

Community to Honor Dr. Ilie Berger on His 70th Birthday

On the occasion of his 70th birthday, the Jewish community of Providence will pay tribute to more than 40 years of self-less devotion to communal work on the part of Dr. Ilie Berger.

Dr. Berger, Providence dentist, will be honored at a testimonial dinner on Sunday Evening, May 1, at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel at 6 P. M. Ten agencies that have benefited from the long years of work by Dr. Berger are sponsoring the dinner which is under the chairmanship of Benjamin N. Kane.

A committee of 50 members, representing nearly every segment of the community has been formed to plan the dinner, which it is hoped will attract a multitude of Dr. Berger's friends.

Invitations have already been distributed within the community and the committee has asked that an early reply be made to facilitate the handling of the large crowd that is expected.

Organizations that are taking part include: The General Jewish Committee, Bonds for Israel, Hebrew Free Loan Association, Jewish Children's Home and Foundation, Jewish Home for the Aged, Labor Zionists, Miriam Hospital, Providence Fraternal Temple Beth Israel and the Zionist District.

Kane said the committee has already met and plans for the dinner are well underway. Officers of the committee have already been approached and their appointments will be announced in a few days," he said.

"We realize that our guest of honor has a host of friends, and one of the largest turnouts in the history of the community is expected. For that reason, I urge that everyone interested in attending the dinner on May 1 contact the Committee Headquarters at room 203 in the Strand Building

Comments on Jews Disclosed In Yalta Conference Discussions

Avoid Charges of Restraint of Trade

LOS ANGELES — The Kosher Wholesale Poultry dealers Association of Los Angeles have signed a constant decree in Federal Court not to engage in certain practices which the Justice Department's anti-trust division had charged were monopolistic restraint of trade.

The butchers association has issued a statement to the effect that its signing of the consent decree is not an admission of past anti-trust violations. The poultry association, which was charged with aiding and abetting the butchers group, stated that the four dealers comprising the poultry association were always prepared to sell kosher poultry to any butcher "whether he is kosher or not."

The government action and the moves of the butchers and poultry sellers here were paralleled by many kosher butchers signing up with the Los Angeles Community Council's bureau of kashruth for supervision of their activities.

"Sherry Hour" Host

MRS. ISAAC GERBER

Mrs. Alexander Lowenthal, nationally prominent civic leader and former National Israel Bond Women's Division Chairman, will be the guest of honor at "A Sherry Hour" at the home of Mrs. Isaac Gerber, 212 Slater Avenue, on Tuesday, April 19, at 3 P. M.

In announcing Mrs. Lowenthal's appearance, Mrs. Gerber stated that a goal of 50 Sponsors had been established with the following ladies already enrolled in the honorary organization of women who have purchased $1,000 or more in Israel Bonds: Mrs. Ilie Berger, Mrs. Joseph Biller, Mrs. Philip Dorenbaum, Mrs. Irving Fain, Mrs. Henry Hassenfeld, Mrs. Merrill Hassenfeld, Mrs. Sidney Kane and Mrs. Samuel Shore.

Newspapers Rap Deletions

WASHINGTON — The "Washington Post and Times-Herald" claimed in an editorial that the Yalta papers, as released, were incomplete in that "several references, notably some remarks by President Roosevelt about the Jews, have been deleted. Unquestionably these deletions were made with the best of intentions, to prevent what was regarded as needless exacerbation."

"The omissions," the paper said, "like the differences with the British version, probably are trivial. But it is hard to see, in view of the decision to brave all the unhappy consequences of disclosure of 99-plus per cent of the papers at this time, why the Administration had to doctor history in these small particulars. There already has been too much of this pernicious practice."

The "Manchester Guardian," in a cable from Washington commenting on the release of the Yalta documents, says that release of some of Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill's jocular remarks about the French has "produced the demand in the United States that the State Department should now release passages in the Yalta papers in which Roosevelt, as is widely known, spoke harshly about the Jewish people. The papers are in danger of becoming a grab bag of ugly gossip," the British correspondent added.

WASHINGTON — Jewish problems were discussed by President Roosevelt, British Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Soviet Premier Stalin during the historic Yalta conference which took place in February, 1945. It was learned here following publication of the records of the conference.

Roosevelt told Stalin that he was a Zionist and asked if Stalin was one. Stalin replied that he was one in principle but he recognized the difficulty. The exchange of these remarks was preceded by a statement by President Roosevelt telling Stalin that he had three kings waiting for him in the Near East, including Ibn Saud.

Stalin said that the Jewish problem was a very difficult one and that the Soviet Union had tried to establish a national home for the Jews in Birobidzhan but they had only stayed there two or three years and then scattered to the cities. He said the Jews were natural traders but much had been accomplished by putting small groups in some agricultural areas.

