Sundlun, acting for the sponsors committee. Many prominent personalities, representing all faiths, have joined in the state-wide tribute.

Sundlun, in a statement announcing the plans for the testimonial, pointed to Schlossberg's "very valuable contributions to the public welfare." "His many years of leadership in the religious and civic life of our community has won for him the confidence and admiration of those privileged to know him," Sundlun stated.

Schlossberg is City Councilman from the Ninth Ward.

State Dept. Orders Embassy in Jordan To Act for U.S. Jew

WASHINGTON—The State Department has ordered the U. S. embassy in Jordan to help an American Jew whose request the Embassy had turned down because he was Jewish. Sen. Herbert H. Lehman's office announced here.

Elliott L. Biskind of New York had complained to Senator Lehman that the Embassy refused recently to try to obtain for him information on how to go about registering for property owned by him and his brothers in the Old City of Jerusalem, now in Jordanian hands. The Embassy told Biskind it did not "deem it appropriate" to aid Jews in view of the "particularly violent anti-Jewish feeling prevailing at the present time in Jordan."

Lehman took the matter to the State Department and his office said the Department "has now replied, advising us that the Embassy at Amman has been directed to approach the officials of Jordan and to try to obtain from them the necessary information" requested by Mr. Biskind.

Impose Sentences In Fraud Case

FRANKFURT — After a trial which lasted about 10 months, all principal defendants in the case of the former "Jewish Restitution Bank" here were sentenced to terms that caused astonishment because of their severity.

Dr. Joseph Kilbansky, generally considered Germany's best known Jewish attorney, was sentenced to 18 months in jail in addition to a fine of $4,500 for being an accessory to violation of foreign currency regulations and of certain provisions of the corporation law.

Wilhelm Marrien, originally technical advisor of the bank and later its manager, received 10 months imprisonment.

Rosh Hashanah to Usher In New Year 5714 Next Wednesday Eve.

Jewish communities the world over are preparing this weekend for the High Holy Day period that includes the two most hallowed holidays on the Jewish calendar—Rosh Hashanah and Yom Kippur.

Most synagogues will welcome in this period of prayers and penitence at the traditional Selichoth service that begins at, or shortly after, midnight tomorrow night.

The arrival of Rosh Hashanah—the Jewish New Year—will be heralded by services at all synagogues and temples on Wednesday evening. The holiday will continue through Thursday and Friday.

Following is a list of services scheduled in the Providence area:

CRANSTON CENTER

Rabbi Julius Goldberg, newly engaged permanent spiritual leader, will lead the Cranston Jewish Center during the High Holy Day services. A choir of 21 members of the organization under the direction of Arthur Siegel will participate in the services.

Morris Filler is chairman of the High Holy Day committee, assisted by Mrs. Max Greenberg, Albert Sydney, Alfred Levy, Leonard Guy, Al Silverstein, Israel Karten, Herbert Woolf, Samuel Jacobs and Israel Press.

Selichoth services will be held tomorrow at midnight.

Following is the schedule for the services: Rosh Hashanah services will begin on Wednesday evening at 7 and 8 P. M. On Thursday and Friday mornings, services will start at 8:45 with the reading of the Torah at 10 o'clock and the sermon at 10:45. The children's service will take place at 2:30. Thursday and Friday evening services will begin at 7 o'clock.

Silver Tells Zionists U.S. Wants Israel to be Secure, Prosperous

NEW YORK—Dr. Abba Hillel Silver, Zionist leader, declared last weekend that the United States Government's attitude toward Israel was "friendly and sympathetic" and that the Government was eager to see the new state "secure and prosperous."

Dr. Silver addressed a dinner-session of the fifty-sixth annual convention of the Zionist organization of America at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. It was in the form of a birthday testimonial to Dr. Emanuel Neumann, chairman of the economic department of the Jewish Agency for Palestine in Jerusalem. Dr. Neumann celebrated his sixtieth birthday on July 3.

Dr. Silver said prior to his address that he had met recently with President Eisenhower and that they had discussed the subject of Israel.

In his address Dr. Silver, who is a leader in the Reform branch of Judaism, noted that there is "reason to believe that the attitude of our Government on the status of Jerusalem is not remote from the position taken by the spokesmen of the state of Israel." However, he urged Zionists "not to relax vigilance."

"A political climate," he added, "like the weather, generally is not a static thing. Today's good weather is no guarantee of tomorrow's. Powerful forces are at work to undermine, to discredit, to confuse and to mislead."

"The Zionist movement must continue to cultivate friends everywhere—the press, the pulpit, university circles and in the Government. The task is even more difficult."

