Yom Kippur Services Sunday and Monday

Yom Kippur, the hallowed Day of Atonement, most solemn day on the Jewish calendar, will be observed by Rhode Island Jewry at services starting at sundown Sunday evening. Services will continue throughout Monday and will be concluded at sundown.

Yom Kippur is a day of fasting, meditation and prayer during which Jews pray for forgiveness for their sins committed in the past year. It begins with the chanting of the traditional Kol Nidre. Memorial services for the dead are held Monday morning.

Following is the schedule of Yom Kippur services in local synagogues and temples:

CONG. SONS OF JACOB

Kol Nidre will be chanted by Cantor Nathan Remenick at 5:15 P. M. Sunday evening. The sermon by Rabbi Morton Berkowitz, later in the evening, will be on "Make A Vow." Monday services will start at 7 A. M. with Shachris. The reading of the Torah will be at 9, and the sermon, "The Beauty in Reminiscence," at 10. Yizkor (memorial) services will follow at 10:30. The concluding Neilah service will take place at 4:15 P. M.

CONG. SONS OF ABRAHAM

The chanting of Kol Nidre will inaugurate Yom Kippur services at 5:30 P. M. Sunday, with Rabbi Abraham Chill's sermon, "The Story of the Blind Man," at 6 o'clock. On Monday, Shachris will start at 7 A. M., with the sermon, "The Confessions of an Ancient Rabbi," at 9 o'clock. Yizkor services will be at 9:30. Neilah will be at 3:30 P. M. and Maariv at 5:30.

Rabbi Chill will deliver his tenth annual Yom Kippur radio broadcast Sunday at 1 P. M. over WRIB. His topic will be "Man's Greatest Dream."

CONG. BETH DAVID

Yom Kippur services will start with the chanting of Kol Nidre at 5:15 P. M. Sunday. "Promises to be Kept" will be the topic of Rabbi George B. Schwartz's sermon. Monday's services will begin at 7 o'clock. The sermon, at 11 A. M., will be on "Forgetting or Remembering," and will be followed at 11:30 by Yizkor services. Children's services will be held at 10:15 in the vestry under the supervision of William Melzer, Sunday school principal.

CONG. SONS OF ZION

Kol Nidre will be chanted at 5:15 P. M. Sunday evening. Rabbi David Werner will deliver the sermon that evening and Sunday morning. Sunday's services will commence at 7 A. M. with Yizkor at 11 o'clock. The concluding service will be at 4:30 P. M.

TEMPLE BETH ISRAEL

Kol Nidre services at Temple Beth Israel will begin at sunset Sunday. Services will be conducted by Rabbi Morris Schussheim, Cantor Josef Lengyel and the Choir. There will be a message from the President, Irving Brodsky, and the Rabbi's Sermon will be "Unspoken Vows."

The following is the schedule for Yom Kippur services: 8 A. M.—Shachris; 10 A. M.—Reading of Torah; 10:30 A. M.—Memorial Service; 3:30—Mincha Service with a sermon by Rabbi Herman L. Horowitz, "We Look Within Us" and Neilah at 4:30 P. M.

Yom Kippur services will be held also in the Auditorium at the same times as in the main Synagogue, conducted by Rabbi Horowitz.

Press Welcomes Pact Between Israel, Germany

NEW YORK—Satisfaction with the German-Israel reparations agreement was voiced in editorials in the American press this week. Leading newspapers, however, coupled these expressions with a warning that the German reparations payments will not solve Israel's economic needs.

The New York Times described the pacts as "an act of national atonement unique in the annals of international relations." It pointed out that no money payments can make up for the dead or heal wounds inflicted by the Nazis but added that West Germany demonstrates "its willingness to redress in so far as it is able, the wrongs committed."

The New York Herald Tribune said the signature of the pact, though carried out with frigid formality, "nevertheless contained the spark of hope that a better day will eventually dawn between the two nations." The pact, however, does not mean that "bygones are bygones," the editorial added, but it does mean that Germany, "by acknowledging her moral debt, has taken an important stride toward regaining her pre-Hitler status."

The editorial pointed out that despite the boom of reparations, "Israel still requires the help of its friends in foreign lands and the loans of other governments in order to perform its role as a democratic outpost in the Near East."

The Washington Post praised Germany for recognizing its obligations to Jews persecuted by the Nazis.

JCC Names Two To Program Staff

Appointment of two women to fill staff vacancies at the Jewish Community Center was announced Monday by Morris Kritzman, executive director. Mrs. Albert W. Edwards was named as program supervisor, and Miss Deirdre Meadow as program assistant.

