

List Pay Scale For Communal Workers

NEW YORK—About 40,000 persons are making a living in the United States by serving the religious, cultural and communal needs of American Jewry. Several thousand persons are engaged in the rabbinate alone. Their annual salaries range from $4,000 to $6,000 and after about ten years of service they average $8,000. In addition, depending on the size of their congregations, they enjoy fees from weddings, unveilings and bar-mitzvahs which range from $25 to $50 in smaller communities to double that sum in larger communities. Some rabbis, however, do not accept fees for services rendered to members of their congregations. Rabbis of large congregations enjoy salaries of $10,000 to $20,000 and more, although the latter are few.

Orthodox cantors receive salaries averaging between $2,500 and $5,000 a year. Cantors in Conservative synagogues enjoy salaries from $5,000 to $10,000 a year. Like the rabbis, the cantors also have additional sources of income from weddings, funerals, etc.

Synagogue administrators start with a salary of about $3,500 and range to $10,000 a year. Those employed in the field for five years or more average about $6,000 a year.

In the field of Jewish education salaries range from $3,200 to $8,000 a year for teachers and from $6,000 to $12,000 or more for educational directors in executive positions.

About 3,500 men and women are engaged as professionals in Jewish communal vocations. A substantial number of executive jobs in this field bring salaries ranging from $6,000 to $15,000 and more a year. The greatest bulk of Jews in Jewish social work are non-executive, starting at about $3,000.

Some 1,300 Jewish social workers are engaged in Jewish community centers, "Y's", Hillel Foundations, Zionist and fraternal organizations. Salaries in this field range from about $4,000 to $15,000 a year. About 500 professional workers are employed by Jewish organizations combatting anti-Semitism. Their salaries range from about $4,000 to $15,000 a year, with a few running higher.

More than 200 professional workers are employed by Jewish organizations as fund-raisers. Salaries for fund-raisers start at $5,000 a year, but salaries of $10,000 and more are not unusual for

D. P. Commission Due to End August 31; Truman Issues Orders

Settle Dispute In Waad Hacashruth

Final settlement of the lengthy dispute between separate elements within the Waad Hacashruth of Providence, Inc. was announced by Harry Stutman, an official of the organization, following a special meeting held Monday at 86 Jefferson Street.

The end of the long battle was signified by a Superior Court order dismissing a Jan. 15 injunction that prevented action from being taken on a proposed amendment to the constitution adding two local rabbis to the rabbinical board. The rabbis are charged with the enforcement of kashruth in all public kosher establishments in this city.

According to Stutman, the injunction was thrown out because Judge Andrews of Superior Court declared it is not unconstitutional to amend a constitution.

Millionth Draftee

ARTHUR WEINFELD, 23, of Detroit, assumes a pose familiar to thousands of draftees throughout the nation as he is examined by Dr. Alfred Goldfaden, at the Detroit Induction Center. Making the picture significant is the fact that Weinfeld is the 1,000,000th inductee since the outbreak of the Korean War.

Army Officials Attend Ceremony

To unassuming Arthur Weinfeld, a 23-year-old Detroit native who holds a bachelor's degree in political science from Wayne University, fell the distinction of becoming the nation's millionth draftee since the Korean War started in June, 1950.

His answer to the hubbub which surrounded his being named Mr. 1,000,000 was a simple, "Well, I guess I have to go anyway, don't I?"

The Army, as well as state and national figures who converged on Detroit to participate in the ceremonies, left Weinfeld a tired young man when it was all over, and also gave rise to a bit of joking from his fellow draftees. But Weinfeld took it all in stride.

At Wayne, he was a member of Sigma Alpha Mu, national social fraternity, of which group he was president. He was still attending the university, working on a master's degree, when he got the call from Uncle Sam. It was not unexpected though, since Weinfeld had decided to end the uncertain wait and had volunteered for induction.

When he arrived at Fort Custer he telephoned his fiancée, Rita Beitner, informing her of his reception at the base. "The Army," he said, "wants to make sure their 1,000,000th man is snappy. They had me try on five uniforms until I got a perfect fit."

Much of the original excitement had died down, but to Rita, her fiancée was still one in a million.

European Jews Join Fete Here

NEW YORK—Jewish communities from European countries will be invited to participate in the 300th anniversary celebration of 1954 of Jewish settlement in the United States, it was announced here by the American Jewish Tercentenary Committee. Ralph E. Samuel, chairman of the Committee, left for Europe to consult Jewish communal and religious leaders in England, the Netherlands and France.

McCarran Act Held To Blame

WASHINGTON—President Truman this week signed an Executive Order turning over to the State Department the task of liquidating the Displaced Persons Commission.

The Commission's tenure will come to an end on Aug. 31, a little more than four years after the first Displaced Persons Law was passed in June, 1948.

The President made no comment, but it can be assumed that he signed the order grudgingly, since the passing of the Commission will deprive the Government of an agency to handle a problem still considered critical by the White House.

The Commission, first under the chairmanship of Ugo Carusi, and now headed by John W. Gibson, was responsible for bringing about 315,000 displaced and homeless persons from Europe to this country. All were primarily victims of the last war and its aftermath. The Displaced Persons Act facilitated their migration.

The law, passed initially for two years and then extended for one more, closed the doors on most displaced persons last Dec. 31, and for the remainder in a separate category, on June 30.

About 300,000 Resettled

Mr. Gibson reported last Jan. 2 that all of the 336,000 visas authorized by Congress had been assigned to eligible immigrants, and that about 300,000 of the recipients had actually resettled in the United States.

The 336,000 eligible for entry into the United States comprised about 30 per cent of all European displaced persons resettled, and was the largest number taken by any nation. Total cost of the resettlement program has been estimated at $100,601,000.

About 46 per cent of the displaced persons admitted to the United States by last January were Roman Catholic, 35 per cent were Protestant and Orthodox church, 19 per cent were Jews, and about 1 per cent were "other and unknown."

A final report, covering four years of operation, is being prepared by the Displaced Persons Commission and will probably be ready for release before its expiration date.

All chance for a new displaced persons program this year ended with the enactment of the McCarran-Walter Immigration Law.

Rebuilding of Beth Israel Is Begun

Work has been started on the rebuilding and renovation of Temple Beth Israel, Benjamin Eiman, building committee chairman, announced this week.

The entire Temple will be redecorated, with remodeling of the auditorium scheduled for completion in time for the high holidays. The auditorium will seat 300. New modern classrooms will be built for the Sunday Hebrew School classes. New facilities will include a modern kitchen and a stage.

The building committee includes Leo Grossman, Ira Galkin, Joseph Fowler, Irving Brodsky, Charles G. Greenstein and Marshall B. Marcus.

Israel Indemnity Draft Approved

THE HAGUE, Netherlands — Agreement was announced last week on the first draft of a treaty under which West Germany will pay Israel compensation believed to total $715,000,000 for Jewish victims of Nazism.

Gershon Avner, spokesman of the Israeli delegation to the compensation conference here, said the treaty would be kept secret "until we have explained it to the Jewish people."

No agreement has been announced as yet on the treaty between the West Germans and the world Jewry delegation to the conference. It is expected that the delegation representing Jews around the world will accept the German offer of $107,000,000.

There was no official indication of the sum agreed on for Israel, but it is believed that Israel has accepted the German offer of $715,000,000 in goods.

Avner estimated that the final and agreed English text of the treaty with Israel would be ready in about 12 days.

It was learned that the combined sum covering both the Israel and world Jewry claims would be paid to Israel in the form of goods.

Israel then will retain the goods and pay the world Jewry delegation its share in cash.

Hungary, Rumania Remove Children In Jewish Homes

ZURICH—Reports of the separation of Jewish children from their parents in Hungary and Rumania have been received here from Vienna. It is said that Jewish parents in these two countries are tattooing names and symbols on the bodies of their children to facilitate their recognition later in life in the event of such separation.

According to these reports the Communist-controlled Jewish press in Hungary and Rumania is conducting an incessant propaganda campaign against all elements of the Jewish population who are not engaged in manual labor. In Jewish schools, it is said, teachers seek to discredit such parents in the eyes of their children.

Educator Blames Parents for Bad Advice on Children's Marriage

WILDACRES, N. C.—A leading Jewish teacher of ethics blamed Jewish parents for giving their children the wrong advice when it comes to weighing a marriage proposal. He urged the girls to marry for "the beautiful thing called love" rather than for the material things of life.

Addressing one of the closing sessions of the B'nai B'rith Institute of Judaism here, Rabbi Leo Jung, N. Y. spiritual leader and member of the faculty of Yeshiva University, laid the blame on the parents for the stress put by young people today on material aspects of marriage.

"Where is it written on Mount Sinai or in the Constitution of the U. S. that you must get married with a five-room apartment in a good section of the city?" the Orthodox spiritual leader wanted to know, "or that your husband must earn so and so much money; or that a mink coat is part of a good marriage; or that there must be several karats to the ring, otherwise Rosie will sneer at you; or that there must be a two-tone car?"

"I think all that is abominable!" was Rabbi Jung's blast. "What we do is force our girls, whom we teach the sweetness of purity and all the rest of it, to wait for a bachelor who has waited long enough to have made his pile and have a very good income. And we don't ask what are the consequences."

He recommended that Jewish parents would do better to instruct their daughters: "The only thing that matters is to find a fine, decent, clean upright boy . . . Get married and live in one room. Get married and live without mink coats. Get married without an expensive wedding. Get married without a showy honeymoon. Get married for the beautiful thing called love."

Expedition Finds Old Jewish Papers

CINCINNATI — Documents throwing additional light on the lives of the first Jews in the American colonies have been discovered by a West Indies expedition sponsored by the American Jewish Archives of the Hebrew Union College—Jewish Institute of Cincinnati.

The documents include a power of attorney for Mordecai Gomes, issued by his brother, Jacob Gomes, in 1718. The legal paper, found in the court house at Barbadoes, deals with the affairs of the Gomes family, which was prominent in business in New York City in the 1700-1720 period.

Many of the Jews who came to the American colonies from Brazil by way of the West Indies returned to the West Indies after passing several years in what is now the United States.

Dr. Jacob R. Marcus, who is director of the archives and is also the Adolph S. Ochs professor of Jewish history at the institute, led the expedition. He was accompanied by Dr. Ferdinand I. Isserman, rabbi of Temple Israel, St. Louis, Mo.; and Rabbi and Mrs. Theodore S. Levy, of Huntington, W. Va.

The aim of the expedition was to discover documents and other data bearing on the history of those Jews in the West Indies, who became the first members of their faith to settle in what is now the United States.

They were driven from Brazil in 1654 and some of them went to Barbadoes, Jamaica, Curacao as well as to New Amsterdam, now New York City.

The documents and other material discovered will be of interest in connection with the celebration, in 1954, of the 300th anniversary of the arrival of these Jews in America.

Dr. Marcus said that the members of the expedition found in Barbadoes the tombstone of the first rabbi who officiated in the United States. He was Haim Isaac Carigal, believed to have come to Newport, R. I., in 1773 as a wandering scholar.

Israel Determined To Move Ministry

TEL AVIV—Israel still is determined to move its Foreign Ministry from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem despite disapproval by several countries including the United States, a Foreign Ministry spokesman said last week.

The spokesman reaffirmed that the move depended solely on the completion of suitable quarters now being built. The government proclaimed Jerusalem as the capital two years ago and most of its government departments are headquartered there now.