Ress Takes Over As Acting Head of GJC

JOSEPH W. RESS

Board Pledges Full Drive Support

A meeting of the board of directors of the General Jewish Committee of Providence this week elected Joseph W. Ress acting president of the organization since President Alvin A. Sopkin will be out of town for four months for reasons beyond his control. An indication of the enthusiasm expected in the 1953 Campaign was shown when 82 of the 100 Board members were on hand at the Ledgemont Country Club even though the special meeting was called on short notice during the Summer months.

Sopkin told the group he expects to be away from Providence for four months to receive some preventive medical treatments. He explained that, fortunately, he is in good health, but he felt he owed it to himself and his family to receive the recommended treatments. During this time Ress will serve as acting president of the GJC.

Sopkin called the meeting of the board as soon as he learned that he would have to be away from Providence for an extended period. He said he felt it his duty to explain the situation to the board and ask for the co-operation of all so that the important work of the GJC would continue without interruption.

As a result, the vice-presidents of the organization met and decided to recommend Ress as acting president during this interim period. Their recommendation received the unanimous endorsement of the 82 members present.

Several of the directors attending the meeting rose to pay high personal tribute to Sopkin and pledged increased effort to make this campaign better than previous years. Included in the list of tributes from the floor were remarks by Archibald Silverman, Henry J. Hassenfeld, Walter I. Sundlun, Dr. Ilie Berger, Alter Boyman, and Mrs. Archie Fain, chairman of the Women's Division, who pledged even greater efforts from her group during the forthcoming campaign. Sheldon Heller, speaking in the absence of Leonard Blazer, chairman of the Young Adult Division, said that his group would spare no effort to insure the success of their campaign. Other speakers were A. Alfred Fain, Joseph M. Finklestein, Joseph Galkin, Benjamin N. Kane, Sidney A. Kane, Arthur Kaplan, recently appointed chairman of the initial gifts division, Samuel P. Lazarus, Israel Resnick, Samuel Rapaport, Jr., and Max Winograd.

Ress, a prominent businessman, has long been associated with welfare and communal work. In addition to being a vice-president of the General Jewish Committee and a vice-president of the Bureau of Jewish Education he is a director of the Greater Providence YMCA, a director of the Rhode Island Community Chest and Providence Community Fund, a trustee of the Rhode Island Charities Trust, chairman of the Rules

To Dedicate New Emanuel Building

The new building, including the New Synagogue, at Temple Emanuel will be dedicated immediately preceding the services for Rosh Hashanah Eve, on Wednesday, Sept. 9, Samuel Rosen, Temple president, has announced.

The exercises will begin at 7 P. M. under the chairmanship of Daniel Jacobs, and will include a procession in which the Torahs will be taken from the main synagogue and placed in the Ark of the new synagogue. Samuel Lazarus, chairman of the school building committee, will turn the new building over to Rosen.

Immediately following these exercises the Maariv service will be conducted by Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen and Cantor Jacob Hohenemser, assisted by the choir under the direction of Arthur Einstein. Should the number of worshippers require it, an additional evening service will be conducted in the main synagogue by Rabbi Harold H. Gordon and Cantor Louis Ainsberg with Ralph Einstein at the organ.

On Thursday morning services will begin at 8:30. In the main synagogue Rabbi Bohnen will speak on "The Neighbor" and in the new synagogue Rabbi Gordon will speak on "The Moral Climate of the World."

On Friday morning Rabbi Bohnen will conduct the services in the new synagogue, speaking on "The Judged and the Judge," while Rabbi Gordon will conduct the services in the main synagogue. His sermon title is "After 300 Years—What?"

Except for the first evening of Rosh Hashanah Cantor Hohenemser will chant all the services in the main synagogue, assisted by the choir. Cantor Ainsberg will chant all services in the new synagogue with Ralph Einstein at the organ.

There will be two children's services conducted by the staff of the religious school. Boys and girls up to the age of nine (including all pupils who have completed the Alef Class in the Integrated Program Department) will meet in the Chapel of the new building (entrance on Taft Avenue). All other boys and girls up to age 13 (or over 13, if for any reason they cannot attend the adult services) will meet in the vestry auditorium of the Temple proper.

All services in both groups will begin at 11:15 A. M. and end at 12:30 P. M.

Family Service Offers Counselling Service to Childless Couples

In a statement distributed to Jewish lawyers and doctors in the community, Nathan E. Sklar, executive director of the Jewish Family and Children's Service, pointed out that each year thousands of childless couples are unnecessarily exposed to great mental anguish and suffering. Last year for example 900,000 childless couples sought out every avenue to adopt possibly one of the 90,000 children born out of wedlock.