Mrs. Edwards comes to Providence from the Brockton YM & YWHA, where she served for five years as director of youth activities. She previously directed Teen Town, a teen age organization in Bristol, Conn., was a director at various camps, directed camp training institutes, and was a special lecturer at the Boston University School of Social Work.

In addition, Mrs. Edwards was a member of the staff of the Community Recreation Service of Boston, Inc., and an organizer and executive director of the tributary theater and tributary children's theater in Boston.

Miss Meadow took her BA degree at Olivet College, Olivet, Michigan and did graduate study at Penn State College. She served on the staff of the Jewish Association of Neighborhood Centers in Brooklyn, N. Y., and has had extensive camping experience, including the post of head counselor at Lakeside Camp, N. Y.

In Olivet Miss Meadow was director of the community dance program and an instructor in the dance at the college. She also conducted her own modern school of dance development in New York.

Says Break With NCRAC Shows Rejection of Co-operative Process

Commenting on the formal announcement this week of the resignation of the American Jewish Committee and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith from the NCRAC, Irving Kane, NCRAC Chairman, said that the two organizations not only reject the plan which the recent Plenary Session of the NCRAC overwhelmingly adopted, but "any cooperative process," and that they "repudiate the basic aims and objectives of the NCRAC in the formulation of which, the leaders of the American Jewish Committee and the B'nai B'rith at the time participated."

Mr. Kane said that in withdrawing, "the two organizations have done a serious disservice to their constituencies and have deeply prejudiced the realization of the ideals for which both organizations have labored for many years."

He declared that "the NCRAC will continue to discharge the responsibility placed upon it by the Jewish communities of America," and added that "its doors will always be open to those who wish to join in meeting this responsibility" through the NCRAC.

The partial text of Mr. Kane's statement follows:

"The NCRAC now has received official notification from the American Jewish Committee and the B'nai B'rith of the resignation of those organizations from the NCRAC.

"Both organizations have protested and continue to protest their readiness and their desire to cooperate in the interest of good community relations for American Jews. The test of such cooperation lies in willingness to participate with others in the only cooperative process that exists in the Jewish community relations field. That cooperative process is the NCRAC; its purposes and directions are set out in the 'Aims and Objectives' which constitute its charter.

"In statements accompanying their notices of withdrawal, both the American Jewish Committee and the B'nai B'rith reveal beyond any reasonable doubt that their actions are based upon rejection of any cooperative process, rather than upon rejection of the particular plan adopted by the Plenary Session on September 8, 1962."

Mrs. Helen Douglas to Address GJC Women's Initial Gift Affair

Mrs. Helen Gahagan Douglas, actress and former Congresswoman from California, will be the guest speaker at the General Jewish Committee's Women's Division Initial Gifts Luncheon, to be held Tuesday, October 7 at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

Mrs. Douglas, named "one of the twelve smartest women in the world" by a recent poll of editors, has successfully conducted two careers, one on the stage and one in political affairs. As Helen Gahagan, prior to her marriage to actor Melvyn Douglas, she had leading roles in a large number of hit shows.

On the political scene, Mrs. Douglas achieved recognition for her statesmanlike approach to the problems of public life. She has been prominent in sponsorship of social legislation, worked actively in behalf of the Marshall Plan and other measures designed to strengthen the position of democracy.

Mrs. Benjamin Brier, chairman of the Initial Gifts Committee said of the guest speaker: "It is a great privilege to be able to present a woman of Mrs. Douglas' importance to the women of Providence. We expect a record attendance at the affair."

BV UJA Appoints Mrs. Leo Marks

The appointment of Mrs. Leo A. Marks as chairman of the Women's Division of the Blackstone Valley United Jewish Appeal was announced this week.

Mrs. Marks immediately upon her appointment named the following women to serve on her executive committee: Mesdames Arthur M. Newman, Louis Cokin, Max Alperin, Morris H. Pritsker, Hyman Cokin, Philip Hak and Eli Levin.

It was later reported that the Initial Gifts dinner meeting, to be held jointly with the Men's Division, will take place on Wednesday, Oct. 29 at the Narragansett Hotel.

"Our chosen task of providing material aid to Israel until the Jewish State can stand independently on her own feet is not yet completed," said Mrs. Marks in accepting her key post.

"The problem of continuing the 'open door' policy toward all Jews who wish to enter may bog down if substantial dollar aid is not immediately forthcoming from the United States. Israel needs more food, more homes, more of a thousand and one items without which her economy and the living conditions of her citizens must continue at sub-normal standards.

Say Issue Is Central Authority

B'nai B'rith and the American Jewish Committee withdrew officially from membership in the National Community Relations Advisory Council (NCRAC) this week, thus backing to the hilt the recommendations made by their respective presidents at the NCRAC plenary session earlier this month at Atlantic City.

