Dr. Schwartz, Israel Bond Officer to Speak Here March 13

Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, vice president of the Israel Bond Organization, who has just returned from Israel where he conferred with Cabinet leaders on the Middle East situation, will address a State of Israel Bonds Report Meeting at the Providence Jewish Community Center Tuesday evening, March 13, at 8 P.M. Announcement of the meeting, which was called to inform the community with the "facts on Israel," was made by Abraham E. Goldstein, general chairman of the Providence Israel Bond Committee.

Mr. Goldstein, in urging large-scale attendance at the meeting, declared that "the appearance of Dr. Schwartz in our community will give us all an opportunity to hear first hand how Israel is meeting the heightened crisis which faces the young country." He pointed out that Israel Bonds will not be sold at the meeting, "since our purpose is to acquaint everyone with the facts."

Prior to assuming leadership of the Israel Bond Organization last May, Dr. Schwartz served as Executive Vice Chairman of the United Jewish Appeal for 4½ years. He previously was head of European Relief and Rehabilitation Programs for the Joint Distribution Committee.

Mr. Goldstein said that admission for the meeting would be open to the public.

Vandals Destroy Important Files

PARIS — Vandals broke into the offices of the Jewish Documentation Center here and destroyed important files and records. They also smashed a typewriter with Hebrew characters — leaving untouched three typewriters with Roman characters — evidently to point up their anti-Semitic intent. The Center is sponsoring the erection here of the Tomb of the Unknown Jewish Matyr, commemorating the memory of the 6,000,000 Jews annihilated by the Nazis.

LEO WEISS

28 Million Sets All-Time High

MIAMI BEACH, FLA., — Alarmed by the prospect that Israel's people may soon find themselves under attack by Arab forces heavily armed with superior Communist weapons, supporters of the United Jewish Appeal this week brought forward $28,500,000 in individual contributions to launch the UJA's 1956 nationwide campaign.

William Rosenwald of New York, general chairman of the UJA, termed this outpouring of gifts "the greatest starting sum ever given to an American philanthropic cause" and said it represented "a barometer showing the widespread concern for Israel's survival."

The outflow of gifts came at the final session of a two-day National Inaugural Conference of the UJA, with more than 650 campaign leaders and contributors in attendance at the Saxony Hotel.

Their response came after a warning from Dr. Giora Josephthal, one of Israel's top-ranking leaders and Treasurer of the Jewish Agency in Jerusalem, that "mounting Egyptian military superiority ultimately will express itself either in full-scale aggression against Israel or in a hit-and-run aerial attack that will decimate us by the thousands."

"Does anybody think that Egypt is getting Communist arms in order to fight the Communists?" he asked.

In light of this, he stated, Israel must spend $50,000,000 beginning immediately "for non-military preparations in behalf of its civilian population. He listed the following needs for which, he pointed out, Israel is shy of funds:

- (1) the stockpiling of food and fuel in the event Israel is cut off or its internal communications are disrupted, as in the case of Jerusalem during the Arab invasion of 1948.
- (2) the building of auxiliary power stations and their dispersal throughout the country to augment existing facilities, and
- (3) the construction of air raid shelters by the thousands in cities, villages and agricultural settlements, many of the latter in tense frontier areas.

RATIO HIGHEST

GENEVA — Israel has the largest ratio of physicians for its population of any country in the world, with one physician for every 431 inhabitants. The ratio figures were contained in a survey released by the World Health Organization here. Israel's ratio compares with one for 758 in the Soviet Union, one for every 777 in the United States, and one for every 3,500 in Egypt.

MIDDLE EAST SITUATION

In Washington, Secretary of State Dulles faced a critical Congressional body inquiring into the scandalous Saudi Arabian tank deal . . . Said Senator Humphrey, Democrat of Minnesota, "I am very much disturbed by what I feel has been a deterioration of our foreign policy and by the failure of Mr. Dulles to make clear what our policy is."

Dulles himself, appearing before this Senate Foreign Relations Committee as if nothing had happened, did not have too much encouragement for Israel. On the contrary, he said that "Israel could not win an arms race against Arabs having access to Soviet bloc stocks." He then proclaimed that "Israel's security could be better assured through measures other than the acquisition of additional arms. These other measures," he added, "include reliance on the UN . . ."

