Sharett To Recommend Bond-UJA Settlement

NEW YORK—Israel's Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett, prior to his departure from the United States, issued a statement that he had formed certain conclusions on co-ordinating the activities of the Israel bond issue and the United Jewish Appeal and will submit them to the Israeli government for a final decision.

Mr. Sharett emphasized that he was "very much impressed and greatly heartened by the deep attachment to Israel, eagerness to hear its message and enthusiasm for its cause" manifested at the scores of meetings which he addressed in the United States and Canada, ranging from gatherings of a few hundred people to the huge mass rally in Boston which nearly 20,000 attended.

"In the United States I appeared both on behalf of the Israel bond issue and of the UJA," Sharett said. "Regardless of the auspices, I invariably devoted my remarks to the explanation of the need for both. The value of gift funds as provided by the UJA for the satisfaction of fundamental needs of reclaiming and developing the land of Israel and rehabilitating its immigrant population stands as high as ever. At the same time there is an imperative and growing necessity for investment funds to be placed at the free disposal of the government of Israel and to be expended on the creation of productive assets, through the instrumentality of the bond issue.

"The investment of purely private capital is a third channel through which funds should flow for bringing Israel's economic possibilities to full fruition, but this can only serve as a highly valuable addition to, yet by no means as a substitute for, either the UJA or the bond issue.

"Those engaged in sponsoring both these great efforts should realize that neither can be conducted in disregard of the other but that each is perfectly justified and absolutely necessary in terms of both of the vital interests of Israel and the great potentialities of American Jewry. Israel expects all of its friends and supporters to work in harmony and with maximum energy for both. It must certainly insist that nothing should be done to hamper or discourage either."

Reparations Talks Called Satisfactory

NEW YORK—Satisfactory progress in the negotiations between Jews and Germans over the payment of reparations to Israel and to individual Jewish victims of the Nazis was reported by Dr. Israel Goldstein, president of the American Jewish Congress, upon his return from Europe where he participated in the sessions of the Conference of Jewish Organizations meeting for this purpose.

The basis of the negotiations, said Dr. Goldstein, is the offer by the West German government to pay $715,000,000 in goods during the next 12 years to the state of Israel. Jewish delegations of various countries are demanding besides that West Germany pass laws to compensate individual Nazi victims and that it pay $500,000,000 in reparations for Jewish property for which there are no heirs.

Albert Einstein Is Bronx Center Head

NEW YORK—Professor Albert Einstein will be honorary chairman of the $25,000,000 national campaign to establish a medical center in the Bronx under the sponsorship of Yeshiva University, it was announced by New York State Attorney General Nathaniel L. Goldstein, national chairman. "The Yeshiva University medical school will be unique in that, while it will bear the imprint of a Jewish university devoted to medical science, and will represent a collective effort by our people to make its contribution in the field of medicine, it will welcome students of all creeds and races," Dr. Einstein said in accepting the role of honorary chairman of the non-sectarian medical center.

Hail Probe of Florida Bombings By Grand Jury; ADL Approves

NEW YORK—Launching of a full scale Federal grand jury investigation of the wave of bombings which has terrorized citizens of Florida was hailed this week by Benjamin E. Epstein, national director of the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

The Miami Fla., Christmas night bombings last year, when Harry T. Moore, executive of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and his wife, Harriet, were brutally murdered, will be presented to the jury to which the U. S. Department of Justice has assigned L. E. Broome, special assistant to the Attorney General, as director of the probe.

Prior to the Miami assassinations, there had been nine dynamite bombings of churches, synagogues, and the Carver Village Negro project in Miami.

"The Anti-Defamation League has consistently urged that the terrorism which ran rampant in Florida be investigated thoroughly until the criminals responsible be brought to justice," Mr. Epstein said.

Epstein, who with Arnold Forster, the League's chief counsel, flew to Miami last year to direct

ADL's own investigation of conditions, suggested that the violence fell into four distinct and not necessarily related patterns, outlining them as:

The work of racists capitalizing on the "smoldering tensions between Negroes and Whites over housing problems." Mr. Epstein listed the four blasts that rocked Carver Village, a Negro housing development in Miami bordering on white residences in this category.

The work of bigots who, "craving the limelight of the publicity they created," are very likely responsible for the bombings and attempted bombings of Jewish institutions and a Roman Catholic church.

The murder of Mr. Moore is "of different origin," Epstein noted that the NAACP representative had been active in inter-racial causes.

The work of schoolboy pranksters, "who set off explosions in a hunt for thrills." Five youngsters, subsequently apprehended, damaged two schools, the Miami police station, and other property.

Epstein, who together with Arnold Forster wrote "The Troublemakers," an expose of hate-mongering in America, pointed out that the United States Department of Justice has broken down its investigation of the Florida crimes into three phases—houses of worship, Carver Village, and Miami.

Stern Exalted Ruler of Elks

NEW YORK—Sam Stern, banker and philanthropist of Fargo, North Dakota, was chosen Grand Exalted Ruler of the Elks at the 88th convention of the fraternal organization held last week at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

The Elks have a membership of 1,976,000. Mr. Stern, who succeeds Howard Davies, is the first North Dakotan to be elected to the highest office of the Elks.

Non-Jewish Finns To Erect Village

TEL AVIV—A village consisting of non-Jewish Finns will soon be erected in Israel, according to a representative of the Israeli-Finnish Friendship League who has just arrived here for the purpose of choosing a site for the village. The villagers will erect a factory on a non-profit basis which will make pre-fabricated homes, using lumber cut in Finland.

Confidential Memo Reveals Feud Between Bond, UJA Factions

NEW YORK—The feud between the Israel bond drive and the United Jewish Appeal has received new impetus as a result of a confidential memorandum on the issue disseminated by the leaders of the bond drive. This memorandum contains allegations to which leaders of the United Jewish Appeal and of the Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds take strong objection. The memorandum—aimed at describing the position of the bond drive on the subject of co-ordination of timing of fund-raising campaigns for the bond issue and the U. J. A.—will certainly not contribute to peace in the ranks of the American Jewish community.

It starts with the charge that "those who have spoken most glibly of the need for 'co-operation' have either not known the facts or have deliberately mis-stated the facts". It then goes on to present its own position in about 10,000 words, emphasizing that legal and sales obligations require that Israel bonds be sold throughout the year.

This view, as can be seen from the memorandum, was also accepted by Israel's Premier David Ben Gurion when he tried to bring about an understanding between the U. J. A. and bond drive leaders. However, Mr. Ben Gurion added that in order that the leadership which assumes responsibility for both enterprises may be most effective, the period of intense campaigning shall not be the same for both.