The two organizations, which assisted in setting up NCRAC eight years ago, walked out because of their irreconcilable differences over that body's new policy of "centralizing authority which we had been steadfastly rejecting." AJC and B'nai B'rith refused to accept the plan to turn over to NCRAC central control of the entire field of community relations work "in violation of the voluntary character of Jewish community life."

"No central authority can speak in the name of American Jewry," AJC declared in a statement accompanying its official letter of withdrawal, which made it clear that the fundamental basis for its withdrawal was its rejection of a central authority which would purport to speak as the Voice of American Jewry.

The statement charged that the resolution "means that no longer could individual American Jews have the determining voice over the policies and purposes of the organizations of their choice."

Oppose "Single Voice" Declaring that "the issue is whether each agency shall be placed in a position where it can be forced to abandon its program and forsake its responsibility to its members and be subordinated to a central authority which shall purport to be the single voice of American Jewry," the American Jewish Committee asserted that it "cannot compromise on this issue of compulsion versus voluntarism."

"We hold that the NCRAC's action was an assault upon the fundamental pattern of voluntarism in American Jewish life today," the American Jewish Committee statement continued. "To concur with this so-called 'compromise' resolution would commit the American Jewish Committee to abandon its founding principles; yield its autonomy; ignore its responsibilities to its members; and jeopardize the methods of combatting anti-Semitism, and all forms of prejudice and discrimination which we have laboriously evolved through decades of experience."

The AJC statement explained that there has been no charge of duplication, waste, or lack of coordination raised by the MacIver Report, or in subsequent discussions, which the American Jewish Committee has not been willing to examine, weigh, and resolve through satisfactory adjustment.

The withdrawal statement said that AJC would continue to work "in areas of mutual agreement with other organizations dedicated to the never ceasing fight against intolerance, injustice, and inhumanity—the common foes of all mankind."

B'nai B'rith Statement The B'nai B'rith statement declared that the NCRAC plan "would fragmentize and dismember the Anti-Defamation League and the American Jewish Committee, the two agencies with the longest and greatest records of service in community relations work, dismantling their effective work."

"It is up to the Jewish residents of the Blackstone Valley to join with their brethren throughout the country to help ease the suffering of those who already have suffered so much, who need our help to enable them to stand on their own feet.

Show Yiddish Films For Older Adults

Two Yiddish feature motion pictures—"The Green Fields" and "The Two Sisters"—will be shown in the next two weeks for the enjoyment of the community's older adults.

Co-sponsored by the Providence Section, Council of Jewish Women and the Jewish Community Center, the films will be shown in widely separated sections of the city, in order that the "golden age" men and women who would like to attend will not have far to go in order to take in the programs.

Following is the schedule for the showing of the movies:

"Green Fields" — Wednesday, Oct. 1 at 2 P. M., Sons of Abraham Synagogue, Prairie and Potters Avenues; Wednesday, Oct. 1 at 8 P. M., Jewish Community Center; and Thursday, Oct. 2 at 2 P. M., Beth David Synagogue, Oakland Avenue.

"The Two Sisters"—Wednesday, Oct. 8 at 2 P. M., Jewish War Veterans (Post 23) Hall, Niagara Street; Wednesday, Oct. 8 at 8 P. M., Jewish Community Center, and Thursday, Oct. 9 at 2 P. M., Sons of Jacob Synagogue, Douglas Avenue.

Admission to the films, which have English sub-titles, is free to all older adult men and women.

The Older Adults committee arranging the programs includes Jacob J. Alprin, co-chairman of the Center committee; Mrs. Jack Davis, co-chairman, who also represents the Council of Jewish Women; Mrs. Annie Bell, advisor to older adults; Joseph Cohen, Bernard Goodman, Aaron Roitman, Dr. Ilie Berger, Herbert Pansy, Saul E. R. Feinberg, JCC president; Harold Moskol, and Mesdames Bernard Podrat, Isaac Gerber, Casper Sutton, Archie Finkle, Lionel Albert and Morris Baruch.

Complete Clinical Chaplaincy Course

NEW YORK—Six enrolled students have completed the second clinical training program in institutional chaplaincy and pastoral counseling conducted under Jewish auspices for rabbis and theo-prisons and hospitals. It receives financial support from the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York. The 12-week course of intensive training consisted of lecture and demonstration on medical and surgical procedures, psychological films, case history seminars illustrating chaplain-patient relationships, supervised ward visiting and practical aspects of chaplaincy and pastoral counseling.

NEW SYNAGOGUE PLANNED CLEVELAND—Ground was broken at ceremonies here this week for the new synagogue building of Temple Emanuel. The building, which will include social, school and other facilities, will cost $500,000.