The Jewish Family and Children's Service has recently expanded its adoption program to include a counselling service. It has been found that childless couples given the opportunity to talk through their problems with a trained professional have been enabled to lead more harmonious lives.

Within the past year, a married couple, childless for over five years, were on the verge of divorce. They had written letters to every Jewish agency in the country and had gone to doctors and lawyers seeking a child. It was only as a last resort that the couple were referred by a Rabbi to the agency. After several exploratory interviews, the case worker enabled the wife to follow through on the medical regime that had been previously recommended by a physician. The wife through faulty understanding felt she could not follow through on the proposal. However, through counselling she realized that she was throwing up barriers which were not logical. The agency received a letter just last week from this woman telling of her operation which she felt sure would now help her conceive.

The Jewish Family and Children's Service is the only licensed agency in the State to place Jewish children. All couples who wish information can arrange for an appointment by telephoning DE 1-1244. The relationship with the agency is on a professional basis with the utmost of confidentiality being maintained.

A special advisory committee chaired by Harold Moskol, attorney, consults with the agency staff. The other members of the committee are Dr. Charles Potter, Dr. Banice Feinberg, Dr. Melvin Johnson and Mrs. Joseph Adelson.

New Sponge Cake Easy to Make

The traditional sponge cake of former years has a new look these days—and a new place on the family menu, thanks to the unique quality and easy-baking convenience of new Manischewitz Sponge Cake Mix, the only mix of its kind available to the housewife today.

Gone is the plain brown sponge cake look; instead, you now get a high and handsome, delicately golden-brown cake of remarkably fluffy, resilient texture, with fine taste and oven-fresh fragrance.

Most important is the fact that with Manischewitz Sponge Cake Mix on hand, anyone can bake a perfect cake at a moment's notice—so quickly, so easily, that the entire process from package to oven is a matter of four or five minutes.

Party cakes, Sabbath cakes, holiday cakes or the daily treats that delight the family at dessert-time are ready to bake in a jiffy—and they come out of the oven with a delectable taste and quality that only the choicest, purest home-kitchen ingredients can produce—the very ingredients that go into Manischewitz Sponge Cake Mix.

As the High Holidays draw near, with their tradition of sponge cake to accompany the holiday meals, the following recipe for Strawberry Pink Sponge, created in the scientific home kitchens of the B. Manischewitz Company, provides a novel and enticing way to add a modern touch to the traditional holiday sponge cake. Other recipes may be obtained by writing to Manischewitz, Box 288, Jersey City, N. J.

STRAWBERRY PINK SPONGE

- 1 Box Manischewitz Sponge Cake Mix
- 1 Tablespoon Sugar
- 4 Egg Whites
- 1 12-oz. Jar Strawberry Preserves

Following directions on the box of Manischewitz Sponge Cake Mix, bake cake in an ungreased 10" x 4" tube pan. When cool, split in half to form two layers. Beat egg whites until stiff, adding sugar gradually. Saving a few whole berries for garnish, crush the strawberry preserves until fine, and carefully fold into egg white meringue. Spread between layers of cake, and pile on top and around sides. Garnish top with whole berries. Transfer cake onto baking sheet and bake in hot, pre-heated oven (375-400 degrees F.) for about 5-7 minutes, or until peaks of meringue start to turn light golden brown. Serves 12-12.

5-year Jewish Center Building Activity Reaches 45 Million

NEW YORK — New structures completed and occupied, buildings in construction, and those in the planning stage for Jewish Community Centers in all section of the U. S. and Canada totalled approximately $45,000,000 during the past five years, it is reported by the National Jewish Welfare Board (JWB), on the eve of the nationwide celebration of the Jewish Community Center movement's Centennial. The JWB is the national association of Centers and Young Men's and Young Women's Hebrew Associations.

The study of Jewish Community Center and YM-YWHA building activity, covering the period Sept. 1, 1948 to Sept. 1, 1953, was made public by Mrs. Walter E. Heller of Chicago, chairman of JWB's Jewish Center Division, which renders a complete, year-round program of service to the Centers and Y's. In the field of building construction, technical aid and guidance is given the local agencies, from initial step to completion, by the Building Bureau of JWB.

One hundred and thirty-five Centers and Ys, the building study shows, were, in the past five years, at various stages of construction, from the acquisition of sites to dedication and occupancy of completed facilities. The greatest Center and Y building activity took place in the New England region, where 24 agencies were engaged in building programs. The New York metropolitan area was close behind with 21 Center construction projects.

