "shockingly adverse" because she has admitted so many survivors of Hitlerism, and concluded: "Is the Adenauer Government defaulting on Dr. Adenauer's pledge to bring about the solution of the material reparations problem in order to facilitate the way to a spiritual purging of unheard-of suffering?"

Rothschild Sues German for Horse

BRUSSELS—An unusual action for the recovery of property will be brought in the Belgian courts by Baron Maurice de Rothschild against Max Teuscher, a German sportsman, whose entry, Eriekind, won the Easter Race here and a purse of 800 pounds. Baron de Rothschild obtained a writ against the German and seeks delivery of the horse, valued at 5,000 pounds, on the grounds that it is the daughter of a horse stolen from him when the Nazi's overran France and seized his entire stable. The American occupation authorities restored the stolen horses to Baron de Rothschild in 1946.

Yeshivah Faces Closure In N. Y.

NEW YORK—The Yeshivah Torah Vodaath, largest Orthodox Jewish theological seminary in the United States, which has been in existence for 38 years and has more than 1,500 students, is facing closure because of a $324,827 deficit.

Rabbi Bernard D. Marton, executive vice-president of the institution, revealed that the seminary is so hard pressed for funds that meat has been taken off the students' menus. The 104 members of the staff have not received wages for 13 weeks, Rabbi Marton said.

EXECUTIVE CHAMBER
PROVIDENCE

DENNIS J. ROBERTS
GOVERNOR

May 9, 1952

Dear Sir:

I am most happy to welcome to Rhode Island His Excellency Abba Eban, Israel's Ambassador to the United States, on the occasion of his visit to Providence Monday, May 19, when a dinner in his honor will be held at the Ledgemont Country Club.

Mr. Eban represents the people of Israel with such eloquence and energy that, today, he is recognized as one of our most brilliant younger statesmen. It is an honor to extend this welcome to him.

May I, also, express my warmest sympathy for the mission which brings him here -- one designed to fortify the economy of a thriving, vigorous democracy, growing in the very teeth of adversity and the acute problems rising out of Israel's obligatory and humane policy of unlimited immigration.

Sincerely yours,

Dennis J. Roberts

Washington's Scrutiny

A recent Congressional assault in Washington against Israel is the answer to those American Jews who have been maintaining that the US attitude toward the new state is friendly and sympathetic.

During hearings of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, four senators joined hands in questioning Israel's ambitions and in charging that the Truman Administration was "loaded" against the Arab League. Senators J. W. Fulbright, of Arkansas, Theodore F. Green, of Rhode Island, Alexander Wiley, of Wisconsin, and H. Alexander Smith, of New Jersey, demanded to know why the Mutual Security Administration had allocated assistance funds to Israel in such heavy proportion as compared with monies set aside for the Arab states.

The tone of their inquiry seemed innocent on the face of it. The venerable senators would have had observers believe that their concern for the Moslem lands stemmed from a sense of fair play. But their sharp distaste for the infant democracy apparently defeated their intentions and came to the fore. Senator Fulbright by innuendo charged Israel with aggressive aims when he expressed doubt that monies allocated it would be used for purposes of economic and industrial development.

Senator Smith wept bitterly over Arab refugees who were "kicked out" and begged to be informed why the United States insisted upon raising the standard of living in Israel above that of surrounding countries, even as Senator Green demanded to know if America "acquiesced in the expulsion of the Arabs."

Thus, the willingness of our legislators to support retrograde nations while sacrificing the democratic ambitions of the Near East continues to be emphasized. Arab sympathies in the American Senate are not Arab sympathies as such. They continue to represent the tacit acceptance of everything that is ancient and inhuman, instead. When these noble gentlemen speak of excessive allocations in the face of per capita proportion, they are concerned with the continuation of ancient Moslem feudalism. When they fear for the growth of Israel's standard of living, they fear for the poverty-stricken Arab's jealousy and wrath.