The vacationing Secretary of State apparently forgot recent history—the war of 1948: the UN did not even lift a finger when the invading Arab armies converged on Palestine sworn to drive the "Jews into the sea." If the Israelis then had not fought as valiantly as they did the situation might have been quite different today . . . But Dulles—which in Hebrew means nebech or poor—went a step further in his speech which must have greatly pleased his Middle Eastern "Friends." "We are not unmindful of the other problems," he said with an air of vengeance as if to threaten the Israelis, "such as those of economics and of the status of Jerusalem . . ." No wonder the Israelis are receiving a rotten deal from this regular "churchgoer."

UNITED STATES

Under the heading "Kosher Revival," Time Magazine had this to say in a recent issue: "In the revival of religious observances in the U. S., Jews are regaining their interest in the Jewish dietary laws, generally known as kashruth." Time introduced its two-column "kashruth" story—read by millions all over the world—with this citation from Herman Wouk's

Marjorie Morningstar: "Food disciplines are part of every great religion. Psychologically they are almost inevitable, and extremely practical . . . Didn't you feel more at home in the world, warm, safe, good, while you were observing your laws?"

PEOPLE

The undefeated Wrestling Rabbi, Raphael Halpern, is winning new laurels in S. Africa. Referred to as the "Leopard" from Israel, he defeated the South African champion Les Herbert who had never lost a match to anyone else . . . Margaret Truman, 32, has written her memoirs in a new book called "Souvenir", thus becoming the second author in the immediate Truman family with a year.

In Tribute To Heinrich Heine

The world of letters and culture, in America as well as in Europe, is now paying tribute to Heinrich Heine on the occasion of the centennial of his death in Paris. Jews particularly are reminding themselves of this extraordinary genius, German poet and prose writer, Jewish rebel, tormented human being, who was the most influential figure the Jewish people ever contributed to the modern literature of the Western world.

Heine in his writings was so many-faceted, and at times so inconsistent, that it is hardly possible to appraise him in a few paragraphs. He had a powerful intellect as well as artistic genius, so that balanced feeling and balanced thought often clashed within him. He is regarded as the greatest German lyric poet since Goethe. Many of his poems have been set to music by Germany's greatest song composers. Yet there was harsh satire and cynicism as well as soft sentimentalism in much of his poetry.

Heine's views on Jews and Judaism were not always the same during the fifty-eight years of his life. At times he was enthusiastically Jewish, at other times he wrote adversely of Jewish life and religious philosophy. Yet such poetic and prose pieces as "The Sabbath Queen," "Rabbi Yehuda Ben Halevy" and "The Rabbi of Bacharach" are among his finest artistic creations. Whatever Heine the intellectual may at times have written in derogation of Judaism, at heart he was a good Jew, as the above-mentioned literary creations and his confessions during the last years of his life when he was living in agony on his "mattress grave", fully attest. Jews prefer to remember Heine the literary artist who enriched Jewish and world literature.

Besides being a great poet, essayist and critic, Heine was also a great fighter for political and religious liberty for Jews and for all men. Jewry and the world at large today honors his memory. Even Germany, which drove him into exile, is now paying tribute to Heinrich Heine.

Toast to Elmer Davis

We wish we could have been present to add our applause the other day when a distinguished American received a new citation. We refer to the presentation of the 1954 Stephen S. Wise Award to Elmer Davis.

It seemed especially fitting that the Award, established by the American Jewish Congress as a memorial to the late Rabbi Wise, was presented by Senator Lehman. For Lehman, like Davis, remained one of the voices of reason, decency and tolerance in a time of high frenzy.

Davis has received much recognition, but not enough. He is living refutation of the thesis that men must become stodgy and spiritless as they grow older; he has never ceased to fight for the things he believed in, and to speak his mind when it might have been easier to remain quiet.

At times he may have been wrong, but he has never been a bore. Perhaps that is the highest tribute.

"One Man's Opinion"

When Brotherhood Week Comes Along

By BERYL SEGAL

Pity the man who is called upon to talk on Brotherhood during this Brotherhood Week, 1956.

What can he do but cry out a lamentation?

How can he convince himself and his listeners that the day is near, that man is ready for Brotherhood, when terror reigns by day and violence by night in our own backyard?

Man's age-old yearning for The End of Days, when brethren shall live together in peace, and none shall be afraid, is being trampled in the dust. Many rise up against it. They came from high places and from lowly abodes, they all come to throw stones and to jeer.