 Nasberg 264.

FINEMAN-TRINKEL

The league's bowling season opened Tuesday evening, Sept. 16 with 14 teams and 15 spares on hand. High scores were rolled by Phil Shaulson 150, George Feldman 125, Nate Gordon 129, Harry Shore 132, Mort Klibanoff 120, M.
 Satloff 123 and Irving Kaplan 127.
 Phil Shaulson's 359 was high for the evening.

BETH EL BOWLING

By Joe Gutterball

Mid-season form was featured at the opening of the Beth El bowling season last week at the Casino Alleys. Howie Nelson led the individual bowlers with a 383 pinfall and a single of 138. Last season's leading bowler, Vin De-Cesaris, rolled 365.

A large number of spare bowlers are in the league, and they came up with high totals. Sam Feldman rolled 352, Meyer Jarcho
 343, J. Levine 315, and Arthur Markoff, president of the Brotherhood, 312. An opening night guest, Walter Rutman, publisher of the Herald, rolled one string of 103. He quit while he was ahead, according to Jack Applebaum.

Other bowlers who started off at a fast pace were: League president Nat Alterman and Mal
 Mickler 348, Fred DeCesaris 344,
 Lou Feldman 338, Joe Postar 337,
 Morris Feldman I. 333, Elliot

 Al Gordon 321, Mac Morgan 316, and Gus Newman 313.

R. I. J. F. A. BOWLING

by Louis Sacarovitz

The league opened its season
 last week with the following teams and captains: Aaron Seigal, Indians; Arden Klar, Yankees; Irving Kotlen, Red Sox, and Joe Solinger, Dodgers. The Indians and Red Sox won two games and lost one, and the Yankees and Dodgers each won one and lost
 two. High scorers were Seigal 119, toward a high three of 300;
 Solinger 116, H. Kravitz 112, B.
 Refkin 106, L. Russian 104, and Kotlen 103.

Monday night high scorers were
 Arnold Millman 113, Russian 108,
 Kotlen 100, S. Millman and I.
 Bazar 106, Seigal 107, and Solinger 102. The Indians and Red Sox won two games and lost one.

A. E. PI BOWLING

The first week of league bowling produced excellent high singles and high threes. The Indians, led by Warren Fish's 342 (118, 102, 122) took three points from the Mohawks, who squeezed out one.
 Leon Temkin led the losers with 321 (108, 100, 113). Fish was aided by Beeno Feinstein who hit 313 (112, 94, 107). The Eagles were the only team to capture four points as they easily subdued
 the Barons despite Al Jacobs' 311 (109, 94, 108). The Eagles were led by Ruby Plushner's 330 (105, 111,
 114), Jerry Freiberg's 321 (110,
 107, 104) and Bob Gittleman's
 310 (93, 107, 110).

The Bears took the measure of the Flyers 3-1. Mitch Geller lifted his team to victory with an amazing 313 (93, 115, 105) followed closely by Marv Geller (no relation) with 312 (107, 104, 101).
 Art Flink with 319 (103, 88, 128) and J. Gertz's 315 (86, 106, 123) starred in defeat. The Bisons defeated the Hornets 3-1. Ably leading this team to victory were Irv Berman with 345 (105, 111,
 129) and Dan Glassberg with 325
 (92, 126, 107). Despite the efforts of Burt Himelfarb with high three of 350 (133, 106, 111), the Hornets were no match for the Bisons.

Other good strings included
 Dick Klein 115, Charlie Cohn 114,
 Jerry Port 109, Norm Solish 109,
 Sid Dressler 109 and 105, Jay Lustig 109, Don Cohen 107, and Merrill Temkin 106.

*"How Can We Prevent Crime in Rhode Island?...
 By Prompt Detection,
 Vigorous Prosecution,
 and Certain Punishment!—
 These Vital Objectives Will Be
 My Objectives, if Elected"*

In both State and Federal service, I have gained valuable experience in matters of investigation, prosecution, writing opinions, litigating civil cases, preparing legislation and in advising State and Federal boards and departments. As Assistant Attorney-General of R. I., 1939-40, I have already done much basic work in criminal prosecution. For nearly 20 years since my graduation from Harvard Law School, I have been actively engaged both in the private practice of law and in public service. I stand on my record and ask for YOUR VOTE ON TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 4.

