Rhode Island Refugee Service To Merge With JFCS

Finkle Gets B'nai B'rith Top Post

Joseph M. Finkle, prominent nationally in the affairs of B'nai B'rith and its Anti-Defamation League, and active in local communal affairs, was elected to the key post of third vice-president of District Number One, Grand Lodge, B'nai B'rith, at its centennial convention Tuesday at the Concord Hotel, Kiamasha Lake, New York.

Finkle is the first Rhode Islander ever to be so honored. The post carries automatic promotion to the presidency.

More than 1500 delegates, representing B'nai B'rith Lodges and Chapters from New England, New York State and Eastern Canada, attended the convention of America's largest Jewish service organization, which sponsors the Hillel Foundations at American universities and colleges and the Anti-Defamation League.

Finkle is a member of the R. I. Commission Against Discrimination; past president of Roger Williams Lodge, B'nai B'rith; vice-chairman of the N. E. Regional Board of ADL; member of the board of trustees and executive committee of Miriam Hospital; and a member of the boards of trustees of Camp Jori and the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

JOSEPH M. FINKLE

He is president of the Joseph Maxfield Co., local advertising agency.

Also elected at the convention were Leonard H. Finder, former publisher of the Manchester Union-Leader, president; Samuel Markle, New York attorney, first vice-president, and Judge David A. Rose of Boston, second vice-president.

GJC Names Director of Jewish Education Bureau

Appointment of Rabbi George Ende of New York City as executive director of the coordinating Bureau of Jewish Education recommended by the recently completed survey of educational facilities in Providence was announced by the General Jewish Committee of Providence this week.

Rabbi Ende, who presently is a special consultant to the Jewish Educational Committee of New York, will assume his new duties on Sept. 1. He will be in Providence next month, however, for preliminary conferences with local rabbis and educators, at which time the possibility of uniform school registration dates this Fall will be discussed.

In essence, the new Bureau of Jewish Education will act as a service and coordinating agency for all local schools—Hebrew weekday afternoon, Sunday schools and all-day schools on three levels: administrative, educational and consultative.

Fact-finding committees of the survey, sponsored by the GJC, were unanimous in pointing to the "absolute necessity for strengthening the system of Jewish education in Providence, coordinating its activities and raising its standards." They strongly recommended establishment of a bureau or "central agency" to carry out these objectives.

Born in Brooklyn, New York, Rabbi Ende received his B.A. from Long Island University in 1932 and his teacher's certificate the following year from City College of New York. He later took graduate courses at Yale University and studied at Yeshiva Rabbi Chaim Berlin and other Jewish schools.

He was ordained as a rabbi and received the degree of M. H. L. from the Jewish Institute of Religion in 1942, and was awarded a Guggenheimer fellowship upon his ordination.

He spent two years as an elementary school teacher in Tel Aviv, Palestine, and 10 years as a teacher in Hebrew schools of New York City and New Haven, Conn.

His selection as director of the local Jewish educational bureau was made by the survey's planning committee, headed by Joseph W. Ress. The committee, which canvassed numerous possibilities for

JWV Head Says Nazism Still Lives

Russia, not North Korea or China, is our enemy in the Korean conflict, Paul Ginsberg, national commander of the Jewish War Veterans, told delegates of the seventh annual convention of the Department of Rhode Island, Jewish War Veterans, at the Narragansett Hotel Sunday.

Recently returned from a world tour, during which he spoke with government and military leaders of several nations, Ginsberg warned that Russia has been building its armed might since the end of World War II, while the United States has been dissolving its armies.

Elliot F. Slack was elected department commander at the business session and heads a slate including Sidney Feldman of Pawtucket, senior vice-commander; Philip Rosenfeld, junior vice-commander; Leonard Levin, quartermaster; Robert Greene, judge advocate; Arthur Rosen, representative to the Veterans Council, and Herman Braff of Pawtucket, appointed to his fourth consecutive term as public relations officer.

Commander Ginsberg also declared against the re-arming of Germany, since, he explained, Nazism is still alive and anti-American feeling runs high in several sections of Germany.

To Be Completed By End of 1952

As a result of community planning, an agreement to merge the functions of two well-known local social service agencies—the Rhode Island Refugee Service and the Jewish Family and Children's Service—crystallized this week with announcement that the RIRS would establish its offices in the quarters of the latter organization, effective June 1.

Joint offices of the two agencies will be on the fourth floor of the Community Fund Building at 100 North Main Street.

The merger is expected to be fully completed by the end of this year.

In the interim, there will be a gradual transfer of cases to the staff of the JF&CS, headed by Nathan Sklar, director.

This newest development in community planning was announced jointly by Alvin A. Sopkin, president of the General Jewish Committee of Providence; Meyer Tenenbaum, RIRS president, and Alter Boyman, president of the JF&CS.

Mrs. Esther Pritsker and Mrs. Mary Binder, now on the staff of the RIRS, will continue in their present capacities until at least Dec. 31, 1952.

Meanwhile, all costs in connection with the RIRS's activities will continue to be paid by the GJC—which, with some supplementary aid from the Providence Section of the National Council of Jewish Women, has been the sole support of the refugee service agency for the past several years.

Initiated by RIRS

Proposals for the merger were initiated by the RIRS. Implementation of a timetable providing for a gradual merger of its work with that of the JF&CS stems from discussions among the two agencies and the GJC.

Behind the decision was the termination of the Displaced Persons Commission last Dec. 31 and the definite likelihood that both the flow of refugees coming to this country and the consequent number of families to be resettled in the greater Providence area would show a marked decrease.

For the past 13 years the RIRS has been operating as a separate agency with its own officers, staff and directorate at 127 North Main Street. During that period, it took complete charge of the resettlement program in this community for Jewish refugees.

The statement announcing details of the merger pointed out that the RIRS will retain its autonomy until Dec. 31, 1952—by which time its activities are expected to have been completely absorbed by the JF&CS.

Approved by Council

The merger proposal, before being made public, was submitted to the Providence Council of Community Services. The Council wholeheartedly endorsed the move.

This action was taken because the merger involves the addition of a new Community service for the JF&CS, a member agency of both the Council and the Providence Community Fund.

