Man and Wife Doctor Team Arrive in U. S.

NEW YORK — Hans Busztin, 29, and his wife, Helga, 26, Viennese physicians, arrive in the U. S. to start life anew in a land of freedom. The couple, victims of Nazi persecution, immigrated here to intern at a hospital in Poughkeepsie, N. W. Dr. Hans escaped direct Nazi persecution by hiding with Dr. Joseph Feldner, a well-known Viennese physician, for three years, and after the war Dr. Feldner adopted him. His parents and a brother perished in the infamous Auschwitz gas chambers. Dr. Helga spent two years in the Theresienstadt concentration camp. She specializes in heart ailments, and her husband, who is co-author with his adoptive father, of a book which is about to be published, "Psychiatry in Infantile Development," specializes in psychiatry.

San Francisco Special

The News Picture

An AJP Round Up Of World News

The editor of this column, flying to San Francisco to cover the UN commemorative session, found himself in the good company of Bartley Crum, long-time champion of Israeli causes. As the plane flew over the California skies, the discussion turned to problems of anti-Semitism. Crum thought the ADL of B'nai B'rith had failed to attack the root of the evil. By "root of the evil," Crum explained he meant certain insidious writings to be found in universally accepted text-books available to millions of children throughout the world. So long as these hate-teaching passages are not expunged, anti-Semitism will continue to exist, Mr. Crum declared. The writer, indicating to Mr. Crum that a beginning has been made in this direction, referred to Malcolm Hay's book, "The Foot of Pride," published by the Beacon Press of Boston several years ago. Hay, a Catholic living in Scotland, had singled out certain passages from the Gospel of St. John which teach hatred of the Jew. Bartley Crum suggested the creation of a Committee, composed of Christians and Jews, that should deal with this matter at its roots. Other issues discussed before plane landed in festive San Francisco: American Friends of the Middle East and the Irgun. Crum felt certain that Milton Eisenhower was being misled by Dorothy Thompson. He felt deep concern over the great harm done Israel on the American campuses by Thompson's "Friends." Nothing is being done to counteract this insidious Arab propaganda among college students, he said.

Crum spoke highly of both the Irgun and Stern Group. History created them, he said, so that they might pave the way . . . San Francisco UN fete: Just before the first session opened on Monday the 20th, Molotov was seen moving up to Dulles eager to shake his hand. Dulles himself did not appear too eager. Finally, however, he extended his hand somewhat reluctantly . . . As they did shake hands there was thunderous applause from the galleries . . .

During the main UN reception at the Palace of the Legion of Honor the night of the 21st, the editor of this column decided to confront Molotov with a vital question relative to the Jews in the Soviet Union . . . So, when Molotov arrived, your correspondent walked up to him and asked: "Mr. Molotov, in the light of the present hopeful outlook on the world political horizon and in consideration of the forthcoming Big Four meetings in Geneva, would you care to comment on the question of emigration of Soviet citizens. I have special

Arab Viewpoint Bars Israel From Olympic Games

WASHINGTON — A spokesman for the Spanish Embassy said that the Arab viewpoint was a factor in Spain's decision to bar Israel from the forthcoming Mediterranean Olympic Games at Barcelona.

The spokesman indicated that Spain felt the Arab countries might not wish to participate if Israel were admitted. He said that "the Spanish Government has looked at Israel with good 'eyes'" but charged that Israel has failed to grant full diplomatic recognition to Spain and has otherwise indicated "unfriendliness."

In New York, Col. Harry D. Henschel, chairman of the United States Committee for Sports in Israel and chairman of the U. S. Olympic Basketball Committee, scored the International Olympic Committee's rejection of Israel's appeal against Spain's ban on its participation in Barcelona games next month. Speaking of the IOC action in Paris, Col. Henschel said it "makes a mockery of all the beautiful ideals that the Olympics represent." He revealed that Avery Brundage, head of the IOC had previously promised U. S. Olympic committee officials that he would aid Israel.

Congressman Emanuel Celler in a blast against Mr. Brundage, noted that in 1936, Mr. Brundage, in the face of popular protests, insisted upon American participation in the Olympic Games which were held in Hitler-ruled Berlin that year. This time, however, Rep. Celler said, Mr. Brundage has departed from his insistence that sports must not be mixed with politics and has sanctioned the anti-Israel campaign of the Arab states which has resulted in Spain's failure to invite Israel to the regional games.

Report Decline In Racial TV Shows

NEW YORK — Television programs which depend on racial, religious or national themes — like Amos 'n Andy and The Goldbergs — are no longer considered good advertising risks, according to an article in Variety, show business trade newspaper.

The newspaper quotes a buyer in a major advertising agency as saying: "In the last 10 years the general level of education and conditioning has been away from invidious distinctions that might lead to bigotry."

"And whether any of those World War II kids who are now adults believe in equality or not, they become uncomfortable at sight of an Amos 'n Andy or Molly Goldberg." The same buyer traced the attitude to the war years when hatred of Hitler's "Aryan" principles was impressed on American youth.

