Advertisements of Pioneer Clothing Merchant

These advertisements appeared in the City Directory in 1852, on the first and last pages of the book. Mr. Lewissou was a pioneer clothing merchant on South Main Street, at that time the busiest commercial section of the city. His store was located near the entrance to the tunnel. According to David C. Adelman, the court records show Mr. Lewissou to be the first person of the Jewish faith to be naturalized in the City of Providence.

These and other records of early Jewish settlers in Providence were on exhibition at the John Brown House, 52 Power Street, during the first annual meeting yesterday of the R. I. Jewish Historical Association.

Payment To Israel By Bonn Assured

BONN, Germany—Ratification of the Israeli restitution agreement regardless of the Arab threat to boycott the Federal Republic was virtually guaranteed as a result of assurance given by Eric Ollenhauer, head of the Social Democratic party, to Kurt R. Grossmann of the Jewish Agency for Palestine that his party would support unconditional ratification at the earliest.

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's Government expects to have Parliament ratify the agreement before April 1 and to begin deliveries to Israel on the first installment totaling 200,000,000 Deutsche marks ($47,619,000) on that date.

Four thousand German manufacturing concerns are reported to be interested in supplying machinery and industrial products to Israel against the funds made available by the Federal Government. The restitution agreement, which was signed in Luxembourg on Sept. 10, 1952, provides for payments amounting to $822,000,000.

Moral Obligation Cited

Herr Ollenhauer told Herr Grossmann that the Social Democratic party would do everything in its power to bring about ratification because it regarded restitution to Jews as a long overdue moral obligation for the German people.

It is regarded as a most curious coincidence in current political life in West Germany that the only major issue on which there is agreement between the Chancellor's coalition parties and the Social Democratic opposition is the Israeli restitution pact. Both groups consider the restitution agreement as a primary political necessity in the Federal Republic's campaign to be accepted as a partner in the Western World.

Reveal Pressure By East Germans On Leaders

Dr. Bunche, In Israel, Urges Refugee Aid

TEL AVIV, Israel—Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, the principal architect of armistice agreements that regulate present relations between Israel and the Arab states, arrived here for an unofficial visit to Israel.

"I did not expect that, four years after signature of the armistice, I would find such a residue of basic human suffering," he remarked sadly.

The former United Nations mediator has just spent a month in India and Pakistan. Following the visit in Cairo to Maj. Gen. Mohammed Naguib, Egyptian Premier, he flew in a special United Nations plane to Kalandria in Jordan to pick up Henri Vigier, acting head of the United Nations truce supervision organization, and then to Lydda.

Dr. Bunche lunched with Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion and dined with Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett. On Monday, he will return to Cairo to board a plane for New York.

Called Prime Problem

In solving the problems of Palestine, as well as those of India and Pakistan, Dr. Bunche said, he would assign first priority to "disposing of the refugee question." Talking of Pakistan and India, he said:

"I saw refugees living in unbelievable conditions. This keeps things stirred up. There doesn't seem to be enough sense of urgency about this question. In 1948 everyone was willing to deal with the question of war. But now there is less willingness to deal with residue of human suffering."

Asked To Back Slansky Case

BERLIN—Communist terror by interrogation and pressure to support the current purges and campaign against Zionism prompted the decision by eight leading Jews of Eastern Germany to flee to the West.

Their dramatic story came to light today for the first time since their escape on Jan. 13. The group consisted of the president and seven members of the executive committee of the Federation of Jewish Communities in East Germany. Four of the group were members of the Socialist Unity (Communist) party.

By secret prearrangement they gathered from various parts of the Soviet zone and one by one slipped over into the Western sectors of Berlin. Since then they had been unavailable to the press.

Their story throws new light on the motives behind the Communist action against them. They said they took the final decision to flee when party officials tried to make them issue a statement supporting the trial of Rudolf Slansky and others in Czechoslovakia and denouncing Zionism.

Nevertheless, they added, they had determined to leave some weeks before. Their fears soared when the Slansky trial was followed by an intensive secret police inquiry into their own activities and family ties in Israel and the West.

The most prominent member of the group is Julius Meyer. In addition to being president of the Federation he headed the Jewish community of Greater Berlin, which included both the East and West parts of the city as well as some outlying districts. "Communities" are traditional communal organizations of Jews.

