Protest Meeting Told GOP Administration Friendly to Israel

Amid assurances that the Eisenhower administration is friendly to Israel, a gathering of 300 Jewish persons from the Providence area passed two resolutions, at a protest meeting recently at the Narragansett Hotel, designed to reduce the pressure currently being exerted on the Jewish state.

The resolutions—which will be forwarded to President Eisenhower—concerned Russia's attitude toward, and actions against the Jewish people, and called upon the United States to continue its friendly relations with Israel, and "accord the highest priority to the conclusion of an Arab-Israel peace . . ."

Sponsored by the R. I. Zionist Emergency Council, the protest meeting contained the active participation of leaders of many Jewish communal agencies and organizations.

The first resolution urged in part: that the United States arouse the civilized world . . . to the dangers inherent in the present Russian actions against the Jewish People and the State of Israel, and the inevitable world disaster which it portends.

"We call upon our own government," the resolution stated, "as a member of the UN, to fulfill its patent obligation to present this matter as quickly as possible before that Body . . . and to lend its full weight and influence to the end that Justice and Humanity and Freedom may be preserved in the World."

The other resolution called for the United States to take action which would re-affirm American friendship for both Israel and the Arab states and contribute to the peace of the Middle East, including highest priority to the conclusion of an Arab-Israel peace. It urged also that the U. S. Government be prepared to give impartial assistance to all peoples of the Middle East in accordance with their needs, and that the U. S. Government continue economic aid to Israel on the level of the past two years.

Re-assurances of the Administration's friendly feeling toward Israel were affirmed by M. Louis Abedon, president of the R. I. Zionist Region, who branded as false rumors to the contrary. Abedon pointed to the friendly actions of leading Republicans, including Senator Taft, Governor Dewey and Secretary of State Dulles, to substantiate his statement.

The protest meeting was presided over by State Senator Frank Licht. Speakers included Mrs. Selma Pilavin, chairman of the National Women's Division, United Jewish Appeal; Mrs. Archibald Silverman, active Zionist leader; Mrs. Rose Gerber, president of the

Home Open House This Sunday

Home Residents Extend Welcome Sign

Extending the welcome sign to the entire community of Rhode Island, are the residents of the Jewish Home for the Aged who are having an Open House at the Home, 99 Hillside Avenue, this Sunday, April 12, from 2 to 5 P. M. The three residents putting the sign in place are, left to right—David Spitz, Peter Frank (on ladder) and Mrs. Hinda Gertz.

Women Arrange Guided Tours

With everything else in order for this Sunday afternoon's "Open House," the residents of the Jewish Home for the Aged today were anxiously scanning advance predictions of the weekend's weather.

They were hoping that sunny skies overhead would tempt many families to take "a Sunday drive"—and stop in sometime during the afternoon to help them celebrate the forthcoming launching of the $500,000 Expansion Building Fund Campaign.

But even a heavy rainstorm this Sunday won't dampen the enthusiasm of the 92 elderly men and women who now reside at the Hillside Avenue Home.

Invitations sent out to Rhode Island Jewry this week by the residents told the story: They read:

"We'd like to be your hosts and hostesses at an informal tea and reception on Sunday afternoon, April 12 . . . before the new Expansion Building Fund Campaign officially gets underway later in the month. No solicitation of funds, of course . . . just a friendly get-together and an opportunity for you to see the latest plans of the new addition that—with God's blessing and your help—might become a reality soon. Stop in anytime between 2 and 5 P. M. We'll be looking for you!"

As guests arrive Sunday, they will be personally greeted by the residents and then escorted on a "guided tour" of the Home by members of the Ladies Association. Plans of the contemplated four-story structure, required to house more than two-score applicants on the waiting list and provide badly needed facilities for present and future residents, will be explained to all visitors.

Refreshments will be served throughout the afternoon in the Home's synagogue. There will be no formal program of activities and guests will be free to come and go when they please.

A Ladies Association committee headed by Mrs. Perry Sumner will assist the residents in making

Award Contracts to Finish Beth-David

At a special meeting of the Beth David Congregation Building Fund Committee, held at the Synagogue on Oakland Avenue, contracts were awarded for the completion of the Beth David Congregation.