In the New York metropolitan area, where there are 90 Jewish Community Centers and YM-YWHAs affiliated with the National Jewish Welfare Board, 12 agencies completed and occupied new facilities in the five-year period ending Sept. 1, 1953, and two others completed major alterations to their facilities. The aggregate cost of this building activity was $7,045,000.

Report French Repulse Attack By Arabs on Moroccan Jews

PARIS—An attempted raid by a column of Arab nationalists on the Jewish quarter in Rabat, Morocco, was successfully repulsed by French police, the Paris Radio said on Sunday. The announcement added that police had dispersed the crowd without casualties.

Heavily armed police stood guard outside a synagogue in Oujda, in Morocco, while funeral services were held for four Jews—including an 11-year-old girl—killed in rioting last week, it was reported here. A Jewish-owned pharmacy was burned down. Oujda, which is located near Algeria, was the scene of a pogrom in 1948 when the Jewish quarter was devastated by a mob. Five Jews were killed and 30 injured at that time.

Although the new pro-French Sultan of Morocco is reported to be friendly towards the country's 260,000 Jewish citizens, apprehension is still felt here over the possibility that the deposed nationalist Sultan might suddenly return and seize power again. It is generally believed that if the new Sultan remains in power, the Arab attitude towards the Jews here might improve.

For several years, the Joint Distribution Committee, with funds provided by the United Jewish Appeal, has been conducting extensive child-care and medical aid programs in behalf of some 75,000 destitute Jews in Morocco.

MRS. GEORGE REIZEN, chair-

nounced today that plans for M-Day, which will be held on Oct. 18, are in full swing. Several hundred

Rabbi Silver

ficult now because the elementary homelessness and homeless refugees is no longer there."

In discussing the future of the Zionist movement, Dr. Silver declared that the problem "does not lie" with the Zionists who live outside Israel "but within the Government of Israel," adding that if Israel "wishes, it is possible to have a strong Zionist movement."

Dr. Silver asserted that the World Zionist Organization was a "standing army of volunteers mobilized and on the alert to serve and defend the just interests of Israel." For support of Israel, he added, "there is need for an effective apparatus to sustain interests, to retain the sympathies of the old and to arouse the loyalties of the young."

Israeli Coalition Hailed

Dr. Silver hailed the new Government coalition in Israel, adding that the merger of all "non-Socialist groups into one broad General Zionist party is both logical and desirable."

The coalition Government, he said, will encourage private investment in Israel from many groups outside of the country "who are not interested in investing their capital in order to establish socialism in their lifetime; and Israel must have private capital to prosper."

Tributes to Dr. Neumann's efforts in behalf of the Zionist movement and Israel were paid by Dr.
Silver, Mortimer Day, chairman of the national administrative council of the Z. O. A., and Rabbi Irving Miller, its president.

Announcement was made that a grove of 1,000 trees would be planted in Israel in Dr. Neumann's honor by the Jewish National Fund of Mexico.

and Regulations Committee of the Providence Community Fund, and a trustee of the Brown University Alumni Association, the institution from which he graduated in 1926 as a member of Phi Beta Kappa. He is also a graduate of Harvard Law School, serves on the executive committee of the Miriam Hospital, and is chairman of its medical affairs committee. He is a member of the board of governors of Ledgemont Country Club, and a member of the Turks Head Club. He is also vice-president of the New England Region of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds and a member of the National Board of the Council.

Commenting on his election, Ress said he considered it his civic duty to assume this responsibility during the absence of Sopkin. He said he was extremely gratified to know that the other four vice-presidents, Henry J. Hassenfeld, Sidney A. Kane, Samuel Rapaport, Jr., and Max Winograd, would form a cabinet to aid him during the next four months and that every member of the board has pledged his fullest support.

An indication of the kind of spontaneous enthusiasm generated at the meeting at which there were no solicitations, came when one Board member rose to his feet and pledged that his contribution during the campaign would be raised by $1,000 over last year "as a special tribute to Alvin A. Sopkin and the cause for which he has worked so devotedly."

At the close of the meeting Sopkin told the board members present that it was a "great source of gratification and comfort to me to know that the work of the General Jewish Committee would continue in full force during my absence." He concluded that he is "grateful for the enthusiasm and devotion shown to the cause."

Rosh Hashanah -- New Year

A ten-day period of spiritual inventory begins for the Jews of the world at sunset on Wednesday, September 9, when the Jewish New Year will be ushered in with religious services in synagogues throughout the world.