- Assistant Attorney-General of Rhode Island, 1939-40
- In 1940 and 1941, member of the Executive Committee of the Rhode Island Bar Association; and in 1942 and 1943, Chairman of the Executive Committee.
- One of the framers of the Rhode Island Old Age Assistance Law, 1935
- Chairman of Governor's Committee in connection with enactment of the Law of Arrest for Rhode Island
- Chief-Attorney—Rhode Island State Office OPA—1942-44
- Acting Regional Enforcement Attorney for New England—OPA—1943
- 1943, 1944—Special Assistant to the United States Attorney for the District of Rhode Island
- 1951—Chairman of the Committee of the Rhode Island Bar Association on Organized Crime in the State of Rhode Island

Four Gift Certificate Companies Merge

NEW YORK—Four major companies which sell gift certificates in the United States for transmission to Israel will merge into one unit by next Jan. 1, it was announced here this week by Irving Jaffe, executive vice-president of Scrip to Israel, one of the four companies. The others are: Service for Israel, AMEIC and Sovia Israel Stores.

Jaffe said the merger resulted from the signing of an agreement with the Israel Government uniting the facilities of the four companies in Israel into a single distribution company to serve recipients of the gift certificates. Certificates sold by any of the four units and not used before the merger goes into effect will be honored by the new company.

Yom Kippur Services

TEMPLE EMANUEL

Temple Emanuel will conduct services for Yom Kippur in three congregations. Services for Kol Nidre will begin at 5:30 P. M. on Sunday. Services Monday morning will begin at 9 o'clock. At the evening services, Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen will speak on "This World of Ours" in the Main Synagogue. Rabbi Saul Kraft will preach on "The Will to do Justice" in the Vestry Auditorium while Rabbi Samuel H. Dresner will speak on "A Kol Nidre Message" at Froebel Hall. In the morning Rabbi Bohnen's subject will be "You Can't Go Back." Rabbi Kraft will speak on "The Will to Live," and Rabbi Dresner on "The Choir Invisible."

In the Main Synagogue the services will be chanted by Cantor Jacob Hohenemser, assisted by the Choir under the direction of Arthur Einstein. In the Vestry, Cantor Louis Ainsberg will chant the services and at Froebel Hall, they will be chanted by Rabbi Nathan N. Rosen.

Memorial services will be conducted in all three congregations in the course of the morning devotions.

TEMPLE BETH EL

Sunday's services will start at 8:15 P. M., with Rabbi William G. Braude's sermon on "The Lord Is My Shepherd." On Monday the services will start at 10 A. M. with the sermon on "The Burden of Meaninglessness." Special readings will be at 12:15 P. M. and the Children's service at 1:30, with Rabbi Braude preaching on "Poor Little Peter." The afternoon service will begin at 2 P. M. with Memorial prayers at 3:30. The sermon will be "In the Hour of Bereavement." Neilah service will take place at 4:30 P. M.

Participants in the Service for Yom Kippur will be Walter I. Sundlun, Arthur J. Levy, Bertram J. Bernhardt, Samuel Kaplan, A. Henry Klein, Archibald Silverman, David C. Adelman, Walter Adler, Howard G. Brown, Irving J. Fain, Edwin O. Halpert, Maurice W. Hendel, Hyman Lisker, Arthur Markoff, William I. Matzner, Harry M. Myers, Fred S. Pinkney, Howard Presel, Sidney L. Rabino-witz and Irwin N. Silverman.

Herbert Cohen will blow the Shofar.

Mrs. Alice Liffmann, organist and music director, will be in charge of music. John Conte, concert master of the Rhode Island Philharmonic Orchestra, will play Kol Nidre by Max Bruch.

Paper's New Policy Aids Indiana FEPD

INDIANAPOLIS—The Indianapolis Star and News has adopted a policy banning the words "Christians" and "Gentile" in help wanted ads, it was announced this week. The action followed an informal complaint filed by the Indianapolis Jewish Community Relations Council with the Fair Employment Practices Division of the Indiana Labor Department.

Removes Cross for Jewish Worshippers

WASHINGTON—The Very Rev. Francis B. Sayre, Jr., Dean of the Washington Cathedral, has rejected criticism by "fellow churchmen" of the removal of a cross to make room for the Ark of the Covenant when the Cathedral was used by Temple Sinai, a reform congregation which was loaned the use of the church. Reports of the removal of the cross during the first service held by the Jewish congregation in the church brought protests from Episcopalians throughout the nation. Dean Sayre, however, has announced a new arrangement that will permit the cross to remain on the altar at all times. A screen is placed in front of the altar and the Ark is placed on a table in front of the screen when the Jewish services are held.

We look back on the year that has just passed with mixed feelings. In addition to sharing the great problems—the totalitarian menace, the continuing Korean war, the social and economic unrest in many parts of Europe, Africa and Asia, and the violent political upheavals in the Near East—which have beset the whole free world, the Jews have had special reason to be disturbed by such developments as the resurgence of Nazism in Germany, the unabated Arab hostility toward the democratic state of Israel, the sharpening dissensions over problems of community organization and fund raising in American Jewry and the growing aggressiveness and arrogance of hate-mongering groups in the United States.