It was emphasized that there will be no cost to the Community Fund as a result of the coalition of agency functions—and that all expenses will continue to be defrayed by the General Jewish Committee.

The three agency presidents involved declared in a joint statement: "The fine cooperative spirit (Continued on Page 3)

BV Council to Elect Hyman Cokin

Hyman Cokin will be elected president of the Blackstone Valley Jewish Community Council at the organization's annual meeting on Wednesday, June 11 in the vestry of Ohave Shalom Synagogue. The meeting will start at 8:15 P. M.

Other new officers whose names will be submitted by the Nominating Committee are Morris Espo, honorary president; Alex Rumppler, Herbert Pansy and William Goldberg, vice-presidents; Philip Hak, financial secretary; Max Alperin, treasurer; Ben Sinel, auditor, and Mary Friedman, recording secretary.

The following are slated for election to the Board of Directors: Rabbi Aaron Goldin, Harry Goldberg, Mrs. Eli Levin, Marvin Rumppler, Mrs. Ida Wittner, Julius Robinson, Ann Smith, Sam Shlevin, Joseph Kurtz, David Cherkack, Abe Barnett, Sam Cokin, Irving Espo, Saul Young and Louis Feldman.

Committee reports and a review of the past year's activities will be rendered.

Bakers to Negotiate, Strike Called Off

The labor dispute between the Hebrew Bakers Union, Local 122, and the Jewish Master Bakers has been called off, Abraham Rubin, financial secretary of the Local, announced Tuesday. Rubin said that all parties concerned "have agreed to negotiate a new agreement."

$21,000 Raised

During "C-Week"

Cash in excess of $21,000 was raised during the General Jewish Committee's novel "C-Week" campaign which formally ended last Sunday.

Purpose of the drive, which opened May 18, was to convert 1951 GJC pledges into cash in reply to a plea from the United Jewish Appeal, the GJC's prime beneficiary, for emergency cash funds for current relief and resettlement activities in Israel.

Sydney A. Kane, chairman of a corps of veteran GJC solicitors who responded to the UJA's appeal, expressed gratification this week with the drive's results. He said the money raised would be forwarded at once to UJA headquarters in New York for prompt transmittal to the Jewish homeland. Kane indicated that some members of his committee intended to follow up on remaining cards in their possession.

Kane said that additional cash redemptions of 1951 pledges would be welcomed at GJC headquarters at 203 Strand Bldg. He disclosed that the GJC was hopeful of forwarding supplementary funds to the UJA as soon as collections justify such a move.

JWV Passes Up Holiday Parades

Jewish War Veterans of Rhode Island will not march in Memorial Day parades today; nor will they attend memorial services in cemeteries, Elliot F. Slack, R. I. Department Commander, announced early this week.

The decision not to have the JWV represented in the traditional Memorial Day exercises stemmed from a request made by the Synagogue Council of America and the New York Board of Rabbis, asking that Jewish veterans instead observe the Shevuoth holiday, which falls on the same day.

JWV Memorial Day services will be conducted on Sunday, June 8, Slack said.

JCRS AUXILIARY MEETS
The final meeting of the season of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief

Society will be held at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel Tuesday at 1 P. M. A short business meeting will be followed by a free card party. Dessert and coffee will be served. Mrs. David L. Cohen and Mrs. Wallace Serge are co-chairmen.

100,000 IMMIGRANTS
More than 100,000 new immigrants came to Israel in the last 12 months, it was announced by the Jewish Agency.

Obituary

ABRAHAM MITTLEMAN

Funeral services for Abraham Mittleman, 46, husband of Helen (May) Mittleman, who died suddenly early this week, were held at the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Mittleman, a druggist, lived at 9 Sheffield Avenue, North Providence. He was a son of Mrs. Minnie Mittleman and the late Harry Mittleman.

Besides his wife and mother, survivors are a brother, Sidney Mittleman, and three sisters, Mrs. Frances Bromberg, Mrs. Ann Brookner and Mrs. Beatrice Venet-sky, all of Providence.

LOUIS SIMANSKY

Funeral services for Louis Simansky, 75, who died in Worcester, Mass., were held Tuesday at the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

The widower of Charlotte Gamson Simansky, he had lived in Providence until two and a half years ago.

He was a member of What Cheer Lodge 183, IOBS and was a founder of the YMHA in Fall River.

Survivors include a daughter, Mrs. Leon Greenberg of Worcester; two sisters, Mrs. Rachel Shapiro of New Bedford and Mrs. Annie Bloomfield of St. Catherine's, Canada, and one grandchild.

MRS. ANNA ELLINS

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna (Gilman) Ellins, 75, widow of Abraham Ellins, who died May 22 at the Jewish Home for the Aged, were held early this week in Springfield, Mass. Burial was in Springfield.

Born in Russia, she had been a resident of Providence for 10 years, having lived previously in Springfield.

She is survived by four daughters, Mrs. Abraham Bauman and Mrs. Samuel Hurwitz, both of Providence; Mrs. Michael Broverman of Pittsfield, and Mrs. Morris Drucker of Miami; two sons, Samuel and Max Ellins, both of Miami; 22 grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

SAMUEL WALDMAN

Funeral services for Samuel Waldman, former owner of the Waldman Mfg. Co. on Blackstone Street, who died early this week after a long illness, were held at the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Waldman, who had previously resided on Whitmarsh Street, was the widower of Jennie (Smira) Waldman. Before his retirement, around 1948, he had been in the textile machinery business for 20 years. He had manufactured electric cords and began his business career in cotton yarns.

He was a member of the South Providence Hebrew Congregation and Temple Beth Israel.

Survivors include a son, Edmund Waldman of Providence; three daughters, Mrs. Mildred Gurwitz of Cranston, Mrs. Dorothy Dannin of Newport and Mrs. Ruth Horvitz of Pawtucket; seven grandchildren and several sisters in Boston.

MRS. ANNA DIMBERG

Funeral services for Mrs. Anna (Whiteman) Dimberg, 68, wife of Jacob Dimberg of 33 Jenks Street, Central Falls, who died May 21 after a long illness, were held from her home on May 23 with Rabbi Aaron Goldin officiating. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Born in Russia, she came to this country and settled in Central Falls in 1909.