The evening services on the New Year, or Rosh Hashanah, will be followed by devotions on Thursday, and by Orthodox and Conservative Jews also on the following day. The subsequent period until Saturday, September 19 is known in the Jewish tradition as the High Holydays, or days of special sacredness dedicated to repentance and spiritual regeneration. The Jewish New Year is unique among religious observances in that it commemorates no historical event, although tradition assigns the birth of the world to this day.

The prayers and the music of the synagogue on this day stress the theme of God's universal rule of the world and the brotherhood of man. The liturgy is featured by the sound of the shofar, or ram's horn, which is designated as a call to conscience and is meant to arouse man's innate goodness to do combat with unworthy conduct.

According to tradition, the High Holydays this year introduces the year 5714. In the United States, this year will be marked by the celebration of the 300th Anniversary of the arrival of the first Jews on the shores of America.

THE KINSEY REPORT

As this is being written, the new Kinsey book on sex and the human female is the big noise. It is something new, almost unprecedented. In fact, the only precedent I can think of is the Tractate "Yevamoth" of the Gemara, which came out about 2,000 years ago. "Yevamoth" deals entirely with sex in the female too. I don't suppose it has been read as much as the new Kinsey book. There is some good reading in the old books, it seems, but you've got to know Hebrew to do it.

Sex is a topic usually left to the sensationalist and I think the significance of Mr. Kinsey's work lies in the fact that he, a trained university man, has taken this subject and dealt with it scientifically and realistically.

The Jews have been from ancient times quite realistic about sex. The ancient Jews never blinked the fact that you couldn't just deny sex or try to push it away as something unworthy. The fact that the Jewish religion put such an emphasis on marriage is proof of this realism. Jewish thought regarded it an obligation to get married. Some rabbis held that a man could be brought to court if after a certain age he had not done so. The significance of this is plain. It meant that sex was a fact of life, an inescapable experience which no one should seek to escape.

The same thought is stressed by the emphasis put on helping a girl marry. According to the Ethics of the Fathers, which every good Jew reads on the Sabbath, helping a girl get married is such a great mitzvah that you are repaid for it by God in this world and even get a little interest on it in the world to come.

Perhaps marrying off everyone irrespective of other considerations is not the complete ideal solution, but it certainly was comprehensive and perhaps about as good as any generalized solution can be. It assured sex experience for all.

It is interesting to note that the church which took over so much

Out of the Enemy's Hands

How the Jewish Chaplains Welcomed the Jewish PW's

The Herald in cooperation with the Commission on Jewish Chaplaincy of the National Jewish Welfare Board (JWB), presents herewith a group of historic dispatches from both Freedom Village and the Inchon Processing Center in Korea by two Jewish chaplains who have been giving a warm hand of welcome to the Jewish GIs liberated after long and agonizing imprisonment in Communist PW camps.

By Chaplain Murray I. Rothman HQ Battalion, 1st Marine Division FREEDOM VILLAGE, Korea, Aug. 17—For Cpl. Bernard Berman of Lakewood, N. J. the memorable moment of this unforgettable day is 10:15 A. M., when he became a free American again after 27 months of captivity. Cpl. Berman, the first Jewish repatriated prisoner of war to come through this unique place in Operation Big Switch, is a personable young man and the Jewish community of America may well be proud of this, its son.

I was peering intently at the name tags the freed GIs were wearing and when I spotted the name Bernard Berman on one, I asked eagerly, "Are you Jewish?" His answer was a proud and vigorous "Yes!" To which I replied (with a high sense of privilege, I assure you) that I was the Jewish chaplain assigned to Freedom Village.

There was a moment's electric silence as we sized each other up—and then we spontaneously embraced!

Promptly taking Bernard in tow, I steered him through the processing line until we got to the chapel area, where there are four chapels—two Protestant, one Catholic and one Jewish. Bernard and I entered the Jewish chapel, of course, and for a good while just sat peacefully before the open Ark. This Ark, and the Torah it houses, have travelled through Korea, from the rear areas right up to the combat lines, during the endless days and hazardous nights of bitter battle. And now here it is at Freedom Village to bring its imperishable message of wisdom and welcome to Jewish GIs freed at long last.

After awhile, we arose, donned prayer shawls, and, opening the National Jewish Welfare Board prayer books, recited the great from Judaism did not altogether see eye to eye with Judaism in this matter of sex. To the church, sex is essentially sinful. To the Jew, sex itself, when it is legitimate, was not so regarded, although there were apprehensions about its excess. Judaism tried to sanctify instead of forbid sex. Legitimate relations were not forbidden, but sometimes even encouraged. They were "Mitzvoths."