The New York Times said it is not entirely clear from the text as released why Stalin began talking about the Jewish problem. "A line of asterisks preceding Stalin's statement seems to raise the possibility that one of Stalin's high-level colleagues may have initiated the discussion of Jews with a statement that has been censored from the published text the Times said."

Recalls KKK

During the same dinner-meeting — which took place on Feb. 10 — Roosevelt said that he recalled that there had been an organization in the United States called the Ku Klux Klan that had hated the Catholics and the Jews, and once when he had been on a visit in a small town in the South he had been the guest of the president of the local Chamber of Commerce.

He had sat next to an Italian on one side and a Jew on the other and had asked the president of the Chamber of Commerce whether they were members of the Ku Klux Klan, to which the president had replied that they were, but that they were considered all right since everyone in the community knew them.

Roosevelt remarked that it was a good illustration of how difficult it was to have any prejudices, racial, religious or otherwise, if you really knew people.

Pre-conference documents published along with the Yalta records revealed that Judge Samuel Rosenman of New York, one of President Roosevelt's closest advisors, had been assigned a key role in consideration of the question of punishing German war criminals and the problem of attempting to save the Jews in Europe from mass extermination.

The News Picture

An AJP Round Up of World News

UNITED STATES

Another issue bedeviling Washington is the prospective high-level conference of the Big Four. There is a basic disagreement between Eisenhower and Churchill. The latter wants that the East-West talks should start without a well-worked out agenda. Eisenhower holds the opposite view. Thus, while the West is squabbling over procedures, the Soviet Union is reported to be stockpiling sufficient oil for the machinery of a long war. At the same time, Britain's Sir Anthony Eden, the Prime Minister-to-be, is beginning to open the door for some 'understanding' with the Kremlin with or without the U. S. And from Soviet's friend, India, came reports that Prime Minister Nehru bitterly condemned the over-all policy promulgated by the U. S. in almost every part of the world. All this adds up to trouble for Washington where leadership is confused and bewildered. In the face of this bleak picture, the National Geographic Society has reported the discovery of a new comet near the constellation Leo. Prophets of doom report the discovery of a similar comet before the outbreak of World War I.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell, Democrat of Manhattan, speaking at a hearing before the House Education and Labor Committee, proposed that Congress withhold funds from any school district that refused to maintain an integrated school system. It would be squandering money, he said, for the Govern-

Rabbi in Carolina Is Circuit Rider

CHARLOTTE, N. C. — Rabbi Harold E. Friedman has the most unusual "congregation" in the Carolinas — and probably anywhere else. Rabbi Friedman is a circuit-riding rabbi, and his synagogue literally goes on wheels — it's a specially equipped bus, dedicated this month as a "Synagogue on Wheels."

The towns he serves are Lumberton, Hendersonville, Hickory, Mount Gilead, Weldon, Jacksonville, Wallace, Statesville, and Whiteville, in North Carolina and Rock Hill, South Carolina. Since he began making his rounds, a great many persons who had never done so before, have worshipped with their fellow Jews. The rabbi also trains local lay leaders to carry on the work until his next scheduled appearance.

A Herald Profile:

"A Man's Home Is His Birds' Nest"

By ANNA T. RICHARDS

In the '20's it was goldfish, in the '30's, canaries — but in this Atomic Age, your American home is just not complete, they say, unless there is at least one parakeet chirping phrases and snatches of song. With this in mind, the Herald sought out Mr. and Mrs. Irwin Soforenko of 14 Cole Avenue, who have not one, not two, but 75 or so of the flamboyantly-colored creatures.

We were introduced first to "Percy"—the bird who started it all. Irwin and Norma bought him about two years ago, saw to it that he was properly mated, and so it was in parakeet arithmetic and with a normal passage of time that one and one made 75 or so.

About Parakeets

Parakeets are indigenous to Australia and other warm climates. Therefore, a bird of this type adjusts easily to the 65 or 70 degree warmth of a home. They lay one to ten eggs on alternate days, ten days after consummation. Breeders, such as Irwin, must supply the birds with a hollowed-out "nest-box" before they will produce. Since the birds' ancestors laid their eggs in the hollows of trees, these warm-blooded vertebrates must follow their instincts.

About Breeders

The Soforenkos keep their parakeets in two rooms above their Cole Avenue apartment. One of the rooms is devoted to cages for breeding purposes, and the other to "flight cages," where birds who are too young to breed or who need exercise are kept. Irwin uses a system of controlled breeding — mating the birds genetically, knowing at each stage whom the parents are. He favors this system over colony breeding, where 10 or 20 birds are tossed together and whose young are produced without any regard to the outcome.