Let these blind men turn to their own gardens. Let them awaken to the fact that their own economic and social status stand challenged, as well, by millions of indigent Moslems. The geographic nearness of Israel to Arab lands as opposed to the "distance" from affluence here has long since ceased being a safety factor. Let them realize that the new Jewish state's ambitions are but the hopeful expressions of American reality not only for itself but for the Arab League at large.

"One Man's Opinion"

Stage, Radio, and Television

BY BERYL SEGAL

1. On Stage.

Several weeks ago this column cried out against a show that hit Boston after a long run in New York. We said, in effect, that this thing called Bagels and Yor is a sham and an abomination to Yiddish art.

Many people were indignant over these remarks. Too many people, in fact. Much more than we suspected. That was even worse than the show itself. If this is the case, we said to ourselves, if the day has come when Bagels and Yor can be passed off for Yiddish theatre art, then we might as well put on sack cloth, cover our heads with ashes, and mourn the passing of the Yiddish theater.

Fortunately for Yiddish and for the Yiddish theater, we were eye and ear witnesses last Sunday to a performance that restored our faith in the tastes of the Yiddish speaking public, and gave the lie to the Bagels and Yor crowd.

The Yiddish theatre is not dead. The Yiddish speaking audiences still want good acting, good singing, good performances by artists who have respect for the theatre and for the language.

More than 2000 people filled the Veterans Memorial Auditorium and enjoyed tremendously a three hour long program of song and humor presented in good taste by stars of the Yiddish theater. It was a most responsive audience, applauding generously, and yet a better-behaved audience one could never wish for at any show.

Frankly, it was an audience hungry for a good Yiddish show, and the artists were not disappointing.

Michel Rosenberg can be a humorist in the best tradition when he wants to. He is tempted to be a comedian, as in the Ball Game and in the Shepsel Kanarick pieces. But then he is not himself. He has to resort to a goatee and other trappings of the comedian to be funny. He really does not need it. He is at his humorous best when he stands before the microphone, in street clothes, just chatting away of nothing in particular.

This, in essence, is the mark of the humorist. He does not chase after external effects. He finds the ridiculous and the humorous in ordinary, every-day things. Mr. Rosenberg is very effective in his anecdotes of people, just plain people, of New York's East Side and of Miami's sea shore. He ought to do more of that.

Praydele Oysher brought to her songs the majesty of the cantors' chanting plus her own feminine charm. The effect was most pleasing. She held the audience under her spell. The reverence of a synagogue during high holidays hovered over the auditorium while she sang the classic "Habet Mishomayim" and "Aylu Hadvortim Sh'aynu Lohem Shiur."

With gems like these, why, in the name of God, do Yiddish singers chase after Hit Parade stuff?

Seymour Rechtzeit must do very well with his recordings of top tunes made over into Yiddish. But with his fine voice and pleasant manner as an M. C. he really would do just as well by singing original Yiddish lyrics and ballads.

The fact that the girl in "Never Been Kissed" is in that predicament because she puts too much garlic in her food does not justify the singing of this hit song in Yiddish. Goodness knows we hear it every day, and this was not what we were waiting for in this Yiddish Revue. The same applies to "Enjoy Yourself" and all the other hit parade songs which Mr. Rechtzeit insists on Yiddishizing.

His wife, Miss Miriam Kressyn, is doing very well with Yiddish folk tunes and songs of modern composers. Miss Kressyn has a lovely voice and fine dramatic talent. She combines the two with great effect in such sensitive songs as "The Sands of the Negev" and the touching "Old Melody." Her interpretations of the Jewish folk song are wonderful.

The program, as you can see, was top heavy with singers. Some of the numbers could easily be omitted, and in their place included a short one-act playlet. That would round out the All-Star Yiddish Revue, and make of it a most powerful answer of the better Yiddish theater to the Bagels and Yor boys.

2. On T. V.

Once there was a Day of Sabbath.