Concretely, Mr. Ben Gurion proposed that in New York, the period of intense activity for the U. J. A. should be in the Spring of the year, while the period of intense activity for the bond issue should be in the Fall, with variations for both under special circumstances. He also proposed the establishment of a joint U. J. A.-bond committee responsible for the conducting of both campaigns in New York with full powers to decide on policies, methods and techniques which will bring about the best results for both efforts. It seems that after several weeks of negotiations a statement of agreement was finally reached on April 5 between leaders of the New York U. J. A. and leaders of the bond drive. The memorandum claims that this agreement was rejected by the executive committee of the New York U. J. A. However, U. J. A. leaders claim that the agreement was turned down by Henry Mootor after its text had been formulated in writing by Henry Bernstein, executive head of the New York U. J. A. campaign.

Release Jewish School Personnel on Holidays

WORCESTER — A bill which would permit Jewish personnel in the Worcester school system to be absent without loss of pay on three Jewish High Holy days, the time to be deducted from their sick leave, has been ruled legal by A. M. Hillman, the city solicitor. About 20 teachers are affected by the proposal.

The city solicitor's opinion noted that a number of Massachusetts cities follow a similar practice. He informed the school committee that in adopting such a measure, it would be "adopting the rule of the Supreme Court of the United States, namely that the government should be friendly to religion rather than otherwise."

Report Convert Was Rabbi is Denied

NEW YORK—The Jewish Morning Journal, which carried a report about the conversion of a Greek rabbi and his family to Christianity, disclosed that the convert was not a rabbi but an employee of the Jewish community at Atra, Greece.

The convert, B. Baruch, the newspaper disclosed, had been at odds with the Jewish community and its leaders and his act of conversion was one of sheer spite, it was said.

Israel Must Stop Making Drug

TEL AVIV—A local pharmaceutical manufacturing company, Abid, has been ordered by the Tel Aviv district court to halt the manufacture of chloromyein in violation of the patent, which is held by the Parke Davis & Co. of Detroit. The Israeli company was ordered to pay all court costs and attorneys' fees.

Gift Parcels To Continue

TEL AVIV—Companies engaged in the gift parcel business to Israel will continue to operate under their present contracts for another year, the government announced.

Alvin Sokpin, Samuel Rapaport Named Fellows of Brandeis U.

Alvin A. Sokpin, and Samuel J. Rapaport, Jr., Providence community leaders, have been named among the first Fellows of Brandeis University in Waltham, Mass., University officials announced today.

Named for the late Supreme Court Justice Louis Dembitz Brandeis, Brandeis University opened in the fall of 1948 as the first nonsectarian institution of higher learning in the Western Hemisphere to be founded by the American Jewish community.

President of the Wentworth Manufacturing Company of Fall River, Mr. Sokpin is also president of the General Jewish Committee of Providence, and is vice president of the Providence Jewish Community Center and of the Miriam Hospital.

Mr. Rapaport is president of the S. Rapaport Company, and is vice president of the General Jewish Committee of Providence. He has served as chairman of the Jewelry Division in the Committee campaign, and is a board member of the Miriam Hospital and the Jewish Home for the Aged.

The Providence men are among 38 men and three women who have been named as the first Fellows of Brandeis. Fellows have been selected from men and women, distinguished in the arts and sciences and prominent in the business and professional life of communities throughout the nation, who have manifested an active interest in the development of the University.

Women named are Miss Susan Brandeis of New York, daughter of the late Justice for whom Brandeis University is named; Mrs. Max Richter of New York; and Miss Lutie Goldstein of San Francisco. Fellows represent 16 cities in 13 states.

Last month Brandeis awarded degrees to the 101 members of its first graduating class. Located on a 181-acre country campus near metropolitan Boston, the University numbers a student body of more than 600 men and women, drawn from 30 states and eleven foreign nations.

Brandeis students are accepted solely on the basis of ability and promise, without regard for race, creed, or nationality. Classes are small, and the low faculty-student ratio of one to nine provides virtual tutorial instruction for members of the Brandeis student body.

But Not Indubitably

"Do you suppose," Mr. Tucker mused, "that there is any word in the English language that contains all the vowels?"

Mrs. T. pondered the question briefly, and then replied, "Unquestionably."

"Then what is it?" Mr. T. wanted to know.

His wife laughed. "I've just told you," she rejoined.

Rabbi Shelomo said: "If you want to raise a man from mud and filth, do not think it is enough to keep standing on top and reaching down to him a helping hand. You must go all the way down yourself, down into mud and filth. Then take hold of him with strong hands and pull him and yourself out into the light."

Montor Talks With Ben Gurion

JERUSALEM—Discussions on coordination of the United Jewish Appeal and Israel bond campaigns in the United States were held this week by Henry Montor, executive head of the bond campaign, with members of the Cabinet here. Mr. Montor met separately with Premier David Ben Gurion and Finance Minister Levi Eshkol. A joint meeting of all persons concerned with the problems is expected soon. The Israel bond drive organization in the United States is "striving wholeheartedly" to achieve good relations between the drive and the United Jewish Appeal, Mr. Montor told a press conference.

Permitted To Elect Chief Rabbis

ISTANBUL—The President of Turkey has signed a bill permitting the Jews of Turkey to hold an election for the position of Chief Rabbi, the Chief Rabbinate's office here has been informed. The Rabbinate immediately began preparations for the elections to fill the post which has been vacant for 21 years. In the past a Religious Council named a candidate who had to be approved by the Turkish Government before he could assume office. After the last Chief Rabbi died in 1931 no candidate was approved by the government. The new law replaces this system with a popular election within the Jewish community.

Musing About Old Girl Friend In Shul

By ANN COHEN

(From The Intermountain Jewish News)

The contest between members of the younger generation who wish to depart somewhat from the ancient rules of proper behavior between the sexes, set forth in the Schulchan Aruch, and the elders who insist that the old laws be adhered to, is handled humorously by Alfred Segal, syndicated columnist.

First, shall segregation in houses of worship be practiced? There are those who say that the sight of comely women detracts from a man's religious musings. Others insist that women should be allowed to sit among the men in shul as a proper expression of family life.

Modern man is no longer afraid of women. He even lets them vote. He lets them give speeches in public. The elders have a tough time refuting this argument, especially when they read every Friday night about the "woman of valor," of whom the Book of Proverbs has a whole chapter of praise.