"It is better to marry than to burn," said Saint Paul, but the ideal state, he held, was celibacy. That is not the Jewish view, and seemingly it is not the view of Kinsey, who maintains that even the school teacher is a better teacher, if not sex starved.

I haven't seen the new Kinsey book. I don't know whether it takes up the matter of divorce. It seems to me that here too the Jewish experience is singular. It is extremely easy for a man to get a divorce, according to the Jewish law, and yet divorces were very rare. The man had little more to do than to say he didn't want the woman. The rabbi of course would try to discourage divorce. There is the story of the Jew who applied for a divorce, and the rabbi who quoted to him the statement of the Talmud, "that the Holy Ark of the Temple itself sheds tears when a man parts from his wife."

"I would rather that the Holy Ark shed tears than that I do so," said the man.

The rabbi could only try to dissuade the man. Yet despite the lack of restrictions, divorces were very rare among Jews.

Maybe we need a Jewish Kinsey to go into the matter of Jews and sex.

watchword of our faith—the Shema—and the Birchah Hagomel, the traditional prayer of thanks for God's goodness and mercy.

Tears came to Bernard. He sat down wearily. I turned, stood over him, and pronounced the classic Hebrew priestly benediction, the Yivarechichaw. He rose, we looked at each other happily, and smiled through tears of joy.

"Bernard," I said to him softly, "I couldn't possibly tell you how happy I am to have seen and greeted you."

"Rabbi," he responded—and there was a world of wistfulness in his voice—"having you here to greet me helps make this the happiest day of my life."

Arm-in-arm, then, we left the chapel and Bernard moved one precious step closer to home.

By Chaplain Norman T. Goldberg HQ Korean Communications Zone INCHON, Korea, Aug. 17—Within three hours of his arrival at the Processing Center here, Cpl. Berman was "benching" Gomel at the 21st Medium Port Chapel. On temporary duty here for Operation Big Switch, I speedily arranged for the special ceremony and service, pressing Jewish cadre personnel of the 8057th Replacement Battalion into service to make up the required minyan (quorum for religious services).

Decked out in tallis (prayer and yarmelke (skull cap), and holding the Torah Scroll before the open Ark, Bernard recited in fluent Hebrew—unaffected by his 27 months of imprisonment—"Blessed art Thou, Lord our God, Ruler of the universe. Thou grantest blessings on the undeserving, for on me hast Thou bestowed good favor." And the congregation responded, "May He Who hast bestowed upon thee all favors, continue to do so. Selah."

The touching little service was concluded when our guest of honor pronounced the blessing over the wine and drank to "gladden the heart."

It gladdened the hearts of all of us.

By Chaplain Norman T. Goldberg INCHON, Aug. 18—Pfc. Manuel Castlewitz of Philadelphia became the second Jewish repatriate in Operation Big Switch when he arrived at the Processing Center here today.

Castlewitz was captured right after Passover 1951 and spent 27 months in a Communist prison camp. "My last taste of kosher food," Castlewitz reminisced, "was just a few days before I was captured, when I received a Passover food parcel from the National Jewish Welfare Board. I could sure use some now!"

But while JWB kosher salami is available, the Army medical authorities have requested that no delicacies be given the repatriates, fearing that such highly seasoned food might affect them adversely after the long months of meager prison diet.

A Gomel ceremony was then arranged for Manuel, who voiced keen appreciation of the service, his eyes sparkling at the sight of the tallis and yarmelke. With moving emotion he recited the ancient prayer of thanksgiving for deliverance from bondage.

Later on, discussing his imprisonment, he said that there wasn't a man in his camp who could be described as other than gaunt—"skin and bones." Not until the truce talks became really far advanced did the food begin to improve and the captives to put on a bit of weight. "However," he added, grim and downcast, "many of the prisoners died within three months of their capture—the food and the medical care were that bad. Those who managed somehow to survive the first six months generally made it to here."

"Cassy" found it hard to believe that he was actually "back." He was in the last truck of the Communist convoy carrying the UN personnel to freedom. "Every time my truck fell behind the others in the convoy, I felt sure we were never going to make it. Once we crossed the line, however, I knew I was home... Home—wonderful, wonderful world!"

By Chaplain Norman T. Goldberg INCHON, Aug. 19—For the third consecutive day, a Jewish repatriate has arrived at this port processing center. Following close behind Cpl. Berman and Pfc. Castlewitz was Pfc. Alexander Kreizer of Danbury, Conn.

Originally from Czechoslovakia, Kreizer served in the U. S. Army during World War II and, when the Korean conflict broke out, was recalled to active duty from the reserves. He was captured by the Communists in Korea on Feb. 4, 1951 while serving as a rifleman with the 24th Division, and spent more than 30 months in a PW camp.