And when that day came at the end of six days of toil, the whole world changed. The skies were of a fairer hue, the air was of a transparent purity, and the faces of men took on a mystic serenity. Only the dull of heart and the blunt in soul failed to sense the magic of the Sabbath as it descended upon earth with the setting of the sun, at eventide on Friday.

But something happened to that Day of Sabbath. Rather something happened to us, within us. We no longer thrill in body and soul to the Sanctity of the day. We have lost the sense of the holy and the awesome. The wings of Sabbath do not vibrate in our ears, and the peace that comes with the Sabbath does not bring us solace.

It is a great paradox in Jewish life. We cling to a great many unessential things, which we in all seriousness take to be fundamental in the Jewish creed. But we utterly discard most basic tenets of our faith.

Sabbath, the observance of the Sabbath, is basic for Jews. This day alone, of all the festivals and holidays, is singled out in the Ten Commandments. "Remember the Day of Sabbath to keep it Holy" is the fourth of the ten fundamental laws of the Jewish creed.

How did it happen that the Sabbath was so lightly brushed aside, while we persist in keeping so many minor—some even outright superstitious trivialities—in our observances? That is one of the inconsistencies of our life here.

The Sabbath that was, and the Sabbath that ought to be, will be televised by Rabbi Morris Schussheim of Temple Beth Israel, on next Sunday's Jewish half hour, on WJAR-TV. This is the third in the Sunday morning telecasts of Jewish content.

In song, narrative, and art the Rabbi will bring before our eyes the charm of the traditional Sabbath day. It is more than a day of rest from work. One can take a day off from his work any day, and yet not feel the ecstasy of Sabbath. This is so because Sabbath is a symbol, a concept, a key to the mystery of life.

Sabbath the day of serenity. Sabbath the day of meditation. Sabbath the day of communion with your fellow men. Sabbath the day which brings light and warmth to the home. Sabbath the day that refreshes your soul.

These are the things Rabbi Schussheim is creating for us in his half hour program dedicated to the Day of Sabbath.

the week-day mornings which she does not like to miss.

One of those musts is Rabbi Braude's Monday morning quarter hour over WJAR-TV, at 10:45.

Mrs. M. tells me that in all her years of listening to sermons and lectures on religious education, she has not come across as clear and logically acceptable an explanation of the Ten Commandments as the one given by Rabbi Braude the other Monday.

Mrs. F., a teacher in a Jewish Sunday School, wishes that the Rabbi spoke more than 15 minutes. She has been plagued with this business of sacrificial offerings which the ancient Hebrews were bringing to the altar of the Temple. Her classes at school tormented her with wanting to know what is the sense in all this burning of animal and fowl.

In his current comments of the Book of Leviticus, Rabbi Braude dwells on this very subject, the offering of sacrifices. These comments are an eye opener to her, she says.

All of which goes to show you that people will pause in their daily chores to listen to a program other than soap opera.

The educational and guidance possibilities of Radio and TV are limitless. The Saturday evening "Ask the Rabbi" radio program and the Monday morning "The Book We Live By" telecast—neither of them of the kind that can be called entertaining—do nevertheless attract a large audience. It is an interfaith audience, and who is to measure the amount of mutual understanding these two programs bring about?

Poet's Corner

Nine Year Old's Problems

We must go to bed at eight,
In the morning we mustn't be late,
For school is important,
The grown-ups always say.
Why don't they go, then,
And let us have our way?

It's brush your hair,
And wash your face,
And did you clean your nails?
Are all your clothes in place?

I wish I was married,
I'd have so much fun,
Going to dances,
Staying up late,
And visiting every one.

Dear Editor,
My name is Helen Ann Kortick, and I live at 47 Croylard Road. Here is a little poem that I made up about Brownies.

A Brownie can swim,
A Brownie can dive in pools.
The Brownies work on projects,
In their clubs and schools.

Dear Helen Ann,
This is a very nice little poem. Would you tell us what project you are working on now at your club?