This colony breeding brought up a sore point with the Soforenkos — that of the wholesalers who sell parakeets to local department stores. When Irwin tells a customer he wants $10 for one of his birds, they immediately insist that they can get the same bird for $2.98 at the local Five & Dime. But, the difference, Irwin says, is that he guarantees his birds will talk within six months. These department store birds are, in many cases, too old to learn to talk, even though they appear to be the same as the small dealer's birds.

Mrs. Soforenko plays an important part in the care of her husband's birds, for it is she who holds the feedbox in the family — she feeds the birds every day and sees to it that they have enough water and the other items necessary for their existence.

Other Ambitions

Parakeet breeding and retailing is not the end-all of Irwin's interest in animals. He owns a horse which he keeps on the Massachusetts farm of his parents. And he is preparing now for the opening of a pet shop department in Gladstone's Market at the corner of Hope Street and Rochambeau Avenue. (Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone are Mrs. Soforenko's mother and father.) He has a pretty complete parakeet shop there now, and eventually, the shop will stock all the animals and items of a downtown store, conveniently lo-

Mr. Soforenko concluded the interview with a description of the talents of "Percy," who at the moment was perched atop a door frame, picking at the paint, which contains lime—a sort of parakeet caviar. But regardless of their particular gourmet make-up, Irwin says that parakeets make wonderful and interesting pets and can be taught "almost-human" tricks.

Hollywood Close-Ups

By LEON GUTTERMAN

HOLLYWOOD — A young friend wrote to Danny Kaye: "Dear Danny: I'm finally going steady with a beautiful young lady. We have a wonderful time together, never have an argument, and are madly in love with each other. Should I marry her?"

Danny wrote back: "My advice is, don't marry her. Why spoil a good thing like that?"

Some of the calmest, most intelligent people have become "quiz crazy," according to Groucho Marx. "One woman," says Groucho, "studied the encyclopedia for four years just in case she got on a quiz show. She finally got on mine and when I asked, 'What's your name?' she said: 'Would you mind repeating that question?'"

RCA board chairman David Sarnoff says horizons for the recording industry are due for a tremendous expansion in the next half decade. He predicts that about 20,000,000 phonographs are expected to be produced and sold in the next five years. That will virtually double the gross of the record industry if the current rate of sales per machine continues at the same pace. According to Sarnoff, renewed popularity of the phonograph is expected to increase the number of machines in use as well as the records used.

George Jessel closed a deal to be "Goodwill Ambassador" for the Flamingo Hotel, Las Vegas, beginning this month, on a setup that cuts him in for an interest in the hostelry. Under the terms of the deal, Jessel will produce and appear in one show annually at the Flamingo. For the remainder of the year, Jessel will serve as a roving ambassador, publicizing the hotel by mentioning it in each of his speeches. The nation's "toastmaster general" already has a schedule of 50 speeches for 1955.

The Phil Silvers television series currently being ground out under CBS auspices is still without a definite time slot and it may take a cancellation or two to fit the GI-slanted show ("You'll Never Get Rich") into a major berth.

Foods to Remember

PASSOVER NUT CAKE

9 eggs, separated
9 tblsp sugar
2 tblsp Matzo Cake Meal
1 lemon, grated rind and juice
1 cup finely ground almonds
Beat egg yolks till light lemon colored and creamy. Fold in lightly the grated lemon rind then stir in the juice, a few drops at a time, till well combined. Beat egg whites, adding sugar gradually while beating till the mixture is stiff. Fold this second mixture into the first with an over and over stroke, adding the finely ground blanched almonds (well dried before putting through the nut grinder) with the few final strokes of the mixing spoon. Sprinkle the Matzo Cake meal over the top and fold in very lightly. Turn the mixture into an ungreased spring form cake pan and bake at 325° F for 45 minutes to 1 hour or till lightly browned. This cake must not be disturbed during the baking process if you want it rise to its maximum height. Press lightly with the forefinger at the center of top of cake to make certain it is not sticky to the touch before removing from oven. Let cool away from drafts. This makes a large size cake that will serve 12 or more.

PASSOVER POPOVERS

1 cup Matzo Meal
1/2 tsp salt
2 tblsp melted shortening (your favorite kind)
1 cup boiling water
5 eggs

Combine the Matzo Meal, boiling water, salt in a mixing bowl and let stand till cool. Grease well 18 two and a half inch muffin pans or 36 smaller ones and light the oven, bringing temperature up to 350° F. Beat one egg at a time into the mixture till a batter is formed thick enough to drop from a spoon. Fill the greased muffin pans to 2/3 full and bake 50 minutes for the larger muffins and 40 minutes for the smaller ones, or till they are puffed into a peak and lightly browned on top. Serve hot or cold.