A survivor of the Death March to the Yalu, Kreizer described its horrors, recalling that "they herded us into box cars for a three-day, two-night trip to the north. Frequently, the trains would hole up in tunnels to avoid the UN air bombing, so several times, while we were in tunnels, we'd get gassed and many prisoners became dreadfully ill and died."

"What was the Communist attitude toward Jewish captives?" I asked.

"Oh, they didn't really know what Jews were," Kreizer explained. "Once a guard asked me about my religion and when I told him I was a Jew he looked baffled. He pulled out a pocket dictionary and asked me to find it for him. When I did, and he read the Chinese translation, he began to nod. Then he asked me if it weren't true that Jews are persecuted in America."

Comparing the Nazi with the Communist prison camps, Kreizer made this potent observation: "The Nazis told you straight out that they hated you because you were their enemy. The Chinese masked their hate with a smile. But it amounted to the same thing. Both were horrible. I hope that no one will ever have to go through anything like it again."

The three Jewish returnees—Berman, Castlewitz, and Kreizer—are due to sail for the States on the same ship within 48 hours.

By Chaplain Murray I. Rothman FREEDOM VILLAGE, Aug. 24—Cpl. Sidney Oehl of Brooklyn was the first Jewish marine to come through here. "It's all like a dream—all like a dream," the 22-year-old marine kept repeating. "I tell you," he said again and again, "I can hardly believe I'm free."

Captured last October while on duty with the 4.2 mortars of the 7th Marine Regiment, he was not told by his captors that he was to be released until just before he left the Communist PW camp. Even then he had his doubts about where they were taking him. He had never heard of Freedom Village—did not even know that such a place existed—until he was brought here by the ambulance which transported him from slavery to freedom.

Deeply moved when he found a Jewish chaplain waiting to greet him with a warm and heartfelt "Shalom Aleichem," Sidney was quite overcome. These scenes, I can tell you, are quite a drain on one's emotional system. The liberated marine didn't say very much, but his eyes went moist and his whole demeanor was one of profound gratitude.

I escorted Sidney into the Jewish chapel and, using JWB tallisim and siddurim, we thanked God for his safe return. Afterwards we had a very cordial chat and at the end of it he promised to come and visit me in my home town, Pittsburgh, the first chance he gets. We are both looking forward now to that day of reunion—in the States!

Key Division Appointments Made by GJC

Nathan Samors Barney Kay S. Rapaport Jr. chairman.

The appointees are Barney Kay and Nathan Samors, named as chairman and co-chairman, respectively, of the Trade and Industry Division, and Samuel Rapaport Jr., chairman of the Jewelry Division.

Kay and Samors will head the division that co-ordinates the campaign activities of a score of businesses and industries in the greater Providence area. Among its sub organizations are textiles, jewelry, building trade, food, liquor, drugs, furniture, clothing and metal products trades.

The Jewelry Division, from the point of view of money raised, is the largest trade division in the entire campaign. Rapaport, who served in the same capacity in last year's drive, said an organizational meeting is to be scheduled soon, and a vigorous campaign planned.

Appointment of three key division leaders for the forthcoming 1953 fund-raising campaign of the General Jewish Committee was made known this week by Henry J. Hassenfeld, general chairman.

An old Jewish lady walked into a Kosher delicatessen in Brownsville, Brooklyn, and said to the clerk, "Gimme an order pastrami." The clerk pulled the steaming pastrami out of the pot and said, "How much?"

"Cut, cut," the old lady said. After slicing about three pounds, the clerk again asked, "How much?"

"Cut, cut, I'll tell you when," she replied.

Finally, when he was about halfway through the pastrami, she asked, "That's the center of the pastrami?"

"Yes," he answered, "why?" "Give me," she cooed, "twelve cents' worth—from the center."

A pro-Nazi punk, stewed to the gills from too much firewater, was making a terrific pest of himself in one of the mid-town cocktail bars.

The bartender, who was Jewish, finally became surfeited with the drunk's anti-Semitic swill, came out from behind the bar, took him by the neck and booted him out.

As the louse went sailing through the air on his way to a forced sidewalk landing, the bartender snarled "Go to Hell—and I'm writing the Devil, asking pardon—for sending you."

SYD COHEN:

The Slugging Sailor
and the Maccabiah

When Marty Denkin called me on the phone from Quonset Naval Air Station last Thursday, I was startled. Last week's Herald had not yet left the printing plant; consequently, nobody could have read my column on the Israel Maccabiah—yet, here was Denkin talking to me about the Maccabiah, Israel's version of the Olympic Games.