She was a member of Ohawe Sholom Synagogue, a life member of the Jewish Home for the Aged and a charter member of the Ladies Aid, the Ohawe Sholom Sisterhood and the Pawtucket Chapter of Hadassah.

Besides her husband, she leaves several nieces and nephews.

MRS. BESSIE PEPPER

Mrs. Bessie Pepper of New York, who died after a long illness, was buried in Long Island Cemetery, Long Island, N. Y.

Mrs. Pepper, who arrived 24 years ago from Austria and made her first home here with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Pepper of 20 St. James Street, had lived in New York for the last 20 years.

Besides her daughter, survivors include four children, 12 grandchildren and 14 great grandchildren.

Planning Committee For Aged to Meet

Aaron Roitman, chairman of the GJC's Planning Committee for the Aged, has called a meeting of that group for Thursday evening, June 5, at the Jewish Home for the Aged on Hillside Avenue. Max Alexander, the Home's executive director, will report on the work of the Governor's Commission to Study Problems of the Aged, Roitman noted.

Among other items on the meeting's agenda will be discussion of a coordinated health plan for the community's aged people.

"You will be interested to know that, as a result of work initiated by our group, the Golden Age Club at the Jewish Community Center is meeting with a very excellent response. This project is being carried out by the JCC with the cooperation of the Providence Section of the National Council of Jewish Women," Roitman stated in the meeting notice.

Roitman urged a full attendance, pointed out that the meeting was the last scheduled before the Summer months.

Extend Children's Art Class at JCC

The Children's Art Class at the Jewish Community Center, which meets on Sundays from 2-4 P. M., has scheduled three more sessions, it was announced this week. The class, which is conducted by Ben Weiss, local painter who directs the JCC art program, is open without charge to children of Center members.

Children who join the group will have the opportunity to utilize various art media, such as chalk, oil paintings, water colors and sculpture.

Brodsky Re-elected By Beth Israel

Irving Brodsky, Providence attorney, was re-elected president of Temple Beth Israel at the 31st annual congregational meeting held last Sunday in the temple vestry.

Other officers re-elected are Charles G. Greenstein, first vice-president; Marshall B. Marcus, second vice-president; Irving I. Coken, treasurer; Aaron Bromson, financial secretary; and Walter Chucnin, recording secretary.

The meeting, with election and installation of the new board of trustees, was preceded by a supper for temple members as guests of the board of trustees. Rabbi Morris Schussheim installed the new board.

Benjamin Elman, chairman of the building committee, presented tentative plans for a new temple structure to face Atlantic Avenue. Meanwhile, plans were discussed for the complete renovation of the existing temple, with a new vestry and new classrooms.

the post, is composed of Max Berman, Alter Boyman, Benjamin Brier, Paul Chernov, Max Winograd, Rabbi Morris Schussheim, Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen and Rabbi William G. Braude.

In addition to a Board of Trustees for the bureau, who will represent the various educational institutions and the community at large, the survey proposes appointment of an Advisory Educational Council consisting of professionals representing the several local Jewish schools. This group will function in close cooperation with the committee on curricula, one of the several major subcommittees through which the Board of Trustees will carry out its functions.

The national commander also hailed the vast improvements made in Israel and predicted that

Kane To Organize Membership Group

A special one-day campaign to obtain charter membership in the New Jewish Community Center was announced this week by David Meyers, chairman of the Center's charter membership enrollment drive.

The project will take place on Sunday, June 15.

In connection with the June 15 drive, Irvin Bornside, general solicitations chairman, and his co-chairmen, Edwin Soforenko, Mrs. Raymond G. Franks, Mrs. Benjamin Lewis and Mrs. Bertram Bernhardt, are now organizing captains and teams. Mrs. Franks and Mrs. Lewis also are serving as co-chairmen for the women's division.

A complete story of the June 15 preparations will appear next week.

While plans for June 15 are being developed, Sydney A. Kane, chairman of the special prospects division for the membership enrollment drive, is organizing his committee with the assistance of Meyers, Merrill Hassenfeld and Benjamin R. Albert. Kane said the committee will hold its first meeting on Monday, June 9 at his home. This meeting will launch the special prospects division in a campaign that is expected by enrollment officials to produce the largest membership enrollment and income in the history of the Center.

It will be a strong nation in the years to come.

Paul J. Robin, national recruiting officer, who was installing officer, presented Sidney D. Long, retiring department commander, with a plaque. Rabbi Abraham Chill, department chaplain, opened the convention with an address during memorial services.

Certificates of merit were presented to Ruby Sugerman and Leonard Levin. A plaque was also presented to Manfred Weil.

Officials of other Rhode Island Veterans organizations and facilities, civic representatives, and out-of-town JWV leaders, were guests at the convention.

Agencies Merged

displayed throughout the preliminary discussions is further indication of the importance of community planning, and the willingness of our local agencies to work together in the best interests of our community.

A representative group, which has been ironing out details of the merger for the past two months, will continue in existence as a standing committee to handle any problems that may arise. It is planned that the group will meet again this Fall to review the immigration situation existing at that time.

Representatives of the three agencies included: General Jewish Committee—Archibald Silverman, Arthur J. Levy and Joseph Galkin; Rhode Island Refugee Service—Meyer Tenenbaum, Mrs. Esther Pritsker, Walter Adler, Mrs. Perry Bernstein, Mrs. Bertram L. Bernhardt and Mrs. Ludwig Regensteiner; Jewish Family and Children's Service—Alter Boyman, Louis Pain, Max Kestenman and Nathan Sklar.

Duplicate Bridge, Dancing at Center

A duplicate bridge group has been added to the program of activities at the Jewish Community Center. Open to adults and young adults, it will be conducted by Walter Ortner, well-known local bridge instructor. The group meets every Wednesday at the Center, starting at 8 P. M.

Further information may be obtained by calling the Center, UN 1-2674.

Professional instruction in ballroom dancing also is offered at the Center. A new class will be formed Monday at 9 P. M. with Mona and Bill Chaffin, professional dance team, as instructors. The dancing classes are offered at special reduced rates to Center members.

A special advanced group will start next Tuesday evening at the same time.