Segal puts himself on the side of the Schulchan Aruch—but not for reasons of careful piety mentioned in the ages-old code of Jewish law! When in the synagogue his eye falls upon a woman familiar to him and his musings begin (admittedly detracting from full religious observance) he is more likely to notice how fat a once lovely female friend of his youth can become. Not for him are the raven ringlets. Rather it is his luck to be confronted by an object of pity, not a vision of desire. Even if it is compassion, not lust, that takes time away from religious duty—it's still a sin and the Schulchan Aruch is right in forbidding women to be seen by men who are supposed to be immersed in religious ritual.

WOMANLY WILES

The ancient Jewish lawmakers were afraid of the wiles of woman-kind, says Segal, so they took great and particular care that males not be allowed to even approach the danger area. "A man should ever avoid women. He should not . . . jest with them, act with levity in their presence, or gaze at their beauty. It is forbidden to scent the perfume especially designed for women, especially so when she holds it in her hand or when it hangs on her." Segal remarks he was conscious of the fragrance of his now-fat once-lovely former girlfriend. How much more thrilling was the "pure sweet, natural fragrance of your girlhood."

Segal fears that all the guards put up by the ancients are to no avail nowadays, in spite of the help of the older, more conservative generation. Today's youngsters of the Louis Feinberg synagogue, a conservative congregation used as Segal's example, are going to prevail and the Schulchan Aruch prohibitions against the female sex will be overthrown. Alfred Segal attends an unsegregated Reform temple in Cincinnati.

Permit Limited Emigration To Israel

TEL AVIV—A representative of the Immigration Department of the Jewish Agency left today for Belgrade to prepare the immigration of 300 Jewish families from Yugoslavia to Israel. A number of immigrant groups are expected to arrive in Israel next week from North Africa and Persia. The Hungarian Government has approved 129 exit visas for Jews migrating to Israel, the Israel Foreign Ministry announced here today. The announcement said that the 129 visas came within a total of 3,000 which the Hungarian Government agreed three years ago to issue. So far, 2,700 Jews have arrived here under this agreement. The spokesman reported that Israel had no news about the immigration picture in Rumania and Czechoslovakia.

Kidnapped French Priest Released

TEL AVIV—A French priest kidnapped by Syrian troops from Israel territory was released this week following a sharp Israeli protest to all United Nations truce supervisory machinery. The priest, Father Pierre Guichau, who was visiting Israel, was captured by Syrian soldiers in the Lake Kinnereth region near the point where the Israeli, Syrian and Jordan boundaries meet. He was blindfolded and led inside the Syrian lines where he was kept until the Israeli-Syrian Mixed Armistice Commission, to which Israel protested, secured his release.

Marty Brown pitched steady low hit ball and held Broadway Auto scoreless after the second inning. Leo Miller, Ross and Bill Goldis were the batting leaders for the losers while Jim Steiner excelled in the field.

"Young" Jack Steiner threw his nothing ball at the printers and beat them 8-2 in the second game holding them scoreless for the first five innings. Weintraub with a perfect 4 for 4 led the way with Jack Steiner helping his own cause with three hits and 4 R.B.I. Waxler played steady ball in the field for Broadway. Jim Baron, Dostoglos and the Karambales boys along with Harry Glaser were best for the loser.

Court Refuses To Extradite Nazi

LOS ANGELES—Andrija Artukovitch, who was charged with taking an active role in the extermination of Jews when he served as Minister of Justice in the Nazi puppet cabinet of Croatia, was set free here today by U. S. Judge Pierson M. Hall, who ruled that there was no basis for granting Yugoslavia's request that he be returned to that country to face trial. The judge said the extradition treaty under which he was sought was not valid.

U. S. Official Arrives With Agreement

TEL AVIV—R. Freir, new assistant to American technical aid coordinator Bruce McDaniel, arrived here Monday from the United States with the draft of an agreement covering the $72,000,000 grant recently allocated to Israel by Congress. Mr. Frier will confer with American Ambassador Monnet B. Davis and Premier David Ben Gurion on the new grant.

Anti-Semitism: Rooted In Ignorance

From Dr. Arthur Ruppin's Introduction to "The Jews in the Modern World."

A few years ago a Japanese diplomat in Berlin asked a German statesman to recommend to him a professor of anti-Semitism. Being told that there was no such Chair in the University—"What!" exclaimed the Japanese, "you talk anti-Semitism day and night, and have no one to teach it?" "But anyhow, what do you need it for?" asked the German. "You have no Jews." "No, we haven't" was the reply, "but we hear that they are coming, and so we want to be prepared."

Presumably the Japanese diplomat desired to obtain accurate information concerning a people whom he heard described as dangerous and unpleasant; and we Jews can wish that many anti-Semites, or potential anti-Semites, should share his desire... We have a right to demand from anti-Semites, if sane and civilized, that they should honestly try to acquaint themselves with the facts of the problem which seems to exercise their minds, and that in forming their conclusions they should show a measure of good sense and common kindness with-

Mrs. Weizmann Is as Un-Jewish In Type as Native-Born Sabras

By MOLLY LYONS BAR-DAVID
(From South Africa Jewish Times)

Mrs. Chaim Weizmann makes as few public appearances as she must, and she does not like to be photographed.

I was surprised, therefore, to find that she was so light of build, with an enviable girlish figure and very dainty feet. Her hands, gaily manicured, betrayed the artist I now knew her to be; her hand-shake foretold something of the frankness I was soon to learn; her voice, quiet-spoken, has a quality of tenderness in it; her language is choice, cultured.

There is a slight touch of Russian in her accent when speaking English; she is equally at home in four or more languages.

Understatement

Though of Russian birth and Swiss University schooling, it is British tradition, mode of thought and restrained expression, which has by osmosis of many years, marked her.

She is as "un-Jewish" in type as the native-born Israeli, although Jewish fate in the making has conditioned every day of her life since her Zionist honeymoon when the groom left the bride waiting in the nuptial chamber as he attended meetings of the movement.

"Concerning these sessions," wrote President Weizmann in his autobiography, "I remember chiefly my wife's extraordinary patience and understanding, and my feelings of guilt. I remember coming home—to the hotel, that is—at five o'clock one morning, with a great bouquet of flowers and a basket of peaches as a peace offering. It wasn't necessary, but it made me feel a little better. Such was our honeymoon."

Erratic Schedule

Mrs. Weizmann has no "typical" days; her programme, she says, is as erratic as the adventurous life of this country itself, and she has to face up to most of the same obstacles as everyone else. It is obvious, however, that her talent for order does overcome the hazards, for good organization is one of her many-and-much lauded virtues ("or perhaps sins" she humorously calls them) in Israel.

Her first care is, as it has always been, the health and welfare of the President, and it is to the tasks of wife and home-maker that her chief time and abilities are devoted. "Throughout the vagaries of my rather complicated existence, it was my wife who organized things," wrote the President, "as to give me a stable and tolerably safe background; if I have been able to carry on, to give my whole mind to my work, without taking much thought for financial or other practical matters, it has been entirely due to her forethought, her devotion and her savoir faire."