Sailors Report

Russian Suspicion

TEL AVIV—A tense anti-Jewish atmosphere prevails in the Soviet Union, it was reported here by Israeli sailors upon their return from Odessa, Black Sea port city where the Israeli ship Tzofnit unloaded a cargo of citrus fruits from the Jewish State.

The sailors said they were shadowed by Soviet secret servicemen from the moment they left the port for the city proper. Jews who only a year ago welcomed the same sailors with joy when their ship was anchored there, this time pretended that they did not even notice them. The synagogues, too, were nearly empty this time as compared with a large attendance a year ago, the sailors reported.

The Israel seamen also revealed that the Soviet port authorities even forbade them from contacting sailors from another Israeli ship, "Hadar," which was anchored in Odessa at the same time.

Will Mastin Trio
At Celebrity Club

One of the most popular and most talked-about night club groups in the nation today—the Will Mastin Trio—are appearing this week through Sunday at the Celebrity Club.

Herbie Fields and his orchestra also are on the program.

Better known perhaps as the Father, Uncle and Son act, the Trio are veterans of the Eddie Cantor TV show, having appeared with Cantor four times already. They will appear on the comedian's show again on April 12.

Their rise to fame has been rapid following a slow start. Father, Son and Uncle have been together with their act for more than 15 years, but it was not until two years ago, when they appeared at Ciro's, that they attracted national attention. Eddie Cantor heard about the act and made arrangements to bring them to his variety show. Their first appearance with him came just a year ago, and since then the boys have been flying high. Regarded as one of the five leading acts in show business, they are sought-after all over this country and Europe. They have turned down all foreign offers, including London's famed Palladium, in order to accept bookings in the U. S. And they limit their appearances on this continent to a select group of 8-10 clubs here and in Canada.

Their act lasts from 25 to 45 minutes, and includes comedy, song and dance, with hilarious imitations of just about everybody. Sammy Davis Jr. is featured, along with Sammy Davis Sr.

Herbie Fields, who appears on the program with the Will Mastin Trio, plays 22 instruments himself. His seven piece orchestra is in great demand, and while most of its appearances are made in the Mid-West, the outfit makes a limited number of Eastern appearances. This trip the itinerary includes only New York, Miami and Providence.

Fields was 16 years old when he won a Fred Allen Town Hall Tonight audition. He went to the Juilliard School of Music and then took to the "road"—and that's where he has been ever since. He is now 33.

Celebrity Club presents two shows nightly, at 10 and 12 o'clock. There are three performances Saturday and Sunday, with a 3 P. M. matinee on Sunday.

Foods To Remember

Favorite Soup Accessories

The following recipe is in response to a request from Mrs. J. L. Rabin, 3441 W. 2, Los Angeles, Calif. Thanks for a nice letter too.

Kreplach, filled with chopped cooked meat, chopped liver, or a combination of both, are an old time favorite accessory for clear soups. In fact, Kreplach in chicken soup is a favorite for Sabbath and Holiday meals. Unlike noodles which can be bought in convenient packages at the corner grocery, ready to be dropped in boiling salted water, cooked a few minutes, drained and ready for hot soup, Kreplach must be made at home. Here's the recipe.

MEAT FILLED KREPLACH (Basic Recipe)

Noodle Dough for Kreplach

2 cups sifted flour
2 eggs
2 or 3 tablespoons cold water, approximately.

Sift flour into a mixing bowl or on a kneading board. Make a depression in the center and add eggs, mixing with a fork while adding a few drops of cold water at a time till a ball of dough compact enough to handle is formed. Knead dough till smooth and elastic. Roll out on a lightly floured board, using the rolling pin deftly and rapidly. When the round of dough is fairly thin, roll from the edges toward center, moving the board for greater accommodation. The dough should be cut into squares as soon as rolled, and the filling, prepared in advance, should be placed in the center of each square to prevent dough from drying out too rapidly. Bring two opposite points of squares together, pinch the two sides together to form triangles, then two points together to form little cap shaped Kreplach. For Bite Size Kreplach, cut dough into 1 1/2 inch squares.

Meat Filling for Kreplach

1 1/2 cups finely chopped cooked meat, or chicken, chopped liver, or a combination of both.

1 egg
1 tablespoon minced parsley
1 teaspoon grated onion or onion juice; or 1 tablespoon fried onion finely chopped.