B'nai B'rith Girls To Install Tuesday

Nikkie Rosenberg will be installed as president of Roger Williams Chapter, B'nai B'rith Girls, at a banquet to be held Tuesday at the Narragansett Hotel.

Mrs. Louis Mirman, president of Roger Williams chapter, will also install the following: Ina Botvin, vice-president; Rhoda Guy, secretary; Teri Rosenblatt, treasurer; Marilyn Zettel, corresponding secretary; Lenore Snyder, reporter, and Lenore Kaplan, program chairman.

Ralph Kolodny will be guest speaker. Mindel Spigel is chairman of the banquet committee.

Meyers-Simons

Miss Eleanor Sally Simons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack A. Simons of Sixth Street, became the bride of Marvin Arthur Meyers, son of Mr. and Mrs. William W. Meyers of Slater Avenue, on Sunday afternoon at Temple Emanuel. Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen, assisted by Cantor Jacob Hohenmeyer, officiated at the candle-light ceremony.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white chantilly lace and nylon tulle designed with a fitted bodice and bouffant skirt ending in a cathedral train. A fingertip veil of French illusion fell from her lace Juliet cap. Her bouquet was a white orchid cascade with lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Milton Jacobs, sister of the groom, matron of honor, wore pink nylon marquisette. She carried a cascade of pink gardenias and ivy. Miss Molly Greenbaum, maid of honor, wore a white eyelet organza ballerina-length gown over pink taffeta. She held a colonial bouquet of pink sweetheart roses. Both wore tiaras of pink roses.

Milton Jacobs, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man. Ushers included Leonard Meyers and David Rothman, both of Providence; Chester Simmons of Pawtucket; Sidney Weissman, Dr. Louis E. Meyers and Melvin Schlesinger of Newark; Sidney Keller of Port Jervis, N. Y., and Harold Friedman of Milburn, N. J.

The bride's mother chose aqua chiffon and a white orchid with an aqua throat. The groom's mother wore gray nylon tulle with a gray sequin bodice and a white orchid with a purple throat.

After the ceremony, a reception was held in the temple vestry, followed by a dinner at the Narragansett Hotel. Guests were present from Providence, Newark, New York, Pittsburgh, San Francisco and Virginia.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, the couple will live at 19 Sarah Street.

Gerhardt-Leibman

Miss Eleanor Leibman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Leibman of 51 South Lenox Street, Worcester, Mass., became the bride of Leonard H. Gerhardt, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Gerhardt of 138 Warrington Street on May 18 at the Beacon House in Brookline, Mass. Rabbi Morris Schussheim performed the ceremony.

The bride was attired in a gown of ivory satin en train, fashioned with long sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. Her veil was of fingertip length. She carried a Bible decorated with orchids and Stephanotis streamers.

Miss Barbara Leibman, sister of the bride, wore a strapless pale blue gown trimmed with white eyelet embroidery. Her bouquet was of yellow gardenias.

Bridesmaids included the Misses Betty Ann Bernstein, Janet Kornfeld, Marilyn Applebaum, Rhoda Silver, Norma Gurwitz and Sheila Fellman. They chose pastel ballerina gowns with matching bouquets. Ruth Leibman, sister of the bride, was flower girl.

Edmund Gerhardt, brother of the groom, was the best man. Ushers were Seymour Goldstein, Bunny Antipit, Norman Namerow, Barry Cohen, Arthur Silverman and Bernard Berg.

The bride's mother selected a shrimp chiffon gown with sequin accents and the groom's mother was gowned in a powder blue bolero ensemble decorated with pearls and rhinestones.

After a trip to the Blue Ridge Mountains and Florida, the couple will live in Worcester.

Weinbergs' First Child

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Weinberg of 68 Arcadia Avenue, Cranston announce the birth of their first child, a son, Robert Jonathan, on May 14. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kerzner of Springfield, formerly of Providence, and Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Weinberg of Edgewood.

Drs. Smith Entertain

Dr. Joseph and Dr. Clara Loitman Smith of 281 Olney Street are entertaining their sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lazare Bawly of Tel Aviv, Israel. Mrs. Bawly, the former Fannie B. Smith, has resided in Israel for 24 years.

The Smiths will hold open house all day Sunday.

Alexander Open House

Mr. and Mrs. Max Alexander of 150 Chace Avenue will hold open house Monday evening from 6 to 10 o'clock in honor of their daughter, Miss Joan Alexander, who will graduate soon from Pembroke College. Miss Alexander, an art major, was on the Dean's List.

Choral Society Dinner

The Beth El Choral Society held the final meeting of its second season Monday evening at the Temple. The group announced plans to expand its repertoire next year. Mrs. Seebert J. Goldowsky is chairman and Benjamin Premack is director. The choral group is conducted as a temple project.

The Society will close the season with a dinner on Monday at the Country House.

Hanzels' Third Daughter

Mr. and Mrs. Leo Hanzel of Ruggles Street, announce the birth of a third daughter, Lynda Marion, on May 20.

Klane-Levin

Miss Ethel Rita Levin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis I. Levin of Evergreen Street, was married Sunday afternoon to Keith Cyr Klane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis M. Klane of Fellsway East, Malden, Mass. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents with Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen officiating.

The bride wore an afternoon dress of pale blue organza with a bouffant skirt and an elbow-length veil of blue illusion. She carried a prayer book decorated with a white orchid and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Melvin S. Frank and Shynor E. Klane, brother of the bridegroom, were the couple's only attendants.

After a motor trip to the South, the couple will reside in Lynn.

B'nai B'rith Blood Drive Wednesday

A final appeal was made this week to persons who have not yet made blood donations to the current Red Cross drive, and to those who already have donated blood but wish to give more, to join in the one-day blood collection campaign sponsored by Roger Williams Lodge, B'nai B'rith, in co-operation with the Jewish Community Center.

The one-day drive will take place next Wednesday, June 4 at the Center.

Louis Baruch Rubinstein, blood chairman for the Lodge, said that while the June 4 drive is being conducted by B'nai B'rith, the public is invited to join in contributing blood, so vitally needed by our Armed Forces.

Rubinstein appealed to all B'nai B'rith members and their friends to help make the drive a success. B'nai B'rith members, their sons or brothers, may benefit directly from the pints of blood given Wednesday, he added.