Questioned at a press conference, the spokesman said that in addition to an American note submitted last June disapproving of the proposed move, representatives from Britain, France, Italy, Australia and Turkey had informed Israel of their governments' views on the move. He did not say what the views were, but they are known to have contained disapproval.

 Actually, the amendment calls for an increase in the number of rabbinical members of the Waad Hacashruth of Providence, Inc. from four to six. Monday's election brings that number to five, with the post formerly held by the late Rabbi Morris G. Silk of Congregation Ahavath Sholom remaining vacant.

Lexington Honors Immigrant Tailor On 78th Birthday

BOSTON—The entire town of historic Lexington, cradle of the American revolution, turned out this week to honor a Jewish immigrant tailor on his 78th birthday.

The celebration, originally planned by the Lexington Minutemen, an organization to preserve Colonial landmarks, to mark Julius Seltzer's birthday, quickly burgeoned out into a town affair. The Lexington Historical Society was given permission to join as were other communal groups, including the chamber of commerce.

Seltzer who emigrated to the United States from his native Austria in 1905, is believed to be the first Jewish resident of Lexington and the first Jewish businessman there. He was one of the founders of the Minutemen organization and is now its commander emeritus. He is vice-president of the historical society. A personal seven-year campaign by Seltzer resulted in the erection of a Minuteman memorial dedicated in 1949.

Congress Urges No Withdrawal

NEW YORK—The withdrawal of four-power occupation troops in Austria and the restoration of full Austrian sovereignty will constitute a very grave risk of neo-Nazi revival in that country unless guarantees are executed embodying Austrian commitments to insure the discharge of all democratic obligations, Dr. Israel Goldstein, president of the American Jewish Congress, declared Sunday in a message to Secretary of State Dean Acheson. Citing newspaper reports of an Austrian appeal for American aid in the termination of the occupation, Dr. Goldstein declared: "This request comes with ill grace so soon after the United States felt constrained to condemn legislation recently passed by the Austrian Parliament which seeks to restore property and civic rights to former active Nazis."

Cranston took the measure of Waldorf Tuxedo Monday, 5-4 in a game that went only five innings. Wildness on the part of Bill DeVecchio, who walked home three runs in the fifth and last inning, was the main factor in the win. Bill walked nine men in all and gave up seven hits, but was tight in the clutch outside of the one bad inning. Cranston left 11 men on base.

Mickler and Stepak had two hits each for the winners. Davidson, the winning pitcher, was equally wild, giving up seven walks and six hits, but he struck out six. Leonard, Stan Lobel, Aiello and Weintraub were best for the losers.

Waldorf tied the game in the sixth but the umpires called the game before Cranston batted in its half of the inning.

This was one of the worst umpiring jobs of the many years of the league. Both on the bases and behind the plate, the umpires didn't seem to know what was going on or what kind of a call to make on the plays. All this led to a rhubarb on every play every inning.

Half of U.S. Jews In Israel Decide to Retain U.S. Citizenship

TEL AVIV—Thousands of residents of Israel declared that they did not want to be citizens of Israel and preferred instead to retain their foreign citizenship and passports.

1,000,000 Jews in this country still possessed papers entitling them to citizenship of other countries and of these 20,000 chose to "opt out," reported Dana Adams Schmidt, New York Times correspondent here.

The largest group among those were United States citizens. It is estimated that there have been 5,000 to 6,000 United States immigrants to this country, and that more than half took the steps necessary to retain their citizenship, reported Schmidt.

Yanks Anxious

For two months the United States consulates here and in Jerusalem and Haifa have been besieged by Jewish residents seeking assurance that their papers as United States citizens were in order, the Times reported. They needed the papers to present to Israeli immigration authorities to show they were retaining American citizenship.

In scores of cases, consular officials discovered that residents had lost their citizenship by voting in Israeli elections and for other reasons, according to the N. Y. Times.

The second largest group retaining foreign nationality were French North Africans. In Tunisia and Morocco most Jews have French nationality, which gave the Jews a sense of superiority over the Arab natives, who did not. Now they find it difficult to abandon French passports.

Most others retaining foreign nationality were Western Europeans and immigrants from South Africa. At least one citizen of Kuwait, and hundreds of citizens of Iraq retained their old passports because they hoped it would help them some day recover property they abandoned when emigrating.

Moral Struggle

In almost every case those who retained foreign nationality went through a moral struggle before making the decision, said Schmidt. Some who are completely devoted to this country nevertheless retained foreign passports because it would facilitate obtaining exit permits from Israel.

In many cases, in the opinion of the United States officials here, numerous individuals would have retained their United States citizenship had it not been for the intense social pressure of the collective settlement or other group in which they are living.

TO STUDY SCHOOLS

NEW YORK—A three-year survey of Jewish-sponsored schools and educational institutions in New York City and the surrounding area has been initiated, under the guidance of an advisory board headed by Judge Maximilian Moss, former president of the New York City Board of Education. The survey, the first of such proportion in 15 years, will cover some 600 schools in the city and in Westchester, Nassau and Suffolk counties.

No Arab Betrayal In Friendship

HAMILTON, New York — The United States, Britain and other countries who have taken a friendly attitude toward the State of Israel have not thereby betrayed the cause of Arab freedom, Israel's Ambassador Abba Eban declared here this week in an address before the Conference on Foreign Policy arranged by Colgate University. "Friendship for Israel and friendship for the Arab peoples are not only compatible, they are inseparable concepts," he said. "The Arab states know in their hearts that a nation is not entitled to make its own friendship conditional on the renunciation or denial of other valid partnerships."

Former Nazis Hold Convention

HANOVER, Germany—A secret meeting of some 40 former Nazis who are still active in the underground took place near here last week, it was reported. The Ministry of the Interior of Lower Saxony asserted that it had no information of the meeting. According to reports here, one of the speakers at the underground session urged the audience to remember its "special mission" and its pledge to Hitler, despite the events of the postwar period. The meeting condemned all those who opposed the Hitler regime and closed with the singing of the infamous Horst Wessel song.

Warned Egypt To Protect Jews

TEL AVIV—Leaders of Egyptian Jewry who now reside in Israel have stated here that the chief fomenters of the military revolution in their former homeland are outspokenly anti-Semitic and enemies of the state of Israel but that the American Ambassador to Egypt, Mr. Caffrey, has warned the new rulers of Egypt that they must prevent a recurrence of anti-Jewish riots in that country. About 40,000 Jews still live in Egypt. The deposed King Farouk, it is noted here, had many Jewish friends, among them the Chief Rabbi of Egypt, though he was hostile to the state of Israel.

Society This Week

Hamburg-Werner
 The marriage of Miss Sylvia Werner, daughter of Rabbi and Mrs. David Werner of Congregation Sons of Zion, to Mordechai Hamburg, was announced this week by her parents. The wedding took place Tuesday, August 12 at the Hotel Goldsmith in Jerusalem, Israel, and was performed by leading rabbis, headed by the Chief Rabbi of Jerusalem, Rabbi H. P. Frank.

A party in celebration of the event was held in Providence the same evening at Sons of Zion Synagogue.

Andre Kostelanetz flew to England to conduct the Royal Philharmonic on a tour of the British Isles ...

Comedian-writer-producer Abe Burrows who for years toiled in comparative obscurity and is now a big hit on CBS-TV (and has a couple of smash hits on Broadway at the moment) believes that many a sin of racial bigotry is perpetrated under the guise of humor, and such stuff is strictly out for him, no matter how big a laugh must be sacrificed. Esteemed as a "wit's wit" and a "humorist's humorist," Abe's masterful sense of satire has made him the favorite of Danny Kaye and Groucho Marx.

In response to our question, Maxie Rosenbloom tells us how he became a comedian. "I've always wanted to be on the stage," he said. "I didn't want to do Hamlet, so I did the next best thing ... Omelette! ... I laid eggs! I'd do anything. Act, dance, assist magicians, anything to make a buck. And that's all I'd make ... a buck. When I started going places in the ring, I had to forget my theatrical career. One day, while I was champ, I was training in California, and a producer came to watch me. He put me in a picture. Warner Brothers saw the film ... and the next day I was signed up. I was a comedian. It says so in my contract!"

Harry Hershfield advocated a "laugh period" as part of every college curriculum the other day when he was awarded a "Doctor of Humor" degree by the College of the City of New York. In making the presentation, the college president said: "Doctor of Humor is a most appropriate title for Harry. Doctor in its colloquial sense has always referred to a healer. Through the many years Harry has been a ranking comedian of importance, has always managed to have a ready laugh, a jovial joke, to cheer and inspire the weary and disheartened."

Every topranking comedian in America knows that medical science has not yet been able to equal Harry's brilliant ability to take a joke over 100 years old, refurbish it, polish it, and present it to the world as a newborn infant, and listen to the squalls of hilarious laughter to herald the birth of something new being added.

In the play-offs Max was yanked from the game early in the contest and he expressed resentment. He apparently thought that on the basis of his performance he should have been left in.

Brandeis Recruiting?
Brandeis University is reported to be using traditional "big time" college recruiting methods in getting athletes to enroll. The University has denied that such techniques are being used. But despite these denials, people who know what is going on in the world of sports contend that Brandeis is out scouting for top football and basketball talent.

Although it denied granting athletic subsidies, the University acknowledged recently that scholarships were being given to "students who combine high academic standing with athletic ability." The University insists that there is no lowering of academic standards involved.

Nevertheless, it is known that people connected with Brandeis are continuously on the lookout throughout the country for promising athletes, Jewish and non-Jewish, who can be induced to go to Brandeis. This is the common practice that has led many of our well known universities to recruiting athletes on a wholesale basis with newspaper publicity and fat gate receipts coming before scholastic considerations.

Zaslowsky May Retire
One of the nation's great basketball players, Max Zaslowsky, may be retiring from professional ball. Zaslowsky, who stars for the New York Knickerbockers, has been considering taking a job with a business concern. This is a decision that many athletes take at one time or another. However, what makes this case particularly outstanding is that the decision may be more of a negative one than a positive one. Zaslowsky may be more interested in getting out of basketball than in getting into something else.

This column reported earlier in the season that Zaslowsky appeared to be discriminated against on the Knicks. Then the situation seemed to change for the better, and Zaslowsky was used regularly near the end of the season. He piled up an admirable record, especially in the play-offs. But at one point

Editorial Views On The News

BY FRANK SIMONS

(An American Jewish Press Feature)

Jewish federations and welfare funds are more than mere cash registers.

That is the view of the Wisconsin Jewish Chronicle, which commends Herbert R. Abeles, chairman of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds Committee on National-Local Relations, for the following statement:

"It seems to me—and to many others—that our federations and welfare funds have the same responsibility for assuring the best use of the dollars that go out of our communities as those we keep and put to work in our own cities—the same responsibility for avoiding duplication and waste, for making sure that the most efficient methods are developed for concentrating our funds on the top priorities.

"Is there any logic," asks Abeles, "in weighing carefully every cent we allocate to our local agencies, following it with an eagle eye to make sure that we squeeze every ounce of value from it, while on the other hand dispatching thousands and millions of dollars to national and overseas agencies and then forgetting about them once the envelope has been sealed?"

The Modern Moses.

That is the description of Jacob Blaustein in the Jewish Times (Maryland). Blaustein, president of the American Jewish Committee and a member of the committee of the Conference on Jewish Material Claims Against Germany, is praised for his work on behalf of the State of Israel.

Arguments over why Ana Pauker was suddenly relieved of her high position in the Rumanian government are still being waged.