Cheese Filling for Kreplach

1 cup dry cottage cheese
1 egg
1/4 teaspoon salt
A dash of white pepper
2 or 3 tablespoons fine crumbs

Fillings should be blended thoroughly with a fork to make a smooth mixture and used as soon as the dough has been cut. Work rapidly or have an assistant for best results. When all the Kreplach have been formed, drop one at a time into rapidly boiling salted water and cook over moderate heat 10 to 15 minutes. Skim out as they rise to the top. Drop meat filled Kreplach into strained meat or chicken soup and keep at a mild heat till served.

Cheese Filled Kreplach should be lifted out and placed in a well buttered casserole or baking dish, sprinkled with fine bread or cracker crumbs and dotted with butter then baked 10 to 20 minutes at 350 degrees F to brown lightly. Serve as a main dish with sour cream.

Mrs. Leonard can be reached by writing here or Harmon-on-Hudson, N. Y. For reply, please enclose stamped self-addressed envelope.

BOWLING

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS

by Ben Feld

With "Doc" Markowitz 329 leading the way, Monitor took three games from Senator and moved ahead of them into second place. Joe Matzner 108, 103 and "Doc" Belinsky 103 also starred for the winners, while Len Goldman 362 and Hy Ladow 314 were high for the losers. Pythias lost four games to bottom Prelate. Dan Tolman's 130 and 105 and Irv Zaidman's 112 were the main causes in this big upset. Friendship and Damon each won two with Sid Matzner 119 and Morris Miller 109 rolling high for Friendship and Ruben Zeidman's 115 and 108 and Norman Miller 118 for Damon.

Other good singles: Sam Diamond 112, Bob Berlinsky 110, Ben Feld 115, Harry Wasserman 107, 104, Sol Snyder 104, Louis Brown 106, 102, Abe Aron 104, Harry Tolchinsky 102 and Saul Miller 100.

Pythias leads Monitor by four games with Senator five games away.

Damon, the last place team, won four from Monitor, the second team. Pythias, the top team, lost three to Friendship, and Senator, in third spot, lost four to Prelate. Irving Zaidman, rolling for Prelate, hit 374, just four short of the high three record.

Friendship's Saul Miller rolled 360 while Bob Berlinsky bowled 323, Lew Snyder 111 and 120, Abe Aron 128, Dan Tolman 326, Hy Ladow 317, Sam Diamond 118, Morris Miller 115, Harry Tolchinsky 318, Louis Brown 113, Sid Matzner 109, Bert Pickar 108, Norman Miller 107 and Ruben Zeidman and Harold Dubin 106.

Only seven games now separate the first and last place teams at the two thirds mark.

R. I. J. F. A. BOWLING

by L. Sacarowitz

Arden Klar sparked the Yankees to win three games from the Indians by rolling 115, 109, 117 for a new high of 341. The Indians' Aaron Siegal bowled 104, 102, 111 for 317 but it was not enough to beat the Yankees. The Dodgers took two games and lost one from the Red Sox, tying them for first place.

Good scores were made by Sam Millman 104, 106, Ira Bazar 112, Irving Kotliu 104, Hy Kravitz 103 and Louis Greene 100. Aaron Siegal heads the league for individual averages with a 99. Hy Kravitz, Joe Solinger and Bert Reffkin are tied for second place with 98.

BETH ISRAEL BOWLING

by Sam Eisenberg

Brandels and Brown are tied with 15 victories, while Syracuse, Yale and Cornell have 14 wins. Highest pinfall went to Cornell at 1550 as each man bowled over 300, led by Wolf Myrow's 329. Yale and Syracuse engaged in a thriller, the latter sweeping three games after dropping the first, thanks to Berne Rubin's 338. Army's John Werner fashioned the best evening single, 140, and best three, 351. Jack Epstein followed with 339, I. Zenofsky 337.

New business for the year topping all Canadian companies at $545 million and total insurance in force of more than $5 billion are among the many outstanding figures reported in the 82nd Annual Report of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada just released by George W. Bourke, President. During 1953, policyholders' dividends will amount to $22 millions, $2 millions more than last year. The Sun Life has 47% of its assets invested in the United States.

Mr. Bourke, reviewing the 1952 figures of Canada's leading life company, stated that the increase in the Company's new business over 1951 was 18%, which included group insurance amounting to $165,487,000, a gain in group business of $71 million for the year. The Company's total life insurance in force has grown to $5,222,947,000, an increase of 8.8%, including group insurance in force of $1,493,501,000, up 19%. Annuity payments which the Company has undertaken to provide immediately or in the future, through individual and group contracts, amount to $117,833,000 per annum.