I watched a television program the other day produced on the streets and squares of a great city to the South of us. The camera caught the faces of men and women in stores, in homes, in offices and in class rooms. A politician, a young mother, a truck driver, an elderly housewife, a college student, all stood before the eye of the camera to bear witness against Brotherhood.

"No law under the constitution can force a sovereign state to do what it does not want to do," bellowed the politician.

"I don't want my child to grow up among Negro children at school," declared the young mother.

"I say let them round up all the trouble makers and lock them up", said the truck driver with glee.

And the college student parroted, "We want to keep our universities white."

Brotherhood rejected on the streets and market places, in the homes and halls of learning of a big city.

"White belong with whites and colored with their own kind, I always say," pronounced the housewife.

Brotherhood on trial and so many rise up to bear witness against it.

And yet the ideal of Brotherhood is so simple and so easy of attainment. Does it really mean mixing of bloods, declarations of love? Is it not rather a way of living together in justice and in tolerance? Does Brotherhood want more than decent human relationships between races and creeds? What more than a fair deal does Brotherhood ask of us?

To our ancient Rabbis the ideal was clear to understand and easy to attain.

"Then the Lord God formed man out of the dust of the ground", says the Book of Genesis.

And the Rabbis asked: "From which part of the earth's great surface did He gather the dust?"

To which Rabbi Meir answered: "From every part of the inhabitable earth was the dust taken".

And a contemporary commentator of Scripture adds to this:

"In a word, men of all lands and climes are brothers".

What was so obvious to our Rabbis and to the great spirits of every nation and every generation is being derided today.

On this Brotherhood Week a seat of higher learning is in an uproar because a single Negro student dared enter its portals.

On this Brotherhood Week the normal life of a great city is disrupted because Negroes prefer to walk rather than take up the seats of insult in the public busses.

On this Britherood Week a great section of the land defies the voice of justice and insists on lowering a curtain of color to divide between child and child.

And he who is called upon to talk on Brotherhood today, what can he say? And we who are called upon to observe the Week of Brotherhood, how can we do it?

We may perhaps look around ourselves and count our blessings, and resolve not to lose them nor abuse them.

Today I rode downtown on a bus and a colored lady sat at the seat beside me, and neither of us saw anything unusual in it. This is a blessing we enjoy here, and we are thankful for it.

Last Friday I saw hundreds of school children seated in the Veterans Auditorium, listening to a concert by the Rhode Island Philharmonic, and I looked at the multitude of faces, at the harmony of pigments in the faces of the children of all schools, from all neighborhoods, and I hope we know how to be thankful for this blessing.

Every day of the year white salespeople wait on colored customers in our shops and colored nurses administer to the needs of white patients in our hospitals, and Catholic, Protestant and Jewish youngsters file out of our schools, and sit in movies together, and cheer the players in the sport arenas in one voice. These are precious blessings, and we want to hold on to them forever.

And if you can look without shame or remorse at the eyes of your colored friend because you have not caused him anguish and have not degraded him in your dealings with him, that too you can count as a blessing and good reason to observe Brotherhood Week.

And those of us who add their

UN Selects Israel For Tree Experiment

JERUSALEM — The United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization has selected Israel as the site for long-range experiments in the planting of trees as windbreaks for orchards and cultivated fields. The investigations will be conducted at the Ministry of Agriculture's Forest Research Station at Ilanot, near Hadera.

The experiments will determine the optimum heights of trees, distances between trees in a single windbreak row, distances between rows and the most satisfactory distance relationships between trees and protected crops, as well as the effect of the tree roots upon the near-by crops' soil.

Dr. W. Naegeli, of Switzerland, announcing the project, stated that the answers found to these questions in Israel, will benefit all semi-arid countries troubled by wind problems.

SYD COHEN:

Larry Zeidel
Analyzes the Race

During my interview with Larry Zeidel in the Hershey Bears dressing room after the hockey game two Sundays ago, I asked the defenseman for his opinion of the current red-hot race between the Reds and the Pittsburgh Hornets. Since the Bears were on the verge of elimination from the playoffs, I felt Larry could answer this question frankly, without fear of offending anyone.

Zeidel hesitated when the question was put, and I got the impression (the wrong impression, as it turned out) that he didn't want to run down the Reds while talking to a Providence sports-writer. So I hastened to inform him that there are many hockey fans here who feel that the Hornets are the better team, and that they will pass the Reds before the end of the regular season a few weeks hence.