VARIATIONS for serving these light muffins may be made by slitting each and inserting a spoonful of preserves or cottage cheese flavored with sugar and cinnamon and enriched with sour cream.

MATZO TOAST

2 eggs
1 large onion, cut across 10 Matzos, approximately salt as required
Beat eggs lightly, just enough to combine yolks and whites. Place as many Matzos as will fit a cookie sheet close together. Dip the cut side of onion halves into beaten eggs and rub over each Matzo. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Bake at 375° F till egg topping is set and lightly browned, approximately 5 minutes. Serve hot. Excellent with milching, fleischig or pareve main course. Good with coffee or tea, substituting a mixture of cinnamon and sugar for the salt. Omit onion but brush on the beaten egg with a pastry brush. Serves 10.

Bond Committee Maps Plans For Dinner

Meeting virtually on the eve of Passover, 35 members of the Providence Israel Bond Committee set new campaign targets at the Community Center Monday night.

With Henry Hassenfeld presiding, the committee set as a goal 400 reservations for the dinner celebrating Israel's 7th Anniversary at the Hotel Narragansett Wednesday, April 27, at 6:30 P. M.

The group also established a table allotment program through which organizations may secure table reservations as a means of identifying their support of the campaign.

Organizations will also be asked to secure bond purchases from the members and to make treasury fund purchases.

Dr. Ilie Berger, co-chairman of the campaign, spoke briefly while Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen of Temple Emanuel made an impromptu appeal for full scale participation in the Israel Bond campaign.

additional telephones
can do THIS FOR YOU?

1 SAVE YOU STEPS!

An upstairs telephone greatly reduces the number of steps and stairs you take daily answering the family's telephone calls. It avoids the nervous tension that builds up when you miss calls because you couldn't get there fast enough.

2 HELP YOU RELAX!

Whether you're ill, or are simply being smart and resting, a telephone in the bedroom allows you to take or make calls without getting up. And it gives you a comfortable feeling of extra security when you're alone at night.

3 GIVE YOU MORE PRIVACY!

When you have to take or make an important personal or business call at home, use your extra telephone. You'll never again have to outshout the family or TV, or make a guest feel uncomfortably "hushed". And if your children are long talkers, the extra telephone keeps them from disturbing the peace and quiet of the adult members of the family.

Get additional telephones today. Cost only $1.00 or less per month each plus tax, and small installation charge on the first.

PASSOVER AND THE STATE of ISRAEL

Something new has been added to our celebration of the Passover since 1948, something new in the spirit of our reading of the Hagadah, something new in the feeling of the family gathered around the Seder table.

This new vitality stems out of the creation of the State of Israel. No single development has had a more positive impact on the lives of all Jews throughout the world in 1900 years. At Passover, we all re-experience an inner thrill at the thought that there is again a Jewish nation on the face of the earth, with its own land, and the right to work out its own destiny.

But as Israel prepares to celebrate its 7th Anniversary on April 27, a new and different kind of challenge arises to confront Providence Jewry. Freedom doesn't come without hard work, independence doesn't just happen. The people of Israel have proven their understanding of these truths by their relentless drive, their ceaseless toil, their thrilling accomplishments. We have to continue the effort we started, we have to make certain that we in Providence do our share to make Israel strong, free and economically independent.

To do our part, we must support our current $250,000 campaign for investment in Israel, and we must plan to participate in the dinner celebrating Israel's 7th Anniversary at the Narragansett Hotel Wednesday, April 27, at 6:30 P. M. A great American statesman, Governor Theodore R. McKeldin of Maryland, will join our Providence celebration and we should demonstrate to him that we share his interest in Israel's growth and development.

By your participation, you will be re-affirming your understanding of the deep significance of the State of Israel to the future of our people on this Passover.

Endorse Council Idea

In behalf of the Providence District Committee of the Workmen's Circle, and the Providence Branch of the Northeast Region of the Jewish Labor Committee, I have been authorized to extend a hearty endorsement of Alter Boyman's suggestion in the JEWISH HERALD that a Community Relations Council be organized in this area.

It is our view that one of the greatest steps forward that could be taken would be the bringing together of the many Jewish organizations of various shades of our community into one coordinating group — an agency set up to co-ordinate the community relations work being done here; an agency set up so that every sector of the Jewish community will have a voice in its work, and so that through the representatives sent to it, the Council will really be able to speak in the name of the entire Jewish Community.

Such Community Relations Councils already exist in a number of American cities, and Providence should not delay any longer in setting up such a body to help mobilize manpower, interest, and energy in the Jewish Community for various projects that concern us all vitally.