Lilienthal Requests Probe Of Threats and Coercion

Calls U.S. Terms Much Too Harsh

TEL AVIV — Peretz Bernstein, Minister of Commerce charged that the United States was demanding too many concessions from Israel as the price of a mutual defense pact. He said the main demands are a return of the Arab refugees, changes in the borders of Israel, and reparations for Arab refugees without any assurance that reparations for Jewish property left in Arab countries would be paid.

Beth El Honors Walter I. Sundlun

Walter I. Sundlun was honored at a testimonial dinner last Tuesday evening in the Garden Room of the Sheraton-Baltimore Hotel. Sundlun was honored "for his achievements as President of Temple Beth El during the past two years while the Temple was being erected." More than 100 officers, trustees and presidential assistants, along with their wives, were present.

At the speakers table were Mr. and Mrs. Sundlun, Rabbi Braude, Max Grant, and Louis J. L. Symonds, speakers; Bertram L. Bernhardt, president-elect and toastmaster; Mrs. Isador Low, Sisterhood president; Irving J. Fain and Walter Adler, vice-presidents, and Ben Ruttenberg, chairman of arrangements.

Nancy Chase, operatic star, opened the program by singing the National Anthem.

Sundlun, who has been either a trustee or officer of the Temple for 35 years, was presented a bronze plaque by Adler. Plaques also were presented to Archibald Silverman, A. Henry Klein and Samuel Kaplan — the three living past presidents.

Serving on the committee with Ruttenberg were Mrs. Low, Symonds, William P. Herman, Adler and Harold Roberts.

House of Lords Leader Retires

LONDON — Viscount Herbert L. Samuel, who served from 1920 to 1925 as first British High Commissioner for Palestine, has stepped down as leader of the Liberal Party in the House of Lords. Viscount Samuel, who is 84 years old, said that he wanted to devote more time to writing, but would attend the House of Lords from time to time.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. — Alfred M. Lilienthal, an anti-Zionist and former official of the Council for Judaism has called on Attorney General Jacob Javits to investigate an alleged "threat" which he said had led the Westchester Young Women's Republican Club to cancel an address at its annual convention last month in Bronxville by Ohar Khadra of the Saudi Arabian delegation to the United Nations.

Lilienthal asserted that the speech was cancelled after the group had received warnings that the convention would be picketed. He called on the Attorney General to investigate the threat to freedom of speech and reveal the name of the organization which had made the threats. Miss Margaret Calman, vice-president of the Republican group, who received the alleged telephone threats, termed Lilienthal's demand "ridiculous." She denied that any organization had threatened to picket the meeting.

Other sources here said Kahdara's appearance had been cancelled when it was pointed out that the club would come under serious criticism for failing to give both sides a hearing on a controversial issue. Khadra was later invited to speak before the White Plains Rotary Club and warned his hearers then against Zionist attempts to restrict freedom of speech in this country.

The Westchester Zionist region took notice of the episode by adopting a resolution affirming "the traditional American doctrine of free speech" which, it pointed out, "is consonant with Zionist principles." It stressed that public platforms should be "open and unrestricted to the presentation of all points of view on public issues."

Lilienthal has long been identified with Jewish anti-Israel groups. A known relationship between American Council for Judaism and American Friends of the Near East admittedly exists between the two organizations. Elmer Berger, ACJ's executive director, recently appeared in the Arab countries, was welcomed graciously there in light of the fact that most Jews found in the trouble area would be detained immediately and broadcast anti-Israel programs over the Arab radio — some of them immediately translated into Hebrew and rebeamed for specific Israeli consumption.

Shapiro Takes Final

In "Y" Table Tennis

Lester Shapiro, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Shapiro of Adela Avenue, defeated Leon Shahnsarian Monday night in the final of the Erie Kunster Memorial table tennis tournament at the Providence YMCA. In the consolation final, Alan McKenzie won Morris Kessler, and Jeff Winicour won the Class B title, beating Sid Richmon in the final.

The tournament was initiated this year to honor the memory of one of the YMCA's most ardent table tennis followers. Kunster, instrumental in building up the game at the Y, died earlier this year of a heart attack while participating in a table tennis tourney there.

Shapiro won the table tennis tournament at Brown in 1948 and the Silver Spring Recreational Tournament in 1953. While in England with the 8th Air Force during World II, he also won a table tennis trophy.

PITCHING

DelVecchio, Superior Fuels, 5-0; Jacobs, Technoprint, 4-0; Lobel, Superior Fuels, 4-1; Paris, Broadway Auto, 3-1.

A team that was accorded little, if any, pennant consideration before the campaign started vaulted into second place in the R. I. Jewish Softball League as the first half of the season was concluded last Sunday; and if Technoprint can stay hot when the stretch drive is resumed on July 31, there could be a sudden revival of interest in the pennant race, which was practically conceded before the season even started.

As yet, Technoprint has not faced the league-leading Superior Fuels outfit, although the printers administered a double defeat to the only team which has won a decision from the leaders—Broadway Auto. Since losing three of their first four games of the season, Technoprint has won six straight.