The Sun Life, an international company with branch service in many leading United States cities from coast to coast, paid out in benefits during 1952 almost $500,000 for each working day, or a total of $118,618,000. Of this total $81,632,000 was received by living policyholders, and nearly $37,000,000 was paid to beneficiaries of deceased policyholders. Total benefits paid since the first Sun Life policy was issued in 1871 amount to $2,604,604,000. The interest rate earned on the assets was 3.84% compared with 3.70% in 1951.

The Sun Life, operating in nearly 30 countries of the world, does more than 90% of its business in the United States, Canada and Great Britain.

A copy of the Sun Life's complete 1952 Annual Report, including the President's review of the year, is being sent to all policyholders.

All enquiries regarding the life insurance services of the Sun Life of Canada in this district should be addressed to Elliot F. Slack, Representative, 1019 Industrial Trust Building, Providence 3, R. I.

Opportunity For Growth

We salute the Boy Scouts of America, observing its 43rd birthday during Boy Scout Week, Feb. 7 to 13, with its membership at an all-time high of 3,250,000 boys and adult leaders enrolled.

Our nation is all the richer for since 1910 more than 20,000,000 Americans have benefited by the training, fellowship, handicraft skills and high adventure of Scouting, and have been strengthened by the high ideals of the Scout Oath and Laws.

Boy Scout Week this year places a major emphasis on "The Scout Family." This is a two-way recognition. It honors the many fathers of Scouts among the 850,000 adult volunteer leaders in the organization. It salutes the 127,209 mothers who give generously of their time as Den Mothers in the Cub Scout ranks. It is here that the enrichment of family life is a main objective. Through doing things together boys and parents learn to know each other better. This emphasis upon strong family ties helps to build a stronger America.

"The Scout Family" of Scouting programs meets the varying needs of boys. Cub Scouting is for boys 8, 9 and 10 years old. Boy Scouting is for those 11, 12 and 13. Exploring is for young men 14 and older.

There are 58,934 churches, synagogues, schools, civic and fraternal groups who sponsor the nation's 84,300 Scouting Units in their aims to strengthen family life and build a better future citizenship in the community.

Most of these groups sponsor one of the three programs. The need today is for more boys to have the advantages of Scout training. These groups can best meet this challenge by sponsoring additional programs. This would make it possible for a boy to enjoy Scouting over a ten year span, from 8 to 18, under the same auspices.

Primary Functions of the Jewish Community

By IRA EISENSTEIN

The structure of the Jewish community should conform to the functions which it ought to perform. Obviously, each community cannot begin afresh; it must work with the institutions at hand. But it is good to have a clear idea of what such a community would look like, if it were possible to build it ab initio.

The following are the five primary functions of the Jewish community. They are included on the assumption that the Jewish community ought to attempt to satisfy those needs which Jews experience as a result of the fact that they are Jews.

(a) Fellowship: In all other relationships, Jews find that, at best, they are accepted in spite of the fact that they are Jews; that is, liberals are such insofar as they ignore the patterns of our culture minorities—as equals.

But Jews need to belong to one group which accepts them because they are Jews. Only the Jewish community can do this.

(b) Roots: Every Jew needs to feel that he belongs to a group with roots in the past. No one wants to be identified merely with his contemporaries. He is left with a feeling of transitoriness. Without an awareness of being part of a continuing group, his own life loses much of its meaning. He wants, too, to identify himself with that group in the past which made distinctive contributions to civilization; unfortunately, in the western world, if he has no roots in the Jewish people, he loses altogether the experience of such identification.

(c) A Jew needs to know who he is, where he came from, and what are the values with which his group are identified. History and literature, folk-ways and customs convey these meanings, but they can have no associations for him if he has no education in the culture of his people.

(d) Every Jew needs moral guidance—as does every other American—but the Jew relies upon his community for such guidance, because the American pattern of life is so designed that each group provides its members with ethical and moral teaching.

In addition, the community must offer each Jew religious orientation. Obviously this implies that religion must be so broadly conceived that it include more than ritual conformity or theological belief. It must be understood in the sense of a positive acceptance of life, a commitment to the fundamental affirmations of human responsibility, a faith in the worthwhileness of ideals, and a conviction that these ideals are so inextricably interwoven in the very fabric of life and reality that their ultimate triumph is possible.