(This is entirely true. More than one qualified hockey spokesman—and that includes a member of the Reds family as well as faithful fans—has told me that even on nights when the Providence club defeated the Pittsburgh outfit, they had the impression that the Hornets were the better team, and that the Smoky City sextet would win the game—and the title.

But it turned out that this was not what Zeidel had in mind when he hesitated. Apparently he merely needed a few seconds to get his thoughts on this subject in order. And here is how he sees the race—what remains of it.

The Reds, not the Hornets, should win. The Pittsburgh club has that smothering defense, sure; but a good forward line—a really good line—can get around them. The Reds line of Toppazzini-Henry-Lar-rivee (Zeidel named them) is such a line, with the necessary puck-handling ability to get through.

But the Reds' biggest argument, and the main reason why Providence should win, in Larry Zeidel's opinion, is the local goalie, Johnny Bower. Bower definitely makes the big difference, according to the Hershey defenseman. Larry stated flatly that Bower is better than Gil Mayer of Pittsburgh, and that he is actually as good as any goalie in the National League.

All Providence fandom and hockey writers have been raving about Bower's fabulous exploits all season, but it is quite another thing to hear an opposing player laud him so highly. And listen to these accolades.

Bower A Heartbreaker

Bower takes the heart out of a team, says Zeidel, with his amazing stops just when the enemy forwards think they have the Reds on the run. As an example, Larry pointed to the game that had just been completed. The Hershey

Alley Gossip

By Joe Gutterball

Sackin-Shocket is willing to meet the best of Beth David, according to Sid Jacobson, in reply to the recent challenge by the Oakland Ave. keglers. S-S wants to make it a 15-man sanctioned league match on any Sunday at a neutral alley. The Beth David challenge, it will be recalled, was for a 10-man challenge. When this difference is resolved, it should be a hot match.

Statistician Harry Fellman of Harold Bloom, a no mean maker of fancy scores himself, reports his league has an average of 97.7. How do some of the other leagues shape up?

One of the oddities of the two charity tournaments is brought to our attention by Jerry Freiberg of AEPi. The league's representatives in the January and February events rolled identical net scores of 4815.

Here are a couple of statistics omitted from previous reports. Ed Lang of Cranston rolled a 146 single in the February Charity Tourney. The Hornets of AEPi pinned a 603 single recently. It ties the second best this season in the congress.

Bob Barrie of Fineman-Trinkel is wondering if there is any way of keeping bowlers from going over the foul line. He's a little disturbed with the "artists" who insist on following the ball two

Congress Individual Tourney at Hamlet March 18; Entries Being Taken Now in Five Classifications

The third annual Individual Tournament of the R. I. Jewish Bowling Congress, the major singles event of the season, will be held at Hamlet 30 Lanes in Pawtucket, March 18.

Starting time for the tourney, which is expected to attract more than 200 bowlers in all classifications, is 11 A.M. Bowlers must report for their first string not later than 3 P.M.

Competing keglers will roll five strings, one box at a time, with the entry fee set at $3.

Foul line judges will work the alleys where the high-average bowlers, those in the Open Class of 109 and over and Class A for bowlers between 104 and 108, will roll.

Prizes will be awarded in each of the five classes, which are, in addition to the aforementioned:

Class B, 99-103.

Class C, 93-98.

Class D, 92 and under.

Any bowler may compete in a higher classification than his average calls for, but he may not compete in a lower one. The class a bowler rolls in is based on his average as of Dec. 31.

Plans for the tournament were outlined at a meeting of league presidents last Friday at Albert's on North Main Street by Nat Alterman, congress president, and Sam Segal, tournament chairman. Len Decof, AEPi president, suggested that leagues form five-man teams in each class, so they may start bowling at the same time on the same alley, possibly attracting competition from similar quintets from other leagues.

or three feet down the alley. Bob suggests putting up a two-foot fence at the foul line as one possibility. We'd like to hear of other plans.

The Beth David bowlers may turn to singing to improve their averages. Prior to last week's session, the league members serenaded Bill Snell on his 23rd birthday. Bill thanked his teammates, tossed the first ball down the alley, and WHAM! a strike.