To Mother Dear

To Mother dear, so nice and sweet,
To one who made my life a treat,
To a mother who is beyond compare,
With pretty eyes and dark brown hair.

To Mother with a voice so soft,
A voice so soft and sweet,
A Mother who can cook so good,
Her cooking no one else can beat.

To Mother dear I love so much,
And always long to be near.
There is no one else in all the world,
Like Mother, Mother, Mother dear.

On May 14, 1948, the State of Israel was added to the free family of nations.

Now this young state is celebrating its fourth birthday. The first four years have been difficult years. Wars, famine, internal unrest have added to the difficulties of building a new land out of ruins and neglect of centuries.

But the price of independence is always high for any nation. The United States of America, too, had to pay dearly for their independence.

Israel will see the day when all the wounds will be healed, and the tears will give way to songs of rejoicing.

In the meantime Israel took time out to look at the record of the first four years, and it was a good record.

In 1948 the population of Israel was 700,000. Today more than one and a half million souls live in the land of Israel.

Every one who lands on the soil of Israel with the idea of settling there becomes a citizen of Israel immediately. Such new citizens came to Israel since Independence Day from all the corners of the earth, and their number is close to 800,000 souls. That amounts to 200,000 newcomers each year, an enormous number for a small land like Israel. These newcomers came empty handed. The state had to provide them with food, clothing, and shelter, and also create jobs for them.

But Israel did all this, and will continue to do it as long as Jews come to make their homes in the new land.

Today Israel is facing many shortages. There is the shortage of food. A glass of milk is a delicacy to a child in Israel.

There is a shortage of building materials. About 200,000 men, women and children still live in tents and huts because there is no steel and lumber to build homes.

Israel is short of dollars. Food, machines, and materials can be bought in America. But Israel has to pay for these goods with American dollars.

And that is where you and I and your parents come in. We who live in America can help Israel by buying bonds. The bonds will bring to Israel the needed dollars, and to the people of Israel it will mean a chance to work and to create.

The people of Israel give their strength, their talents, their very lives to the rebuilding of the land. Shouldn't we be willing to give some of our dollars?

Are you in Junior High school now?

Do you go to Hope High next year?

If so, you will be interested to know that you can take Hebrew as one of your foreign languages at Hope High.

When making out your schedule of courses for Hope, ask your guidance teacher about the Hebrew course.

You get full credit for Hebrew, the same as for other foreign languages, and these credits are accepted for College entrance requirements.

The Hebrew they teach in High Schools is the modern tongue as it is spoken in Israel. It also includes the geography, the natural resources, the government, and the culture of Israel.

You will enjoy the course.

How does telephone building help Rhode Island?

The Telephone Company spends millions of dollars each year on new construction here in Rhode Island — on new buildings, large and small, and additions to existing ones — on poles, wires, central office equipment.

Since 1946 over $37,000,000 has been spent on this essential program of expansion and improvement — during 1952 we plan to spend $6,000,000 more.

Telephone Money Helps Everyone In Rhode Island

Most of this money stays in Rhode Island. It goes to pay masons, bricklayers, carpenters, electricians, painters, laborers who live in this State. It helps them buy shoes and food, pay rent and go to the movies. It buys gasoline for their cars and heat for their homes.

Of course, the Telephone Company actually spends this huge sum of money to be sure Rhode Island gets the very best telephone service possible. But by spending the money in Rhode Island and for Rhode Island, it contributes to Rhode Island's progress and prosperity.

Your telephone — Big in Value — Little in Cost.

With plans completed for the 20th annual bowling banquet, to be held at Lindsey's on June 4 with a ball game to follow, the bowlers got down to business to complete the season with only two weeks remaining.

Three men, and possibly four, are fighting hard to take over top spot in individual scoring, Nat Chaiken out in front by a slim lead over Buzzie Labush and Herbie Wagner with Jack Smith having an outside chance.