The printers swept into second place by upsetting Broadway Auto, last year's champs, by scores of 12-4 and 4-3. The twin set-backs proved a stunning blow to the pennant aspirations of the Auto-men, for coupled with Superior Fuel's two wins over Beacon, they left Broadway Auto a full three games off the pace with only 10 to go.

Technoprint, which maintained its strong position just two games out of first place, overcame a first inning 4-2 deficit to administer a sound trouncing of the defending champs. Three runs in the second, four in the third, two in the fourth and another in the fifth made the contest a lopsided one. Paul Young led the 14 hit attack with three safe bingles. Jack Jacobs won his fourth game, yielding six hits and one walk. A spotty defense contributed to the four runs he gave up in the first inning. Paul Paris lost his first game of the year.

The second game was a thriller, with Technoprint scoring once in the first, Broadway Auto two in the second, and each team once in the sixth. That sent it into the final inning, in which the printers collected two runs on a pair of hits, an error and a sacrifice fly. Dave Rubien had two hits, including one that tied the score in the seventh, and Young also hit safely twice. Sheldon Rothschild clubbed six hits during the day for the losers. The fielding highlight was a running, over-the-head catch by Ralph Winn of Paul Paris' bases loaded smash that looked like a homer. Technoprint got seven hits in the nightcap, Broadway Auto four off Carl Lefkowitz.

M & F Insurance got back on the winning side at the expense of the Merchants, who again came close to winning their first game—but not quite close enough. Both teams scored twice in the fourth inning of the opener, but then M & F kept going with three more in the fifth of their 5-2 game. Carl Perlman's leaping catch of a sizzling line drive with two men on saved the win for the Insurance.

Outhit 8 to 5 in the second game, M & F swept the double header on Gordon Sandler's two out single in the seventh inning. M & F had scored first in the opening inning, and Merchants had tied it in the third. Sam Jarcho pitched both wins. The score was 2-1.

A six run rally in the fifth inning gave Superior Fuels a 6-2 win over sliding Beacon in their opener. Beacon scored single runs in the second and seventh innings, the latter run being Erwin Summer's second homer of the year. Jay Krasner played good ball for Beacon. Superior piled up a 9-run lead before Beacon scored all its runs in the fourth inning of the 11-3 second game. Superior had 12 hits, Beacon 5. The game was called at the end of the sixth.

A waltz length gown of eggshell Italian taffeta was worn by Miss Elayne I. Rosenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Rosenberg of Miller Avenue, for her marriage Sunday to Burton J. Trustman-Rapaport

Miss Renee Helen Rapaport, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rapaport Jr. of Rochambeau Avenue, became the bride Sunday of Alan Robert Trustman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin A. Trustman of Clinton Road, Brookline, Mass. Rabbi Dudley Weinberg performed the ceremony at 7 P. M. in the Hotel Somerset, Boston, and a reception followed there.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of peau de soie, fashioned in long torso lines with a bodice encrusted with re-embroidered Alencon lace studded with pearls and crystals. Her heirloom veil of Belgian lace fell from a seed pearl crown and she carried a bouquet of white phalaenopsis and stephanotis.

The bride was attended by Miss Phyllis Ann Trustman, the bridegroom's sister, as maid of honor, and Mrs. Irwin Goldman, Mrs. Richard Silverman, Miss Gloria Goederend and Miss Audrey Forman, as bridesmaids.

Richard Rubin was the best man and Richard Palais, Fred Wiseman, David Neiditz, Robert Gelman, Michael Winer, Stephen Petschek, Lawrence Hollman and Paul Weissberg were ushers.

After a wedding trip to Spain and Portugal, the couple will live in Boston.

Center Lists Programming at Pier

Full time programming at Narragansett Pier this Summer is the objective of the Jewish Community Center's Narragansett Pier Program Committee, according to Edward Consove, committee chairman.

Plans have been completed for weekly activities for children of grammar school age, junior high school and high school, as well as adults, to be conducted at the Parish House of St. Peter's-by-the-Sea on the corner of Central Ave. and Caswell St. at the Pier. The Center has rented these facilities for the months of July and August in order to bring its extension activities to families which will vacation at the Pier this Summer.

Program plans include the following schedule: Tuesday Evenings — 7-9 P. M. — Junior High School game room activities; Wednesday Evenings — 7-9 P. M. — Sr. High Schoolers' game room activities; Thursday Evenings — 7:30-10:00 P. M. — Jr. High Schoolers' party; Sunday Evenings — 7:30-10:00 P. M. — High Schoolers' Dance; Wednesday Afternoons — 3-5 P. M. — Activities for 10 and 11 year olds at Sprague Field, or indoors in the event of rain; Friday Afternoons — 3-5 P. M. — Activities for 7 to 9 year olds at Sprague Field or indoors.

Adult activities have been tentatively scheduled for Saturday evenings and will be planned by a committee under Mr. Consove's chairmanship.

Activities at the Pier will begin with two major social events to be conducted during the coming holiday weekend.