(e) Jews require defense: against the insecurities of minority status, against the insecurities of illness, old age and dependence.

A community that attempts to perform these functions, namely, satisfying these needs, must possess the following qualifications:

(a) It must be democratic. It must be based upon the thesis of mutual responsibility, accountability to the constituents, regular election of leaders, and constitutionalism. It must be free to set the rules by which it governs itself, unimpeded by extraneous influences, such as prestige or money.

(b) It must be based upon the recognition of diversity. Care must be taken to protect minorities within the community, to insure their rights of freedom of religion, of speech, of press, etc.

(c) It must be based on voluntarism. The community must not seek to accept official recognition by the state; similarly, it must reject the idea of a "ghetto."

The Jewish community must be built up on the local levels, at the beginning. Attempting to foist

"One Man's Opinion"

BY BERYL SEGAL

The Midnight Ride of Doctor F.

We were sitting the other day over our morning coffee, and the talk turned on the unlovely headlines on the front pages of the newspapers, on stories of man's inhumanity to man, on tales of deceit, dishonesty, and treachery among people. We were a gloomy quartet at the table, and one of us folded up the morning paper and pushed it aside, saying wearily:

"Makes you miserable. Everything is mixed up, hopelessly mixed up. Cannot trust anybody."

But the lady near him said in her soothing voice:

"The trouble is that only perversion makes the news. Only vain women, selfish men, and acts of vice and violence attract the attention of the reporter and the news photographer. Take me, for instance. I have never been in trouble with the law, and if I continue this way for the rest of my life, my name will not be mentioned in the newspapers until the day of my obituary. But if I were to hold up a bank, rob a jewelry store, or cheat the tax collector, my name would become notorious overnight."

"What I mean to say is that there are decent people, honest people, to whom truth is still an ideal to strive for, and kindness is still a virtue worthy to seek out. We do not read about them because their stories have no news value."

Then she turned to me and she said to me with reproach in her eyes:

"Did you ever think of telling the story of Dr. F.? Why not? If this same doctor were mixed up in some scandal, if he were part of the compensation racket, or insurance fraud, he would have reporters on his trail in no time. But the story of his midnight ride, the story that you and I know to be true, that will never be told. Must a story be scandalous, shocking, before reporters grasp for it?"

That's right. Why not tell the story of the midnight ride of Doctor F.?

Late one Sunday evening, Dr. F. received a call to come and see a sick child somewhere in the wilds of Rhode Island. You would be surprised to hear what wilds we still have in this little state, highly industrial and criss-crossed by highways though it is.

He started out towards Warwick, turned off the main highway as he was told, and in no time found himself on a darkened road, snaky, and narrow. This road would be considered dangerous in clear daylight, it was suicidal on a dark drizzling night.

After traveling at a slow pace for two or three miles, Dr. F. turned around, retraced his steps to the nearest State Police Barracks, and asked for help. The station sent out a convoy on a motorcycle, and they reached the bedside of the sick child close to midnight.

To listen to Dr. F. describe the hut in the middle of nowhere, the hutful of little ones huddled on a mattress on the floor near the charcoal oven, and the gaunt disheveled mother who opened the door for him, you would think that the good doctor was painting a scenery piece for Tobacco Road. Yet, this is a place in Rhode Island, only a few miles from the second biggest city in New England!

any specific formula for organization upon localities from the top down is bound to end in futility. Ultimately, a council of local communities can be organized. Such a council would constitute the "united Jewish community of America."

Summary of paper presented at the National Conference of Jewish Communal Service, June 1, 1952, in Chicago, Illinois.

A hut at the edge of a woodland and swamp, without light, without gas, without running water, without telephone, without the most elementary hygienic necessities!

The child was lying in the only bed in the hut, feverish, filthy. Four days ago the child had taken sick, but not until Sunday could the husband go to the nearest village to put in a call. He, the husband, had not returned as yet.

After the doctor and the State trooper had tarried a full hour with the baby, they decided to send for an ambulance. The doctor waited in the hut, while the policeman reported back to his station and summoned an ambulance from the nearest hospital.

It was close to 3 o'clock in the morning when Dr. F. drove up to his house.

Oh, yes. Fees. Doctors must charge fees. Big fees. Make a case of it. That's what doctors are supposed to do. The woman had a fifty cent silver piece which she forced on the doctor, which the doctor passed on to the policeman, which he in turn slipped into the hands of the seven-year-old little girl who woke up to help mother.