Busy Hostess

As a hostess alone, Mrs. Weizmann would seem to have a full-time job—for there are guests at almost every meal, and entertaining at other hours daily, either on the intimate pattern or of ball-room scope.

For this the Weizmann home is happily built; tea for two or ten before the fire, or guests numbering into hundreds can be accommodated by opening the hall doors into the dining room and verandah and using both library and reception salon which lead off it.

"Naturally the rationing problem is always with us; I could hardly manage without the food parcels which friends send us from abroad," said Mrs. Weizmann. She plans all the meals with her cook, a Rehovot woman trained by the English cook from her London home, who was her predecessor.

Strictly Rationed

Rationing is strictly observed in the household and all but foreign diplomats receive meals of improvised culinary "Zena" surprises, instead of meat.

Despite the hardships of rationing, Mrs. Weizmann's table is interesting and she believes that with ingenuity and thought meals can be made attractive.

"I realize, however," she said, "that most housewives cannot in these days of queuing and harassed shopping and work in their homes, devote the much-required effort for a problem that is far from easy for any of us."

Housekeeping against obstacles is not a new problem to Mrs. Weizmann. She knew a great deal about human anatomy when she received her M.D. and married in 1906, but she knew little of beef joints, and had to apply her scholarly achievements and brilliance to learn cooking and cleaning as the wife of a struggling young scientist and budding statesman.

Britain To Draft Command Plans

LONDON—The Allied Chiefs of Staff have assigned to Britain the task of drafting two Middle East command plans, one providing for Egyptian participation and the other without it, it was learned here. It is understood that the United States agreed to Britain's working out the plans because of British experts' superior knowledge of the area. The plans will be rushed to completion and whichever one seems more feasible will be adopted by the Chiefs of Staff.

May Change Israel Communist Policy

TEL AVIV—Because emigration from the Communist satellite countries of Europe to Israel has been virtually stopped by these governments, Israeli government leaders are considering the desirability of changing their present policy of "non-identification" between East and West.

Strong anti-Zionist tendencies have lately been manifesting themselves in the satellite countries. Israeli officials feel that the arrest of many Jewish Communist leaders on charges of abetting Jewish migration to Israel, are proof of this.

BEN HECHT: "There are three types of modern literature: erotic, neurotic and tommyrotic."

CHARLIE CHAPLIN: "If you can spend a perfectly useless afternoon in a perfectly useless manner, you have learned how to live."

EDWARD G. ROBINSON: "You can live longer if you cut out all the things that make you want to live longer."

MELVYN DOUGLAS: "Some men never go to work for a living until they have given everything else a fair trial."

JACK BENNY: "Speaking of the high cost of living, the only thing nowadays that comes down is the rain, and even that soaks you."

PIPER LAURIE: "When a man asks a woman to share his lot, he shouldn't be surprised if she wants to know the size of it."

DANNY KAYE: "A woman knows the value of love, but a man knows its cost."

JACK WARNER: "Science should spend less time studying the origin of man, and more time on what his finish is to be."

Pledges To Suppress Anti-Semitism

ROME—Italian Minister of Interior Dr. Mario Scelba has pledged to assist in the suppression of anti-Semitism in Italy as far as the jurisdiction of his office is concerned, it was learned here. The pledge came following the submission to the Ministry of Justice of a number of suggestions by the Union of Italian Jewish Communities for punishing persons who incite others to anti-Semitic acts or who commit such acts themselves. Fearing a new wave of anti-Semitism, the Union has appealed to the government to put into immediate effect those sections of the new penal code which pertain to anti-Jewish acts. The code itself will not become legally effective for a long time to come.

AROUND RHODE ISLAND

(On this page and on pages 10 and 11, the Herald is reproducing two in a series of articles known as "Liberty in Rhode Island" which is a feature of The Quonset Scout, a weekly newspaper published at the Quonset Naval Air Station. This series of articles has created much comment throughout the State and the Herald, as well as other papers, has been granted permission to publish as many of the series as we have space for.)

Foods To Remember

CHOPPED HERRING MIXTURE

- 1 salt herring
- 1 onion
- 1 sour apple
- 1 slice bread, dipped in vinegar, cinnamon and pepper
- 1 teaspoon salad oil
- 1 hard-cooked egg, if desired.

Soak herring in cold water a few hours, wash, clean and bone it. Chop ingredients fine, mix thoroughly. Add more oil (or mayonnaise) if the mixture is desired thinner.

Eaten slowly and leisurely, mixed liberally with sparkling conversation and jovial good-fellowship, this chopped herring vorspeis will inevitably set the high gustatory tone which the meal itself will follow. And having whetted our appetites with a generous portion of this prophetic forerunner of our future delights we are ready—indeed, anxious—to probe still further the delights of kosher cooking. Since we have set our hearts on a cabbage and beet borscht, here is a time-honored recipe which has achieved universal popularity in the Jewish home:

BEEF-CABBAGE BORSCHT

- 5 large beets
- 3 pints cold water
- 1 pound breast flank
- 1 marrow bone
- ½ cup lima beans
- 1 medium onion
- 1 small head cabbage
- 5 small potatoes
- 2 cups strained tomatoes
- salt and pepper
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- juice of 2 lemons

Peel and cut beets into strips. Place in soup pot with water, meat, bone, beans and onion. Cover tightly, let simmer an hour. Remove onion, chop and add cabbage, dice and add potatoes. Let simmer 30 minutes longer or until meat and cabbage are tender. Add tomatoes, salt and pepper, lemon juice, and sugar. Bring to a boil, and let boil gently 3 minutes longer.

Some men are like the stump the old farmer had in the field—too hard to uproot, too knotty to split, and too wet and soggy to burn. The neighbors asked him what he did about it. "Well, now boys, I'll tell you the secret. I jes' plowed around it."

Roger Williams Park, a recreational development containing lakes, gardens, shady drives, tennis courts, a zoo, monuments, museums, and many amusement concessions, is one of the most beautiful municipal parks in the country. It is located about three miles this side of Providence and it can be reached by way of Weybosset, Broad Street and Elmwood Avenue.

Ten miles of roads wind picturesquely through its 452 acres, among floral displays of wide repute, shaded lawns and a chain of sparkling lakes. Skiffs are available for boating. Near one of the lakes is the Benedict Memorial, marble Ionic colonnade, set in a natural amphitheater. The Memorial serves as a stage for concerts and other outdoor productions.