Alie Shatkin celebrated his return from Florida by trying to figure this game of duckpins out all over again. The Beth El president had a contest with Vin DeCesaris to see who could go longer without a spare. Vin has a 111 average, Alie 109. So it was quite a trick for such high caliber bowlers, but Vin won by going 4 boxes without a mark.

Sweepstakes Results Known Next Friday

Results of the monthly sweepstakes tourney held this week among member-leagues, will be turned in Sunday at the regular meeting of congress delegates at the Industrial Cafeteria, Harbor-side Industrial Park, off Allens Ave.

Nat Alterman of Beth El, congress president, will preside.

The winners of the $25 prize for high triple, $15 for second high total and $10 for high single will be announced next Friday.

Joe must have found a new formula, because now he's crowding the three top average men in the league with his second 400-plus night in the past three weeks.

Myer Jarcho quietly rolled 374 and a string of 148, while George Goldman pinned 146, and George Bressler had 137 and 363.

The Dokey's first string set a new low of 413, not one man singling over 90.

Victor Gerstenblatt's 118 and Joe Matzner's 330 earned Pythias a split with Monitor. For the latter team, Gil Goldman has 121 and Norm Miller 118, 102 and 112 for 332.

Zim Lines Assure Kosher Cuisines

With the growth of Israel's transatlantic passenger service, the problem of kosher food no longer exists. The Zim vessels are 100% kosher; the integrity of kashruth maintenance is the personal concern of everyone aboard the ship, under the supervision of a Mashgiach directly responsible to the Israeli Rabbinate, headed by the Chief Rabbi of Israel. Aboard the Zim vessels, kashruth is not merely an appendage or an incidental "trimming;" it is an integral part of shipboard life.

Moreover, principle and pleasure are inseparable in the Zim liners' kosher cuisine. To kashruth is added the skill of the chef's art, making mealtime aboard the S. S. Israel or S. S. Zion an occasion to be approached with anticipation and remembered with relish.

15 THE PROVIDENCE JEWISH HERALD, FRIDAY, MARCH 2, 1956

To Hold Workers' Rally for UJA Fund

In a move to spur contributions to the United Jewish Appeal Special Fund, a workers' rally will be held this Sunday morning at the Wayland Manor in Providence, at 10 a.m.

Judge Frank Licht, local chairman of the Special Fund to be used by the Jewish Agency in Israel for resettlement and absorption of Jewish refugees from strife-torn North Africa, announced that more than $40,000 was contributed at three separate Sunday morning breakfast meetings.

He said that a check for $22,000 already has been forwarded to United Jewish Appeal Headquarters in New York City.

Judge Licht urges all workers to be present at Sunday's rally. He added that time is essential in the UJA Special Fund drive and a limited number of cards will be assigned to each worker to be covered without delay so that contributions can be forwarded to UJA in New York as soon as possible.

He pointed out that all contributions to the Special Fund are over and above the regular 1956 pledge or contribution.

Club had led 2-1 at the end of the second period, and was outplaying the locals well into the final session. Then, when the Reds had tied the score, a couple of Hershey forwards broke away into the clear and had open shots at Bower. Somehow the Providence goalie stopped them.

Said Zeidel: "You don't know what that does to a team." Discouragement strikes the club, and there is a let-down which doesn't aid the attacking outfit's chances of victory. This type of thing happens all the time with Bower, he added. When Johnny is "up," he can beat anybody.

Then Zeidel added another observation of Bower, a shrewd, yet surprising observation. He said that Johnny would easily have stopped the shots that became the tying and winning goals for the Reds. And he explained how.

Jim Bartlett tied the score when he swept down the left lane, cut to his right across the goal mouth and backhanded a 20-footer into the right corner of the cage. Goalie Henderson (not the coach) had been watching Bartlett from the right side of the goal mouth. He did not move across the goal as Jim swept over from the left, and consequently had to dive to try to stop the shot. It was not a hard shot, and it just dribbled past or over the goalie's outstretched fingers.

Johnny Bower, says Larry Zeidel, would have moved with the play and made the save. That goal upset the Bears, and set the stage for their ultimate defeat.

The winning goal was even more heartbreaking from Hershey's point of view, and Sydney (Bud) Hillman, another Bears defenseman, agreed entirely with Zeidel's explanation of the play and the strategy that should have prevented it.