Appointments may be made all day Sunday and Monday by calling the Jewish Community Center, which has scheduled this as a Center activity, at UN 1-2674; Rubinstein, GA 1-3417, or Herman M. Feinstein, blood co-ordinator and B'nai B'rith co-chairman, PL 1-7788.

Pioneer Evening Group Elects

Mrs. Melvin Finn was elected president of the Pioneer Women Evening Group at a recent meeting held at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

Others elected include Mesdames Herbert Roiff, first vice-president; Louis Lerner, second vice-president; Benton Feinstein, recording secretary; Israel Moses and Nathan Cohen, corresponding secretaries; Philip Abrams, treasurer, and Betty Pesacov, financial secretary.

Sixty members participated in the signing of the national charter. Mrs. Harry Sklut, club advisor, conducted the candlelight ceremony.

Mrs. Feinstein, chairman of the constitution committee, presented the constitution for ratification.

Guests were several charter members of the first Providence Pioneer Women group formed in 1926, and Mrs. Lewis Blumenthal, president of the afternoon group.

Centerland Names

Millman As Director

Appointment of Mathew Millman as director of Camp Centerland for the approaching season was announced Tuesday by Morris Kritzman, executive director of the Jewish Community Center.

Millman, a teacher in the Providence school system and an instructor at the Temple Emanuel Religious School, has had several years of summer camping experience.

Another appointee to the Center's Summer day camp is Ben Weiss, young local artist, who is instructor of the Center's art department. Weiss will be in charge of the arts and crafts program at Camp Centerland.

Kritzman reported this week that registration for camp is "actively proceeding." He urged parents to register their children now to insure that they will be included in the Camp Centerland program.

SYD COHEN:

Experience vs Age

In a recent article in a national sports magazine, Hal Newhouser, the pauper who once was prince, was quoted as blaming all his troubles on the fact that he was rushed into the major leagues when he was too young and inexperienced.

Being a raw youngster with a great arm but no knowledge of how to use it, Hal just poured the ball down the batter's throat on every pitch. He developed a sore arm, continued pitching with it, and had it as a close companion during most of his big league career.

Had he been developed more slowly in the minors and not had to face the terrific competition of the big time so soon—had he been able to learn gradually how to pitch as compared with how to throw—he would have been a far greater pitcher, and he would not now be just about through at the age of 31. So says Newhouser.

We turn now to the celebrated case of Sal Maglie, winner of 9 straight as this was written, the first truly potential 30-game winner since Dizzy Dean accomplished that trick in 1934.

At the age of 31 Maglie had impressed exactly nobody with his ability as a pitcher. Sal was two years older than that before he finally started to pitch big league ball. Now look at him at the age of 35!

Where is the pitching "norm," or average? Is Newhouser the freak, or is it Maglie? Do older pitchers have it over younger pitchers, or vice versa? That is an impossible question to answer with a definite opinion; but here are some prime examples that certainly should shed some light on the problem, even if they don't effectively answer it.

Let's start with those pitchers who entered the major leagues while still youths—like Newhouser—and who had so much talent they were rushed into prominence without learning how to protect their arms for the future. And right away we find five cases just about as tragic as Hal.

Take Dizzy Dean. At the age of 21, Diz racked up 18 wins for the Cards. He was raw, unpolished, inexperienced, fogging his fast one by the hitters even while telling them what was coming. Diz pitched in and out of turn and gloried in it. He won 115 games in his next five and a half years—and then was through. He strained his arm in a peculiar fashion, and it never came back.

A has-been before he reached 30. Brother Paul Dean also came up at 21, violated all the common sense rules of pitching as did Diz. Twice he won 19 games, including a no-hitter. He was all worn out at 24.

Lefty Gomez came up to the Yankees at 21 and won 21. For the next half dozen seasons Gomez was one of the greats of the American League, among the best clutch twirlers in the game. But he started to have arm trouble before he was 30. At 31 he won 15, lost 5 in the season that saw Johnny Murphy relieve him in almost every game. That same year, Manager Joe McCarthy did not trust him to work in the World Series. A dead arm at 31!

By the time Schoolboy Rowe had turned 22, he was the ace of the Detroit staff, winning 24 games, mostly with a blazing fast ball, like the others mentioned. Three great years were followed by three of misery, then a partial recovery (16-3)—then three more years of failure. Washed up before he was 30!

Wes Ferrell—remember him?—was a 20 game winner at 21, piled up 91 wins in his first four years, was a 20 game winner again at 28—and that was the end of his effective trail.

With the accent still on youth, let's swing in the opposite direction, and look at the kids who did all right throughout long careers. Christy Mathewson, for instance, won 20 at the age of 20, and turned in 24 triumphs a good 13 years later.

Walter Johnson started pitching with Washington at 20, and didn't stop until 20 years and 419 wins later. Bob Feller has been around since 1936. He started at the ripe old age of 17.

Now let's look at the pitchers who did not wreck their arms in their early 20's, who learned how to pitch and who, consequently, made and stand to make far more money for longer periods than the youthful firebrands who are not allowed to develop properly because of their great raw talent.

The late Grover Alexander was 24 when he became a Phillies regular. Alex hung around to win over 350 times. King Carl Hubbell, the Giants Mealticket of the '30's, was 25 when he came up; he was 30 when he had his first 20-game season, then did the trick five times in a row, and won 253 games before quitting at the age of 40.

Lefty Grove hit the Athletics at 25, didn't win 20 until two years later. Yet he wound up at the age of 41 with an even 300 wins. Charley Ruffing had been in the American League for 13 years—yes, 13—and had only a so-so rating—before he won 20 games in one season. He was 32 then. Then he turned the trick four times running, and in 22 active seasons—with two years out for war—racked up 271 triumphs.

Herb Pennock, the stylish control southpaw, was 25 when he reached pitching maturity, yet he spent 22 years under the Big Top and came away with 243 wins.

Keep on down the list. Make up your own list. The average should be the same. Maglie, Kinder, Raschi, Lopat, Reynolds, Bucky Walters, Bob Lemon, Jim Hearn, Harry Brecheen, Ken Raffensberger, Ken Heintzelman, Frank Hiller, Preacher Roe, Spud Chandler—you take it on from there—all are or were fine pitchers who started slowly, making little impression, at least for the three or four years necessary to develop and mature their precious arms.