Admittedly, such a Council would become involved in many problems of a greater or lesser degree of importance, but, as we see it, a Community Relations Council would basically, in cooperation with the major agencies on the American scene, act in behalf of the protection and enhancement of equal rights and equal opportunities, and to protect and extend conditions contributing toward the peaceful development of creative Jewish living. It would deal with matters of religious freedom and the protection of individual freedoms, defamation and discrimination in education housing, and employment. It would also deal with public relations of the Jewish Community and the building of mutual respect of human dignity within our society.

Yes, such a Community Relations Council is long overdue. And in endorsing the need and desire for such a body, both the Workmen's Circle and the Jewish Labor Committee stand ready to offer their fullest cooperation to any move to bring it about.

J. B. ROTHENBERG,
Secretary, W. C. District
Committee
Regional Vice-Chairman,
Jewish Labor Committee

I have read with great interest Mr. Boyman's article on "The Need of a Community Relations Council" in your March 18 issue.

The passing years have proved increasingly the wisdom of establishing such committees for the community per se. Just as the Jewish community marshals its best talents for planning and action in the fields of fund raising and social service, so today does it accept the challenge to pool resources and counsel for handling problems in the fields of civic protection, community relations, civil rights and civil liberties.

It has been my pleasure to confer on these subjects several times with interested people in Providence. I am delighted to note now that Mr. Boyman has stressed the need for a Council.

Culture Council Plans Scholarship

The Hebrew Culture Scholarship Committee met on Monday at 8 P. M. in the Conference Room of the General Jewish Committee, according to an announcement by Mrs. Charles Potter, chairman of the Hebrew Culture Council.

The committee, which is under the chairmanship of Martin Reisman, was charged with the responsibility of setting criteria for selecting the outstanding Hebrew student at Hope High School, who would be eligible for the Summer Seminar Scholarship to be awarded by the Hebrew Culture Council.

Last summer, 29 high school students from 21 American high schools comprised the first Israel Summer Seminar for high school students, sponsored by the Hebrew Culture Council of New York in association with the Jewish Agency for Palestine and the Hebrew Culture Service Committee for American High Schools and Colleges. The entire project was designed for students excelling in the study of Hebrew in the public high schools.

The Hebrew Culture Council in Providence is planning to make available a partial scholarship to enable an outstanding student to join the Seminar. Nathan Temkin is chairman of the Hebrew Scholarship Fund.

Clamon Auxiliary Elects Officers

Edith S. Hochman was elected president of the Gerald M. Clamon Auxiliary Jewish War Veterans at a meeting held recently at the Jewish Community Center. Other officers include Dorothy Goldberg, senior vice-president; Rose Sock, junior vice-president; Florence Datz, corresponding secretary; Irene Cohen, recording secretary; Nettie Simon, treasurer; Barbara Lappin, chaplain; Grace Sock, Emma Simon and Vera Hochman, trustees; and Blanche Zimmerman, guard.

New members were installed at the meeting. Winners of the door prizes for the telephone bridge were announced. Barbara Lappin and Shirley Lappin were hostesses for the evening.

SYD COHEN:

Reluctant Crystal Ball

If you trust the opinions of the ball players themselves, the next World Series will be played in Milwaukee's County Stadium and New York's Yankee Stadium. This prediction is the result of a special pre-spring training poll of 225 big leaguers conducted by a leading sport magazine.

While the results of the poll are somewhat tarnished because players were not confined to voting in their own leagues, the trend away from last year's pennant winners is clearly evident. The Braves, for example, polled 88 first place votes, compared to 53 for the World Champion Giants and 49 for the hardy perennials, the Dodgers.

In the American League, the Yankee psychosis is even stronger. The players gave them 132 first place votes, while the champions, the Indians, received only 59. However, much of the Yankees' strength came from the other league, whose players, remembering all those World Series of recent years, made the Bronx Bombers a 3 to 1 choice.

The players' ballots, it is interesting to note, awarded fourth place in the National League to Birdie Tebbetts' Redlegs. In the American, it was still the White Sox for third, and the Red Sox for fourth.

How Would They Vote Now?

As noted, the poll described above took place before the various players left their homes for spring training. What would a similar quiz reveal today, as the clubs reach their home bases and prepare for the season's openers?

The answer is easy in one respect. It is still a three team race in the National, a two-and-a-half team race in the American.

The National League

Milwaukee still is regarded as the club to beat. The Braves are the solid club, strong at every position, offering terrific power and steady pitching. No pitcher can relish the thought of facing a team that has Mathews, Adcock, Thomson, Aaron and Pafko carrying the lumber; and few hitters will improve their records at the expense of Spahn, Burdette, Conley, Buhl, Nichols and all those promising youngsters who were considered "comers" last season.

