

Providence Plans Extensive Program for Israeli Cadets

Visitors Arrive Here Tomorrow

Arrangements have been completed for a full program of special events and entertainment for five Israeli Civil Air Patrol Cadets and their escort officer from the Israel Air Force for their visit to Providence from July 29 through August 7.

The Israelis, who will be the guests of the Rhode Island Civil Air Patrol under an international cadet exchange program, are Cadets Avraham Peri, Joseph Almahiah, Shmuel Hets, Moshe Erez, and Moshe Nartov, and Major Yitshak Sela, Israel Air Force, escort officer.

On Monday the group will be welcomed officially to R. I. at the State House by Gov. Dennis J. Roberts and to Providence by Mayor Walter H. Reynolds at City Hall. The sponsoring group for that day will be the Zionist District of Providence, under the chairmanship of Martin Temkin. Included in the day's activities will be a yacht trip down Narragansett Bay.

The Brandeis University Club of R. I. headed by Bertram L. Bernhardt, will take the group for a visit to Brandeis in Waltham, Mass. on Tuesday. Later that day the CAP will fly the visitors over New England and New York with flight originating at Logan Airport in Boston.

On Wednesday the CAP will take the cadets on a tour of the Quonset Naval Air Station.

John J. Dannin of the B'nai B'rith Touro Lodge will take the Israelis on a tour of the Naval War College and Naval Base at Newport on Thursday. They will have luncheon at the Hotel Viking as the guests of the Newport Lions Club, after which they will tour the city of Newport and its numerous historic buildings and areas.

The following day the cadets will tour South County under the direction of the CAP. That evening the Pioneer Women will tender a dinner for the group at Temple Emanuel, which will be followed by services at the Temple that will be open to the public. An Oneg Shabbat, also open to the public, will follow the services.

On Saturday they will be the guests of the Ledgemont Country Club, and Sunday the Jewish War Veterans, led by Alvin Kramer, State Department Commander, will sponsor an all-day outing.

Policies Set for Women's Drive

Plans were drawn and policies set for the Women's Division phase of the General Jewish Committee's 1956 campaign at a meeting of the executive committee last night at the home of Mrs. David Meyers, general chairman.

At the meeting of the executive committee, Mrs. Norman Fain, chairman of the Initial Gifts, announced that she will meet with her co-chairmen at her home on Tuesday, August 7. Mrs. Fain said the meeting is being held to further plans for the campaign kickoff dinner on September 23, at the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel and to stimulate interest in the Workers Conference on August 21 at the Ledgemont Country Club. Twenty co-chairmen already have been appointed, Mrs. Fain added.

In addition to the Initial Gifts co-chairmen, the Vital Gifts co-chairmen and workers, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Joseph J. Sefer, also will attend the Workers Conference.

Mrs. Meyers said the conference will be held to assess the progress being made by the Women's Division up to that date in the campaign and aid the co-chairmen and their workers in continuing the drive in the most stimulating and successful way.

At the same time, Mrs. Irving L. Solomon, M-Day chairman, announced that she has 32 co-chairmen thus far and is confident that she will have a determined and spirited group of workers at her command for the annual house-to-house canvass of contributions for the 1956 campaign.

Pioneers to Fete Israeli Cadets

A group of visiting Israeli air cadets will be guests of honor at a Sabbath dinner to be given by the Pioneer Women proceeding a special Friday night service at Temple Emanuel next Friday at 8:10 P. M.

Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen and Cantor Jacob Hohenemser will officiate. Arthur Einstein will be at the organ. An Oneg Shabbat reception will follow the service which is open to the public.

The committee preparing the program includes Mrs. Beryl Segal, chairman; Mrs. Anna Phillips, Mrs. Leo Borenstein and Mrs. Alter Boyman, co-chairmen, and Mrs. Myer Rudnick, ex-officio. The social committee is comprised of Mesdames Benjamin Glantz, Nathan Goldfarb, Joseph Greenberg, Leo Rappaport, Harry Chaet, Solomon Lightman, Harry Waxman, Max Berman and David Cohen.

Honor French Jew As Jet Designer

PARIS—For his high achievements in the design of two superior French jet planes, Marcel Dassault has been awarded France's highest honor, the Grand Cross of the Legion of Honor.

M. Dassault is one of the countless number of Jews who changed their names during the war in France and work in the resistance movement. His name was originally Bloch.

Quits Judaism Council, Charges It Obstructs Aspirations of Israel

SAN FRANCISCO — Rabbi Irving Reichert has resigned from the American Council for Judaism which he helped to found in 1942, charging it with conducting an "obstructionist campaign against the legitimate aspirations of Israel."

Zionists, long at odds with the Council, applauded the resignation.