A "Kick-Off-Dance" for adults will be conducted at the Beachwood Hotel this Sunday evening beginning at 9 P. M. The affair will feature music for dancing by Ben Paris and his orchestra, with refreshments and door prizes rounding out the evening's program. Tickets for this event may be purchased at the door or from members of the Narragansett Pier Committee.

Teenagers will open their summer season with a "Beach Party" to be conducted at the Canochet Club on Monday evening beginning at 7:30 P. M. The affair will feature refreshments on the beach, to be followed by informal dancing indoors at the Club. Tickets for the event may be purchased at the door.

Family membership cards for the Center's Narragansett Pier summer program will be available at both of the above affairs as well as at the Parish House hall during its scheduled open hours.

Additional information on the Center's Pier program may be obtained at the Center office or from Mr. Consove.

reference to two and a half million Jews, some of whom would like to join their relatives in Israel. As soon as Molotov heard the words "two and a half million Jews" his foxy-looking face assumed an angry, Hitlerian expression and he quickly dismissed the issue with a curt "Thank you." So far newsmen have failed to evoke any kind of reply from him on world issues.

He is the center of attraction here—and he knows it. Delegates saw nothing new in his hour-long speech delivered Wednesday morning, June 22. Many saw in it a new attempt at a super propaganda move. From the moment Molotov arrived in San Francisco, he has been summoning one delegate after another from among the neutral countries for "consultations." So far representatives from Denmark, Sweden, the Netherlands, Saudi Arabia, Yemen and Egypt, have faced the shrewd Soviet politician.

Interestingly, though Dulles failed to applaud the Molotov speech of Wednesday, Molotov was seen applauding Dulles on Friday, June 24, both before and after the delivery of his speech.

Newsmen wondered, since the Dulles speech appeared quite critical of the Soviet Union and its visiting diplomat. This editor also had a good opportunity to talk with Egypt's Foreign Minister, Fawzi, and Lebanon's Ambassador to the U. S. Dr. Charles Malik. "Even a man and wife, when they quarrel, can never settle their disputes unless they sit down and talk," your correspondent said to the Egyptian Foreign Minister who smiled rather sheepishly. "Israel is willing to discuss all vital issues, why not get together and talk matters over?" Appearing quite impressed, and promising that he would give serious thought to the suggestion, Fawzi said, "You've got something there!"

Dr. Charles Malik was much more friendly and talkative. He agreed that the vote on partition creating the Jewish State and the strange death of the Egyptian delegate M. Azmi who collapsed in the Security Council while attacking Israel late last year were both acts of a providential character. Philosopher and diplomat Malik is a very religious man. Ezekiel the prophet being his favorite Seer, he promised to read chapters 38-39 which depict events now shaping on the world scene. Ambassador Abba Eban present here with his charming wife, concluded his historic address with this message of order and progress: "The quest for international security is the dominating purpose of our age."

Silver Condors At Rocky Point

One of the most inspiring thrill acts in the nation will be seen at Rocky Point Park from Sunday to July 9 when the Silver Condors, a young team of aerial acrobats, swing into action. The Silver Condors use a completely non-conventional rigging that reaches high into the air.

In rapid succession, they perform incredible feats on trapezes, rings and tight wire, and on the slender and limber sway pole located at the topmost part of their rigging. With their supreme skill, agility and comedy, the Silver Condors comprise an outstanding attraction.

Making The Rounds

Ledgemont Country Club's fourth annual member-guest golf tournament turned out to be an entertaining, well played and close-fought affair. The tourney was played last Friday and Saturday, and nobody was reported missing, although rain and darkness did overtake several of the boys during the opening day action.

Consistency paid off all the way, as Leonard Abrams and his guest, Harold Armbrust of Metacomet, fashioned net 63s on each day of the 36-hole medal play full handicap tournament, to walk off with the top award. The best score of the competition, the opening day 62 of Larry Anderson (Ledgemont) and Dr. Murray Golden of Fall River, proved not quite enough to offset their second day 65, and this pair wound up second with 127.

The only other 63 scored in the tourney was by Ken List (Ledgemont) and Frank Fyan of Fall River. Tied for second place on opening day, they slipped to third, three strokes behind the champs, with a wind-up 66. And these were the only scores under 130.

Most of the scores were terrifically good, the golfers being in good form and taking full advantage of their handicaps. As a result, the Abrams-Armbrust combo was 16 strokes under par.

There were several sidelights that deserve mention. Top among them is the "paper ace" scored by Walter Rutman. Walter had a one stroke handicap on the 187-yard 14th hole, and he took excellent advantage of it. His drive from the tee made the green by a few feet, and he then sank a beautiful long putt for a birdie which was reduced to one by the handicap stroke.

Dick Loebenberg of the tournament committee said later this marked the first time that either a pure or synthetic ace had been scored during the member-guest tourney.