The Giants are not rated too highly. An air of complacency has been noted among the champs this spring, and this could hurt. The team has stood pat, always a dangerous sign. Antonelli and Gomez among the starters, and Wilhelm and Grissom of the relief corps, are the only dependable pitchers. Maglie and Hearn are out-and-out question marks. The lineup is studded with good players, but few outstanding ones. The reserves are not of the best.

The Giants very likely would be better respected if not for this fact. Last year, clicking on all cylinders, with everything going their way, while the Dodgers and Braves suffered one disappointment after another, New York barely staved off a late season rally by the Braves and the Dodgers. It took the latter two a half season to get rolling. If they now start even

This column is hard pressed to decide between the Dodgers and Braves. Brooklyn's pitching should stage a strong comeback, while Milwaukee must get top results from Nichols and other younger twirlers. On the basis that the Bums have more question marks on their roster than do the Braves, here is a cautious and reluctant vote for Milwaukee.

I have to admit that I like the Dodgers' chances a lot and would pick them to win save for the question marks, involving Newcombe, Black, Erskine, Robinson and Reese. That is why the "reluctant" vote for the Braves.

At any rate, a real dogfight is in prospect in the National League, with the Giants seen maintaining a strong position on the outside, but being unable to crack through to the inner circle of the other two.

The American League

Like the Braves in the National League, so are the Yankees considered the solid club of the junior circuit. Outside of the pitching staff, that is. Lineup for lineup, in eight positions, in addition to reserve strength, the Yanks stand out as the class of the league.

The secret files of one unnamed team in the league, rating opposition players, list the ex-champs way out in front, all by themselves. New York is seen to have a superb defense, the best hitting in the league, as it had last year, more speed, and better reserves than any of the others. And it is a more youthful club, too, than its opposition.

Those who pick the Yanks in a runaway figure that this all-around strength will offset whatever edge will be maintained by the Indians' pitching. And if Ford, Turley, Larsen, Grim and Morgan click, Cleveland's pitching superiority will disintegrate, especially with that stronger New York defense putting less of a burden on its mound corps.

Ah, but will the Yankee pitching shape up? That is the number one question of the American League. If it is true that New York has the better all-around club, the better balance, better rookies, better infield, better catching, better everything else, it also is true that the Cleveland pitching is really solid. Even if Lemon, Wynn and Garcia should fade, how can you discount a club that can take up the slack with Houtteman, with the new phenom Herb Score, with comers like Narleski and Mossi?

Even if you assume that the Indians will not pitch as well as they did last year, you still have to grant them this—that they still have the league's most solid, deep staff. And it is highly improbable that Lemon, Wynn and Garcia, or any combination of the three, should falter that badly all at once. They are not that old.

With the Indians, that pitching strength is not to be ignored. The team has the hitting required to back up such hurling—you've heard of Rosen, Doby, Kiner, Avila, Wertz and Smith, no doubt. It's a team which, given the type of pitching it now seems to have, can overcome, or ignore, its deficiencies—provided no other club comes up with a mound staff to match.

So here's a vote for the Cleveland Indians to retain their American League title. I'd like to attach a couple of conditions to that forecast, but they will have to wait until next week's column, which will be written on Sunday, prior to the opening games.

THE NEW HAVEN RAILROAD

Still No Change in Critical Spot

No one can properly tell if the troubled situation on the Israel-Egypt border has relaxed or not. On the one hand, there are continuing reports that strong man Col. Nasser is pouring Egyptian troops into the Sinai Peninsula.

This is aggravated by the fact that Secretary of State Dulles last week announced his "fear" for future U.S.-Israel relations. Mr. Dulles explained that the status between the two governments had decidedly deteriorated in view of the Gaza incident. Although his remarks came well before truce supervisor Gen. E. L. M. Burns' report to the United Nations, Col. Nasser took Mr. Dulles at his word and the occasion, itself, to hurl new threats of retaliation and war against the Jewish State.

On the other hand, Gen. Burns' report to the Security Council sharply rebuked Arab policy in the Near East and laid the blame for the troubled situation squarely at the feet of League leaders. This surprised not only Egypt but the U. S. State Department, as well, which was not at all prepared to see its new proteges reprimanded.

So that, generally, one can only speak in relative terms when it comes to evaluating the Near East situation. It is certainly better than it was several days after the announcement of the Gaza skirmish; it is certainly no worse than it has been during the past few years. It seems to us that one may measure progress there only in minute degrees. Israel and the Arab nations advance or fall back in the eyes of world opinion—and this, significantly, means Western opinion—by the manner in which one or the other reacts diplomatically, not militarily, to any given provocation and to the effects of provocation on the major powers. Kibya, the Scorpion Pass massacre, the Bat Galim and Suez question and now Gaza—these have been the principal testing grounds on which both parties have had to prove their mettle.