In conjunction with the renewal of building activities, Henry Brill, chairman of the Building Fund Committee, announced that a new campaign to raise $50,000.00 will be launched on April 12, 1953.

"This campaign will be the concluding effort of the Congregation to raise money for the completion of the Synagogue," Mr. Brill said, "and we are appealing to the entire Jewish population of Rhode Island to help us. We need the help and financial assistance of each and every civic minded person so that the Synagogue and Talmud Torah will finally be a reality. With the classrooms completed, children of all ages in and around our community will reap the benefits of Jewish cultural and religious education.

"We can all be very proud on the day the Beth David Congregation is finally completed, and is able to fill a vital need in the spiritual life of our city."

Police Officer Disciplined for Anti-Semitism

NASHUA, N. H.—A police captain who made anti-Semitic remarks to two Dorchester, Mass., drivers while booking them for speeding, was suspended by the Nashua Police Commission, the New England Regional Office of the Anti-Defamation League reported this week.

The incident was reported to the Boston Office of the Anti-Defamation League and counteraction in Nashua was carried out by the Nashua Lodge B'nai B'rith ADL Committee consisting of Joseph Zall, S. Robert Winer, Maurice D. Stein and Aaron Harkaway. They met with Chief Joseph L. Regan and advised him of the complaint. The captain in question admitted his guilt and was immediately suspended.

On March 30, the Nashua Police Commission, after an investigation and hearing, found the captain guilty of conduct unbecoming an officer and sentenced him to 100 extra hours of duty without pay.

In thanking the ADL for presenting this matter to their attention, the Police Commission stated: "We sincerely trust that you and everyone concerned in this disagreeable matter fully understand that under no circumstances would the Commission or anyone connected with the department be party to such an occurrence. Had you failed to call this to our attention, this wrong could not have been corrected. We thank you."

Dates Set For Bowling Tourneys

Arrangements for the three bowling tourneys sponsored annually by the Herald already have been begun, and dates have been set. Two men's and one women's tournament are involved.

The so-called Temple Tournament, comprising the bowling leagues of Temples Beth El, Beth Israel and Emanuel, and Cranston Jewish Center, will head the season-ending tournament parade.

This event, oldest continuous tournament in local Jewish history, will be held on Monday, April 27, starting at 8 P. M. at the Casino Alleys on Pine Street. Two cups will be awarded—the Herald trophy for the winning league, and the Trinkel Trophy, awarded to the bowler who rolls high three.

The other men's tourney is the "Fraternal" affair, which includes six leagues: AEPi Fraternity, Fineman-Trinkel Post and Post 23 Jewish War Veterans; What Cheer Lodge, Knights of Pythias; Providence Fraternal, and Beth-David Men's Club. This tournament will be held one week later, on May 4, same time and place. Herald and Trinkel trophies also will be presented to the league and individual winners.

The women's tourney, which includes Cranston Plaids, Sunnyside Debs, Fineman-Trinkel Auxiliary JWV, and Temple Beth Israel Sisterhood, will be a Sunday night affair—on April 26, also at the Casino. The Maurice S. Cooper Trophy will be awarded the winning league. Other trophies will be announced later.

She's old . . . she's alone . . . she's afraid. Night after night, she sits there — crying softly to herself . . . "I wish I were dead . . . I wish I were dead." To her, life has become empty and meaningless . . . now that she's old . . . and alone . . . and afraid. Will you give of yourself to help her want to live? Will you give of yourself to help her find companionship, security, dignity, and a sense again of being a part of the world.

These things you can do by contributing to the Rhode Island Jewish Home for the Aged Building Fund Campaign. The need for a larger home is shown by the present large waiting list. Brandeis Women
To Visit Campus

The spring Board Meeting of the Providence Chapter, National Women's Committee of Brandeis University, will be held at the home of Mrs. Milton Leand, 44 Hazard Avenue Tuesday at 10:30 A. M. Mrs. Arthur J. Levy, president, will preside. Hostesses will be Mrs. Leand, Mrs. Milton I. Brier and Mrs. Seebert J. Goldowsky.

Plans for the Chapter's spring day trip to the Brandeis campus, scheduled for Wednesday, April 29, will be completed.