Defensemen, said Zeidel, are supposed to ride opposing forwards into or close to the boards when they get down near the goal, so that the chances of their scoring with "almost impossible" angle shots are just that—almost impossible. The goalie thus can concentrate more fully on the scene directly in front of his cage.

The Bears' defense did just that on the play in question. Red Johansen, who scored the goal, fired from the right on a shot that moved almost parallel with the goal line. The puck dented the netting on the far side just inches inside the goal mouth.

Johnny Bower would have made an easy save, said Zeidel, because he would have been out in front of his cage on the play, and the puck would have been deflected off his pads. That's the strategy on a long angle shot, Larry explained. If the goalie moves just a bit in front of his goal mouth, an angle shot into the far corner cannot go directly in, because he is then blocking the direct line between the stick and the goal corner. Only when he is back, flattened against the near corner of the net can a shot such as Johansen's go in.

So, what was for the Reds a brilliantly accurate shot and a superb goal became for the Hershey team a heartbreaking setback that could and should have been avoided.

Larry Zeidel thus made clear what he meant by the difference between Johnny Bower and other

Meeting Chairman

MRS. ROSE COWEN, who is chairman of the day for the March meeting of the Providence Chapter of Hadassah, which will be held on Tuesday at 1 P. M. at Temple Emanuel. A cooking lesson will be featured with instruction in the culinary arts from Mesdames Eli Bohnen, Jack Fain, Adrian Goldstein, William Hahn and Nat Roy.

Mrs. Karl Spector, vice-president of the New England Region of Hadassah, will speak on current Israeli problems. Dessert will be served before the meeting.

goalies. All in all, this praise from a rival player must be considered one of the finest tributes the Providence goalie ever will receive.

In his own teammate's defense, he pointed out that Hershey is now alternating two goalies. Neither can be considered the regular goaltender, and each is therefore somewhat jittery, thus unable to settle down to play top notch, relaxed hockey.

You have to bear in mind that Larry's criticism on these two goals did not in the slightest constitute sour grapes. He did not say or imply that the Reds were lucky or that Hershey was unlucky. He merely expressed a straightforward opinion that the Providence goalie would have prevented these scores. And while these tallies looked superb in their execution, Larry's analysis is mighty convincing.

As a closing note, here's a reminder that Zeidel is qualified to speak on such matters from two points of view. First, he is a highly capable defenseman; and second, he is a prolific scorer himself. Last week I mentioned his 50 points in 70 games with Edmonton in 1954-55. But space limitations forced the deletion of this interesting fact.

Larry Zeidel had scored 24 points for the Bears up to the night of our conversation on Feb. 19 — this despite the fact that he missed the entire first month of the campaign!

"ISAAC LEVI"

Libretto—RAY SMOLOVER
Music—FREDERICK PIKET

Episodes in the life of Reb Levi Itzhock of Berditchev, (1740-1809), have inspired classics in Jewish Literature and Music. "ISAAC LEVI" is a contemporary treatment, based upon these episodes.

In essence, "ISAAC LEVI" presents the return of an American Chaplain from World War II and his refusal to take the pulpit on the eve of the most holy day of the year, Yom Kippur (the Day of Atonement). During his "trials" we meet the various conflicts in life and religion which confront contemporary man, especially here in America.

FREDERICK PIKET

Composer of "ISAAC LEVI", holds the coveted Mendelssohn Award which he received in Berlin. Now a U. S. citizen, his compositions have been performed by our major symphonic organizations, including the N. Y. Philharmonic, the Minneapolis, Buffalo, Chautauqua and the Indianapolis Symphonies.

"CHELM"

Libretto—RAY SMOLOVER
Music—ROBERT STRASSBURG

"Chelm" is a compilation of various anecdotes which make up the folk-lore of this once thriving community in Poland — woven into story-form for musical treatment.

The various jokes which make up the plot of "Chelm" revolve around the central story of David's wedding gift to his bride, 'Leah' and the obstacles which confront him in the persons of 'Berel', the town's "brain;" and 'Chaya', the town's "vamp." The humor though light and quickly paced, is humor on many levels: warm, foolish, tender, ridiculous, sympathetic and nonsensical; with overtones of more serious import.

ROBERT STRASSBURG

Composer of "CHELM" has over two hundred works to his credit; more than forty being film scores commissioned by the United States and Canadian Governments. He has written for radio, concert, ballet and has been performed by leading artists and ensembles.