Museums

In the Museum of Natural History are a number of notable exhibits; among them a collection of American and foreign birds, including a special and complete exhibit of all birds known to Rhode Island, collections of minerals and shells and an interesting display of Indian relics. The Museum is open week-days 9 to 5, Sundays 2 to 5. Another museum, the Betsey Williams Cottage is a frame gambrel-roofed Colonial house built in 1773. It was last occupied by Betsey Williams, a descendant of Roger Williams and donor of the original park property. The house is now used as a museum for Colonial furniture and items of Rhode Island Historical interest.

At the Zoo

Special features of the growing zoo are an aviary, a deer park, and a monkey island. In addition to "Alice", the two-ton elephant, there are many animals such as deer, elk, yak, buffalo, bears, fox, oudad, monkeys, seals, a rare collection of birds, and two Australian Emus, the latest arrivals at the park.

Recreational facilities at the Roger Williams Park include dancing at the Casino, band concerts on Roosevelt Lake. There are ponies in the park for the enjoyment of children who wish to ride—boating on the lakes—fishing and skating—fine bridle paths—tennis courts—ballfields—horse shoe pitching courts—running track—picnic grounds, a merry-go-round, a toy gasoline automobile track, and pony rides are greatly patronized by the children.

Dances At Casino

The Roger Williams Park is also a photographers' paradise. The flower gardens, astonishing in their color and variety, along with the attractions mentioned in this article, provide excellent composition for the photo enthusiast. Admission to the park is free.

Eliezer Kaplan

The death of Eliezer Kaplan at the age of 61 robs the young state of Israel of one of its three leading statesmen who were at the helm and directed the affairs of the Jewish republic from the day of its birth four years ago until now.

Together with President Weizmann and Premier Ben-Gurion, Finance Minister Kaplan nourished the infant country, attended to its economic health. When his own health gave way and he was forced to resign as Finance Minister, Kaplan was named Deputy Prime Minister.

It was not an easy task that he assumed—directing Israel's finances. In a small, poor country that was receiving an unprecedented number of immigrants he had to turn the limited amount of public monies available to the best possible uses. It was, in a way, a heroic burden, a burden that eventually affected his health and led to his death at an age when many statesmen are at the height of their power and usefulness.

Eliezer Kaplan also will be remembered gratefully for his work as treasurer of the Jewish Agency before the birth of the Jewish republic. As such, it fell to him to allocate the funds contributed by world Jewry for Palestine colonization, a job he performed with great skill.

Though as Finance Minister of Israel, Kaplan was often criticized for the things he did or left undone, even his critics will now in retrospect acknowledge that his service to the Jewish state was of immeasurable value. Eliezer Kaplan will long be remembered as one of Israel's pioneer statesmen.

Issues Created by Nationality Law, Make Israel's Road Most Difficult

An American Jewish Press Feature

Dissatisfaction in Arab quarters over the new Israel nationality law, protests against some of the law's aspects in extremist Jewish ranks, numerous internal political squabbles and the economic situation—all combine to make Israel's path to security and stability most difficult.

The paradoxes created by the Israeli economic policies are described in a special cable to the New York Times. Commenting on Premier David Ben-Gurion's five-month old economic plan, the Times correspondent says that never since the establishment of the Jewish state has the Israel pound been so low and so precious. The correspondent's analysis of the economic paradoxes follow:

The introduction on Feb. 13 of multiple exchange rates by which local prices of most imported foods, pharmaceutical products and fertilizers were set at a rate of 1 Israeli pound for $1.40 instead of the former rate of $2.80, and most raw materials at 1 pound for $1, has meant that most entrepreneurs have had to double or triple their working capital to maintain their volume of business.

On the other hand, the government adhered to its undertaking not to issue any more securities as backing for currency so the means of payment has not increased. The result was that prices rose and money became scarce. Israeli business men manifested unwonted respect for the Israeli pound.

This new attitude toward money percolated to all strata, a private survey here showed. A financier recently said that banks had been unable to increase credit because deposits had remained stable in the last six months but that the demand for credit had doubled or tripled. In branches of the economy dealing in nonessential goods, for the first time in years manufacturers are eager to rush goods to retailers and retailers to sell to customers to raise cash. But consumers are hard pressed for money, too, and most of them are buying only essentials. The black market in many items has been wiped out.

Consumers Cut Expenses

The survey showed consumers were cutting down expenses in various ways. Many cut out smoking or switched to cheaper brands. A tobacconist in Tel Aviv said cigar smoking had dropped by 25 per cent.

People are also spending less for entertainment. The Habimah Theatre, which seats 1,200, frequently plays to fewer than 200 spectators. Movie attendance fell off sharply. A certain film played to 45,000 persons in Haifa before the introduction of the new economic plan, but in Tel Aviv, where normally twice as many persons see a film, it drew only 25,000 after the plan was enforced.

There is little turnover in new clothing in the shops, and there are scarcely any sales of expensive gifts. But so far as food is concerned, the pressure for supplies has not eased. Growers said they saw no shortage of money.

As the market for luxury goods fell off, many manufacturers switched to essentials. Such items as cheap drinking glasses and chimneys for kerosene lamps (necessities in immigrants' work villages where there is no electricity) were unobtainable six months ago but are now adequate. Tableware manufacturers switched from silver plated cutlery to nickel and chromium plated merchandise selling at half price. There is a big demand for these cheap lines of household goods because there are so many immigrants establishing households.

No Market Rise in Exports

Mr. Ben-Gurion has said the prime aims were to stabilize the currency and encourage exports. While the first result undoubtedly was achieved, the increase in exports has not been marked.

The exchange rate of 1 Israeli pound for $1, which was offered to exporters producing goods made 1 pound for $1.40 offered those selling goods from local materials enable many manufacturers to set competitive prices for export markets. However a steady rise in wages gradually nullified this advantage. A leading chocolate manufacturer said today the advantage had been completely wiped out.

While most prices spiraled, real estate fell. Big companies that invested profits in property were forced to sell some tracts when they were short of working capital. They dumped lots on the market, and prices slumped 30 per cent.

Building contractors were hard hit. They took advantage of the housing shortage and bought plots and began building, fully confident

The World's Most Unusual Loan Society

How 11 Jews Made A Bible Text Come To Life For 750,000 Needy

(An American Jewish Press Feature)

There is a remarkable banking institution in the heart of Manhattan's East Side tenement district that will lend you money, from five dollars to $500—without interest.

Furthermore, the directors of this bank will consider your request for a loan in this unorthodox manner:

They will not ask you why you need the money . . . or what you intend doing with it.

They will not ask you to put up any collateral.