Since the group's visit last year, several new dormitories have been added, old buildings have been remodeled, and the Ullman Amphitheater and the Marcus Field House and playing field have been completed. Additional schools have been established and plans are being completed for the opening of the new Graduate School of Arts and Sciences.

Members will meet at 10 A. M.

at the junction of Hope Street and Blackstone Boulevard, and transportation will be provided for all who request it. Students will conduct a tour of the campus at 12 noon and a dessert-coffee hour will follow at 1 o'clock in the Usens Common Room in the Castle. Students of the School of Creative Arts will entertain with a musical program at 2 P. M. in the Commons Room. The group will leave for Providence at 3.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. Herman M. Feinstein, PL 1-7788; Mrs. Louis Kestenman, PL 1-0725; Mrs. Edward Seltzer, UN 1-0423, and for Cranston, Mrs. William Deitch, WI 1-8661.

Hadassah Plans
Oneg Shabbat

The Providence Chapter of Hadassah will hold an Oneg Shabbat Saturday, April 18 at 2 P. M. in the vestry of Temple Emanuel. Janet Lipson Friedman will entertain, accompanied on the piano by Bella Goldenberg Halpert. Mrs. Leo Koretsky of West Medford, Mass. will review the book "The Landsmen," by Peter Martin.

Mrs. Esther Pritsker is general chairman and Mrs. Philip Ostrow, reception chairman. Mrs. Ostrow will be assisted by Mesdames Abraham Wexler, Charles Emers, Ludwig Katz, Charles Reitman, Abraham Berman, Harry Alberts, Benjamin Zetlin, Leo Rosen and Louis Kestenman.

JCC Parents Assn.
Bridge Next Week

Mrs. Hyman Goldstein, chairman of the Jewish Community Center Parents Association fifth annual bridge, presided at the final committee meeting at her home on Thursday. The bridge will be held Tuesday at 8 P. M. at Hope High School School cafeteria. Proceeds will be used for Camp Centerland camperships and other children's activities sponsored by the Center. Mrs. Goldstein and Mrs. Harold Chase will appear on the Alice Jackson television program today at 1 P. M.

JCC Youth Activities Which Are Aided by Parent's Assn. Bridge

A junior high school-age girls' club plans a program with the guidance of Mrs. Milton Stanzler, club advisor.

The Junior Ballet class is a popular activity. Miss Marilyn Medrick is instructor. Looking on in the background are Mrs. Hyman Goldstein and Mrs. Al Alter, officials of Parents Association's Bridge.

Creative art fascinates these youngsters. Mrs. Eve Cossock, instructor, guides the youthful endeavors in clay molding, modeling and other arts and crafts.

The increasingly-popular Sunday Fun-Day programs speak for themselves. Here is a typical Fun-Day audience enjoying a program in the Center Auditorium.

Shown here are a few of the youth activities which are now flourishing at the Jewish Community Center. Proceeds from the annual bridge sponsored by Parents Association help maintain these and other activities in the Center's expanded program. This year's bridge will take place on Tuesday evening at 8 P. M.

This group of children from the Center's Playschool journeyed to the Public Library for a story-telling adventure.

These youngsters inspected a real sea-going submarine at the U. S. Naval and Marine Corps Training Center. Mrs. Ben Paris of Parents Association went along as volunteer Bus Mother.

He Couldn't Learn The Crawl

Many things have been said, here and elsewhere, about the dangers of a one-party press in the U. S. A. It may be equally important to begin thinking about the threat of one-party television and radio. The issue is sharply precipitated by the news that Drew Pearson's weekly TV-radio shows are about to be terminated.

The immediate cause of death is his loss of commercial sponsors. Although the ABC network could retain him as a sustaining program, it has apparently decided that Pearson is expendable. It is hard to believe that his elimination is unrelated to his opinions.

For 17 years Pearson has been one of the few fiery liberal voices on the murky air. He had his good and bad nights (as mortal commentators do); it may even be charged that his predictions of things to come have sometimes been as fallible as those of his loudest competitors. But he had built a big and devoted audience and run a lively program—far livelier than some of the sustaining shows conducted by windy reactionaries.

His fatal offense was not that he was sometimes wrong; it was that he refused to let success convert him into a McCarthy follower. He fought Joe McCarthy hard and never truckled to him.