Discounted by the Jewish Floridian are the assumptions that her enforced "resignation" came as a result of Mrs. Pauker's incompetence or that the question of her allegiance to the Kremlin became a spontaneous issue among higher Communist echelons as "it can not be assumed that the Reds act according to obvious political principles."

The Floridian believes that Mrs. Pauker's downfall is associated with her Jewishness as she symbolizes one of the few remaining Jewish representatives in the Soviet machine.

Soviet officials declare that Mrs. Pauker was removed because of her part in the illegal traffic of Jewish emigration to Israel.

If the Communist accusation is true, the Floridian declares, then Mrs. Pauker is guilty of having recognized that Jews "constitute a specific spiritual individuality which can never give way to the faceless mediocrity that must be Communist society, that Jews instinctively resisted the effort to grind them into a common unquestioning mold and that the ideal of Zionist Israel represented something for them far more valuable than the Soviet regime.

"But such conjecture merely places upon Communist Pauker the onus of an idealism probably never felt," concludes the editorial.

"By increasing the charity tax deduction from 15% to 20, the Government has not only made it possible for additional funds to flow into the treasuries of all organized philanthropic endeavor, but in a measure, has also indicated what in the eyes of the Government is the proper approach for the average citizen towards his charitable responsibilities," points out the Jewish Exponent (Philadelphia).

This step has been taken despite the tremendous national debt and in the very face of the ever mounting cost of government, the Exponent explains.

The sum total spent by the American people for charitable purposes during 1949 was a little less than one-sixth of the potential amount available from allowable tax deductions.

"In other words," declares the Exponent, "how much more could be done for philanthropy, for the advancement of science and for the furtherance of education if the American people would gauge their generosity by the standard set by our Government."

Invite Israel To Geographic Meet

WASHINGTON—An invitation has been extended to the state of Israel to participate in the concurrent meetings of the 17th International Geographic Congress and International Geographic Union which will convene this month in Washington. The purpose of the union is to encourage the free exchange of ideas among geographers of all countries and to initiate researches requiring international cooperation.

Note Drop In Bias Complaints

NEW YORK—A drop in complaints of bias received by the State Commission Against Discrimination during the first six months of 1952 as compared with the same period of 1951 was disclosed this week by Edward W. Edwards, commission chairman, in his semi-annual report. The commission received a total of 139 new complaints as against 159 in the first six months of 1951.

Small Home Plan Available

by Penny Hazell

The house plan I am presenting today brings out the proud parent in me. Yes, it was designed by my sons. It is a house that is attractive, practical, liveable, and what's more—economical to build.

The house is NEW in design—as new as this morning's dream. It is a conservative contemporary type home made of white wood siding and field stone or ledge rock. The exterior is a bit austere—at least at the front. This is because the living is almost entirely concentrated at the rear and the expense of a lavish front view is unnecessary when such is the case. Frankly, I like the neat tidy appearance of the flat roof and the high windows, as well as the stone wall that sports one's last initial.

But it is the floor plan that really catches my eye. First, we come into an ambidextrous little hall that plays more parts in our life than the hero of a one-man show. See, it contains a coat closet that has handy sliding doors. This eliminates the problem of dancing around the hall trying not to get bumped when more than two people are passing by.

The big living room (and I do mean huge) has glass walls (all made of standard sized panes) running almost completely around the outside. It is a spot of total light and cheer but also one that can be treated elegantly when the placement of - of - furniture problem arises. The big fireplace will warm up the room on wintry nights especially when the chintz drapes are pulled across the windows. In summer, however, one will have the feeling of living right in the garden for the views of the terrace and the yard will be complete.

The dining area is an adjunct of the living room—an economy measure that I like. As for the kitchen—

It is a tidy arrangement that includes all the necessary accoutrements but still fulfills its duty nicely. It is handy, compact, and workable. There is a small lunch nook at one end, just off the terrace. This, too, will provide a marvelous view for little bitties while they munch their peanut butter sandwiches.

Right close by is the room for the washer and automatic dryer in the kitchen proper, we don't have to have either a basement or too large utility room. Another thought for economy.

There are three bedrooms in this one-story home. Two smaller and one Master. All of them have full closets and oodles of windows. The larger bedroom has the high ones all around the two sides. Yes, this will be wonderful on hot and humid nights.

The bath is real handy and there is a linen closet in the small hall. As every room in the house opens onto this little hall, the lady of the house can reach the front door with few steps regardless of where she may be.

If you'd like complete building blueprints of this lovely home, including a specification sheet, they are available at $5.00 for the first set and $3.50 for each additional set of the same number. Just send your check or money order to Penny's Small Homes, Box 1055, Berkley, Michigan. Please allow at least two weeks for delivery.

Cinema Sayings

Arthur Rubenstein: "The man who rests on his laurels usually rusts on them."

Shelley Winters: "A girl can always live on love, if he is rich."

Paulette Goddard: "Girls who offer no resistance lead a very nice existence."

Mary Livingstone: "What some women want for their birthday is not to be reminded of it."

Clifton Fadiman: "When some people pay you a compliment, they look as though they expected a receipt for it."

Norman Corwin: "Some people don't lie; they merely present the truth in such a way that nobody recognizes it."

Joey Adams: "It's strange the President doesn't do better, what with all the advice from the newspapers."

Ben Hecht: "Wealth doesn't change a man even though his rudeness becomes eccentricity and his vulgarity becomes a wit."

George S. Kaufman: "The human race seems to have improved everything except people."

Ben Grauer: "Radio is a device to teach mankind the blessings of silence."

Charlie Chaplin: "Television is within the reach of all, and it's strange more aren't smashed."

Mervyn Le Roy: "Doctors think a lot of patients are cured who have simply quit in disgust."

Billy Rose: "Blessed are the pure for they shall inhibit the earth."

Lou Holtz: "The best way to make your relatives think a lot of you is to make a fortune and then drop dead."

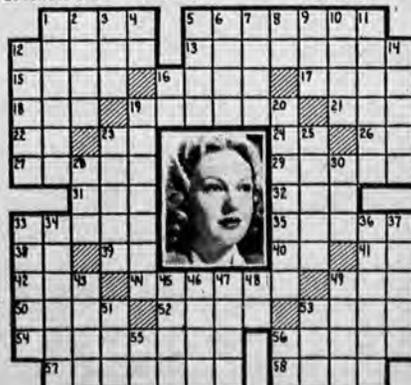

The Herald's deadline for news items is Tuesday noon.

Britons Fight Protests On Ritual Slaughter

LONDON — The Schechitah Committee of the Board of Deputies of British Jews reported widening propaganda by "humane societies" for the abolition of Jewish ritual slaughter.

The Committee simultaneously revealed that it was gathering evidence from eminent veterinarians to prove that shechitah was as humane a method of slaughtering animals as any, if not superior.

Group To Aid Refugee Migration

GENEVA—The Provisional Inter-Governmental Committee on Migration will assist in the resettlement in Israel of 2,000 European Jews who have left their home countries since August 1st, Hugh Gibson, director of the agency, announced this week. Under agreements between the intergovernmental agency and the State of Israel, Jewish organizations will handle pre-embarkation arrangements and the intergovernmental body, the actual transportation. The cost of this program to the committee—the first project involving emigration to Israel—was estimated at $108,000. Jews seeking refuge from behind the Iron Curtain are expected to be the chief beneficiaries.

Civil Rights Planks Weak But the Cause Is Advanced

By ROBERT E. SEGAL

The cold words of platform planks show a loss for civil rights this year. But the importance of the issue and the sweat spilled in writing around it add up to new gains. If you look at the matter as pure bookkeeping—which party entered what on the record—you see red ink.

That's only part of the story, however. We have advanced because the practical politicians who have the machinery of government in their hands know for sure now that millions of Americans eventually will force the enactment of effective civil rights laws. The bottleneck holding up federal civil rights legislation is the filibuster. Fully aware of this fact of political life, the Leadership Conference on Civil Rights—the unpopular but courageous representatives of those groups dedicated to work for equality of opportunity—led off with an anti-filibuster demand.

This group, working for the elimination of the late Senator Wherry's filibuster monument—S-Rule 22—asked both the Republican and Democratic parties to "pledge to take action on the opening day of the 83rd Congress in January, 1953, to obtain adoption of rules in the Senate that will permit a majority of Senators present and voting to limit and close debate so that the Senate may proceed to a vote on any pending matter after there has been reasonable opportunity for full debate."

The Republicans dodged this challenge, saying that: "All American citizens are entitled to full, impartial enforcement of Federal laws relating to their civil rights."

The Democrats did a little better by devoting a section of their platform to the improvement of Congressional procedures, stating: "In order that the will of the American people may be expressed upon all legislative proposals, we urge that action be taken at the beginning of the 83rd Congress to improve Congressional procedures so that majority rule prevails and decisions can be made after reasonable debate without being blocked by a minority in either house."

As to job discrimination legislation, the Leadership Conference asked the platform writers to "pledge the enactment of Federal legislation prohibiting discrimination in employment because of race, color, religion or national origin" and to "establish a Federal agency empowered to enforce that prohibition."

To which plea the Republicans replied: "We believe that it is the primary responsibility of each state to order and control its own domestic institutions. . . . However, we believe that the Federal government should take supplemental jurisdiction to oppose discrimination against race, religion or national origin. . . . We will prove our good faith by—enacting federal legislation to further just and equitable treatment in the area of discriminatory employment practices. Federal action should not duplicate state efforts to end such practice and should not set up another huge bureaucracy."

A "Phony" Protest
In this instance also, despite Senator Russell's phony cry of "jail-sentence" FEPC legislation (a cry coming with bad grace from the leader of a state in which, according to the law, a white person can be jailed for riding in a Negro-operated taxi), the Democrats did a little better than the Republicans, stating in their platform: "We favor federal legislation effectively to secure these rights to everyone: the right to equal opportunity for employment. . . . We also favor legislation to perfect existing Federal civil rights statutes and to strengthen the administrative machinery for the protection of civil rights."

So it is that the conservatives in the Republican party and their political cousins in the Democratic party have again succeeded in whittling promises of civil rights progress to sickly splinters—the price liberals in both parties have been charged for the promise of keeping the respective political coalitions intact.

But the fight is only beginning. It will continue with ever-increasing vigor. Eventually, we shall have FEPC laws in many more than the nine states that now have them; and eventually, we shall have civil rights progress in the Federal government. For most of the people desire as much; and our recent political conventions have reassured us that ours is a government of most of the people.

Imogene Coca at Theatre-By-The-Sea

The biggest theatrical event of the year will take place at the Theatre-By-The-Sea, Matunuck on Monday night when Imogene Coca opens in "Happy Birthday". Miss Coca has become America's best loved comedienne through the newest of the entertainment mediums, television. Co-starred with Sid Caesar on the Saturday night comedy highlight, "Your Show of Shows", the tiny funstress is making one appearance this summer and that is at the Theatre-By-The-Sea.

Imogene Coca's rise to sensational heights of popularity was meteoric and she is unquestionably the first lady of TV. In the space of a few short years her comic caricatures of an inexhaustible variety from the carefree little hobo to the heroine of a French movie have become familiar to millions of people throughout the Nation.

The play, "Happy Birthday", was written by Anita Loos as a vehicle for Helen Hayes. Produced by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II it opened in October of 1946 and ran for 563 performances. The story revolves around a shy librarian troubled by a drunken father and with a passion for a blond bank teller. Wandering into a bar, she takes the first drink of her life and encouraged by its warm glow, follows it with several more. This leads to a riotous and inebriated evening, in which she is born into a fantastic world of romance, excitement and gaiety.