Council President Clarence L. Coleman told the San Francisco "Chronicle" in a telephone interview from his home at Glencoe, Ill., he was "unhappy" over it.

A national vice president of the Council, George L. Levison of San Francisco, denied that the organization ever has taken an anti-Israel position. He said it would appear Rabbi Reichert "has succumbed to the Zionist offensive."

Rabbi Reichert, himself an honorary vice president of the Council, in his letter of resignation urged the organization either to "call a halt to its obstructionist campaign against the welfare and legitimate aspirations of Israel and its people" or to dissolve.

He said he was resigning with an "overwhelming sense of sadness and disappointment."

The Council, he wrote, has abandoned its original platform seeking to foster a revival of the spiritual life of American Jews.

"The Council seems determined to create the impression that it is waging its own private war upon Israel and its people," he wrote. "It's major emphasis has been directed to the purely political aspects of the Arab-Israeli conflict and its repercussions on American Middle East diplomacy.

"It has attempted to influence the policies of our government in precisely the same fashion as have the Zionists, whose political activities it severely criticizes."

Win Fight to Build Synagogue

NEW YORK—The Jewish residents of Garden City have won their Supreme Court fight for a right to build a house of worship.

On May 14 the village Board of Zoning Appeals turned down the Garden City Jewish Center's application for a permit to convert a residence at Nassau Blvd and Newmarket Rd. into a temple and school.

In taking its action, the board ignored a warning by Robert F. Welch, an attorney not associated with the Jewish Center, that such a step "would stigmatize the community as anti-Semitic."

The Jewish Center appealed to State Supreme Court. Yesterday Justice Marcus G. Christ ordered the village board to issue the permit to the congregation.

In doing so, he referred to July 11 rulings by the State Court of Appeals in similar cases involving refusal of building permits to religious bodies, one the Community Synagogue in Sands Point, L. I., and the other a Roman Catholic church in the Rochester suburb of Brighton.

Justice Christ said:

"A decision in the Garden City proceeding has been held in abeyance pending decisions in those cases and an opportunity to examine them.

"These decisions of our highest court are clear, broad, and controlling."

The village board had argued that the temple would lower property values and that it would outgrow its off-street parking facilities within a few years.

To the first argument, Justice Christ replied that the village board could not consider property values in reaching its decision.

To the second argument, he replied:

"The evidence establishes that the proposed off-street parking facilities are sufficient at present. The board may not now require excess parking facilities to take care of future growth.

"To hold now that provision for the unforeseeable future must be made would restrict the freedom of worship by denying the right to establish a church, not because facilities are presently inadequate, but because they may become so within the passage of time."

There are nine churches, but no Jewish houses of worship, in Garden City. There are about 1,200 Jews in the village now. The 1950 census gave the total population there as 14,486 persons.

Dag Faces Problem of Militarized Arab Refugees

NEW YORK—A new problem is being thrust on UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold as he returns to the Middle East.

Israel is understood to be gravely concerned over the organization of Palestinian refugees into the nucleus of a Palestinian army.

Press accounts of the military parade in Cairo on June 20 celebrating Britain's evacuation of the Suez, noted, for example, the appearance of "a contingent of the new Palestinian army manned by Arab refugees from the Gaza strip that Premier Nasser has organized, trained and equipped."

Syria followed suit this month

by enacting legislation subjecting all fit Palestinian refugees in Syria to military conscription.

In Jordan the National Guard which started out as a part-time force of night watchmen in the villages along the Israel-Jordan border has been converted into a centrally-controlled, full-time, trained military force.

This recruitment of Palestinian refugees into organized military contingents either under their own flag or that of the host country disturbs Israel. Israeli leaders see it as added evidence that the Arabs are using the present cease-fire period to prepare for war.

It also raises disturbing questions about the help the UN is extending to Palestine refugees through the UN Relief and Works Agency.

Even before the military development the annual reports of the Director of UNRWA complained of the difficulties the Agency faced trying to exercise effective control over the refugee ration rolls.

These complaints arose from UNRWA suspicions that its rolls were badly padded. However, the host countries, Syria, Jordan and Egypt would not permit UNRWA to establish procedures that would enable an effective check.

The Israelis wonder whether in view of UNRWA's past difficulties in eliminating fraudulent registrations, its relief monies may not be going to Palestinian military forces recruited for the avowed purpose of making war against Israel in violation of the UN Charter.

Before Hammarskjold left for Moscow, Israel is understood to have asked him to find out from UNRWA what measures were being taken to ensure no such misuse of the humanitarian agency's funds.