They will not ask you any embarrassing personal questions—in fact, no questions at all, except your name, address and occupation.

They will not investigate your financial stability. In fact, the more precarious it is, the better.

Guided by these nonconformist principles of banking the Hebrew Free Loan Society of New York has cheerfully handed out $40,000,000 to 750,000 borrowers of all races and religions in its 60 years of existence.

As a monument to man's inherent honesty—it always gets its money back.

In a city which has become the financial center of the world, the Hebrew Free Loan Society is its most unique financial institution. It finances no great industrial or commercial enterprises, yet it has started many a man on his way to fortune. It owns no stocks or bonds nor does it hold any great investments, yet it is financially a sturdy institution. It has never earned or paid a dividend, but its credit rating is high. Its clients probably could not borrow from a commercial bank, yet they have proven unusually good risks.

The Society's unusual approach to money-lending is, in reality, philanthropy enclosed in a bank teller's cage. Motivated by the belief that outright charity is too often the destroyer of self-reliance and that a man's most prized possessions are his dignity and sense of independence, the Society has circumvented the tyranny of the handout by lending a hand instead.

It all began one evening in 1892 when eleven worshippers, themselves not far removed from poverty, met in a synagogue to ponder the tribulations of their many new immigrant neighbors who were daily debarking from steerages into the complexities of the new world.

How to help them? The Biblical traditions of Judaism invoke three great tenets: Torah, Prayer and Gemilath Chasodim—"acts of loving kindness." To give practical meaning to Gemilath Chasodim the eleven pioneers created their free loan group, taking as their text, Exodus xxii, 24: "If thou loan money to my people, to the poor by thee, thou shalt not lay upon him interest."

Though the Hebrew Free Loan Society is unique in America, even after three score years, it has had its forerunners elsewhere, for like so much that is good and great in American life, this is a contribution of an immigrant group.

Free loan societies among Jewish communities were highly developed in pre-war Eastern Europe, where the economic standard was so low and banking rates so high that such societies became the very backbone of the economic structure for the majority of men and women in those lands. In Poland alone, more than 1,000 small free loan groups operated up to the outbreak of World War II.

The venture into philanthropy they would sell apartments even before the foundations were laid and thus raise money to finish their buildings. But they could not find buyers, and the banks refused credit. The contractors borrowed from money lenders, paying as much as 24 per cent for short-term credits, to enable them to finish half-completed buildings. They are now taking losses to raise cash.

by the eleven founders of the New York group was bolstered by their contribution to a perpetual loan fund—$95. It was to be used, read the preamble to the Society's charter, "to loan to those in need certain moneys, instead of giving alms, and thus assist respectable people whose character and self-respect abhor the thought of receiving alms, to overcome the difficulties in their struggle for the means of existence."

How much can you do with $95? During its first year the Society assisted 227 impoverished families who borrowed—and paid back—$1,205. Loans were then limited to ten dollars, a sum that could promise no miracle of rehabilitation, but still, to the immigrant of the 1890's, ten dollars was enough to start him out with a pushcart and stock for a week's peddling, or it paid his board and bought him a suit of clothes until he found a job.

Five years later, as more money became available, the maximum loan was increased to $25 and the work of the Society had created such favorable interest that the U. S. Department of Labor described it as "holding a unique position, its aims noble and its work admirable." By 1919, aided by sizeable gifts from such philanthropists as Adolph Lewisohn, Baron de Hirsch and Jacob H. Schiff—but more so by the small, unsolicited contributions from the appreciative little people, the ones who at one time or another were free loan borrowers themselves—the maximum loan reached the present sum of $500.

From the modest $95, the perpetual loan society has since increased to more than $650,000—although the Society has steadfastly refused to conduct any public appeals. The loan capital is used exclusively for that purpose. The Society's operating expenses, about $50,000 a year, are defrayed by the New York Federation of Jewish Philanthropies.

But the real story of the Hebrew Free Loan Society, says its president, Joseph Durst, a prominent New York realtor and community leader, "is not told in terms of dollars, statistics or numbers, but in human struggles won, in dignity regained, in tragedy averted."

There was the incident, remembers Durst, when a laughing, teenage girl handed Abraham Gribetz, the Society's executive

The Jewish Calendar

(An American Jewish Press Feature)

Why is it that Rosh Hashanah occurred on Oct. 1 last year and will fall this year on Sept. 20, in 1953 on Sept. 10, in 1954, on Sept. 28 and in 1955 on Sept. 16.

The varying dates are accounted for by the fact that ours is the lunar calendar. Unlike the calendar used in every day life, which has been arranged according to the position of the sun, the Jewish calendar follows the moon.

In early Talmudic days, the commencement of a new month used to be announced from Jerusalem to the surrounding districts by beacons or messengers, the rise of the moon having been seen by witnesses and duly checked by the authorities. Our calendar is based upon calculation and can probably be traced back as far as the early Greek astronomer who were known to the Rabbis of Talmudic times. One of these astronomers discovered that a month is almost exactly 29 days, 12 hours and 44 minutes. Another Greek who lived even earlier found that the moon or lunar years are grouped in sets of 19 which form a unit. The Jewish Patriarch Hillel II, who lived in the 4th century C.E., used these findings of the Greek astronomers and according to Jewish tradition fixed the Jewish calendar.

Here is the way to calculate the Jewish calendar: If the time between one new moon and the next were exactly 29½ days, then the problem would be solved by fixing six months at 29 days and six months at 30 days. But there are three reasons why our mathematical operation would not be true. One is that we have forgotten the extra 44 minutes; the second is that Yom Kippur must never fall on day before or the day after Shabbat, and Hoshana Raba must never be on Shabbat; and the third, that we must never forget that the Jewish day commences six hours before midnight. To overcome these difficulties the Jewish calendar contains a number of leap years within every group of 19 years.

The leap years are the 3rd, 6th, 8th, 11th, 14th, 17th and the 19th. 5714 which will correspond to 1954, will be a leap year, and the years 5717, 5719, 5722 and 5725 will be the next leap years. Consequently, we add another month—Adar II; and Adar I gets 30 days instead of 29. To prevent the difficulties with Yom Kippur and Hoshana Raba mentioned above, the festival of Rosh Hashanah must never fall on a Sunday, Wednesday or Friday.

In Lighter Vein VARIETY OF HUMOR

By SHIN FEY SAMAKH

(An American Jewish Press Feature)
 "You can learn from everything," the rabbi of Sadagora once said to his chassidim. "Everything can teach us something, and not only everything God has created. What man has made has also something to teach us."
 "What can we learn from a train?" one chassid asked dubiously.
 "That because of one second one can miss everything."
 "And from the telegraph?"
 "That every word is counted and charged."
 "And the telephone?"
 "That what we say here is heard there."