Rutman's partner, Milt Weissman, turned in a brilliant individual effort on the 575-yard 13th hole on Saturday. Milt hooked his drive into a clump of trees, and his recovery shot was not much better—landing in a brook. That set his dander up. Weissman removed his shoes and socks, waded into the brook, and blasted a beautiful shot from the muck and water to within 20 feet of the green. From there it was easy. Milt chipped onto the green and sank his putt and holed out in part. How about that?

Then there was Howie Fine of Belmont, who scored birdie threes on both the 11th and 12th holes on Saturday, and had them reduced to eagles!

On opening day, Ben Green drove from the tee to within 10 feet of the cup at the 14th, while Jules Huberman of Pinebrook was 16 feet away. The next day this competition took place at the 17th, and Julie Bloom took top honors, being only 14 feet, 7½ inches away from an ace. At the 12th hole, Sam Smidt of Kenwood socked the longest drive, 254 yards, with George Kaplan of Belmont 24 yards farther back.

That fine golfer, Dick Loebenberg, two-time winner of the Herald Tournament, had to get in on the awards somehow; and Dick did it in the most impressive category of all. He had low gross on both days, 76 and 75, for the overall low gross of 151.

The tournament was ably arranged and handled by the committee, which included Loebenberg, Lou Rosenberg, Ed Lovitt, Sam Salmanson, Bo Bernstein, Lou Nulman and Charley Dohinsky.

The Herald Tourney

Applications are now starting to arrive in greater volume for the Herald's Golf Tournament, scheduled to get under way on July 30. Along with applications have come a few calls asking for clarification of certain phases of the tourney.

First, this is not a weekend tourney. The Louisquisset course will be available every day of the week, as was the case last year, which means that it is up to the men who are paired together to decide when they would rather play.

As an extra consideration for the crowded opening round, the tournament committee purposely scheduled a nine day period, which allows two weekends in addition to one full mid-week period. So there should be no hesitation in signing up on that account.

The tournament will get underway on Saturday, July 30, which means that very shortly the committee will have to set a deadline on applications, in order that the arduous work of arranging pairings may get under way.

Another question that has arisen has to do with handicaps. It seems that all the fellows who would like to enter the tourney are not members of clubs, and do not have club handicaps, and are at a loss as to how to compute their handicaps. Eddie Berrien tells me that there is a mistaken idea afoot that you simply subtract par from your gross score to figure the handicap. That is in error. The handicap usually is figured on a three-quarter basis: that is, if par is 70 and you shoot 95, your handicap would be three-quarters of the difference—or 18.

Every applicant may be assured that the committee will devote extreme care to the matter of assigning each golfer to the proper classification. Handicaps will prevail in all divisions save the championship class, which will be played straight—best man wins. And here's a reminder that golfers who would like to compete in the championship class may do so by request.

It hasn't been mentioned, but I believe it goes almost without saying—that every golfer who enters the Herald tourney is assured of at least two rounds of match play. Those men who are eliminated from championship competition in the opening round are paired for the beaten eight tourney, and a full complement of prizes is awarded in each division of that round.

Most of the work, you see, is done by the committee. What you, the individual golfer, have to do is clip this coupon, fill it out, and mail it in. You can't tell the players without a coupon.

Softball Siesta

Thanks to an unusually cooperative weatherman, the halfway mark of the R. I. Jewish Softball League season was reached Sunday just about on schedule. Only one set of games was rained out, and so the teams relax for their July break all even in games played, and with five double headers remaining on the season's card starting July 31.

The surprise team of the league to date is Technoprint, which was not figured as a top contender up to opening day. The printers are in second place, just two games off the pace, and regardless of what transpires when play is resumed (four of their 10 remaining games will be against Superior Fuels) the team is entitled to bask in the limelight that goes along with so lofty a station.

Broadway Auto — last year's champion JCC Young Adults — were doing nicely, just one game out of first place, and with a victory over Superior Fuels (the only game the league leaders have lost so far) until last Sunday, when they ran into an inspired Technoprint crew. Now Broadway Auto is in third place, and first place is three full games away. That is a lot of ground to make up, unless Technoprint even the score by wallop Superior Fuels a couple of times in the latter part of the campaign.

The Merchants, who are without a win in 10 games, are not the weak outfit they seem to be through a casual look at the standings. In recent weeks, the cellar habitants have lost several game by just one run, and it has taken a few sensational defensive plays to beat them. Two to one was the score last Sunday against M & F, and 4 to 5 against Technoprint the week previous, which sort of gives you the idea of an improved and competent team which doesn't need much in order to start giving real trouble next month.

Superior Fuels, of course, has been winning per schedule, and it is almost surprising that the club has lost even one game. Beacon and M & F Insurance have played good ball in spots, but each of these clubs has suffered by loss of key personnel, and their fortunes have waned ever since.

Anti-Semitism in Spain

Generalissimo Francisco Franco last week told U. S. newsman David Lawrence that there is absolutely no anti-Semitism in Spain—that anti-Semitism has never existed in his country.

Apparently, this observation by the Master of Spain came in reply to a question posed by Mr. Lawrence. To begin with, we wonder why Mr. Lawrence is now concerned with such issues at all. Many years ago, himself a Jew, he was noted for his intimate identification with Jewish affairs here and abroad.