Who were the no-hit pitchers last year—and this? Feller (32), Reynolds (33), Chambers (29), Trucks (33). All veterans. Twenty-game winners? The vast majority

Bar Mitzvah

ARTHUR A. BARLES, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barles of 13 Exeter Street, who was Bar Mitzvah on May 3 at Congregation Ahavath Shalom. Guests were present from New Jersey, New York and Massachusetts.

were seasoned vets.

It would seem that Hal Newhouser's complaint is logical and legitimate. Pitchers who develop slowly—even late—win more, last longer, make more money, compile better records, and have better arms, than the kids who are rushed along too fast.

Maybe baseball needs a set of child labor laws?

Doctors For Israel

The news that the Hebrew University-Hadassah Medical School has awarded degrees of Doctor of Medicine to its first 62 graduates is more than of mere academic interest. It is another example of the miraculous which, as Mrs. Roosevelt so aptly noted a few weeks ago, is the ordinary in Israel.

To our knowledge there is no record of such a feat by any other state in the history of the world. Even if there were peace and tranquility and sufficient bread in the land that achievement within five years would have been hailed either as a miracle or the reward for a persistence that neither recognized nor brooked any obstacles.

And yet the accomplishment may not be so amazing if we recall the role Jews had played over the centuries in medicine. We seem to have been born to the dedication of healing.

If Israel has a smaller mortality rate in the world, it is due equally to the attention it pays to medical care as well as our historic hygienic ideals. The young state's ration of doctors is well above the minimum of 110 per 100,000 population recommended by the United Nations' World Health Organization. However, most of them are men over fifty, and the leaders of the state wisely foresaw that if no immediate action were taken, Israel in the years to come would be threatened with a shortage of dangerous proportion.

We share Israel's justified pride in this accomplishment. Not only has Israel become the corner stone of democracy in that area of the world but a medical reservoir from which its neighbors in peace will draw colossal benefits.

you must know before you can say that you understand Judaism. Let us begin to study."

I think that it is important for us to realize that being a good person or a good human being is not the same as being a good Jew, even though many would like to make this equation. Let me hasten to say that to be a good person or a good human being is one of the requirements for being considered a good Jew. Let me state emphatically that one cannot be called a good Jew unless he is a decent human being. But that is not the end of the matter. That is just our starting point.

What Is A Good American?

Perhaps we might find it a good thing to discuss an analogous question. Suppose we were asked to define a good American and we said that he was someone who was born in the United States and obeyed the Golden Rule. This definition might satisfy some, but for the sake of America I hope that it would not satisfy many. I think that we would agree—most of us, at least—that a good American is one who has made an attempt to understand the ideals upon which his country was founded and seeks to live in accordance with them.

A good American would feel it necessary to inform himself on current matters which are important to the welfare of America. He would regard it as his duty to vote at elections. He would consider it his obligation to pay his taxes as required by law and do nothing dishonest where they are concerned. He would feel that it was required of him that he educate his children so that they might appreciate the heritage of America and find some meaning to the loyalty to America which would be expected of them. He would regard it as his duty to defend his country should it find itself in danger.

These, and countless other things go into the definition of a good American. Similarly, there are many things which we must include in the definition of a good Jew.

Let us picture to ourselves someone whom we do consider a good American, someone who lives up to all the requirements which might be established in defining one. Let us imagine that he is also a person of good character. Let us go further and say that he was born to Jewish parents. Would we be able to say that this person is a good Jew? He might be a good Jew, but only if he met certain other requirements in addition to those which make him a good American and a good person.

Just as a good American is one who has sought to learn what are the ideals upon which his country is founded, so a good Jew is one who wants to know as much as he can about the origins of his faith and about the values which it cherishes. He must regard himself as a student of Judaism. The great books which are part of the heritage of Judaism must not be closed books to him.

To put it bluntly, an ignorant Jew may be called a Jew, but not a good Jew.

Duties of A Jew

A good Jew is one who concerns himself with the future of his faith. He must be able to look ahead and do whatever he can to ensure the survival of Judaism. If he has children he will see to it that they are adequately trained in the fundamentals of the Jewish religion, and what is equally important, he will do what he can to impress upon them the fact that learning is a continuous, never-ending process and not one which ends with childhood.

He will by example and precept train his children to respect the teacher as one of the most important figures in the community. He will understand that the continued existence of educational institutions for the training of religious teachers is one of his responsibilities. A good Jew must realize that every Jew is responsible, to the extent of his means and ability, for maintaining centers of education wherever they may be found, and not only in his own community, especially if those who study in those educational centers are being trained to serve Jews everywhere.

While I know that many will disagree with what I am going to say now, I insist that a good Jew is one who knows some Hebrew and strives to learn more. In Jewish tradition Hebrew is not just an ordinary language. It is the L'shon Hakodesh, the holy tongue.

I have had some question me somewhat sarcastically when I have made this statement before, and ask me whether the Almighty requires us to pray in Hebrew because He does not understand any other language. Such persons do not realize that Hebrew is the holy tongue, not because of what it might convey to God, when we pray to Him, but because of what the language can convey to us when we use it and understand it.

If Wordsworth, the great English poet, could with propriety say, in praising the traditions and ideals of England, "We speak the tongue which Shakespeare spoke, the faith and morals hold which Milton held," surely it would be quite proper for a Jew to say, "We speak the tongue which Moses spoke, the faith and morals hold which Amos held."

Hebrew carries with it certain overtones. One who understands Hebrew knows that in many words there are conveyed precious values which are fundamental to Judaism. The Hebrew words for charity, and mercy and faith and kindness are not adequately translated by their English counterparts. That is why, to the good Jew, Hebrew can never be a dead language, and certainly not a foreign language.

Observances and Ritual

We come now to the question of observances and ritual. Here again we run into the opposition of the Golden Rule and of those who require only that one's heart be in the right place.

Many of us have met those who would tell us that they can commune with God by taking a walk in a forest and admiring the beauties of nature. Others say that they come closest to God when they go to a concert and listen to great music played by a great orchestra.