So, in the context of current epithets, he became a "controversial figure" to both potential sponsors and the network itself. The dreaded label is rarely, of course, applied to those who are "controversial" on the conservative side; Pearson could have meekly followed others, changed his script and avoided trouble. He preferred to retain his amateur standing; now his heresies have caught up with him. The next voice you hear will be some scared fellow nervously remembering what happened to Drew Pearson.

The Bulls—They're Kosher?

So true—this would be a much better world to live in if the idiots weren't so sure of everything—and the smart folks so full of doubt . . . Sport-scribe Ben Epstein is collaborating with Mickey Mantle, the New York Yankees' young slugging sensation, on a biography of the latter, which should hit the book marts at any moment . . . Eli Bass, the comedy writer, told Barry Gray, the Jewish disc jockey (he of the high cheek bones), he's the only guy in New York City who looks like a North Korean! . . . Vic Hershkowitz, a Brooklyn boy, won his third National Handball title by copping the YMCA Senior Singles Championship in St. Louis last week . . . Dan Parker, witty Irish Sports Editor of the New York Daily Mirror, wonders if those bulls Sidney Franklin, the renowned Jewish matador dispatches, are Kosher—or trafe!"

Yiddish Star's Debut at Six

The world in brief: Some nations are trying to preserve freedom—but others want to can it . . . Ray Brock, the famous American foreign correspondent who is of Irish descent, has a Jewish wife . . . Yiddish stage star Jennie Goldstein made her debut on the Yiddish stage at the age of six. She's appeared in only one English show in her life—"The Number" . . . Humorist Sam Levenson, talking about his childhood days, recalls the time his mother sent him on an errand and warned, "Make sure you wash your face and ears—you might get run over by a street car."

B. B. Was Brilliant Boxer

Comedian Don Tannen, appearing before a Jewish group, delivered this classic line to his audience—"To be a great artist you must suffer—you—not me!" Broadwayites don't know whether to call Vic Marsillo, the Italian comedian, disc jockey and dialectician, "The Italian Myron Cohen," or Myron Cohen, he of the fancy-shmency dialects—"The Jewish Vic Marsillo" . . . Herman Wouk, author of the best-seller, "The Caine Mutiny," is an exceptionally devout Jew. He spends an hour every day of his life reading the Bible and the Talmud . . . Did you know that Bernard Baruch was an excellent amateur boxer when a young man and turned down offers to become a professional? And speaking of Mr. Baruch, he came out with this gem at The Friars' Testimonial Dinner to Bob Hope recently, "Behind the Iron Curtain is terror. Thank God, in America, we have Faith, Charity—and Bob Hope!" At the same dinner George Jessel, in a wonderful tribute to Bob, niftied—"There ought to be a ceiling on genius!"

Celt Carries Mezuzah

The wise person says, "Fool me once—shame on you; fool me twice—shame on me" . . . Band-leader Bob Roth, brother of the late beloved character, "Broadway Sam" Roth, recently entertained at an upstate mountain resort in New York. While there, he was introduced to a newspaper scribe who said to him, "I have here a mezuzah given to me by your late brother, 'Broadway Sam,' 12 years ago, and I shall carry it with me as long as I live." The scribe was Irishman Jim Hurley, Outdoors Editor of the New York Daily Mirror . . . Ancient Jewish proverb: "When a man's stomach is full, he looks askance at a beggar."

Good Idea

Jackie Kannon, Detroit's clever Jewish comedian, tells of the fellow who visited his medico and was told by that worthy he had only six months to live.

"Then I'll become a Communist," he snorted.

"Communist?" the startled doctor asked, "Why?"

"It's better," was the amazing reply, "one of them should die than one of us!"

"One Man's Opinion"

BY BERYL SEGAL

Seventy Seven

Seventy-seven souls. That was the number of people who came to greet the Secretary of State of Israel on his first visit to Providence.

"Did you count them?"
Yes, I did. Included in this count were the Governor and the Mayor, the reporter and the photographer, and two boys.

Look at the number again and again. Seventy-seven! Picture if you can the large glittering banquet hall of the Narragansett Hotel with seventy-seven people in it. The lights in the dazzling chandeliers were not as bright as usual. The empty spaces were filled with gloom.