But time has been kind to him, and the kindly direction of his destiny has bred in Mr. Lawrence a vague sort of forgetfulness about his people and their problems. Since reaching an ascendant position in journalism, he has been identified with every major arch conservative movement; his championing of Sen. McCarthy was merely principal among these.

It seems therefore proper for Generalissimo Franco to have told Mr. Lawrence that there never was any anti-Semitism in Spain and that certainly none exists now. For no other writer but a writer who has forgotten his tradition could accept the Generalissimo's remark on its face.

We may excuse Generalissimo Franco. He is an opportunist dictator and a politician who understands the value of public relations. But, in addition to the other limitations of his memory, could Mr. Lawrence have also forgotten the Spanish inquisition—over a period of generations the source of Jew-murder in the name of religion? Could he have forgotten the flight of Spanish Jewry and the rabbinic vow never to return there?

If Spain suffers from no anti-Semitism today, it is that only a handful of Jews remain among its people for them to hate.

NCCJ Notes Factors Affecting Intergroup Relations in U.S.

NEW YORK — Religious prejudice is more difficult to overcome than racial prejudice, and inter-religious cooperation is more difficult to achieve than inter-racial harmony, according to the 16th annual report of the commission on religious organizations of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

The report, written by commission director Allyn P. Robinson, was released this week by the three commission co-chairmen, Dr. John Sutherland Bonnell, pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church; Father John A. O'Brien of the University of Notre Dame; and Rabbi Maurice N. Eisendrath, president, Union of American Hebrew Congregations.

Surveying the obstacles in the path of inter-religious cooperation, the report points to "perennial factors" as well as "special aspects of the current scene" which create group prejudice and obstruct good will. Among the perennial factors, it blames "old and deep-rooted emotional attitudes" stemming from the history of religious conflict which are passed down "from generation to generation."

It also lists among the enduring difficulties the fact that "the clergyman more frequently than the layman finds it difficult to accept the realities of our pluralistic culture."

'Own Faith at Center'

Explaining this charge, it says that the clergyman "ideally sees his own faith at the center" and that he may look forward to the time when the unity of the world will be achieved through the salvation which his church or synagogue offers.

"It is only when he understands the pluralistic nature of our culture" and realizes that it is likely to remain pluralistic for a very long time, that he becomes interested in making available the resources of his faith for the solution of inter-group problems," it concludes.

Playing a contributing role in creating group hostilities are forces growing from the current scene. In analyzing the divisive elements of the present situation, the report notes that the cold war, for example, has aroused widespread fear and suspicion, helping to create a general feeling of insecurity among the American people.

"Insecurity makes people seek scapegoats," it continues. "It is not surprising in the present situation that there has been a tendency on the one hand to suggest that 'Communism gains ground faster in Catholic countries' or on the other that is is 'among Protestants that you find the fellow-travelers.'"

Need for Clarification

The church-state issue is another contemporary factor cited as producing ill-will among the religious groups. "What we need is more clarification and such a clear commitment to the principles of religious liberty on the part of our religious leaders that honest fears will not play into the hands of religious bigotry," the report advises.

Barriers to harmony among American groups may also emerge as by-products of current international disputes. As an instance, the statement offers the Arab-Israel conflict, noting: "Because the anti-Zionist campaign is not infrequently filled with anti-Semitic propaganda, we have sometimes witnessed the unhappy wedding of a rightly concerned Christian conscience with unfair attacks upon another religious group."

The picture is not entirely negative, however, and of a positive nature the report lists a number of factors promoting inter-religious understanding and good will. The positive side, too, has its "perennial resources" which through the centuries have worked for inter-group cooperation. These resources grow naturally out of religion and religious activities which are rooted in "faith in a God of love and an understanding

Lipsky Boycotts Convention Charges ZOA Is 'Impotent'

NEW YORK—A split in the Zionist Organization of America was revealed this week by Louis Lipsky, a former ZOA president and prominent Zionist leader for more than 50 years, in a statement in which he announced that he and a number of other active leaders of the ZOA had decided not to participate in the ZOA convention in Washington.

Lipsky indicated that the present ZOA administration had rejected a number of proposals offered for the purpose of "restoring unity" in the ZOA.

Lipsky stated, "For some time now I have felt that the ZOA was losing its sense of direction, that it was being confused as to its functions, that it was pursuing a purposeless existence, that it was avoiding through fear the courageous tackling of a problem which was being created for the Zionist movement as a whole by historic circumstances over which it had no control.

"It was taking up fragments of projects, trying to give them a uniqueness they did not possess, and was being lost in a maze of activities which did not add up to a program, but helped to maintain the facelessness of what was once a great creative Zionist organization.

"This conviction was fixed in my mind in July, 1952, when our annual convention, against the strong protest of a substantial minority, adopted a resolution identifying the ZOA with the Israel General Zionist Party. This was an act of escape. Instead of facing its problems, the ZOA sought in this way to lose itself in the political struggle of Israel by taking cover under the wing of one of the political parties in Israel.