Opening Monday night, Imogene Coca and "Happy Birthday" will be shown nightly through Saturday with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

To Spend $640,000 For New Center

YOUNGSTOWN—Ground was broken here this week for the new Jewish Community Center Building to serve the Youngstown community. The edifice will cost $640,000 and will be erected on a 13-acre site in Youngstown's North Side. The building will contain offices, library and meeting rooms, class rooms, a gymnasium and other facilities. Provision for subsequent addition of an auditorium is made in the center plans.

Here's money-making NEWS about your U. S. Defense Bonds!

New law gives your Series E Bonds ten more interest-bearing years!

CONGRESS HAS PASSED A NEW LAW that now makes it possible for all United States Series E Bonds to continue earning interest ten years longer. There is nothing for you to do. Simply hold your bonds and they'll go on earning. You may still cash your bonds at any time after the first sixty days you have held them. But holding your bonds is the smart thing to do! For your government bonds are as safe as America itself.

Money you put into U. S. Bonds regularly and leave there is steadily growing into a larger and larger sum. And now, too, remember, your Series E Bonds earn 3% interest compounded semiannually when you hold them to maturity!

So if you have bonds which are coming due this month, remember the new money-making chance your government is giving you. Just hold onto your bonds and they'll go on earning for you. In the meantime keep up your regular saving with more U. S. Defense Bonds—through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work. It's the easy, systematic saving plan that lets you save before you draw your pay.

3 new money-making opportunities for you! New Series H, J, and K Defense Bonds pay 2.76% to 3%!

If you want to get the interest on your bonds in the form of current income, or if you want to invest more than the annual limit for E Bonds, ask at your bank about these new bonds:

SERIES H. A new current-income bond, available in denominations of $500 to $10,000. Sold at par. Matures in 9 years 8 months and pays approximately 3% interest per annum if held to maturity. Interest paid semiannually by Treasury check. Annual limit, $20,000 maturity value. Issued only by Federal Reserve Banks and Branches and at the Treasury.

SERIES J. A new 12-year appreciation bond, available in denominations of $25 to $100,000. Sold at 72% of par value. Pays 2.76% compounded semiannually if held to maturity. Annual limit, $200,000 issue price jointly with Series K Bonds.

SERIES K. A new 12-year current-income bond in denominations of $500 to $100,000. Pays interest semiannually by Treasury check at the rate of 2.76% per annum. Sold at par. Annual limit, $200,000 issue price jointly with Series J Bonds.

Now even better! Invest more in Defense Bonds!

Jessel to Visit Israel for UJA

George Jessel, film producer, prominent comedian and star of stage and screen, will make his first visit to Israel August 20 as part of his overseas fact-finding survey mission for the United Jewish Appeal which will prepare him for an extensive speaking tour in behalf of the UJA's fall campaign. Mr. Jessel, who will be accompanied by his daughter, Jerlynn, will meet with top-ranking officials and officers of the Jerusalem Government to get on-the-spot accounts of Israel's economic shortages. During his travels throughout Israel, the well-known comedian will take time out to star in a motion picture short which will be used in helping to raise the vast sums required to aid the new democracy.

Investors In Israel To Get Guarantee

JERUSALEM — The United States has agreed to guarantee private American investors in Israel's industrial and agricultural development that they will get their money back in dollars, the Foreign Office announced this week.

The Foreign Office said Monnett B. Davis, U. S. ambassador, and Moshe Sharett, Israeli foreign minister, had signed an agreement providing insurance against loss by expropriation and risk of not being able to convert profit and principal into dollars.

Under the announced plan prospective American investors in Israel must receive approval of the project from the Israeli government investment center and then negotiate a contract of guarantee with the Mutual Security Agency in Washington. If at a future time, the investors should find it necessary to ask that the guarantee be made good, the American government would pay them in dollars and take over the claims against the Israeli government. After that the claims would be handled on a diplomatic level.

4,964 Immigrants In First 6 Months

NEW YORK—A total of 4,964 Jewish immigrants entered the United States during the first six months of this year, it was reported here by Ben Touster, president of the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society. The report, reviewing six months' activities of the organization, said that 2,190 of the Jewish immigrants were discharged to HIAS by U. S. immigration officials.

The Germans Want A Ceremony

From Munich it was reported that the representatives of the West German Government, who are soon to sign an agreement with Jewish representatives for the payment of reparations to Jews for the wholesale loot of the property by the Nazis, would like to have the agreement signed with ceremonial pomp at which Chancellor Konrad Adenauer should preside. The dispatch further stated that the representatives of Israel and of the Conference on Jewish Material Claims Against Germany are balking at this, would like to see the agreements signed at The Hague without any ceremony.

The feeling of the Jewish representatives in this matter will be shared by Jews the world over. What the Germans did to the Jews during the last war—the slaughter of the six millions — is something so terrifying that it cannot and will not be forgotten for as long as we can look forward into the future. Germany's crime against the Jews was of such staggering proportions that when the matter of negotiating with the Germans for material reparations came up last year there was bitter opposition in many Jewish quarters against negotiating with Germans in the first place. It was with a heavy heart that Jewish representatives finally entered into these negotiations, feeling that while the six million dead cannot be brought back to life again the plight of the living victims of German savagery can at least be eased somewhat through material compensation from the country which brought on their terrible suffering.

The Government of West Germany may be sincere in its desire to re-establish friendship with the Jewish people. But as long as Jews know that there are still many both in West and in East—the Communist-controlled—Germany who helped inflict these unimaginable sufferings upon their brethren, some of whom are even now occupying governmental posts, they cannot accept the German out-stretched hand. For Jews the signing of the reparations agreement at The Hague will have to be a quiet affair, without ceremonial pomp, a sad reminder of the events that made such reparations necessary. Only time can heal the spiritual wound inflicted by Germany upon world Jewry through the physical destruction of one-third of our people.

Background of a Name

Ad'lai, Father of Shaphat, Who Lived in David's Time

By PHILIP SLOMOVITZ

There is nothing mysterious about the first name of the Democratic candidate for President, Ad'lai—in Hebrew it is spelled ayin, daled, lamed, yud—with the kametz in the second syllable pronounced sephardically ay and ashkenazically oy. Since Mr. Stevenson spells his name with an ai, the sephardic pronunciation is the correct one.

The name Ad'lai appears in the 29th verse of the 27th chapter of the First Book of Chronicles. Here is the Hebrew text and the English translation:

בְּעַל הַנָּחַל הַגָּדוֹל וְעַל-אֲגָרוֹת הַשְּׂמֹן וְיִשָּׁשׁ
הַבְּקָר הַרְעִים בְּשֹׁאֵן שְׂטַרְיָ וְעַל-הַבְּקָר בְּעִמְקִים
שֶׁבֶט בְּיַעֲרֵי לְ וְעַל-הַגְּמִלִים אֲבִיבֵל הַיִּשְׁמַעֲלִי ל

"And over the herds that fed in Sharon was Shirtai the Sharonite; and over the herds that were in the valleys was Shaphat the son of Adlai."

This reference to Adlai was in the year 2720 on the Hebrew calendar (1040 B.C.)—2992 years ago.

The meaning of "Adlai" as given in the Biblical Concordance is lax, or weary. Nowhere else, however, could we locate anything either to substantiate or to judge, Adlai's son, Shaphat, having been one of King David's governors of a province.

Stevenson was given his first name by his paternal grandfather, who was Vice-President in Grover Cleveland's second administration and who acquired his name from a forefather on his mother's side, Adlai Osborne.

On Sept. 3, 1892, Harper's Weekly, New York, published this advertisement, referring to the 1952 Presidential candidate's grandfather:

PERSONAL

The given name ADLAI, which many people who do not read the Bible became familiar with for the first time when Mr. STEVENSON was nominated at Chicago, and which is in very infrequent use in this country, has been a favorite appellation in the STEVENSON family, and is now borne by several members besides the Democratic Vice-Presidential candidate. They spell it ADLEY, however, which represents the modern pronunciation of the word better than the regular orthography, and is entitled to consideration if Professor FRANCIS J. CHILD'S dictum is true—that "any way of spelling is better than the ordinary way."

—Mr. JULIAN RALPH, whose articles on the development of the great West are now running in Harper's Magazine,

—Courtesy New York Public Library

Thus, an overseer of herds in the lowlands of David's Kingdom has handed down his name to a man who may be the next President of the United States.

On Biblical Names For Children

By ALFRED SEGAL

I like the way "Ike" has become a great name in the world and I am not speaking as a partisan. This is a piece only about the name—"Ike"! It has brought a man toward the Presidency of the U. S., by a fetching slogan . . . "I like Ike."

I recall the rhythmic shouting . . . "Ike" . . . "Ike" . . . "Ike" . . . by the multitude when the Ike train arrived at the Chicago railway station . . . until "Ike" became like something hypnotic—a steady drumbeat on the senses.

May Start New Vogue

Until the time of this Ike the name "Ike" practically had fallen out of currency among the descendants of the original Ike. I mean the Isaac who was the son of Abraham by Sarah, born to them when Abraham was 100 years old. The few among us who still carry the grand old name are of the older generation, which is going on to join their patriarchal namesake.

Genesis reports the happy matter of his birth, saying: "And Sarah said, God hath made me laugh, so that all that hear will laugh with me." She was laughing so joyously because she had borne a son to Abraham even when he was 100 years old . . . "And she said, Who would have said unto Abraham that Sarah should have given his children suck, for I have borne him a son in his old age."

"And Abraham called the name of his son Isaac." (Isaac which in Hebrew is Yizchok and means laughter.)

Through several millenia Isaac was a revered ancestor of Jewish people and his name was carried on from fathers to their sons . . . Isaac Ben Abba Mari . . . Isaac Ben Abraham Latif . . . Isaac Ben Eliezer Halevi . . . Isaac Albalag . . . Isaac of Norwich . . . I count 32 of such distinguished Isaacs in the Universal Jewish Encyclopedia. Jewish boys were happy to be Isaac and their families rejoiced in the inheritance.

Then Came "Irving"

Then there came a time when Jewish families to which the name Isaac had come from Isaacs who were their grandfathers, hesitated. A new child had arrived in the family and his father, mother, aunts and uncles consulted: "What shall we name this boy? Of course, maybe we should call him Isaac on account of his grandpa, selig, but would that be fair to the child. To call him Isaac would mark him, you might say, point him out, the way prejudice points at anything that's Jewish. And if we did name him for his grandpa, selig, soon they'll be calling him Ike, and that would be terrible."

So, after thinking on the matter, this way and that, they called the boy Isidore, a name that derives from the Greek meaning "gift of Isis" and Isis was a god of the ancient Egyptians. Or the little boy was named Irving or Irwin. His parents said, "Well, Irving isn't exactly Isaac but, then it begins with an 'I' like Isaac, and that should please Grandpa."

Not alone did the name Isaac fall into disrespect among the heirs of the Old Testament. A girl, who by inheritance could have been Rebecca, became Betty; a boy, who could as well have been Moses, turned out to be Morton or Montgomery.

Abraham was converted to Abelard, a man of the 11th Century who after an unhappy romance became a monk. Jacob became Jay.

Dwight Became Ike

Yet, among non-Jews there was no such avoidance of Biblical names. Non-Jewish girls feel adorned by the name of Rebecca, Rachael or Deborah, and long ago in Abilene, Kan., a small boy christened Dwight didn't mind at all being called Ike instead. He grew up on it and became a distinguished character.