I have no doubt that there are people who can do that. I have no doubt that they are very fine persons and live sincere and honest lives. However, if they do nothing beyond that to express their identification with other Jews who seek to worship God, then whatever else they may be they are not good Jews. For in the context in which we speak now a good Jew is one who joins with other Jews in observing the significant events and rites of their faith.

Let us use the same example which served us a moment ago. Can we imagine one whom we would call a good American remaining completely oblivious to the Fourth of July and Washington's Birthday and Lincoln's Birthday and Memorial Day and Armistice Day?

Can we imagine such an American being indifferent to the National Anthem and the Stars and Stripes?

Certainly we would expect that even though they represent forms and ceremonies they would have some place in his life. Similarly, one who is a good Jew would have to be a person to whom the great events and symbols of Judaism would have some meaning in a personal way.

If I were to attempt to summarize what I have said I might conclude by saying that a good Jew is not one who tries to do the minimum. A good Jew is really one who is always striving to be a better Jew.

"One Man's Opinion"

The Question and the Answer

BY BERYL SEGAL

"What is a Good Jew?", a listener asked the Rabbi.

Ever since he was big enough to sit on his grandfather's knee, and even before he was old enough to know good from bad, the person who must remain anonymous remembers being told to be a "Good Jew." Parents, uncles, teachers, well wishers—all repeated the same formula:

"Be a Good Jew"

The child grew into a youth, and the youth is a man now; and being an honest man, he admits that he never understood, and is in doubt even now, about what people meant when they wanted him to be a good Jew.

And so, in true Jewish tradition, Mr. Anonymous asked the Rabbi, as Jews were wont to do throughout the ages, whenever they were in doubt. A Rabbi in Israel is first of all a scholar, an authority, a teacher, a councillor, a guide. He is happiest when he is called upon to act in these capacities. Answering Sh'alos, queries, is the traditional function of a Rabbi in a community.

And so the Rabbi of the "Ask the Rabbi" radio program, to whom the question was directed, conferred his blessings on the listener who challenged his scholarship and his convictions by this simple question:

"Tell me, Rabbi, what is a Good Jew?"

But again in true tradition of Jewish scholars, the Rabbi yielded his place to a colleague and called upon him to answer the question.

I heard the answer when it was given over the radio, and I was deeply impressed by the clarity, the conciseness, and the form of the essay. I asked for permission—and it was graciously granted to me—to reproduce the essay. It is most appropriate to be read on this festival of Shavuot, when our ancestors stood at Mount Sinai, and heard for the first time what is required of a Good Jew.

What Is A Good Jew?

By Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen

The question "What is a good Jew" is one which rabbis are frequently called upon to answer. Whether or not the answer is considered a good one depends on what the questioner had in mind when he asked for the definition. For there are different kinds of questioners. There are some who ask because they honestly don't know and they are sincerely seeking information. There are others who inquire, not because they really desire an answer, but because they want the answer to confirm what they already believe to be the truth.

I make this little preface to what I have to say by way of defining a good Jew, because I anticipate that there will be some who will disagree with me and others who may even become annoyed with my definition, simply because it is not in accord with what they have liked to believe about Judaism.

Every rabbi has met innumerable Jews who tell him that all that is required for one to consider himself a good Jew is to have a good heart. According to this point of view, if your parents were Jews and if your heart is in the right place, you are a good Jew. It is as simple as that. This point of view is usually presented with a note of finality which seeks to give the impression that there is nothing further to say on the subject.

Hillel and the Pagan

There are others who like to quote the famous story of Hillel, who was asked to give the essence of the Torah, or Judaism, in what we today might call "Capsule form." The pagan who was speaking to Hillel wanted a very concise answer and Hillel said:

"What is hateful unto thyself, do not do unto thy neighbor."

There are many who love this "definition," as they regard it. As they see it, it means that in order to be considered a good Jew one need only obey the Golden Rule.

Those who like to quote Hillel forget that Hillel was speaking to a pagan who was in a hurry. Those who know a little more about Hillel realize that for Jews he established much stricter requirements. Hillel would not have spoken like that to a Jew. Instead, he probably would have said: "Sit down, my son. Don't be in such a hurry. There is a great deal

Brandeis to Present New Opera

The world premiere of Leonard Bernstein's new opera "Trouble in Tahiti" will highlight the first annual Brandeis University Festival of Creative Arts, to be held from June 12 through June 15 on the University's Waltham, Mass. campus, it was announced today.

Miss Dorothy Oskern of Providence has been named chairman of the Creative Arts Festival Committee in the Providence area, and will be responsible for the sale of Festival tickets here.

The Festival will feature four significant musical "firsts." In addition to the world premiere of Mr. Bernstein's opera, the Festival will present the premiere performance of Marc Blitzstein's translation and adaptation of the late Kurt Weill's "Threepenny Opera." The version to be presented on the Brandeis campus will be in concert style, and will be narrated by Marc Blitzstein.

In addition, another "first" will be the presentation of Pierre Schaeffer's "Symphonie Pour un Homme Seul." The work will be choreographed by Merce Cunningham and will be danced by Mr. Cunningham and his group.

Another significant "first" will be the initial choreographed performance of Stravinsky's ballet "Les Noces." In addition to the dancers, this presentation of "Les Noces" will feature four vocal soloists, four pianists, and the Arthur Fiedler Chorus conducted by Arthur Fiedler.

Ball and Chain Club Installs

Sam Markovitz was installed as president of the Ball and Chain Club at a recent meeting held at the Jewish Community Center.

Also installed were Joe Markovitz, vice-president; Esther Lecht, corresponding secretary; Helen Siner, recording secretary, and Anita Namerow, treasurer. Eugene Troberman was installing officer. A fencing exhibition was presented by Stephen J. Siner and George Cohen.

Cranston Bowlers Receive Awards

The men's bowling league of the Cranston Jewish Center held its annual dinner-dance Saturday evening in the ballroom of the Narragansett Hotel. Music for dancing was rendered by Irving Ives and his orchestra.

Ed Lang, league president, presided as master of ceremonies and distributed awards, assisted by Max White, chairman of the prize committee.