"Since that fateful day in 1952, I have been distressed—as many other ZOA liberals of standing and friends of Zionism—to witness the ZOA leadership keeping faith with only one of its objectives—its identification with the General Zionist Party in Israel—and serving the interests of that party by attacking Israel political personalities with whom its Israel counterpart was not in agreement, and meddling in the internal Israel political affairs which are the legitimate province of the citizens of Israel and that Mortimer May be re-elected as president, but that the Lipsky group be permitted to select an executive committee chairman, who would have to be acceptable to the administration.

"Our impression," said Lipsky, "was that these proposals raised a possibility of some agreement, but as the discussion continued over many hours it became evident that the ZOA leadership was disinclined to raise the issues involved at the convention in Washington, that they were adamant about the identification suggestion, and were reluctant to build up the high level commission, fearing that the effect of the appointment of such a commission would be to raise all sorts of questions that would be reflected in the imminent Israel political campaign.

"I moved to end the discussion at the first meeting and to adjourn sine die, without a report. But Dr. Neumann still felt that it would be worthwhile to continue the discussion at a second meeting, which he called to take place on Tuesday, June 14, two days before the opening of the convention.

"At this second and last meeting, the ZOA representatives practically rejected the three points that were made. In other words, after all the assurances that were given that some feasible way would be found to restore unity in the ZOA, and to help raise the prestige of the ZOA, in the last analysis the ZOA administration was unwilling to go further in the direction of revision which had been indicated over a period of about a year.

"Under these circumstances, it is my painful duty to declare on my own behalf, and on behalf of my colleagues, and on behalf of large numbers of Zionists throughout the United States, that participation in the ZOA convention at this time would have been without purpose and that steps would have to be taken after the convention has adjourned to express our views on the frustration of legitimate hopes for peace and revision that had been raised."

panied by Israel Premier Moshe Sharett.

The streets along which the two Premiers rode were bedecked with Israeli and Burmese flags and with large signs reading: "Welcome to Tel Aviv." Presenting U Nu with a scroll of citizenship, Tel Aviv Mayor Abraham Levanon said that this scroll was a symbol of the friendship between Tel Aviv and Rangoon, between Israel and Burma."

Earlier Sharett had offered a toast to Mr. U Nu, saying "the friendship which exists between Burma and Israel, primarily the result of your constructive and imaginative policy, will, we hope, draw further strength and vitality from your visit here. Our countries achieved their long-sought and hard-won independence almost exactly at the same time," Sharett said. "They both represent a bold attempt to revive ancient cultures against a background of modern civilization."

Honorary Citizen

Earlier, Burma's Premier was made an honorary citizen of the city of Tel Aviv at a City Hall ceremony witnessed by thousands of Israelis who had turned out to line the city's main streets and cheer as he rode to City Hall, accom-assurance by Dr. Emanuel Neumann, chairman of the ZOA executive, that there was a fair chance for arriving at a reasonable understanding."

Lipsky stated that a special sub-committee was formed, representing both factions and that the group of which he is a member presented several concrete proposals. They asked, Lipsky said, that a high level commission investigate all ZOA functions, that the ZOA suspend propaganda in behalf of the General Zionists in Israel and that Mortimer May be re-elected as president, but that the Lipsky group be permitted to select an executive committee chairman, who would have to be acceptable to the administration.

"Our impression," said Lipsky, "was that these proposals raised a possibility of some agreement, but as the discussion continued over many hours it became evident that the ZOA leadership was disinclined to raise the issues involved at the convention in Washington, that they were adamant about the identification suggestion, and were reluctant to build up the high level commission, fearing that the effect of the appointment of such a commission would be to raise all sorts of questions that would be reflected in the imminent Israel political campaign.

Free-Thinkers Seek to Liberalize Orthodox Marriage Law in Israel

TEL AVIV — Marriage and divorce are developing into a political issue here with the approach of the national elections scheduled for July 25, reports the New York Times. The Times article continues:

An organization of free thinkers has undertaken a campaign for legislative reform designed to offer citizens the alternative between religious and civil marriage and divorce. Under existing legislation there are no provisions for civil marriage or divorce and the clerical authorities of all recognized faiths have sole jurisdiction over those matters within their respective communities.

This position, which was carried over from the era of British rule in Palestine, was confirmed in 1953 by the outgoing Knesset (parliament).

No Marriage To Divorcee

The League to Prevent Religious Coercion in Israel has called upon Israeli citizens of voting age to sign a petition to the Speaker of the Knesset urging the reform of the Marriage and Divorce Law. The petition contends that the law is discriminatory. It prevents inter-faith marriages or else forces persons to change their religions in order to marry, the petition charges. It is also charged that women do not enjoy equality before religious courts.

Another complaint is that the enforcement of rabbinical law creates peculiar situations. For example, any man believed to be a lineal descendant of Aaron, the first High Priest, may not marry a divorcee, even if the would-be bridegroom is not religious at all.

The petition charges that the enforcement of the present Marriage and Divorce Law constitutes religious coercion and makes Israel a theocratic state.