Certainly, Egypt lost prestige as a result of Gaza. For one thing, the Burns report to the Security Council stunned the Arabs, who had expected—and despite the report demanded—sanctions against Israel. For another, their keen disappointment forced a diplomatic blunder among Arab ranks, the results of which are still unmeasurable. Presenting an "ultimatum" to the West, Egypt has placed as its price for peace in the Near East the return of the Negev—well over fifty percent of Israel's territory. Further, Egypt's leaders have threatened defection from the Western camp if their demand is not met.

More than anything else, this emphasizes the total unreliability of the Arabs as partners against possible communist aggression—the ground on which our government has been operating to rationalize its questionable role in the Middle East.

The Flying Matzo

(A Pesach Story for Little Children)

by Beryl Segal

Did you ever see a flying saucer? Some people say they did, and they tell many stories about such saucers. I never saw a flying saucer, but I know a little boy who saw a flying Matzo. He saw many flying Matzohs, and he was on one of them, flying from here to Montreal and back again on the night of Seder.

And here is how it happened.

On the first night of Pesach, Pinnie—this is the little boy's name—was sitting with his father and mother at the Seder in the house of his grandfather and grandmother. Pinnie drank the first cup of wine, then he asked the Four Questions, and he chanted the Haggadah. He is big. He is five, and a boy of five is big. When the time came for the second cup of wine, Pinnie drank that, too. He is big. He can drink two cups of wine.

Soon after the second cup of wine, Pinnie began to think of his other grandfather and grandmother in the far-away city of Montreal. If he could only see them for a little while! If he could only open the door quietly, and sit at their Seder, and taste their wine, and maybe ask the Four Questions! Grandfather and grandmother of Montreal would be very glad to hear him ask the Four Questions. Pinnie was sure of that.

But that is impossible, Pinnie thought. Montreal is so far away. I can't be at this Seder here and at the Seder in Montreal at the same time, he said to himself.

"Who says it is impossible?" he heard someone whisper in his ear.

Pinnie turned around quickly to see who was standing behind the chair whispering in his ear, and before he could ask "Who are you?" he knew who it was, and he smiled and said:

"It is you, Prophet Elijah. I didn't see you come in."

"Of course you didn't. Nobody sees me come in. But I am here and there and everywhere. That's why I know that it is possible to be at more than one Seder at the same time. I am at a thousand Sedors right now. You can be at the Seder in Montreal now, if you really want to be there."

"I do, Prophet Elijah," said Pinnie. "But how can I? It takes a whole day to go to Montreal."

"You come with me," said Elijah. And the Prophet took Pinnie by the hand and he led him outside, and nobody saw them leave the Seder table, and nobody heard them open and close the door of the house.

Pinnie looked up and he saw the big round moon in the skies, and the stars twinkling everywhere, thousands and thousands of stars all around. And Pinnie knew that he was flying. He and Elijah were sitting on a big round Matzo, gliding in and out of the clouds, gliding, gliding quietly among the clouds. Pinnie looked to the right and to the left, and he saw many other boys and girls flying on Matzohs, and when they passed near him, they waved and they cried:

"Hi, Pinnie! I am flying to my Grandfather in New York!"

"Watch me, Pinnie. I am flying to my uncle in Chicago."

And one little girl clapped her hands and laughed:

"This is fun. I will be in Boston in a minute. Will my sister be surprised to see me!"

Pinnie touched the Prophet Elijah by his sleeve and asked quietly:

"You think we will come to Montreal in time for the Seder? I hope I am not late."

"Late? Oh, no. See the lights over there? This is Montreal, and here is your grandfather's house. Go right in."

And Pinnie opened the door, and he sat at the Seder on the chair set for him, and he saw the wine cup filled for him, and nobody heard him coming in, and nobody said a word, and he heard his grandfather read aloud from the Haggadah:

"Let all who are hungry enter and eat. Let all who are in need come and celebrate the

And that was the time when Pinnie asked the Four Questions, so he stood up and he chanted them just as he had learned to do, and when he had finished grandmother kissed him and she was not surprised at all to see him there in Montreal.

But then Pinnie heard the Prophet Elijah whisper in his ears again:

"Come back! Mother will be worried. We must return now."

And Elijah took him by the hand and led him outside, and Pinnie knew that he was again flying higher and higher to the clouds, near the moon, and close to the stars, and the stars were so bright and the moon so close that Pinnie had to close his eyes for a second. When he opened his eyes again, he was back at the Seder, and it was time to drink the third cup of wine. And nobody knew of his going out and his coming in, only his father said to Pinnie:

"I think you have had enough wine for one Seder. Better go to bed now, son."