The other week, "Ike" was big in all the headlines. Proud Americans carried it on their coats on badges three inches wide; they had it painted on top of their straw hats, flaunted it on banners. When finally Ike was nominated the public relations people said the simple reiteration of "Ike" on every tongue had a lot to do with it.

From here on to November it's going to be "Ike" in the headlines every day, "Ike" on radio and "Ike" on television. "Ike" on all tongues. And maybe after November it will be Ike in the White House.

(The original Isaac on high may be himself laughing to see his name practically being born again, just as his mother laughed when he was born.)

Not Without Fault

I, myself, am not without fault among the many who avoid Biblical names for their children. What did I do for names for my own three sons? Only one of them is out of the Bible. He is Joe. The others are Bernard and Willard, who are not to be found anywhere in our Testament. (And I, myself, by inheritance am really Abraham.)

By way of contrition I am writing this to rally all prospective parents toward Biblical names for their children—names like Isaac, Abraham and Jacob, names like Joshua and maybe Zebulun, Zarchariah or Jeremiah.

Promises a Rattle

I promise a rattle to any and all the fortunate infants who are named that way. All the parents need do is to notify this paper that they have just acquired an Isaac in their family, and have so named him. This newspaper will get in touch with me and I shall promptly ship the rattle to Isaac.

Thus, I hope to inaugurate a movement back to Biblical names. Maybe in time I will have among my own grandchildren an Amminadab, a Zurishadda, an Elisahama, an Eliaseph. (You can find these names in the Book of Numbers.) Anyway, recent political experience suggests that an Ike can go places, and far.

Jewish Athletes From 13 Countries Competed In Olympics

HELSINKI—Jewish competitors wearing the colors of 13 countries made a disappointing showing in the 15th International Olympic Games. Representatives of the National Jewish Welfare Board's Committee on Health and Physical Education, serving as Olympic officials here, kept a sport-by-sport tally of the Jewish athletes—recording their performances in the various events of the Olympiad.

In the track-and-field competition, the central feature of the classic international sports festival, not a single Jewish athlete, from any country, earned a medal. The closest approach was made by Raymond Weinberg, crack Australian hurdler, who finished fifth in the finals of the 110-meter high hurdles (and thus became an unofficial point scorer). Another near-medalist was David Tabak, Israel's ace sprinter, who moved into the third rounds of both the 100-meter and 200-meter dashes, winning his first qualifying heats in both events only to succumb in the quarter-finals.

The best performance by a Jewish athlete was that turned in by Olympic veteran Henry Wittenberg of New York, a member of JWB's Health and Physical Education Committee and of the 92nd Street YMHA. Defending his '48 Olympic light-heavyweight wrestling title, Wittenberg, captain of the United States Olympic Wrestling Team, had to be content with second place in his specialty.

In addition to Weinberg and Tabak, Jewish athletes who gave a good account of themselves in track-and-field events although they failed to break into the select of medalists were:

ISRAEL BARAN of Finland, fourth in a first-round 100-meter dash heat.

ALBERT DIJAN of France, fifth in a first-round heat of the 800-meter run and MORRIS CUROTTA of Australia, who ran in the 400-meter race.

M. GILL of Israel, sixth in another first-round heat of the 800-meter run.

MARTIN ENGEL of N.Y.U. and a member of the Jewish Community House of Bensonhurst (Brooklyn), who qualified for the final round of the hammer throw, but went unplaced.

The Israeli basketball team, which was the object of a good deal of interest and attention, and which was prepared for the Olympic competition by Coach Morris "Tubby" Raskin of Brooklyn College, suffered two defeats and was eliminated.

Iloana Elek of Hungary, winner of the women's foils title in the 1936 and 1948 Olympiads, finished second in that event, with Karen Lachman, a Danish Jewess, taking third while Ellen Muller-Preis of Austria was eliminated in the semi-finals. Donald Sheff of Yale and a member of the Jewish Community House of Bensonhurst, Brooklyn, swam on the U. S. 800-meter relay team which won its qualifying round but together with the other three men who put the U. S. into the final round, Sheff was replaced by the coach in the final which was won by the U. S.

The three events of the fencing competition—sabre, epee, and foils—saw the largest contingent of Jewish competitors, fourteen swordsmen being American Jews. Among them was Norman Armitage, five-time Olympian, to whom fell the signal honor of leading the United States delegation in the opening parade.

Theft of Scrolls Arouses Orthodoxy

NEW YORK—Orthodox Jews in Brooklyn and Manhattan have been aroused by the latest in a long series of thefts of Scrolls of the Law, Sefer Torahs, that have been occurring for many months past in these two boroughs. The latest theft, which occurred early last Sunday morning, was three scrolls which were taken from the Congregation Shevath Ahim Anshe Sfard, 276 Buffalo Avenue, Brooklyn. It is rumored that these scrolls are being re-sold in what appear to be legal transactions.

Anti-Semitism Up In Germany

LONDON—Anti-Semitism is increasing in Germany but the anti-Semites are still a minority. Erich Lueth, originator of the "Peace with Israel" movement in West Germany, told newsmen here.

Anti-Semitism is a political and social problem which must be fought by every Christian personally, not by the churches alone, the International Conference of Christians and Jews was told.

"The Jew is that sacred being who has brought down from Heaven the everlasting fire, and has illumined with it the entire world. He is the religious spring and fountain out of which all the rest of the peoples have drawn their beliefs and their religions."

Facts You Should Know

By RABBI SAMUEL J. FOX

QUESTION: Does a handshake have any significance in Jewish tradition?

ANSWER: A handshake seems to have been one of the ways of making a promise and, according to some sources, one of the ways of making an oath. Some sort of motion like a handshake is indicated in the Bible in a passage from the Book of Proverbs wherein it is mentioned as a means of assuming an obligation toward one's fellow man.

Many marriages were promised by a handshake called "Tekiat Kaf" in the European countries of yesteryear. That happens to be the name of a film produced in Yiddish concerning a marriage that did not come off and subsequently led to misfortune. A Hebrew king by the name of Zedekiah gave his hand to the Babylonian monarch Nebuchadnezzar as a symbol of a promise.

The hand was used as a symbol from the earliest times. We find Abraham swearing his servant Eliezer by the use of the hand. I have heard it said that a hand-shake combines two hands making ten fingers clasped in agreement which symbolize the ten Commandments that signify the agreement between man and God.

Errors, Bad Morale Lost War For Egypt

LONDON—Egypt lost the war to Israel because of strategic errors and bad morale, not because of lack of arms and defective ammunition as claimed now by General Neguib, who forced King Farouk to abdicate, said Brigadier Yigal Allon, former commander of the Palmach, here this week. Palmach is the Israeli striking force which defeated the Egyptians in three Negev campaigns.

"Throughout the campaign no Egyptian post ever surrendered because of its lack of arms" he said. "On the contrary, we often took over large captured supplies and were able to make use of them almost at once."

Fisherman's Paradise

Sometime later after watching independent fishermen rake the bottom of the ocean for quahogs, (an abundant shellfish in this particular area), our fishing trip continued to Rhode Island's fishermen's paradise—Point Judith. At this southern tip of the Narragansett Bay the twin fishing villages of Galilee and Jerusalem, give Rhode Island a respected place in the fish market industry. Here rugged, independent fishermen, wise in the ways of the sea—labor year round at a traditional economy to earn a dollar. The fishermen, masters of their own boats, unload their catch at the

TRAPPED—Wave Ruby Whittle cautiously holds a 3 lb live lobster, typical of the good size shellfish caught off Point Judith.

A Fishing Line To Anglers

by JOHN P. LAMBERT, JOC

Let's face it!—after a two-day fishing jaunt in Narragansett Bay, we returned to Quonset with no fish. Furthermore, we borrowed most of the fish for this picture exhibition. And to ease the suspense, we have no fantastic stories to tell. Didn't even see a fisherman with pole bent to the handle and fighting the end of a line, like a sack full alley cats. However, we're convinced that there is more vertebrate animals between Quonset and Point Judith, than any area of comparable distance.

Working on the theory that "seeing is believing," a mixed party of Station personnel, accompanied this writer last week to get "on the spot tips" from burly seamen whose paycheck depends on just that—fish.

At the invitation of Captain Arnold, of the State Fish and Game Division, we boarded his patrol boat at Quonset and headed down Narragansett Bay. Several miles off the Quonset-Wickford shoreline we spotted a scattered fleet of stout little daggers engaged in commercial fishing. After knifing our way close to the "salty" looking fleet we soon learned that the stout little draggers were towing nets to gather flounder, fluke, whiting, butterfish, hake and cod, or whatever else happened to be running.

70 Tons of Porgies Trapped

Saltwater fishing didn't make much of an impression until the skipper of our boat, CAPT Broz alerted our attention to a "hit". Not one, but about 70 tons of porgies trapped in an enormous net. The ten-man crew of this fishing vessels had been waiting for something like this for three days. For a full hour we watched the rugged sherman tug and pull at the heavy net, closing the fish near the boat into a deep pool of agitated fish. A large scoop with a two-ton capacity was lowered into the bubbling net and started to bring the catch aboard the vessel until loaded to the gun's with the fish. At a processing plant this fish is used to make cat and dog food and oil products.

SURF CASTING IN NARRAGANSETT—The Quonset fishing party found black bass plentiful off the rocky shores of the bay.

MINK FISH is unloaded at Galilee. This species is delivered to mink farms throughout the U. S. (Fishy stories of mink coats not related to the fish.)

80,000 LBS. OF PORGIES—This is typical of R. I. fishing. A scoop with about half-ton of porgies is loaded aboard the Lucy-M. Cat and dog food is made from this fish. Oil is the main product. The big catch was made off Patience Island.

Editor's note: This is a collection of articles on wild liberty, appearing in the Herald reader will find in the fishing world.

Point Judith Fishermen's Co-operative Association. From the Co-op fish is weighed, packed, iced, and trucked to New York, Philadelphia and Washington markets. For the fisherman who enjoys occasional fishing from one of the picturesque village piers, a line may be dropped with a good chance of success. Bass and flounder is the main attraction in that area for the rod and reel fisherman. It is well to note that the best catches of giant tuna, and swordfish, were made between Point Judith and Block Island.

Winding our sea-going fishing jaunt, our captain skillfully turned us around and headed back to Quonset, while hugging the rocky Narragansett Bay shoreline. Among the most important bits of information, we learned that the entire Narragansett Bay area is big bass country, and that flounder is the next best at this particular time of the year.

Fishing For the Fun of It

On the second day of our exploration of good fishing areas, we decided to find out what's in stock for the salt water angler. Coastline fishing from the shores of Narragansett and from piers, is most popular with fishermen looking for the wily striped bass that bounds off shore. Striped bass, the royalty of North Atlantic sport fish, move into R. I. late in April and remain there through the summer months. It climbs to a peak of excellence during Aug., Sept., and Oct.

The Derby
The famous Narragansett Fishing Derby is now on and will continue until Nov. 1. This tournament is broken down into three specific divisions, with prizes valued at more than $3,000 in bonds and merchandise. Servicemen can enter the derby providing they have registered and has his winner weighed at an official weighing station. Fishermen may hit the jackpot with such varieties as, of course, the bass, tuna, tautog, bluefish, flounders, rock bass, cod and pollock. All fish must be taken on rod and reel or hand lines. Fish from all of R. I. are eligible. Additional information will be given at the NAS Public Information Office, for those interested.

Just Drop A Line
During our educational fishing tour we learned from an old weather beaten fisherman that, "the greatest number of bass are caught casting from the rocks or the beaches. Drop your hook and your in business," the fisherman logically remarked. As in all fields the expert usually has the advantage over the novice yet time and again a newcomer turns the trick with a whopper.