That's it. This is the story of one doctor's midnight ride. The next morning when we saw him he looked tired and haggard. He was up again at seven in the morning. Because we were so concerned about his appearance, he told us this story.

Now that I wrote it down, I wonder what purpose it may serve. This is by no means an isolated case. Such things happen often. Your own doctor may tell you a better one.

But when you read of doctors who give a hand to insurance frauds, of doctors who aid and encourage compensation rackets, it is good to tell a case of a doctor whose hands are clean and whose conscience is clear, and who was a very tired man on the morning after the midnight ride to a sick child, somewhere in the backroads of Warwick.

An Open Letter To Parents On Jewish Education

By RABBI GEORGE ENDE
Director, Bureau of Jewish Education of Greater Providence

"How," asks a mother, "can I justify sending my child to a weekday afternoon school when it means depriving her of time for play and all sorts of extra-curricular activities? Won't I be turning her against Jewish life if I insist that she give up the opportunities her friends enjoy?"

There is no gainsaying the fact that pupils have a full program nowadays. And it is good that this is so. The busy child is the happy and healthy one. The condition does not call for cutting activities out of the child's schedule. It places on the parents' shoulders the responsibility of wise planning of the child's program so that room can be made for all.

Play is important, but it is significant to the child only as an interlude in a busy program. A child doesn't play because she has plenty of time; and leaving the time free does not guarantee that she will relax or play. The busiest child will find time to play; and will derive the maximum benefit.

Extra-curricular activities are important. They enrich the child's personality. But they too must be taken in measured doses. Some may have to be deferred for a while. The child's life goes on after 14; and many enduring interests are formed during adolescence.

Formal education is an activity that cannot be deferred, be it general or Jewish. In fact, most of the problems confronting the worried parent will fall away if the child enters the Jewish afternoon school at eight and accepts its routine as he does the public school's. That this is true is attested by the fact that thousands of boys and girls in America attend weekday afternoon schools without emotional upset or impoverishment of the normal range of activities and interests associated with the life of the American youngster.

True, many of your child's friends do not attend the religious school. If they could be gotten to attend along with her the process would be more normal. Why not try speaking to them or their parents and arranging for their attendance as a group?

No need to get excited about turning the child against Jewish life. By keeping her out of school you're keeping her cold to it, which is just as bad. By sending her to school as a beginner at the age of ten or eleven, you only complicate the problem for other interests which already have formed the child's routine, and the weekday afternoon school and Jewish life for which it stands will really seem like an intrusion into the life of the child. This may turn her against them.

There you have your choice. I hope you will choose wisely.

SYD COHEN:

Tall Tales Told at a Dinner

On the basis of the remarks made last Thursday night by a well-known, silver haired gentleman with a noticeable twang of New York in his speech, the scholarly and far-seeing (this is intended as a pun—thought you ought to know) members of the Major League Umpires Union ought to nominate for honorary membership one F. Frisch, garden-er, of New Rochelle, New York.

On the word of this silver haired gentleman with the peaceful face, benign smile and gentle manner, the umpires never had a dearer, more devoted friend than this Mr. Frisch, who takes such pains with his suburban horticulture.

As you listened to the smiling gentleman at the Words Unlimited dinner, you found it hard to reconcile the fact that this very same silver haired character was and is the same Frankie Frisch, the Fordham Flash, who managed the Gas House Gang, and who haunted the dreams of umpires. Man, he was rough on them!

Frisch, who referred to himself as the Old Flash, observed with a most angelic air that some umpires are very sensitive. Again, in between belly laughs, he assured his listeners that he very seldom used profanity on the playing field.

The program was filled with sports laughs—many of them, for a change, being stories most of us had not heard before. Hal Kopp, R. I. coach of the year at University of R. I. thanked several persons and groups for helping him achieve a brilliant season; and he didn't forget to thank Brown University's eligibility committee, without whose co-operation (in dropping several members from the football squad) Kopp's Rams probably would not have beaten the Bruins.

And one speaker, trying to be gallant to Kopp's wife, intended to call her the wife of the coach of the year; but it came out this way: "the coach's wife of the year". That one has the makings of an intriguing new social custom.

Curt Gowdy, Red Sox broadcaster, told a new Yogi Berra story that is worthy of mention. It seems that someone was checking baseball cap sizes at the beginning of the spring training period, and in due time got around to Berra. Yogi said his cap size was 7 3/4, then added, "but don't forget, I lose weight during the season!"