I listened to Secretary of State Dov Joseph, listened to the voice of the State of Israel, and I remembered a day a little less than five years ago. That was the day of the declaration of Israel's independence. On the night of that day we gathered to celebrate the occasion, also in the ballroom of a hotel.

But what a difference!
On that night I was perched with four other people on a window sill, for lack of standing room in the hall. The shouting and the singing still ring in my ears.

On that night we had only a member of the Israel army as the guest. But it might have been the president himself for all the thunderous reception to that symbol of the new State of Israel.

Now, five years later, we could muster no more than seventy-seven to come and pay homage to a member of the Israel cabinet; and an important one, at that!

Is the novelty of Israel over so soon?

Are we taking Israel so matter-of-factly that we do not get impressed by a Secretary of State from that country?

Is the coming of a Secretary of State of Israel all in a day's work for us? How many would turn out to greet the Prime Minister? The President of Israel?

When the gloomy affair was over, and the seventy-seven valiantly applauded the guest, and made heroic attempts at being satisfied with the dinner reception, I stopped several people and asked them what, in their opinion, was the reason for this poor showing. Why did so few people come to this gathering?

I was searching for an explanation to this puzzling, yes, gnawing question, seeking an answer.

"Why did so few people come?"

Let us examine some of the more common reasons for poor attendance at public gatherings.

The Sponsors. You will hear people say that it all depends on who sponsors a public gathering. You must have the right people on the letter head . . . the proper names signing the call; and success is assured. Well, this affair in honor of Secretary of State Dov Joseph certainly had the right sponsorship. All of the names are quite proper and acceptable.

Wrong sponsorship cannot be blamed for the failure.

The Purpose. People will respond to appeals for a good purpose. You get yourself a good cause and the public will heed your call. Very well. This Dov Joseph reception was the best cause you can think of. What better purpose is there than the current Bond drive?

I have not spoken to the sponsors of the Bond drive, nor to the people in the Israel Bond offices. I am not entering into the economic and financial aspects of the Bond drive. But common sense tells us that there is no greater cause and no nobler purpose than to help a people stand on its own feet. This, in a nut shell, is the aim of the present Bond drive.

Israel is not very happy with the annual appeals for your charity. Israel wants to hasten the day when it will no longer depend on high pressure campaigning, and door bell ringing, and on slogans of the Help Poor Israel type. It is humiliating. It is degrading.

Buy our Bond, says Israel, so that we may build our industry. Don't give alms; buy Bonds. Do not pity us; trust us.

This to me is the essence of the Bond drive. A good cause, a worthy purpose. Not for lack of good and proper purposes was the gathering a failure. The blame lies not there.

Public Relations. That is a cute phrase. Whenever a drive is successful, the public relations boys puff up with importance. We did it with our clever publicity. When things go wrong, the cry goes forth blaming poor salesmanship for the failure. Not enough publicity. Wrong way of appealing to the public. Too quiet. Too little advertising.

Let these public relations wizards hold their peace. The Dov Joseph visit was well publicized, and was brought to the attention of the community in a manner fitting the occasion. We received four pieces of mail, at well-spaced intervals, and there were several notices about the dinner reception in the newspapers. You did not expect jingles over the radio and promises of special attractions?

No. Poor organization is not to blame.

Then, of course, there is the old standby, the Weather. When everything else is eliminated, we can always blame the weather. It is either too hot, or too cold. It was either too miserable a night to go out, or it was too nice to be locked up indoors. You can always depend on the weather for an excuse.

Do not, please, use the weather to explain away the failure to attract more than seventy-seven people to a reception for the State Secretary of Israel. True, the skies were overcast, and it was drizzling during the early part of the evening. But it was not bad enough to keep people from coming. It was not the kind of weather in which you would not let a dog out of the house. It was unusual weather for New England at this time of the year.

So it was neither wrong spon-shorship, nor lack of good cause, nor weak publicity, nor an insignificant guest, not even bad weather, that can be blamed for the empty seats at the hotel and the gloomy air in the banquet hall.

What, then, was the reason? What or who is to blame? Where is the answer to be found for the failure of this gathering.

Of this we will reason together next week.

SYD COHEN:

Yankee-Haters--
Take Heart!