SYD COHEN:

Bowling Windup
Softball Openers

A long and eventful bowling season is in the record books, tournaments and all. But as far as this column is concerned, the books cannot be closed until one more tale is told. It is a story that should bring at least a few chuckles. It did considerably better than that at the meeting of bowling representatives in the Herald office, when Ed Lang, the live-wire representative of the Cranston League, told it on himself.

It seems that before coming to Rhode Island about 13 years ago, Lang was bowling regularly in New York. Now the size of the balls used on the alleys was the same as here, but the pins were "rubber bellies" and very easy to knock over.

So easy, as a matter of fact, that each kegler had only two shots per box, instead of three as is the practice here, and a good man like Ed Lang could average around 130 per string.

Along comes Ed to Providence, meets some of the boys and expresses interest in bowling. Naturally, he was asked what he bowled, and he nonchalantly—and honestly—said 130.

The boys raised their brows, looked at each other knowingly, and decided to have some sport at the newcomer's expense. They led the unsuspecting victim to their favorite alleys, wagering in advance that he would do well to hit 100.

Lang, not knowing that the pins here do not have the rubber band around the middle, made a gracious, but classic remark: "I don't want to take your money."

And when Jack Applebaum and Hy Jacobson, ringleaders of the plot, imbued with a spirit of generosity, offered to let him use three balls per box instead of two, poor Ed asked: "What is the third ball for?"

Lang took a look at the pins at the decisive end of the alleys and wondered what kind of pins were these. He still suspected nothing. Then he wound up and let fly—right down the middle, and then waited to see all ten pins go flying as they did in New York on a shot like that.

But all the pins did not fall. All he achieved was a split. And by now he realized that he was going to encounter a little difficulty in rolling in the neighborhood of 130.

Not only was he in the wrong neighborhood—he even had the wrong village! His final score was 88.

In this manner did Ed Lang join the bowling fraternity of Rhode Island.

Softball Opener

The Jewish Softball League inaugurates its fifth season this Sunday, with six teams going into action in Providence and Cranston. The lineups have been somewhat shuffled since last year, and two clubs have been dropped, but a new year is still a new year, and anything can happen—and, of course, probably will.

Here's Sunday's schedule, in case you plan to get out and take in a doubleheader.

Technoprint vs M & F Insurance at Hopkins Park; Natcor vs Waldorf at Sessions Street; Broadway Auto vs Cranston Jewish Center at Richardson Park. All first games will start at 9:30 A. M.

Rain washed out the entire opening day schedule last Sunday, spoiling the plans of the new Cranston club, which had planned some opening day ceremonies to celebrate its advent into the league.

New names and old make up the teams. Technoprint returns after one year's absence while its owner served as commissioner of the league. Technoprint is built around Howie Cohen, Ralph Winn, the Karembeles brothers, Hilton Rifkin, Hilton Bader, to name a few. Cranston's roster includes Lefty Bernie Davidson, the pitcher who has led several teams to Softball League pennants; Harold Warren, Warren Foster and Erwin Summer, all of whom played for different clubs in 1951.

Waldorf Tuxedo, defending champions, will line up with Joyce and Tetreault to offset the loss of Davidson to Cranston and Billy DelVecchio to Canadian baseball. The rest of the club remains the same. Broadway Auto has added power-hitting Gene Silverman, center-fielder Irv Kaplan and Paul Paris to the normal complement of the Goldis brothers and company.

M & F Insurance is the well-known Comets outfit, and Natcor is back intact for its sophomore year in the league.

Team rosters are not available as this is written, so we cannot mention all the names that have become hallmarks during the league's history. If all clubs will submit their rosters to this corner, however, we will try to print them within the next few weeks. After all, you can't tell the players without a program.

TRUMPENDOR CHAPTER

Plans were made at a recent meeting of Joseph Trumpendor Chapter of Hahonim for a June 15 picnic at Goddard Park. Two other Hahonim groups will participate. The first meeting of the bowling league was held at the New York Bowling Alleys. Seventeen attended.