To summarize a long fishing story, let us remember one thing—The salt water angler will find most of the hot spots are within easy reach of Quonset Point. Whether you have the price of an offshore charter boat; whether you bring your own boat and outboard; whether you prefer to surf fish from the many rocky shores; take any "whether" you want, Rhode Island has 'em and in numbers to make it worth while.

No license is required for salt water fishing and there is no closed season.

GLANTZ FAMILY PICNIC

The fourth annual outing of the Glantz Family Circle will be held Sunday at noon at Goddard Park, Field 11. B. Glantz is chairman of arrangements. Family and friends are invited to attend.

In this, the fourth in a series of service men may spend their weekly in the Quonset Scout, the get a new slant on what goes on in Rhode Island.

SYD COHEN:

More About All-Stars

The first item to hit the eye after a return from two weeks of Army duty was a letter from the genial Warren Walden, sports commentator of WJAR-TV. Warren took time out on his birthday just a week ago to remind this column of an oversight in last week's story on Jewish Hall of Fame ball players.

Regarding that column, Walden writes:

"There's one name I'd like to add, and I think you might have overlooked him due to his name—it's Cohen.

"Andy Cohen was one of the greatest little competitors to move into the big show, and faced one of the toughest assignments when he was called on to fill the shoes of the sensational Rogers Hornsby at second base for the Giants. The eyes of the baseball world were on Andy as well as the scrutiny of Giants fans, as the modest Cohen stepped into the vacancy left by the dominant Hornsby. Cohen made good and I doubt if any ball player had to break into the major leagues under such pressure—up until that time, anyway."

There isn't much to be added after that letter. Warren is right, of course. The name of Andy Cohen definitely is one of the musts for any discussion of all-time Jewish ball players. Not only did Andy face the stupendous—and impossible—task of filling Hornsby's shoes. He also happened to be the first ball player in the history of the major leagues to get a big build-up as a Jewish player.

There had been others, of course—Johnny Kling and Al Schacht, to name a few. But most of them had not billed themselves as Jewish players, or had not been so billed by their teams and the sports writers.

Andy Cohen thus had a double barreled build-up—the man who was to succeed Hornsby, and the first Jewish player of significance. Twenty years later Jackie Robinson was to get the same sort of publicity as another significant first. Coincidentally, both were second basemen.

How the name of Andy Cohen was left out of last week's column is beyond me. It was on the list I had jotted down for my own Jewish Hall of Fame. Guess that foot locker which was the seat of my operations for two weeks wasn't conducive to accuracy.

The column extends sincere thanks to Warren Walden, whom I proudly am able to count among my regular readers.

Checking up on the happenings of the past two weeks, I discovered that the column of August 1 didn't make sense; and while you may be inclined to say that such a condition is not unusual with this writer, there is a solid explanation for the column in question.

Just a little matter of a whole paragraph being left out—said paragraph being the one that carried the meat of the story.

So let's refresh our memories and set the record straight by explaining how that story should have read.

The story in question related to the so-called blindness of umpires, and the oft-heard suggestion that they should wear glasses.

This suggestion (from the fans) the umpires have heard, and considered—and rejected; because they simply would not dare strut up to home plate with cheaters on under their masks, for fear of the fans' reaction.

Until this year! Out in the Triple-A American Association, one umpire has started to wear glasses, with approval of the league's officials. Oh ho, you say, this I gotta see! (Note: This is the paragraph that was left out. Ed)

But you're wrong! There is nothing to see! You won't believe it, but it comes straight from the lips of the league president himself. Nobody has commented on the glasses, and not a single fan even has seemed to notice them!

Lets you down, doesn't it? And the anti-climax is that every umpire in the league is now required to take eye tests, and is authorized to wear specs if he so desires.

If this keeps up, what will the poor, defenseless fans do when they want to impress upon the umpire that they are displeased with his work? Seems like all they can do is suggest that he take off his glasses so's he can see—and

Australia Concerned By Transfer

MELBOURNE—The Australian Government is concerned over the Israel Government's decision to move its Foreign Ministry from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem, Australian Minister for External Affairs H. Casey said in Canberra this week. He revealed that this concern had been conveyed to the Israel Government by the Australian Minister to Israel. No country has thus far recognized Israel's claim to Jerusalem as its capital and the recent announcement by Israel is a move designed to compel the diplomatic corps to move to Jerusalem and thus recognize that city as the capital of the Jewish State, the Minister charged.

then a whole century of progress is dissipated. This is where we came in.

There's a different—entirely different—kind of all-star team that is making its presence felt in a negative way during this season. And what a whopping team that is!

You could build a pretty good World Series club around the men who have been taken into the armed services or sidelined by injuries. Matter of fact, such a club might easily be the outstanding team in the country.

Take a look. For pitchers there are Don Newcombe of the Dodgers, Chet Nichols of the Braves, Tom Morgan of the Yanks. These men are in the service. Among the injured are the Giants' Sal Maglie, the Red Sox' Ellis Kinder and the Yankees' Ed Lopat. I believe the recently demoted Clem Labine is qualified for this team. These are the leading figures among the moundsmen, those who come most readily to mind. There are others, of course.

Don't forget that such pitchers as Leo Kiely of the Red Sox and the sensational Whitey Ford of the Yanks are in the service. They could be called eligible. Which reminds me of Johnny Antonelli of the Braves. You see, this thing goes on and on, and gets better the longer you think of it.

Behind the bat you could have Mat Batts of the Tigers who looked like the berries before he was sidelined early in the year, or the coming Frank House of the same club, now in a new uniform.

This mythical team could be strong down the middle with second basemen of the caliber of Jerry Coleman of the Yankees and Jerry Priddy of the Tigers; short-stops like Chico Carresquel of the White Sox, Vern Stephens of the Red Sox, who can play short or third, and even Ray Boone of the Indians, although the latter finally is back. Available at third base is Bobby Brown of the Yanks and the Army, and at first base, the Indians' Bob Kennedy.

The outfield would meet the acid test of any big league manager. The first three you think of are Ted Williams, Monte Irvin and Willie Mays. The Red Sox and Giants really miss these guys.

This team merely makes mention of the better known players who now are in the service or have spent considerable time on the bench because of illness or injury. These are not the only names that could qualify—not by a long shot.

Can't you imagine the managers dreaming and drooling as they think of this lineup at its peak and murmur: "What a ball club!"?

Whoever the man and whatever his record, Satchel Paige deserves nomination as pitcher of the year for 1952. How about all those amazing, long-distance relief appearances of his? And his recent 12-inning, 1-0 shutout win?

Forget about how old Paige really is. Just remember this. When both men were in their prime, Satch once struck out Rogers Hornsby, still considered the greatest right hand hitter of all time, five times in a row! Now consider that Hornsby retired from the active ranks around 1930—more than 20 years ago.

And yet, here is Satch, still throwing them by the hitters!

Don't kid yourself about that junk business of his. Sure, Paige throws his let-up stuff, his creepy, slow, dinky curves, etc. And shonuff, he has pinpoint control. fast ball, which he uses as often as his other pitches. Trouble is, the hitters don't set themselves for All the same, Satch has a good the fast ball. They expect the junk, time themselves for a slow pitch—and wind up being dead ducks when the fast one is used.

That man may be—according to his own admission—lazy, but he sure makes a good living at it.

Israel To Control Fund Raising

JERUSALEM—In an effort to reduce the number of unauthorized fund-raising drives for various Israel institutions carried on in Israel and abroad, the Israel Cabinet decided this week to appoint a special Ministerial Committee to work under the Minister of Finance, which would pass on all such activities. Henceforth, special Government permits will have to be secured before such drives will be authorized. This will reduce considerably the number of Israel institutions sending emissaries abroad to raise funds for individual institutions, funds that have not always found their way to Israel, nor have been used for the ostensible purpose for which they were raised.

To Trace Early Jewish Pioneers

CINCINNATI — In preparation for the forthcoming observance of the tercentenary of the first Jewish settlement in America, an expedition of scholars from the American Jewish Archives of the Hebrew Union College this summer is retracing the steps of the earliest Jewish pioneers, seeking historical clues to their background.

Headed by Dr. Jacob R. Marcus, Adolph S. Ochs professor of Jewish history at Hebrew Union College and director of American Jewish Archives, the expedition will follow the route of the first Jewish wanderers who came in 1654 from Brazil to what was then New Amsterdam.

AJC Speaker Hits Censorship

DETROIT — Minority groups who pressure educational authorities to ban certain text books are establishing "precedent for professional book burners," delegates to the National Education Association convention were warned here last week by Dr. Edward N. Saveth of the American Jewish Committee.

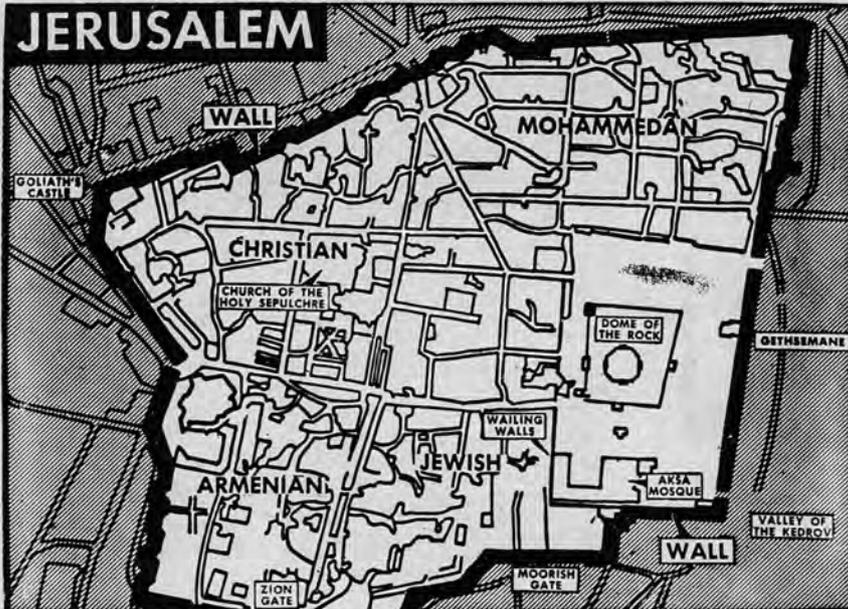

"To ban a book is a pretty serious matter in a democratic society such as ours," Dr. Saveth declared, "particularly when the ban is invoked in defense of the minorities in our population. Such groups have far more to lose than to gain by any action which is in itself undemocratic and might serve as precedent for professional book burners in our midst. This is particularly true at present when textbooks are under attack from a variety of sources, some of which are hostile to public education."

JWV Chief Scores "The Desert Fox"

NEW YORK—The decision by Twentieth-Century Fox to show a German-language version of "The Desert Fox" in West Germany was scored here in a statement by Paul Ginsberg, national commander of the Jewish War Veterans of the United States.

Ginsberg, who visited Germany earlier this year, predicted that the showing of the film biography of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel "will prove far more useful to the communists and nazis than to those in Germany and in the free West who are working towards the development of a peaceful and democratic state."