Ready or not, the big league season is with us again; and while it is a quiet, uninspiring and unexciting beginning here in New England, it still is the start of the major league season, and there is no occasion in American sports like it.

The terrific rivalry between Red Sox and Yankee fans is no longer with us, may its memory remain keen, and may it soon return to life! But if you think that makes the fans? What good is it having a contending or championship team to follow if you can't argue about it and defend it against its enemies? How can you pick a fight and glory in the exchange of insults to the other team when there is no response, no argument?

Everybody is picking the Yankees, all of the experts are lauding the Stengel Soothsayers to the skies—so where does that leave the fans? What good is it having a contending or championship team to follow if you can't argue about it and defend it against its enemies? How can you pick a fight and glory in the exchange of insults to the other team when there is no response, no argument?

Yes sir, the fall of the Red Sox was a foul blow to the Yankee adherents. It robbed them of all their fun.

Writers Lose Resistance
They're all picking the Yankees to do what never has been done before—and this despite the fact that the Yankees are not set and have a lot of ifs. As far as I can see, this unanimous selection of the New Yorkers is not based so much on their ability or class as shown this spring as it is on the fact that the Yanks have worn down the resistance of the writers and experts, as well as the morale and resistance of the other American League clubs.

Besides, the writers now are intrigued by two factors—the idea of five straight pennants, and Casey Stengel. Having built Old Case up as a miracle man during four seasons, they now see no way to halt him.

Well, here is a lone voice in the wilderness to cry out that the Yanks are not such a sure thing.

It is agreed that on paper New York should win. The club has all-around class in sufficient quantities to outdistance its rivals by as much as 15 games this year. Other teams may present better hitting, just as good pitching, more outstanding individual performers. But none will have the combination of hitting, pitching, defensive skill, reserves and spirit—all in one package—that the Yanks do.

Yet—despite my own argument that this year's Yankees could turn out to be the best all-around team in the post-war era—I say that the World Champs are not a shoo-in. And for the answer to that puzzle, we have to look at the human factor.

Yanks Are Human
Yes, strange as it may seem, the Yanks are human. From the top down they are obsessed this year with only one idea—that fifth straight. George Weiss is determined to get it. Casey Stengel MUST have it, the players want the honor of it—plus the customary World Series "bonus" which their wives and families have come to consider as their rightful income.

This obsession could be their undoing.

Take Stengel, for instance. Casey has admitted he intends to get No. 5, and thus stand out in a class by himself among baseball's all-time managers. Victory becomes sweeter every year, and the record book presents a greater challenge each time.

What if the Yanks get off to a poor start, suffer a couple of annoying injuries, don't find themselves right away? Suppose one or two rival teams get hot—even if only temporarily? Isn't it conceivable that Stengel—baseball's good humor man—might then turn sour and irascible and begin to get on his own nerves and those of his players? After all, the

Reception Guest

DAVID BARATZ, new Senior Counselor of Providence Council No. 67, United Commercial Travelers of America, was one of the guests at the reception for new officers of the organization March 15 at Commercial Travelers Hall, Franklin Street.

A cocktail hour at 5 P. M. preceded dinner. Past Grand Counselor Sydney J. Hoffman, now secretary-treasurer of the club, was master of ceremonies. Mrs. Baratz was chairman of the reception committee.

man is a human being, not a perfect machine.

Suppose Casey starts to drive his men too hard and puts them on edge! It could happen in the all-out drive for five straight. And it could wreck the club, if it does happen. Human frailties could succeed where seven American League clubs—and National League World Series combatants—have failed.

The same thing could happen to the players. A poor year for one or two, a poor start for another, a feeling of impatience at the way things are going—and the pennant could be lost.

Another factor—You can't foresee this on paper, but as good as their bench is (and it looks to be loaded), the Yankees can ill afford crippling injuries to the likes of Mantle, Berra and Rizzuto, or Raschi, Reynolds and Lopat. As long as these pros are in the lineup the remainder of the team can be built up to super-status. Take out a couple of them, and it might become just another ball team.

It also could happen that one other club might get hot and stay that way all season—and knock off the Yanks by sheer ability.

Defeat Overdue

The law of averages is a funny duck. For 30 years it has ignored the Yankees, letting them win consistently, until the baseball world is convinced there is connivance between the two.