There can be no room for complacency. We may hope that the internal communal problems of the American Jews will somehow be resolved without disastrous consequences, but we cannot be equally sanguine about the new lease on life that has been given to the unregenerate Nazis in Germany or about the revival and intensification of activities seeking to divide the American people along racial and religious lines.

While we refuse to view the situation through the rosy glasses of the overly optimistic, neither do we go along with the soothsayers of doom. We do not despair of the cause of freedom. We are firmly convinced of the enduring qualities of democracy, we have an abiding faith in the ultimate triumph of the cause of freedom over the dark cohorts of totalitarianism, both from the left and the right, both here and abroad.

We have that faith, that is, on one condition: that those who believe in freedom and despise tyranny will not allow the bromides of complacency and smugness to deaden their sense of alertness toward the dangers that menace our house of freedom. Eternal vigilance is still the price of liberty.

So, on the occasion of the New Year, we rededicate ourselves to the fight for a better world, ruled by peace and brotherhood and goodwill. And to all those who share our faith and are willing to join in resisting the dark forces of bigotry, we say—let us go forth into the New Year together, shoulder to shoulder, arm in arm, for only through united effort can we hold back the slimy tides that seek to engulf us and only as comrades-in-arms can we subdue the foes of truth and human decency.

"One Man's Opinion"

BY BERYL SEGAL

Harvard Freshmen: 1952

Harvard rates high among the universities of the country. Harvard students must be brilliant or they would never be Harvard students. Harvard freshman classes come from the top of the high school graduates of the year. The freshman class of 1952 is no doubt as brainy a lot as one can find anywhere on the college campuses of the land.

The Jewish boys in this year's freshman class, some 250 of them, were surely the scholastic cream of their respective graduating classes in high school. They had to be, or Harvard would never give them a thought. It is safe to say that their school records were never, God forbid, marred by anything less than a straight A. They are brilliant boys, all right.

And yet, somehow, I fail to be upset by what these bright Jewish freshmen at Harvard have to say about you and me and all of us. It seems that 180 of the 250 Jewish students of the freshman class at Harvard were interviewed about their feelings toward things Jewish, about their knowledge of matters Jewish, and what they predict about the future of Jewishness in America. Briefly, we gather from the results of the interview that:

Results of Interview

1. One out of every eight Harvard freshmen does not want to be identified as Jewish. Nor do they wish to belong to any other religious group. Call them Liberal Americans, Intellectual Americans, Free-thinking Americans, but never Americans of any religious faith or denomination.

2. The majority of the students interviewed accept the fact that they are Jewish, but are indifferent to the whole matter called Judaism. So what if they were born to Jewish parents? What effect does this have on their way of living? How does this enter into their aspirations as scientists, scholars, jurists, administrators, authors, or political leaders?

3. All but a few thought that Jewishness is on the way out, and no Harvard freshman will shed a tear over it. All the things they ever learned of Judaism were sterile, uninspiring, and had nothing to offer to the intellectual liberal of 1952.

These, and many more, negative attitudes are found in the report. Not very pleasant reading, is it? But, as I said, with all this, the opinions and the predictions of the 180 Harvard freshmen neither distress me nor scare me.

Unconcerned

In the first place, I have read of similar polls of student opinion in the past. Every year some one, somewhere, inquires into the thinking of the college student. I can remember a poll of a similar nature among the freshmen of my own class, and that was quite a few years back. I also remember that the opinions and the predictions of my freshman class were not more encouraging than those of the Harvard freshman class of today.

I recall a study made among the Jewish students of several Mid-

Western universities, and a very gloomy future was predicted for us there, too.

In the mid-twenties when I was at college it was the accepted opinion among students that in fifty years there will be no trace of Jewish life in America. All that keeps Jewishness alive, it was argued, is the presence of the immigrant generation. After this generation goes the way of all flesh, the curtain will go down on the ways of life these people brought with them from Eastern Europe. The children born to these immigrant parents in America will become completely assimilated with their non-Jewish neighbors.

Well, I do not intend to wait around the full fifty years, to see the fulfillment of this prediction, but I have lived to see a half of this allotted time pass by. As I look about me I fail to see the signs of the coming of the dark end.

As recently as two weeks ago, I watched young parents, Jewish Americans of the second and third generation, bring their children to Hebrew schools to teach them of the ways of their immigrant forefathers.