"Law Is Coercive"

Defenders of the legislation counter that the law was passed by an overwhelming majority of the Knesset.

"All legislation is coercive," said Dr. Berath Wahrhaftig, Deputy Minister for Religious Affairs.

Dr. Wahrhaftig acknowledged that the present situation makes inter-faith marriage impossible. "There was no need to create a Jewish State to facilitate assimilation," he said. Moreover, he added that mixed marriages in Israel would set a bad example to Jews outside Israel and would encourage assimilation.

Problems Complex

The complexity of the problem is illustrated by another argument for preserving the present position. If civil divorce is permitted, it is argued, a problem would be created in marriages between Jews and Jews. This would result from the fact that offspring from second marriages, if either of the parents was not divorced by a rabbinical court, would under rabbinical law be illegitimate.

However, there has been some recent ferment over the issue within other non-religious parties, particularly among women who contend that religious laws discriminate against their sex.

Women Fight Law

This opposition had been latent for some time, but it came to the surface when the Knesset recently passed a law regulating the appointment of the judges to the rabbinical courts. Women representatives of parties in the Government coalition fought for some amendments that, for example, would seat a woman on the bench alongside the rabbinical judges to represent the women's interest in the cases. These proposals, which would have torpedoed the entire set-up because they contradict religious law, were defeated.

The political parties may be compelled to enunciate their position on the issue in their election platforms. A Mapai (Labor party) source has said the party which has dominated all governments since the establishment of Israel, would consider its stand. Hitherto, its position has been that showdowns on such delicate and emotional issues should be deferred until the young republic achieves greater stability.

Matunuck Plans

Theatre Bus Parties

Believing that many Providence residents would like to come to Matunuck, but cannot because they lack convenient transportation, Donald Wohl and Harold Schiff, producers, have organized a "Theatre by-the-sea Bus Party" plan. Bus party tickets for Wednesday and Saturday matinees and Monday and Thursday evenings are available at the Roth Ticket Agency in the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel.

Ticket-holders are entitled to a round trip bus ride from Providence to Matunuck, a luncheon at the Theatre Inn (or matinee) or a cocktail at the Theatre Inn bar (or evening performances), and a choice orchestra seat for the current attraction.

Buses leave at 12 noon from the Sheraton-Biltmore for Wednesday and Saturday matinees and 7 P. M. for Monday and Thursday evening performances.

"Caine Mutiny" At Theatre-by-the-Sea

Pulitzer prize winner Herman Wouk's "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial," comes to Matunuck's Theatre-By-The-Sea on Monday, and plays through July 9. Starring in it will be Jeffrey Lynn, a former Rhode Islander. The play will be performed nightly at 8:40 o'clock, with matinees Wednesday and Saturday at 2:40 P.M.

"The Caine Mutiny" deals with the court martial proceedings against a young lieutenant who, in the midst of a typhoon, relieved his captain of command of his ship, on the grounds that the captain was psychopathic and was directing the ship and its crew to destruction.

Theatre Inn by-the-Sea and the new outdoor terrace, The Players Patio, both located on the theatre grounds, celebrate their gala opening this week with nightclub headliners Will Holt, the fabulous folk singer, impish comedienne Judy Magee, and the talented Richard Harris and Helen Patterson at the pianos.

Foods to Remember

By Leah W. Leonard

Just as Chicken Soup and Gefilte Fish are traditional Sabbath Dishes with Jews the world over, so Salmon and Peas in some form or other is traditional American fare for Independence Day. It originated in New England where almost any variety of fish, in any form, was staple food. To make it Salmon and Peas on the Fourth of July was a natural!

Independence Day Fish Dish
 2½ pounds fresh or frozen salmon, sprinkled with salt
 1 egg
 6 tablespoons fine crumbs (cracker or bread)
 4 tablespoons vegetable shortening or oil
 1 teaspoon minced fresh mint or parsley
 2½ cups cooked fresh, frozen or canned peas
 ¼ teaspoon sugar
 Salt, white pepper and/or paprika as directed below.

Wash fish in cold water and drain well. Pat dry with towels or paper napkins. Cut into serving portions, or leave sliced fish whole if fresh kind is used. Cut frozen Salmon steaks before defrosting into even portions. Beat egg slightly in large bowl. Dip each piece of fish in beaten egg, then in crumbs. Be sure both sides of fish are well coated. Heat the shortening in a frying pan and fry fish till nicely browned on underside. Turn to brown on other side. Lift out fried fish to serving platter. Sprinkle with minced mint or parsley. Turn peas into frying pan, add sugar and seasoning to taste. Cover and cook over low heat if fresh peas are used, only till peas are soft, approximately 5 minutes. Steam under the lid is usually sufficient moisture. However, a little hot water may be added if necessary to cook peas till tender. If canned peas are used, drain off most of the liquid, using only very little if necessary. Cook only till heated through. Frozen peas require only 3 to 5 minutes heating through to make them tender. Turn cooked peas over the fried salmon and serve hot. Serves 6.