Well, wouldn't it be ironic if the law of averages should choose this year to catch up with the New Yorkers and deprive them of the coveted fifth straight? It could happen. It has happened before.

Back in the spring of 1940, the Yankees were favored to win their fifth straight under Joe McCarthy. The fourth straight had come easily, by a 17 game margin; and this was the same club.

What happened? The rumor spread around the team in the Spring that Lou Gehrig's illness might be contagious. Gehrig had left the team after the 1939 season because of his fatal illness. He was dying and the rumor worried the boys. Bill Dickey, who had been Lou's roommate, couldn't help thinking about it. He had a miserably start, along with all the others. Babe Dahlgren, who had replaced Gehrig, dropped off more than 20 points in hitting, and possibly because of Gehrig's dark shadow; and a deal with the Browns for George McQuinn was canceled by the league, which was sick of the Yanks' winning and imposed a trading ban on them. Oh yes, Monte Pearson's arm picked that same year to go dead.

So a vastly superior Yankee club lost. And it proved its superiority by conquering its difficulties and climbing to within two games of the flag—and by winning the next three years.

The law of averages picked an historic year to get even with the Bronx Bombers.

Since 1940, the Yankees have won eight times. The situation is the same. Yankee-haters have always complained that Lady Luck rides with the team. This year they could get their vengeance.

Last year the Indians were champs—on paper. Before that for several years it was the Red Sox. Now, for the first time in ten years, the Yankees are favored to win. Paper champs have been a poor risk in the American League in recent years.

Based on this reasoning, 1953 could be the ideal year to vote AGAINST New York, not yield resignedly to that fifth straight.

And yet—the team looks SO good ...!

BOWLING

FINEMAN-TRINKLE

by Abe Lobel

The Reds took four points from the Yankees and moved to one point behind the Dodgers. M. Zuckerman 112, 107, 130 for 349, and Sam Miller 314 paced the Reds. M. Klibanoff 112 led the Yanks. The last place Braves, without a single man bowling over 300, took 4 from the Dodgers. The White Sox dropped 3 points to the Tigers. The Giants took four points from the Indians, ending the latter's winning streak. Phil Shaulson 117, M. Rodyn 112 and Stuite Steingold 329 topped the Giants.

The Athletics took three from the Pirates. Charlie Steingold 356 was high three but his teammates couldn't help him. Other good three's were R. Zlatoff 351, Harry Shore 330, J. Hochman 322, Leo Friedman 327.

BETH-EL BOWLING

by Joe Gutterball

Sam Feldman rolled 165 and 357, and came within one pin of tying Joe Levine's 166 high single, as he led the Feldmans to a 3-1 victory over Howie Nelson's bowlers. Captain Lou Feldman rolled 331 and Morris Feldman II 309. Nelson paced his team with 337, Buddy Adler 327 and Lou Gordon 317. Eli Rodin's Hitless Wonders took the American Division title by winning four from Erwin Summer's team. Rodin's team led by 13 points with only three weeks remaining. Rodin had 319 and George Goldman 311.

Jack Applebaum's team increased its National Division lead with a 4-0 victory over Leo Kouffman's keggers. Jack rolled 318, Ben Silverman 323 and Myer Jarcho 313. Myron Silverstein pinned 344 and Dick Barber 329. Mal Mickler's 364 and Julie Bloom's 363 paced Norm Tilles' team to a 3-1 triumph over Percy Newman's bowlers. Nat Alterman rolled 341 for the losers. Vin DeCesaris' 364, aided by Morris Feldman I with 328 and Lou Bloom's 308, led Vin's team to a 3-1 victory over Sy Fain's team. Murray Trinkle had 333 and Harry Gordon 319.

Irwin Silverstein's bowlers topped Will Smith's men 3-1. Aaron Sutton rolled 340, Warren Foster 333, Howie Fain 310 and Silverstein 308. Joe Alterman had 325. Mac Morgan's men divided with Milt Weissman's bowlers. Morgan rolled 346 and Al Silverstein 321. Weissman rolled 320, Herb Firestone 317 and Dave Ettine 315.

Browns, 3-1 Fred Kafrisen leading the Browns with 311.