Another Prediction

Let me venture a prediction of my own about the 180 Harvard freshmen who were interviewed this year. I will not keep them waiting fifty years, either. I predict that most of them will in 10 years or so come to the doors of some Hebrew school leading a little offspring by the hand to initiate it into the sterile, uninspiring, decaying teachings of Judaism. I hope that no one is rash enough to remind the young parent of his words and views recorded in the interview of 1952, when he was a freshman at Harvard. Why embarrass him?

In the second place, I am not disturbed by the results of the poll because I know the mind of the freshman at college. The saying among college students goes like this:

The freshman is cocksure about everything. He certainly knows more than his old teachers at high school, and as for the principal, why, he was only a wind bag and a most mediocre fellow. The freshman is out to conquer the world, and what is there to stop him? Ah, the happy, rosy freshman years!

The sophomore is still somewhat cocky the first half of the second year, but begins to have his doubts toward the end of the term. Almost two years of his college education are gone, and where is he?

The junior admits that his former teachers also knew what they were doing and that he could have learned much more from them than he did. As for conquering the world, well, he will be content with mastering a small corner of the universe.

The senior has gained the beginning of all wisdom, which is the knowledge that he has only scratched the surface, and there is so much more to know and to search, and to learn, and that there is so little time left before graduation.

So you see why the freshman poll at Harvard leaves me calm. Besides, why should boys of 19, even if they are freshmen of Harvard, be bothered with such problems? Why should they be expected to have opinions about the future of faiths and peoples, when it is more natural for them to think about dates with students of Radcliffe or Wellesley. Healthier for them, too.

Situation Better Today

Lastly, I am fortified with observations made over many years. When I was a freshman at Brown, the Jewish students had a small, struggling Menorah Society. It had no program, no leadership, no standing among the students.

2:00 p. m.—Sisterhood Temple Emanuel, Board Meeting.
8:00 p. m.—Women's Ass'n. Cranston Jewish Community Club, Regular Meeting.

Meetings were sporadic, and they were rather boring affairs.

Today Jewish students at Brown, as well as Pembroke, Bryant, and R. I. State University, have Hillel Foundations at their service for a richer life as Jews. And so do the students at Harvard.

Twenty-five years ago Justice Brandeis himself never dreamed of a Brandeis University in Waltham, Massachusetts, and the Yeshivah University in New York was only a High School. In these two universities, and in the theological schools, and in the teachers colleges, and in the numerous Yeshivah schools, Jewishness is not "sterile and uninspiring."

Who knows? Some of the Harvard freshmen who participated in the gloomy predictions may some day proudly display their diplomas from the medical school of the Yeshivah University.

Finally, a word of advice to the freshmen of Harvard. Within the Harvard Yard there lives a man by the name of Harry Wolfson. He is on the faculty, and his subject is Philosophy. I never had the good fortune to sit at his feet. But I know of his work, and a very good friend of mine, a great scholar in his own right, communes intellectually and spiritually with Harry Wolfson. From these sources I gather that Harry Wolfson is one of the greatest Jewish scholars of our day. My advice, then, is to the freshmen of Harvard to look up Harry Wolfson, and to stand in his presence for a while, and to learn of his ways. Who knows? They might want to rewrite their opinions given in the interview after seeing Professor Harry Wolfson.

Nothing sterile about his Jewishness. And very inspiring.

I'm a savings & loan fan

I'm an amateur investor, aren't you?
I mean, I have my regular work to do, and nearly every time I monkey with investments on the side, I lose money.

The best way I've ever found to save money is to put it into a savings account in a savings and loan association. I have money in First Federal Savings of Providence, and I feel good about it.

Most of my money there is scattered safely among hundreds of conservative first mortgages on good homes. My savings there earn good dividends for me and my account is insured up to $10,000. But best of all, this gives me a system of sure saving.

You can put any amount in First Federal any time—draw it out if you need it—sleep nights, no worry, no bother, no gamble.

THANK YOU, SIR! Everybody appreciates courtesy!
And everybody knows that courtesy in traffic pays off in calmer nerves, less strain on drivers and pedestrians.

"Thanks for letting me have the line!"

Nowhere is courtesy more appreciated — or more important — than on telephone party lines.
People on party lines usually understand this need for courtesy and cooperation.

They share the line freely with others — are quick to release the line in an emergency — answer promptly — give the folks they're calling time to answer. All this results in better, more efficient telephone service for everybody.

PARTY LINES IN RHODE ISLAND

In January, 1948, we had 20,000 requests on hand to change customers from two- and four-party lines to one- and two-party lines. Since then, 44,000 more requests for changes have been received!

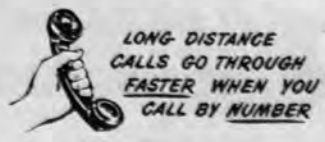

Unfortunately, few of these changes could be made by simple rearrangements of wiring. With much of our equipment being used to capacity even before these orders were received, it was difficult, and often impossible, to make such changes until new equipment was installed — and sometimes until a new building had been erected.