When mother put Pinnie to sleep, he said to her quietly:

"I was in Montreal just now. I asked the other grandfather the Four Questions, too."

"You did?" mother said. "That's very nice. How did you get there, and how did you come back so quickly?"

"On a flying Matzo. The Prophet Elijah was with me."

"That is wonderful, son. Many, many wonderful things happen on the night of Pesach."

And mother kissed him softly and said softly:

"Good night. Happy dreams!"

This is the story of the little boy and the flying Matzo. What do you think, children? Did Pinnie fly on this wonderful flying Matzo from here to Montreal and back again on the night of Pesach?

What Should Be Done With Outgoing Club President?

By MRS. SYLVAN SCHLOSS

President, Conference of Jewish Women's Organizations
(Reprinted From The Sentinel)

Q. Should the outgoing president go into the "Discard Pile"?

A. I know just what you mean. Many a surprised "past president" has found herself relegated to that place which you wryly refer to as the "Discard Pile."

But more and more groups are trying to intelligently deal with the problem of the "outgoing president," they are realizing that there are many facets to consider which can lead to a happy solution organization-wise and personally-wise. However it is a matter all must work at.

The retiring president is a human being and regardless of how she looks forward to a lessening of her responsibilities and duties, she has a morsel of regret and sadness at moving out of the limelight. In appreciation of all she has done, you can help her "move over" and benefit your group while doing it. Even if you feel she hasn't done what she should, it will be better for you and your organization if you keep it "in the family."

Continuity is one of the greatest assets of an organization and the easiest and soundest way of promoting this is a proper launching of the "new" president and her staff by the "old" president. The latter should take the time in the closing days of her administration to collect and organize all correspondence, sample forms, time schedules of activities with precise details of procedure, and financial matters and records, and sit down with the incoming president, explain what she is transferring to her and give her the material.

The incoming president should be very gracious at this point, because even if she feels that "everything must" be changed in her term, she can do so more efficiently, smoother and with less friction, knowing what has been done and why.—A smooth transfer redounds to the glory of both women!

Q. What are the advantages and powers of a committee?

A. The advantage of having committees lies in the fact that this is a method of facilitating the transaction of business. Special committees are appointed for a specific purpose and these exist only until such duties assigned to same by the organization are accomplished. When the assignment has been completed, the committee reports its findings to the assembly. Much misapprehension exists as to the power of a committee. The fact is, a committee has no power except that which is given to it by the assembly. In no case may a committee take action without express authority from the assembly. A committee should always carefully do the work assigned to it, and under no circumstances transcend its power. The report of a committee should contain definite statements of information, duties performed and specific recommendations showing the opinion of the committee.

Q. May we ask about a problem that faces us each year? Whom should we invite to install our officers—should it be one of our past presidents, or an important person in the community? Is there a ruling on which is proper procedure? Also, what should be included in an installation program?

A. No, there is no ruling governing installation practices. But in justice to the dignity and importance of this occasion, we feel that an Installing Officer should: 1. know the work of the organization; 2. be familiar with the various areas of responsibilities;

3. recognize the achievements of the outgoing officers and evaluate the progress of the organization while under their direction; and 4. be able to pay proper tribute to the qualifications of the members of the new slate of officers.

Now, who can do this better than one who has voluntarily served the organization for many years, such as a past president? Or, if you are a sisterhood, who knows all your members better than your own Rabbi? Of course, if your organization is a part of a regional or a national group, and you can "snare" an officer of the parent body, so much the better. But be sure to give her all the pertinent facts about each of the officers, both those who are going out of office and those who are to be installed.

The current trend is to dramatize the installation in the form of a script so that each of the members involved has a few lines to say. The program committee should plan this event carefully so as to emphasize its true importance—and not rush through an indifferent ceremony so that an inappropriate entertainment can follow. Most of us are always on the look-out for new program material. Here is a natural "gimmick." You might well take advantage of it.

Q. How can we, the officers, tell our president that she is stifling the initiative and interest of her executive committee by behaving as though it were a "One Woman Organization"?

A. This is really a situation, especially if, as is assumed, your president is efficient. It would be helpful to call in an impartial mediator — one versed in parliamentary procedure—to point out the duties and limits of a president and define the mark of true leadership as being the ability to get others to work effectively and harmoniously together. In all fairness to conscientious presidents, they might prefer to do the "thing" themselves, because it is easier than getting someone else to perform the job. But they must realize that the good of the organization is not furthered in the long range point of view, by a "One Woman Performance." Widest participation assures the greatest interest.