A poor man came to Rabbi Shelke's door. There was no money in the house, so the rabbi gave him a ring. A moment later his wife heard of it and heaped him with reproaches for throwing to an unknown beggar so valuable a piece of jewelry, with so large and precious a stone, Rabbi Shelke had the poor man called back and said to him: "I have just learned that the ring I gave you is of great value. Be careful not to sell it for too little money."

"Thou hast put gladness in my heart . . . I will both lay me down in peace and sleep; for thou, Lord, only makest me dwell in safety."
 —Ps. 4:7-8

Free Loan Society

 director, a letter that began:
 "I am glad to be able to send you the final payment on my loan by the hand of my daughter whose life your kindness saved . . ."
 Six months before she had lain desperately ill while her father frantically appealed for $150, the sum needed to fly a rare serum from Canada, the only thing that could prevent her tragic death. He got the money in a matter of minutes.
 Or, there is the letter in the Society's files from a former architectural student who needed only six more months of class-work to receive his diploma. His father had become ill, and while an understanding dean had waived tuition fees there still was no money for clothes, books, board and other incidentals.
 "Perhaps you can arrange to borrow from the Hebrew Free Loan Society," suggested the dean. "I know you're not Jewish, but that won't matter."

 ". . . and of course it didn't," wrote the former student. "I am sitting in an office of my own and thinking of my days at college, of how you enabled me to complete my course. I use the word 'complete' advisedly, for not the least of the lessons I have learned is the lesson in kindness and good will toward men you taught me that afternoon."
 "Did that lad pay interest on his loan?" asks Durst rhetorically. "Of course he did, the best kind of interest anyone could collect and profit by. He became a substantial citizen, a professional man with important talents to offer his community. The same theory applies to most of our borrowers who repay us with interest by maintaining their independence and resourcefulness."
 The character of most free loan borrowers are what commercial banks promptly reject as "bad risks." The Hebrew Free Loan Society disagrees, and points to its minimal loss record of less than one-tenth of 1 per cent—a better record than that of most commercial institutions—to prove its case.

 An afternoon at the Society's main office in Manhattan, or either of its two Brooklyn branches, will find representative segments of New York's low income groups patiently waiting their turn: a bearded refugee newly freed from the wrath of intolerance, a Negro laborer laid up with an injury, a war widow in mourning clothes seeking funds to open a small knit shop. The society has helped patients to pay doctor's bills and doctors to finance their offices; thousands of students were able to complete their schooling with its free loans; hundreds of successful business firms were started by young couples who financed themselves with the Society's help.
 Priests and ministers pay tribute to the organization's interfaith approach and constantly enlist its aid on behalf of needy parishioners. Some people are skeptical at first and frankly admit their surprise that "there are no strings attached." Only requirement by which the Society safeguards its funds is that two responsible business men endorse each loan, only one if the loan is for $100 or less.

 The occupation of free loan borrowers runs the gamut from "unemployed" to "banker" but the one that heads the list is "house-wife." Almost half of last year's free loans were applied for by women. Sometimes such borrowers will exceed the six-month limit in which they are expected to repay the loan, only to make full restitution years later. In only about 2 per cent of all cases is it necessary to apply to endorsers for repayment.

An insight to the Society's dignity of purpose is best illustrated by the emphasis it places on tact and trust. It has never investigated a borrower nor divulged the name of one. Even the check it issues is a marvel of anonymity, listed with a number only so as not to reveal it constitutes a loan.
 Particularly impressive is the fact that no legitimate applicant has ever been refused a loan. To maintain this record the Society's directors have borrowed from commercial banks at regular interest rates when the Society's funds were depleted—then turning around and lending it out again—without interest!

Ye Old Wickford Rich In Colonial History

Sheltered on one of the most historic coves in the crystal blue waters of Narragansett Bay, three miles from Quonset, is the old village of Wickford, a hub of recreational interest for the sightseeing servicemen on liberty.

This once thriving shipbuilding town of Wickford takes great pride in having more well-preserved 18th century houses than any other village of its size in New England. Picturesque Main Street is lined with gable and gambrel-roofed houses ranging in date from 1728 to the early part of the nineteenth century.

Site of Great Swamp Fight

Old Narragansett Church

One of the most interesting of the 67 buildings built over 100 years ago in the Wickford area, is the Old Narragansett Church, known as St. Paul's. It is located about half-way to the left of the historic Main Street. The Old Church was built in 1707. The building is plain in outline, without a tower or other external decoration, except a beautiful doorway surmounted by a large curved pediment, supported by two plain capped pilasters. Slaves pews are still visible in the gallery. The Old Church was used as the Parish Church until 1848. Since 1877 the custom of holding vesper services has continued during the month of August. Sunday morning services are also conducted. During this month and August the ancient church is open from 2 to 4 every Friday for visitors.

Oldest House In Village

While in the atmosphere of visiting creaking houses on Main Street in the eighteenth century village, it is interesting to note the oldest house standing in Colonial Wickford. It was built in 1735 by George Thomas. The oldest type house was one story in height with a fairly steep pitched gable roof. The whole first floor was one room which was used as a parlor, kitchen, dining room and living room and frequently as a bed room. In the corner of this room alongside the fireplace was a steep narrow stair which gave access to a chamber above. All heating and cooking emanated from a cavernous fireplace which might be from six to ten feet across and proportionately deep. Another characteristic of these old houses was the heavy framing for the size of the house. Solid beams measuring 11" by 13" and running only 15 feet in length in the kitchen ceiling, was standard measurement in the early homes.

MAIN STREET houses preserved paves the way to

Much of the original village was laid out as a real estate development by Lodowick Updike, grandson of Richard Smith, the trader at Cocumussoc. Updike began selling lots in 1709. The first house in the village was erected in about 1711, on the south side of present Washington St., in the village. A little to the south of the village center, on US 1, is the Town Hall, the administrative center of the township of North

Old Lighthouse and Poplar Point

About a half mile east of the Town Hall is Poplar Point. The old Lighthouse, built here in 1831, is now used as a dwelling-house. On Poplar Point a company of American soldiers, known as the Newtown Rangers, was captured during the Revolution. From this historic Point, in 1777 the Americans forced back a bargeload of British soldiers who were attempting to make a landing.