END NOT IN SIGHT

The end of public demand for different grades of service is not yet in sight. We still have 16,000 orders for party-line changes on hand.

The construction and development necessary to fill these orders is planned, and some of it is under way. Just how soon it will be completed depends largely on when we can obtain adequate rates. For only then will we have the financial security necessary for such a tremendous development program — a program consisting not only of important party-line problems, but of many others equally difficult and costly to solve.

SYD COHEN:

Who's In First?

It's almost all over now but the World Series, the shouting, the reminiscences, the "ifs" and "why didn't they's" . . . and the inevitable and optimistic "wait till next year."

The season really got under way last January with contract signing. Then came the call to the training camps in February, the start of the exhibition season in March, and the start of the championship season in April. Since then the boys have been at it day by day.

Yet, now that the season has just a couple of days to go, the baseball fan mumbles in dismay: "My gosh, it seems as if they just began the season!"

What about this season, as you look back at it? Well, for one thing, there is Al Lopez, Cleveland Indians manager. As this was written, his club was in the driver's seat as far as the schedule was concerned, and his boys were hot. (Proof reader's note: And then came the White Sox.) If the Indians win the pennant this weekend or in a playoff, what will Lopez do with Bob Feller in the World Series?

It will be recalled that the Indians are winning or losing entirely on the trusty right arms of the Big Three—Wynn, Garcia and Lemon. Feller, one of the greatest pitchers of all time, hasn't been trusted with an assignment for weeks. He has had a very disappointing year.

In the big Series, the Indians—if they make it—will be out to win, of course. So what happens to Feller? Will Lopez give him a start, or will he stick with the Big Three who won (if they win) the flag? If Al does start Bob in one game he may be doing it entirely out of sentiment, and sentiment has no place in the World Series, where there is big money involved, not only for your own team, but the other first division clubs of the league you represent.

Yet, how could the Indians go through the Series without starting Feller—the feller who has been so mighty, so gallant, so sensational in the Cleveland uniform? You never know—this could be Feller's last World Series (if he makes it), and only his second all told, in a 17 year career. Could you as a manager refuse him the chance to wind up with the last of his goals—a World Series victory?

It's a tough decision to make, if Lopez has to make it. Sentiment shouldn't enter into the situation, but this one is the exception to the rule. It is inconceivable that Feller should be ignored, insulted.

There is but one solution, proposed in all charity and without selfish interest by the Yankee fans. It would be unfair to burden Lopez with a problem as intense as this one; so it will be best if the Yanks win the flag and take the Feller case off Al's shoulders.

Who's In First?

Did you make a prediction about the outcome of the two major league pennant races back in April? Well, how are you making out? Good or bad—it makes no difference. The practice of picking the winners six months ago is now a lost art. It simply cannot be done, not logically.

You want an example? Look—is there anyone who would have dared guess that Sal Maglie would fall considerably short of the 20-game mark? Or that the Dodgers would come up with a guy like Joe Black to take over the pitching staff? Pretty good guessing, if you could.

Either of these conditions was enough to decide the National League pennant. Without Black around to make life miserable, the Giants or the Cards might have walked home in front. Had Maglie maintained even a semblance of early season form, when he seemed on his way to 30 wins, the race would still be tight and undecided. And then there was the unexpected failure of Jansen.

Did you guess in April that George Kell, Hoot Evers, Dizzy Trout would join the Red Sox, that Droop would leave, that Scarborough would be a winning pitcher for the Yankees? And even if you made it that far with your forecast (and who're you kidding?), would you have dreamed that Kel, one of the American League's staunchest performers, would fall apart in Boston uniform?

A pitcher like Byrd of the Athletics comes up out of nowhere to develop into one of the best in the business. Black comes up virtually unsung; a runt like Bobby Shantz takes the league apart; a star like Carresquel comes apart at the seams; Walter Masterson, of all people, becomes a winner; a horde of National Leaguers invades Cleveland and New York.

Nope, you just can't figure it, and you certainly cannot predict it, since the team you like in the spring is most definitely not the same team in the fall. The Red Sox are a good example.

There is no longer a form sheet on baseball.

Nomination for the most sweat-drenched cities in America—Boston and Brooklyn. In Beantown the fans annually, until this year, have become accustomed to seeing their team falter at the beginning, come roaring down the stretch like a lion, and then run out of gas just short of the tape. Brooklyn fans have had opposite emotions. They exult during early season and mid-summer victories, and then suffer agonies while their Bums stumble in September. And the Red Sox never did blow a pennant race such as the Brooks did last year.