Israel Selects Jerusalem for Capitol

To Attempt Emigration of Jews From Russia, Declares Sharett

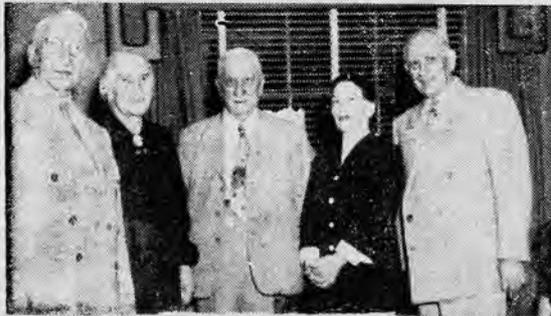

NEW YORK—The problem of securing emigration of Jews from the Soviet Union to Israel is a cardinal point in the policy of the Israel Government. Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett declared here addressing the convention of the American Zionist Labor Organization. The convention elected Rabbi James Heller of Cincinnati, national president of the organization.

Declaring that the efforts on the part of the Israel Government to induce Moscow to allow Soviet Jews to leave for Israel may require time, Mr. Sharett asserted that the Israel Government feels it "has a claim" in view of the fact that the Jews are the only national minority in the Soviet Union whose problems have not been solved territorially within the frame of the Soviet regime as was the case with other minorities.

Estimating that Israel will be able to absorb 4,000,000 Jews (Continued on Page 3)

Brothers, Sisters Reunion--Ages Total 375

THEIR AVERAGE AGE—75

When Mrs. ETHEL ZELLMAN, (second from left), arrived in Detroit recently, after residing in Israel for 20 years, there was a reunion of brothers and sisters whose ages total 375 years—making an average for the above group of 75 years. From the left: HARRY GLICK, of Huntington, W. Va., who is 75; Mrs. Zellman, 83; SAMUEL H. GLICK, also of Huntington, 81; Mrs. WILLIAM ALTMAN, of Detroit, the youngest in the family—66; and MAX GLICK of Huntington, 70.

Samuel Glick, in the furniture business in Huntington for 40 years, is an ardent Zionist and a leader in his Jewish community.

Mrs. Zellman plans to stay with her children in Detroit for a year and is determined to return to Israel. She has two sons and two daughters. Another son, the youngest, now deceased, fought with Allenby and Jabotinsky in the Jewish Legion during World War I for the liberation of Palestine from the Turks.

Having lived in Israel during the entire period of the war, she was in Jerusalem during the battle for independence when the Holy City was without food and water, with continuing night and day shooting. But faith sustained her and her fellow-citizens, and together with the entire community she helped in her way towards winning the battle for freedom. She speaks with pride of Israel's achievements and is confident that the progress will continue with great strides.

Her son, David M. Zellman, reports an interesting incident at Idlewild Airport, while waiting for his mother's arrival. A man walked over to him and said, "Aren't you David Zellman? Do you remember me? I am Blumenthal the Book-binder, your mother's landlord in Jerusalem." Whereupon Mr. Zellman asked him to wait a while and to meet his tenant—in New York. Mr. Blumenthal was seriously wounded in the fight for Jerusalem.

Paper Carries Fair Employment Policy Statement Over Ads

MINNEAPOLIS—A statement of the fair employment policy, believed to be the first of its kind, now is being run by the Minneapolis Star and Tribune at the head of its employment columns. The notice was instituted in cooperation with the Fair Employment Practice Commission of Minneapolis.

The notice states that jobs offered through the paper's columns are "accepted on the premise that qualified applicants will be hired on their merits and without discrimination because of race, color, religion or nationality."

Court Rules Out Closing on Holidays

MONTREAL—A city ordinance compelling retail storekeepers to close their shops on four important Catholic holidays has been ruled invalid by the Montreal Superior Court.

Violation of the law was punishable by a fine of $40. Non-Catholic and Jewish storekeepers were incensed over the ordinance, with the issue reaching a crisis some weeks ago when several hundred policemen swooped down on the violators and handed out scores of summonses. The action to invalidate the law was commenced by a number of shop-owners, who were joined by several Sabbath-observing Jews.

Saudi Arabia Raises Boycott

ROME — The Saudi Arabian government, which has been pressing an anti-Jewish boycott by prohibiting Saudi Arabians from doing business with Jewish firms, will not apply the boycott to Italian nationals of the Jewish faith.

Action of the Italian Foreign Ministry, which notified the Saudi Arabians that Italian chambers of commerce would be unable to issue any certificates implying racial discrimination, led to the new Saudi Arabian position. The legation here announced that in the future it will be satisfied with a "certificate of origin" stating that the goods under shipment to Saudi Arabia were produced in Italy.

Emigration Caused Pauker's Downfall

LONDON—The Sunday Express today reported that Anna Pauker's downfall as Foreign Minister of Rumania was the result of betrayal by another leading Rumanian woman communist who told of alleged bribes paid her for the emigration of Rumanian Jews to Israel.

According to the Sunday Express story, Liuba Chisinevski told Communist Party commissars in Rumania that Mrs. Pauker had received from $100 to $1,000 for each Rumanian Jew who left for Israel. The report says that Miss Chisinevski accused the former Foreign Minister of depositing the money in a secret bank account she had opened in Israel.

(An Associated Press dispatch from Vienna reported today that Anna Pauker got into trouble with Moscow two years ago when she reportedly arranged to have her aged father sent to Israel. The AP also quotes Western diplomats as saying that the fact that she was a Jewess was a major consideration in her dismissal.)

N. J. To Investigate Hate Newspaper

NEWARK, N. J.—The State authorities have launched an investigation into the distribution in this state of the anti-Semitic sheet, "Headlines," published by Joseph P. Kamp, vice-president of the Constitutional Educational League and a notorious anti-Semite. Recent issues of this sheet have used anti-Semitism to attack the candidacy of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

To Attend Dental Convention In Israel

Dr. and Mrs. Ilie Berger, who leave for Israel at the end of this month, will be feted at a farewell luncheon July 25 at the Narragansett Hotel by the General Jewish Committee and the Providence Zionist District. In charge are Alvin A. Sopkin, GJC president, and William D. Strong, Zionist District president.

Dr. Berger, who is making the trip to Israel with a group of American physicians, will give a series of lectures at the National Dental Convention in Tel Aviv the early part of August.

He will lecture on a special phase of dental technique upon which he is now working.

Emigration

within the next 10 to 15 years, Mr. Sharet said that of the 10,000,000 Jews now living in various countries of the world, about 6,000,000 reside in the Western Hemisphere. The question is whether the Western Jewish communities will not have to be tapped for increasing the number of Jews in Israel which now number about 1,500,000, he said.

Expects No Oppression Here

The Israel Foreign Minister, who during his present stay in the United States visited many large and small Jewish communities, emphasized that the misery which has driven Jews from other countries to emigrate to Israel before and after the war does not exist among Jews in the United States. Nor is there any basis to predict that American Jews will be driven to emigrate to the new state by oppression as was the case with Jews in other countries, the Israeli statesman declared.

ISRAEL TIME ADVANCED

JERUSALEM—At its first meeting, the new Israel Cabinet this week ordered the setting of Israel clocks two hours ahead, thus instituting double summer time.

The move, which will considerably reduce the consumption of electricity and save much-needed fuel, pushes Israel time eight hours ahead of New York time. The new summer time will be in effect from July 6 to August 16.

Obituary

DAVID RUBIN

Funeral services for David Rubin, operator of cigar stands in Providence for over 40 years, who died last week at his home, 76 Eighth Street, were held at the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Born in Odessa, Russia, a son of the late Morris and Goldie Rubin, he came to Providence when he was a young boy.

Besides his wife, Mrs. Fannie (Jacobs) Rubin, he leaves two sons, Irving of California and Stanley of Providence; a daughter, Mrs. Bernard Rosenfield; a sister, Miss Gertrude Rubin, both of Providence; two brothers, Allie of Elizabeth, N. J. and Abe of Providence, and two grandchildren.

MRS. DORA CORT

Funeral services for Mrs. Dora Cort of the Royal Manor, East Greenwich, widow of Hyman Cort, who died Monday after a long illness, were held the next day at the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Mrs. Cort was born in Russia, daughter of the late Hyman and Celia Cooper, and had been a resident of Providence for 48 years before moving to East Greenwich two years ago. She was a member of the Odessa Association, Jewish Home for the Aged and the Ladies Union Aid.

Survivors are a daughter, Mrs. William Lipson of Providence; two sons, Irwin and Leonard Cort, both of Providence; a brother, Samuel Cooper of Chicago; a sister, Mrs. Ida Brown of Los Angeles, and eight grandchildren.

Unveiling Notices

UNBAKED PINEAPPLE-CHEESE CAKE
Crust:
2 cups fine crumbs of graham crackers
1/4 cup sugar, optional
1/2 cup melted butter or substitute
Combine well with a fork and press the mixture against the bottom and sides of a 10-inch spring form cake pan (the kind with removable bottom). Reserve 1/3 cup of this mixture for topping. Bake at 350° F 5 minutes or till lightly browned at the edges. While the crust cools, prepare the filling as follows:

- Filling
- 2 envelopes of unflavored gelatin
  - 1/2 cup cold water
  - 1 cup milk
  - 2 eggs, separated
  - 1/4 cup sugar
  - 1 teaspoon salt
  - 2 cups dry cottage cheese, sieved
  - 1 tablespoon grated lemon or orange rind
  - 3 tablespoons lemon or orange juice
  - 1 cup whipping cream, whipped stiff
  - 1 cup drained crushed canned pineapple
  - 2 tablespoons pineapple syrup

Soften the gelatin in cold water. Heat the milk in top of a double boiler over hot water while beating the egg yolks and sugar till creamy. Add the salt and beaten yolks to the warm milk and stir in. Cook over hot water till the mixture begins to thicken, stirring once or twice. Remove from heat and stir in the dissolved gelatin. Let cool while preparing the other ingredients. Beat the egg whites stiff. Combine the sieved cheese, grated rind and fruit juices and add about 1/4 cup of sugar if lemon juice has been used, or to taste. Add the pineapple and juice. Fold in the beaten egg whites and whipped cream with an over and over motion, and turn the cooked mixture, that has been cooled, into the combination, folding in very carefully and as lightly as possible. Turn this mixture into the

In an afternoon ceremony July 4 in the chapel of the Elsmere Plaza, New York City, Miss Phyllene Sybil Dimond, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Dimond of Evergreen Street, became the bride of A 3/c Alfred Stanley Greenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Greenberg of New York. Rabbi S. W. Helfgott officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was dressed in an ankle-length gown of hyacinth blue silk organza with matching duster. Her veil fell from a pink lace Juliet cap and she wore pink accessories. She held a Bible marked with roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Herbert H. Bander of Paramus, N. J., matron of honor for her sister, wore an iridescent ballerina-length gown of blue with fuchsia accessories and carried a colonial bouquet. Leslie Iryse Dimond was flower girl for her sister. She wore a pink and green organdie dress and carried a matching colonial bouquet.

Gerald Greenberg, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Howard and Robert Greenberg, twin brothers of the groom.

Following a reception in the Crystal Room of the Plaza, the couple left for a honeymoon in New York state.

SYD COHEN:

Miscellaneous Matters

These hot days, there's nothing like fanning the breeze about baseball. So let's don the bifocals and peruse the news.

Casey Stengel recently was tossed out of a game for the first time since he has managed the Yankees. Asked what he said that prompted Jim Honochick to invite him to leave the premises, Casey—trying to keep the notorious gleam out of his eye—said it wasn't much. It seems both sides had accused the umpire all day of missing more than a few calls on balls and strikes, and Yogi Berra had just been tossed out of the game for voicing his opinion too strongly and too often.