Big Fishing Industry

Because of its ideal location near the waters of Narragansett Bay, Wickford is the headquarters for fishing industry. Many of the inhabitants earn their livelihood from the lobsters and other shell fish. A fishing line may be dropped anywhere in the harbor with a good chance of success. A fishing fleet consisting of many types of boats use the harbor facilities to bring their daily catch to the shores of Wickford, which is known to be the biggest shell fish shipping center in New England. In addition, the State Lobster Hatchery is worth seeing. From Main Street a marked road runs about half a mile to the lobster hatchery where lobsters are cared for until they reach the "bottom seeking" of the ocean until they become large enough to protect themselves. No license is required for salt water fishing and there is no closed season. Fishing parties are accommodated from Wickford. The coastline is literally dotted with favorite fishing spots.

It would take much more column space to adequately describe in details all the interesting things to enjoy in Colonial Wickford. However, in addition to the features mentioned in this article, service personnel on liberty in that area have the opportunity to attend the traditional village fair, Yeo Old Wickford Day scheduled for August 9, outdoor art exhibitions, and visit the yacht basin the busy Wickford harbor.

Local Residents are traditionally proud of their cultural acquisitions and are willing to chat for hours about their village, preserved from a history of more than three centuries.

Outpatient Treatment For Post-Korea Vets

Post-Korea veterans who need outpatient treatment for disabilities that are presumed to have resulted from their service will be provided needed treatment by the Veterans Administration until the VA can determine whether their disabilities actually are service-connected. The VA announced that this procedure is designed to prevent any delay in furnishing outpatient treatment for such veterans.

Where the VA later finds that disabilities are not service-connected, outpatient treatment will be discontinued from that date, but, where the VA finds that the disabilities actually are service-connected, outpatient treatment will be continued and the veterans, if sufficiently disabled, will receive VA compensation for the degree of their disabilities.

SYD COHEN:
 And Then There Was Light

For more than a hundred years, or ever since baseball has been played, the fans have been suggesting to the umpires that they—the arbiters—must be blind, were born blind, come from a long line of blind ancestors, and wouldn't be able to see even if they were not blind.

In their turn the umps for the most part have also been deaf. They appear to hear little of this barrage of abuse and just go about the business of antagonizing fans, coaches, players, managers and owners, regardless of how they call them.

But not entirely blind. For years the umpires have been told—none too gently—that they should wear glasses in order to improve their vision to the point where they might properly officiate at a ball game.

You would think that the umps have casually ignored this biting appraisal of their ability, or lack thereof, huh? Nope, you're wrong. This suggestion they have heard, and considered—and rejected because they simply would not dare strut up to home plate with cheaters on under their masks, for fear of the fans' reaction.

But you're wrong again. There is nothing to see. You won't believe it, but it comes straight from the lips of the league president himself—Nobody has commented on the glasses, and not a single fan has even seemed to notice them!

Lets you down, doesn't it? And the anti-climax is that every umpire in the league is now required to take eye tests, and is authorized to wear specs if he so desires.

If this keeps up, what will the poor, defenseless fans do when they want to impress upon the umpire that they are displeased with his work? Seems like all they can do is suggest that he take off his glasses so he can see—and then a whole century of progress is dissipated. This is where we came in.

The poor cousin Boston Braves have had little to cheer about of late. The youth movement, which sounded so impressive in the spring, failed to be sufficient to keep the club in the upper reaches of a tough pennant race, although there is good reason to look hopefully to the future.

But from the military diamonds comes heartening news for the Injuns from up Allston-way. Johnny Antonelli, the bonus rookie who flopped so miserably in his three years in Boston, is going great guns in his frequent pitching appearances in the Army. That doesn't mean he is going to be a world-beater, of course, but there is reason to smile over the fact that a seasoned, wiser pitcher is coming back in good pitching condition—and with good control, which he has developed recently.

Then there is another pitching prospect who is still a year away—militarily speaking, Chet Nichols. The Braves ought to be pretty good in a couple of years.

Three years ago the name of Joe Page was one of the mightiest in baseball—so mighty that almost every major league team said it could win the pennant if it had Page on its side. But that was three years ago. Now Joe Page is pitching for a semi-pro team in Springdale, Pa., and not very successfully at that. He gets slapped around regularly, and his famous left arm is obviously gone forever.

Ruth Chatterton at Theatre-By-The-Sea

Ruth Chatterton, star of stage and screen in this country and in England is the attraction at the Theatre-By-The-Sea at Matunuck, beginning Monday night, August 4. John Van Druten's hit comedy of 1940, "Old Acquaintance" supplies the vehicle for Miss Chatterton's talents with Carol Goodner playing her opponent in the light and amusing piece.

First produced on Broadway on December 23, 1940, the play featured Jane Cowl and Peggy Wood, received critical acclaim and ran for the substantial total of 170 performances.

Playing opposite Miss Chatterton is Carol Goodner, who was born in New York but had to travel to London to gain recognition. After twenty odd successes on London's West End with actors like John Gielgud and Alec Guinness she returned to this country to create Lorraine Sheldon in "The Man Who Came To Dinner."

The seventh attraction this season presented by Donald Wolin and Harold Schiff at the Theatre-By-The-Sea, "Old Acquaintance" will play evening performances Monday through Saturday, matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Chaplain Schreiner Awarded Bronze Star

NEW YORK—The Bronze Star "for meritorious service in connection with military operations against an enemy" has been awarded to Chaplain Harry Z. Schreiner, who has just returned to the United States after ten months of service in Korea, according to a communication received today by the Division of Religious Activities (DRA) of the National Jewish Welfare Board from Headquarters I Corps in Korea. There are 92 Jewish chaplains serving in all branches of the armed forces at home and abroad.

Reform Worships In Episcopal Chapel

WASHINGTON—Temple Sinai, a newly organized Reform Jewish congregation under the leadership of Rabbi Balfour Brickner, has acquired the use of the Bethlehem chapel of the Washington Episcopal Cathedral. Services will be held there regularly by placing a portable ark on the altar of the church.

major league clubs, the Indians and Giants, are planning a world-wide exhibition tour following the World Series this Autumn. Among those whose advice has been sought on the project is Abe Saperstein, who is most widely known as the impresario behind the fabulous Harlem Globe Trotters.

Abe, who also holds stock in the St. Louis Browns, has taken his basketball outfit on four foreign jaunts, and even now has 32 players touring Europe. Further, it is Saperstein who has done most of the arranging of the itinerary for the two baseball squads.

Abe has done a magnificent and highly important job in spreading good will toward Americans in foreign lands. Since he is dealing strictly with the sports world, it would seem that the U. S. State Department might be wise to hand Abe the portfolio of Minister of Sports at-Large.

Larry Napp, American League umpire, had to step between Clint Courtney and Billy Martin in one of the celebrated fights of the year a few weeks back. Nothing unusual about that, you say. Right—especially since Napp is a referee around New York in the off season.