Tommy Henrich, the Yankees Old Reliable, was the hit of the dinner, as you read in the daily papers last week. He got a big kick out of his own stories and told them well. His favorite baseball comedian was Lefty Gomez, who, he said, was a major factor in the Yankees' success. Always kept the boys loose and laughing, even during slumps.

The Yanks had won five World Series in six years when they bumped into the Cardinals in 1942 and were licked four games to one. After each Series victory the club had sponsored a championship dinner for the entire squad—a really sumptuous repast, usually spread in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

But in 1942 the Yanks lost, and it was a most unusual occurrence. The club wasn't used to it. There was gloomy misery in the clubhouse as the boys dressed after the last game and prepared to leave. Gomez got to the door first, and turned to make his final contribution of the season: "This year," said the Goofy one, "the Series dinner will be held in the Automat."

Here is another new Gomez classic, as told by Henrich. The Yanks were out on the field, and someone asked Joe DiMaggio why he wore his baseball pants so low (a la Carl Hubbell and Ted Williams). Joe didn't know; he just wore them that way. Someone remarked that long pants are for low ball hitters. That naturally brought up the question of high balls, and Gomez cracked: "High balls are for hitters with red noses."

In a serious vein, Henrich, who displayed a tremendously wide pair of shoulders, said he was sorry Joe McCarthy had not won a pennant with the Red Sox. He didn't know whose fault it was, the manager's or the players', but as a result, "Baseball lost a great guy."

Old Reliable got as big a kick as his audience out of the story of how he broke in with the Yankees back in 1937. Before he had a chance to get into a game, McCarthy, then the manager of the Bronx Bombers, called Tommy aside and said that it might be better for him to go to the Newark Farm club for a while, where he would play every day and polish up for a return to the Yanks.

Henrich protested that he had not had a chance to show what he could do, but McCarthy said he still thought Tommy should go to Newark. Not taking the hint, Henrich continued to argue, saying he would like to get into a couple of games, and that he knew he had the stuff.

Finally, seeing his persuasive manner was getting no results, McCarthy interrupted gently: "You know, Tommy, I can MAKE you go."

That, says Henrich, ended that argument. And maybe that tale of McCarthy's diplomacy helps explain the deep affection that his players held for him.

The presence of Frisch and Henrich at the Words Unlimited dinner never would have been possible save for the astute and popular Jerry O'Brien and the Fram Corporation. In fact, Frisch seldom is seen at any public gathering these days. Frankie has been ailing for some time, and is under doctors' orders to take it easy. His mere presence at Words Unlimited's dinner was a triumph for our local sportswriting and sportscasting fraternity.

Henrich is a busy man in the New York area, and is in great demand as an after-dinner speaker. Both came only because of their close personal friendship with O'Brien, who "publishes" the Hanleys Sports Edition every week night over WPJB.

It was the method of arrival, though, that made the coming of these men unusual. Fram has a private plane. Further, one of Fram's executives, Bob Kosten, had been named Rhode Island athlete of the year for his triumphs on the golf links. Kosten was planning to fly to the dinner from Texas. So Jerry O'Brien suggested that Fram dispatch his plane to New York, picking up Kosten for the final leg of his trip, and also Frisch and Henrich. Fram liked the plan—and so, on the day of the dinner, the Words Unlimited Special went winging through the skies, bringing our featured guests to the dinner in rather elegant style.

For the first time in the seven year history of the event, a rabbi was selected to give the invocation. Rabbi Nathan N. Rosen, Hillel director, officiated and got the dinner off to a fine start.

THE GJC WORKER

... a Heartfelt Tribute

This, we believe, is a most appropriate time to pause in our campaign and publicly proclaim our deep appreciation to all our volunteer workers... men, women and young adults... the torchbearers of our wonderful cause.

Theirs is the energy, the determination, the enthusiasm and inspiration that spells success.

They are the flame that has kindled a generous response from the thousands of donors already enrolled on our list of honor.

We plan no closing celebration because our drive is not over. It cannot end so long as there still exists a single Jewish person in greater Providence to be contacted on behalf of his less fortunate brethren overseas and here at home.

But just as the Jews of Israel, Africa and Europe express fervent thanks to the GJC, so do we manifest our gratitude to our loyal workers and generous contributors!