Anyway, Casey walked up to the harried Honochick and said he knew the ump was entitled to miss a few, but did he have to be ridiculous about it. Which, it turned out, was not the accepted way to make friends and influence umpires.

The suggestion has been made that someone donate to Lou Boudreau a crate of phenobarbital. It seems the Red Sox manager gets nervous easily. Talking about the exile of Jim Piersall, who gave his boss the shakes, one Cleveland writer recalled that Boudreau, while managing the Indians, got rid of Satchell Paige because the ancient one made him nervous.

'Tis said that the fuss raised over the still-talked-about Piersall case enabled the nervous Boudreau to get off the hook regarding his charge that pitchers Maury McDermott and Mel Parnell were dogging it when they had to be sent home to Boston to have their arms examined.

It turned out that Mickey had a strained tendon in his money arm, while Parnell was suffering from bursitis. What they now think of their manager is their secret; however, the writers were detoured from more comment on the Boudreau blast by the Piersall episode.

In addition, Lou has backtracked on his word of this spring and has closed his office to the press for 15 minutes—after games. The press boys think Boudreau is down on them because he says they are not fair to him. But he won't say what he means by that. He'll spill it at the end of the season, says he.

It didn't make Lou feel any better, either, when a Mid-West radio commentator, hearing of the Piersall-Stephens spanking incident (about which, surprisingly, the kid's mother refused to get excited), asked how come the kid was in the clubhouse, anyway.

At the rate he is gnawing away, Boudreau seems heading for an ulcer—giant: size.

Up in the International League occurred an incident that shows how considerate ball players can be of umpires. An ump in Ottawa suffered a painful injury. He was immediately taken in hand by a Montreal player, who tended to the arbiter's needs, applied first aid, helped him to a cab, took him to his hotel, and made sure he was comfortable in bed.

The player was able to take off all this time during the playing of a game for a very good reason. He was under a ten day suspension after having been tossed out of a game by one of the injured umpire's mates.

The new batboy of the Dodgers tried to land the job for ten years. He made it this spring, but isn't expected to keep it longer than the end of the season. Reason? He is 21, married and the father of a month-old daughter. Looking ahead a few years, he resents the idea that the kids might tease his daughter about her old man being a batboy. Sadly—the end of a promising career.

Buried deep in the Sporting News obituary of Fred Tenney, 80-year-old former big league star who died recently, was this seldom told incident.

Tenney played with the Boston Braves and New York Giants and was one of the great first basemen of his day. It was one of Tenney's great regrets that he never played in the World Series. Yet, only a fluke kept him from making it.

In 1908, with the Giants, Tenney played in 156 games. He missed only one. But that contest turned out to be the one in which young Fred Merkle, substituting at first base for Tenney, neglected to touch second base on a single that presumably won the pennant for the McGrawmen.

You know the rest. The run was nullified, the game replayed and the pennant won by the Cubs.

The Red Sox seem to have a future great in bonus rookie Frank Baumann, signed a month ago. The kid, just out of high school, won three out of his first four starts with Louisville in the triple-A American Association. Two were shutouts and he missed a third by an eyelash. He pitched a no-hitter until the seventh in one game. In these four complete games, the kid allowed five runs on 19 hits and fanned 33—one per inning.

Oh me, they never learn! Leo Durocher, manager of the defending champion Giants, has accused his boys of lying down on the job —specifically, not hustling. There's that poor word again, Leo should read up about what happens to managers who refuse to accept facts as they are and choose to blame their athletes' lack of hustie. X marks the spot—ex-managers!

Meet David Barnard Steinman

The Jewish Dreamer Who Built The Most Bridges In The World

by BERNARD SIMON

(An American Jewish Press Feature)

David Barnard Steinman is patiently waiting for some semblance of peace to come to this troubled globe. When it does, he hopes to build the biggest bridge in the world.

For almost 30 years he has lived with the dream and the blueprints of a mighty suspension that will arch majestically across the narrows of New York Harbor, joining Brooklyn and Staten Island as the final and most vital link in New York's circumferential highway system.

Three years ago Steinman moved a step nearer his goal. The Triborough Bridge and Tunnel Authority of New York City agreed on the need of the bridge to ease the crush of traffic — through traffic en route to New England, the South and the West—which now clogs and jams the overburdened arteries of Manhattan.

Permission already has been obtained from the Army Department to start construction—military approval being necessary for structures erected over navigable waters—but the hot war in Korea and the cold war in Europe have temporarily shelved the plan.

So David Steinman, now 65 and acclaimed one of history's greatest bridge builders, still waits. On his desk are the basic plans for Narrows Bridge—or as he likes to call it, Liberty Bridge—which he first blueprinted almost three decades ago.

For years he has heard a constant cry that his dream bridge could never be built—that, engineeringwise, it couldn't stand up, that economically it would be a white elephant. But after a quarter of a century of talk and back talk, Steinman has won out—almost.

When completed, Narrows Bridge will be a wonder of the modern world. From tower to tower, the clear span will stretch 4,620 feet, 420 feet longer than San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge—now the world's longest—and more than a fifth of a mile longer than New York's George Washington Bridge. The twin towers of glistening steel will rise 800 feet toward the sky, higher than the Woolworth Building. The roadway will have six wide lanes, enough to handle 600 cars an hour, and will be 237 feet above high water so that the masts of even the "Queens" among ocean liners can clear easily. It will be a $80,000,000 project.

To build his dream bridge is the assignment David Steinman would like as a climax to his adventurous career of 35 years during which time he has played a part in the building of 141 bridges strung across five continents.

Steinman has built bridges in a score of states from Maine to California, and in Canada, Australia, England, Germany, Spain, South America and even remote Siam. He was consultant for the George Washington and Triborough spans and creator of the popular Sky Ride which thrilled 4,500,000 visitors at Chicago's Century of Progress Exposition. The record of David Steinman and the honors and awards heaped upon him fill 132 lines in "Who's Who," second longest listing in that compendium of the famous.

Beneath this galaxy of achievements lies the story of a plucky Jewish youngster who found, amid the squalor of slums, a lifelong romance in bridges. Born in a tenement within sight of Brooklyn Bridge, he played in the shadows of its massive stone towers and web of wires. His boyhood heroes, for whom he still expresses a reverence that smacks of a sandlotter's devotion for Babe Ruth, were the Roebings, father and son, who built Brooklyn Bridge and sacrificed their lives in its construction.

As a 13-year-old student gifted with mechanical aptitude, Steinman won a special pass which allowed him to climb the steelwork and run the catwalks with the engineers who were erecting Williamsburg Bridge over the East River. He watched how they strung her cables and anchored her towers and jointed her beams. They were exciting moments for a youngster who was hemmed in by the bonds of poverty. His mind was constantly alive with visions of big bridges, beautiful bridges, which he dreamed he would someday build.

While a student at Columbia, he designed Henry Hudson Bridge. Twenty years later he was called on to build this famous structure, hailed for the magnificence of its beauty and as the longest fixed arch in the world.

Steinman underwent his practical baptism as a bridge builder on the famous Hell Gate Arch—inch for inch the heaviest bridge ever put up. After completing his schooling by winning a hatful of scholarships and working nights, he joined the faculty of the University of Idaho as the youngest professor in the country. His doctorate thesis sold out two editions as a published text and attracted the attention of Gustav Lindenthal, then dear of American bridge engineers, who invited him to assist at Hell Gate.

The strong, shifting tides of the Hell Gate presented engineering problems without precedent. To the 28-year-old engineer, this made the job all the more interesting. In his enthusiasm, he was climbing the steelwork every day. Instruments strapped to his back, he measured stresses and his brother. Ushers included Isaac Blonder of New York, Ben Blonder and David Blonder, of Waterford, brothers of the bride; Raymond Krantz, also of Waterford, the bride's brother-in-law; Stanley Lobel, the groom's brother, and Harold Levin of Providence.

Jeffrey Allen Blonder, the bride's nephew, was ring bearer, and Sharon Anne Blonder, her niece, was flower girl.

The mother of the bride selected an aqua crepe gown with lace elbow-length sleeves. The bridegroom's mother chose a blue Chantilly lace gown. Both wore orchid corsages.

The couple left on a wedding trip to Canada, the bride traveling in a grey suit with white accessories and a corsage of white orchids. They are residing at 60 Eleventh Street, Providence.

Miss Rhoda Zeidel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Zeidel of Pinehurst Avenue, became the bride of Nathan Snyder, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Snyder, July 4 at the home of the bride's parents. Rabbi Aaron Goldin of Pawtucket officiated. A reception and dinner followed.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a champagne dress of imported silk shantung embossed with rosettes in the same tone. She carried a prayer book marked with an orchid and lilies of the valley.

Guests were present from New York, New Jersey, Boston, Milton, Mass., Indiana and Providence.

The couple will reside at 52 Pinehurst Avenue

Need of Higher Phone Rates Cited

Prompt approval of new—and higher—telephone rates as submitted to the Public Utilities Administrator last November was urged Monday by F. A. Barrett, general manager of the New England Tel. & Tel. Co., which is now in the process of returning to telephone subscribers the amount of increase in rates which was granted last August but recently voided by the State Supreme Court.

Barrett revealed that he has asked the PUA "to let us submit evidence showing the effect on the Company of the cut in telephone rates and the refund resulting from the recent decision of the Rhode Island Supreme Court."

In a prepared statement, Barrett said:

"I am fully convinced that any delay in taking favorable action on our present tariff filing would be wholly unrealistic in the light of conditions as they exist today.

"Such delay can only impair the Company's credit and seriously interfere with our plans for immediate and long-term service improvements in this State. This would be contrary to the best interests of telephone users in Rhode Island, the many telephone employees in the State, the owners of the business who have put their savings into this enterprise, and the continued economic development of Rhode Island.

"The situation of the Telephone Company in Rhode Island is a critical one. Even with the 25 cents a month increase on residence telephones which we were allowed last August, and now taken away, we were still providing telephone service at less than

Lobel-Blonder

In a candlelight ceremony, Miss Esther Blonder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Blonder of Oswegatchie, Waterford, Conn., became the bride of Abraham B. Lobel, son of Mrs. Anna Lobel of 24 Wheaton Street and the late Morris Lobel, on Sunday, June 29 at the Mohican Hotel in New London, Conn.

Rabbi Jerome Kerzner performed the double ring ceremony, assisted by Cantors Abraham and Louis Gartenhaus, uncles of the bridegroom. Mischa Mandel of New London was soloist. Palms were featured in the decorations surrounding the altar.

Guests attended from New York, New Jersey, Providence and New London. Following the ceremony, a reception and dinner were held on the roof garden of the hotel.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a Chantilly lace gown with full bishop sleeves and a sweetheart neckline. Her veil of French illusion fell from a seed pearl headpiece, and she carried a Bible with white orchids and streamers of stephanotis.

Mrs. Raymond Krantz of Waterford, the bride's sister, as matron of honor, wore a pink nylon net gown with a handkerchief hemline, and carried a pink and blue corsage.

Miss Nettie Simon of Providence was maid of honor. Her gown was of aqua lace and nylon, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Jerry Lobel was best man for it costs to produce it.

"The money involved in the refund has been used to pay State and Federal tax increases imposed in 1950 and 1951 and to pay wages to our employees. The Company didn't start collecting it until August 1951. Now the State has said 'give it back to the customers.' No business could operate like that.

"We are about in the position of a workman who got a cost-of-living increase last August, used it to pay taxes and support his family, and then was told to give it back to the boss because of a technicality. Fair play would seem to require the boss to correct that technicality."