Marty's request tied in strangely with that column. Denkin, an ordnanceman first class at Quonset, is a boxer—and from his record, a mighty good one. That record shows a total of 25 bouts, 19 of which were wins. Ten of these were by knockouts.

At any rate, Marty has been recommended as a member of the boxing team the United States will send to Israel this month. He has been interviewed by the committee, which approves of his qualifications—except that it does not have sufficient funds to send all the athletes on its list.

Therein lies the problem. A slight matter of $1500 stands in the way of sending the youthful boxer to Israel.

Well, I was peeved last week because we in Rhode Island had been ignored in the matter of selections to the U. S. Maccabiah team. And before the ink is dry on that peeve, along comes a Rhode Islander (by virtue of service) to ask for help in sending him across the oceans with that team.

Can we help? I don't know. Let's table that question for a few minutes while we discuss further Marty Denkin and his fighting career.

Marty is a native of the Bronx, although he was raised in Brooklyn and lived there until last year, when his family moved to Beverly Hills, California.

For a 19-year-old, Denkin has had a surprisingly active career with the gloves. It was in 1949 that Marty started fighting for the Flatbush Boys Club in Brooklyn. His natural talent didn't lose any time in making itself known, for he was voted the outstanding boxer of that year. In addition, he won the 126-pound championship for the club.

Denkin's first big fights took place the following year, when he entered the Golden Gloves of New York. Again he did well, going all the way to the quarter finals.

Marty's father and grandfather both were close friends of Petey Scalzo, former world feather-weight champion, and the Champ looked over the promising boxer, helped get him started and gave him much in the way of help and encouragement.

There followed a brief lapse in Marty Denkin's fighting career, until he entered the Navy in May of 1952. Then he donned the gloves again, competing in smokers and Navy tournaments.

Earlier this year, while stationed at Jacksonville, Florida, Marty entered the Florida Golden Gloves lightweight novice class, and moved into the finals before meeting his come-uppance. You'd have to call this pretty good going for a kid who had laid off for a period of about two years.

A short while ago, Denkin agreed to participate in a benefit boxing show at the Pittsfield, Mass. Boys Club. In the audience was a gent named Ben Becker, who only recently gathered together the fictional Golden Gloves champions and took them to Argentina for a series of exhibition fights.

Paired with Marty was a member of Becker's boys club team, Frank Spinzaro. Marty knocked him out in the first round.

Becker's eyebrows arched in surprise, and he decided to find out something about the slugging sailor. Learning that Marty is Jewish, Becker approached the youngster and asked if Denkin would like to be recommended as a candidate for the Fourth World Maccabiah Games at Tel Aviv, between Sept. 20 and 29.

First thing you know, Marty was in New York being interviewed by the American team committee. It was then that he learned about the need for funds before he could be permitted to become a member of the team.

Marty almost solved that problem all by himself—almost, but not quite. He attended a TV audience participation show, was selected as one of the contestants, and walked off with a truckload of valuable prizes—but no cash.

So the problem remains—how to get Marty to Israel. The Navy is co-operating to the extent of its ability. Permission already has been granted Denkin to make the trip to Tel Aviv, and arrangements have been made for Marty to have the necessary time off for training, and for traveling to New York for tryouts.

On Monday of this week, the slugging sailor did journey to New York, but for a different reason. A boxing show was held in Jamaica Arena on Long Island for the purpose of raising money for the American Maccabiah team. Marty volunteered his services, and appeared in one of the bouts. His reasoning was good.

"Even if I can't go myself, maybe I can help raise funds to send someone else."

Well, there's the story. A promising fighter, a deserving youngster about whom his Navy mates speak highly, needs a financial hand to go along with his boxing ability for the opportunity to take part in the Maccabiah.

This column does not run a financial agency, and has never asked anyone personally for money for any purpose, however noteworthy. That practice will not be broken now. It often happens, however, that some of our sportsmen like to get behind a project of this sort, that has the human appeal of a Marty Denkin, and give the boy in question a helping hand. No harm in that, certainly. So that is the basis for this appeal. If anyone should want to help, he can do so by contacting me, or the Navy at Quonset through Chief Warrant Officer L. G. Harding, who has helped Marty in every way possible.

At the same time, a successful campaign on our part could give Rhode Island an official part in the Maccabiah, and teach those in charge a lesson insofar as ignoring us in the future is concerned.

And if we should raise any money for this cause, we should insist that every dime of it go toward Marty Denkin's expenses, not for those of any other athlete who has hopes of making the team.