Five prizes for best individual high averages were awarded to Harold Warren, 114; Ed Feinberg, 108; Al Samdperil, 107; Ed Lang, 105, and Mike Miller, 105.

Individual high three string prize was won by Morris Cofman, who hit 380. The individual high single winner was Joe Potemkin who posted 152.

Major awards were made to members of the three top teams in league standing. First prize went to the Pirates, consisting of Captain Seymour Kriss, Jim Shocet, Murray Potemkin, Dr. Max Pershtman, Ed Feinberg and Phil Chopak. Second place prize was given to the Yankees—Captain Joe Potemkin, Israel Press, Stan Weinman, Al Sydney, Bernie Wexler, and Harold Warren. The Tigers captured third place honors, with Captain Moe Bernstein, Milt Kaufman, Milt Lovett, Ben Silver, Aaron Davis and Ed Lang receiving awards.

Members of the Indians team were awarded prizes for the top three-string score for a team. They included Captain Ben Melion, Everett Levinson, Ernie Namerow, Sid Levey, Dr. Dan Kouffman, and Julian Holland. The White Sox team received awards for the team high single score. They included: Captain Bernie Goodman, Harold Dublin, Henry Stampel, Saul Friedman, Jack Dreyfus and Morris Cofman.

Foods To Remember

By Leah W. Leonard

SWEET-SOUR POT ROAST (Basic Recipe)

4½ to 5 pounds beef shoulder
2 tablespoons oil or schmaltz
1 large onion, diced fine
1 cup cider vinegar
¾ cup dark brown sugar
½ teaspoon paprika
2 tablespoons flour for gravy

Variation: Use 1 cup orange juice instead of vinegar and add ¼ teaspoon sour salt for a specially different flavor.

Variation 2: Thicken by adding 6 or 8 ginger snaps to the gravy as soon as the meat is tender enough to pierce with a fork and let cook 10 minutes longer over low heat.

Pat the meat dry with paper towels and sear on all sides in heated fat in a heavy kettle that has a close fitting cover. When nicely browned, add the diced onion and reduce heat till the onions are tender—approximately 3 minutes—stirring two or three times during the process to prevent scorching. Add the vinegar and sugar, sprinkle on the paprika, cover tightly and let simmer 3 hours or till the meat can be pierced with a fork. Mix the flour with a little cold water to form a smooth paste and stir into the gravy after lifting out the meat. Cook for 5 minutes, stirring till smooth. Slice the meat and return to the gravy to keep with parsley, plain boiled potatoes or small grated potato pancakes, and serve any favorite salad for a complete meal. Serves 6 to 8.

Wilk Installed

By Sackin-Sockett

Samuel H. Wilk, newly elected commander of Sackin-Shockett Post, Jewish War Veterans, was installed on May 18 at the sixth annual joint installation of the Post and Auxiliary at Sons of Jacob Synagogue. Wilk's name was omitted from the story of the joint installations, which appeared in the last issue of the Herald.

Invites Visitors To Touro Synagogue

An invitation to individuals and groups to visit Touro Synagogue, a national historic shrine, was extended this week by Rabbi Theodore Lewis, rabbi at the synagogue, in a letter to the Herald.

Rabbi Lewis' letter follows: "As there is great interest among individuals and groups who wish to visit the Touro Synagogue, National Historic Shrine, we would like to bring to the attention of your readers the fact that the Synagogue is open to visitors until June 29 on Sundays from 2:30 P. M. to 4 P. M., or by appointment. From July 1 it will be open daily except Saturday from 10 A. M. to 5 P. M. Guides are in attendance to give instructive talks about the historical background of the Synagogue. Special attention is given to Hebrew School groups.

"Groups who contemplate visiting the Synagogue are urged to contact the undersigned so that definite arrangements be made.

RABBI THEODORE LEWIS"

Technoprint Takes 5-Inning Opener

The Jewish Softball League finally got its 1952 season underway, but the opening could not exactly be termed a success. Only two teams saw action, and that was extremely limited. Five innings of one game constituted the extent of league activity.

In the abbreviated contest, Technoprint slugged out a 9-2 win over Cranston, making its league debut. Ralph Winn turned in a 4-hitter, both Cranston runs coming in the fifth. Technoprint scored 1 in the first, 2 in the second, 4 in the third and 2 in the fourth as they knocked out Jerry Gordon and continued against Bernie Lefty Davidson. Hilton Rifkin and Winn each had two hits for the winners.

New Providence Symphony Presents Concert June 11

The New Providence Symphony
Orchestra, Nathan Newburger conducting, will present a concert at Hope High School Auditorium on Wednesday, June 11 at 8:30 P. M.

The feature work on the program will be Beethoven's Third "Eroica" Symphony.

The concert, sponsored by the Musicians Union Local 198, American Federation of Musicians, and by several fraternal organizations
"for the sole purpose of providing more fine music and culture to more people in our community", is presented free to the public.

The Orchestra has given several concerts in Providence since its inception and last summer was invited to play in North Conway,
New Hampshire, where it was critically acclaimed as "excellent" and "giving great pleasure to many people."

The organization, formed by Newburger in 1948 with 30 professional players, now has a membership of over 50. It was first suggested by the late Dr. Serge Koussevitsky, in whose school at Tanglewood Newburger studied conducting in 1946.

Hope Chapter BB Installs Officers

Hope Chapter, B'nai B'rith
Women, held a combined installation of officers program and Mother and Daughter Night last Wednesday at the Jewish Community Center. George Goldsmith, of Roger Williams Lodge, B'nai
B'rith, was principal speaker.

Greetings were extended by Mrs.
Louis Mirman, president of Roger Williams Chapter, and Coleman
B. Zimmerman, president of Roger Williams Lodge. Miss Gertrude Tarnapol, past president of Roger Williams Chapter, was installing officer.

Officers installed include Mrs.
David Allen, president; Mrs. Joslin
Ross, Mrs. Bernard Bernstein and Mrs. Jerome Deluty, vice-presidents; Mrs. Louis Goldman,

THE COUNTRY HOUSE

A diller, a daller, a ten o'clock scholar, why do you come so late? I stopped today at the Country House, and I ate and ate and ate. The food was so fine that I don't care. If I'm late again, you'll know I'm there.