Dublin's Jewish Mayor Plans St. Pat's Fete

DUBLIN—Robert Briscoe, Dublin's first Jewish Mayor, said today on taking over his new job that one of the first things he has to do is make plans for St. Patrick's Day celebrations next year.

Briscoe, 62, father of four sons and three daughters, said his election justified confidence in the "absolute tolerance" of the Irish capital.

Briscoe had to pull his election out of a hat, literally.

The City Council in voting for a new mayor gave Briscoe, a member of the Fianna Fail Party, and his Laborite opponent, incumbent Denis Larkin, 19 votes each.

The tie was broken when Briscoe's name was drawn out of a hat.

Will Get Busy

Briscoe, a Dublin-born businessman, said:

"I've only been in office 24 hours and I have not made any plans, not even for St. Patrick's Day. I will now have to get busy."

Briscoe called his election "a magnificent gesture."

"It proves that in Catholic Ireland a man of any faith has the good will of his fellow citizens if he deserves it and is prepared to give them service."

Asked how the Irish viewed his election, Briscoe laughed and said:

"I guess they feel all right. They elected me."

Briscoe has been serving Dublin and Ireland for many years, despite his family obligations. His wife, Lillian, also was born in Dublin.

Briscoe has been a member of Parliament since 1927 and his colleagues know him as a hard-hitting, plain-speaking man who is not afraid of a good political fight.

Jewish Mayor

He had the same reputation as an alderman before becoming mayor.

Briscoe's party advocates the independence of all Ireland under a Republican form of government.

Briscoe said:

"I have many good Irish and Jewish friends in New York. Please send them my greetings and say I hope to see them here soon.

"I am happy to say that in my election, the capital city of Ireland has justified its belief that any man of any faith can reach any position."

Briscoe is a unique man—one of the few, if not the only, man to be an active and ardent Sinn Feinner and a Zionist.

As a member of the Sinn Fein, the Nationalist party that brought success to 700 years of Irish struggle for freedom, he undertook several secret missions to the U. S. to raise funds and arms for the rebels.

As a Zionist, he led a delegation in 1939 that sought international support for the settlement of Jews in Palestine.

Judaism is Briscoe's religion, Irish his nationality.

Worked Hard

Even though Briscoe, 62, has worked long and hard for Ireland and Dublin, his election to the capital city's highest office came as a surprise for this is one of the world's strongest centers of Roman Catholicism.

Briscoe said his family arrived in Ireland in the 1860's from Lithuania and its members "started in humble fashion and contributed what little they could save to the communal graveyard of the synagogue in Dublin."

Later the family began a brush factory and then entered the import-export trade in a small way "and any other manner it could to turn an honest shilling."

In 1926, he quit the extreme nationalist group to join with Eamon de Valera in the formation of the Fianna Fail party which for many years, was the major political party.

"Five Little Words"

The Arab states, emboldened anew by Soviet support, have once again served notice that they do not propose to recognize Israel's integrity as a nation.

Worse than that, the Arab-Russian bloc has in effect persuaded the UN Security Council that it is fruitless to insist that the Arabs negotiate an honorable peace with the Israelis.

The development is as revealing as it is disheartening to anyone who cares about the achievement of lasting accord in the Middle East.

It all began when Britain introduced a resolution calling on Dag Hammarskjöld to "continue his good offices" in the quest for compliance with the Arab-Israel armistice. The resolution also pleaded for an over-all settlement of the crisis "on a mutually acceptable basis."

The latter phrase was unacceptable to the Arab dignitaries; their stand was upheld by a curious coalition of Russia, Nationalist China, Yugoslavia and Iran.

Why were these modest words—lightly described as "five little words" by the British spokesman when he abjectly consented to withdraw them—so objectionable to the Arabs? What kind of peace can there be except one achieved "on a mutually acceptable basis"?

The answer is that the Arabs cling to the delusion that they can drive Israel off the face of the earth or impose a "peace" that denies the reality of Israel's existence. This is a desperate, dangerous dream; it is also a reminder that no temporary cease-fire pact has any lasting meaning as long as the Arab potentates refuse to remember that the Israelis routed them on the battlefield.

By resisting the peace resolution the Arabs have again exposed their intransigence. But when the British and American delegates cravenly agreed to drop those "five little words," they gave new encouragement to the Arab extremists. For those words point to the heart of the matter.

May Resume Project

Israel's new Foreign Minister Golda Myerson told a press conference this week that her government intends resuming work on the contested B'not Yaakov project in the near future.

The water development plan is on the Jordan river, and the Arabs have been maintaining that Israel has no right to work there because it also affects her territories.

But the Jewish State feels the need for development in every nook and cranny of her tiny domain in order to achieve maximum efficiency of Israel's available facilities. It is clear that the Arabs have blocked the project for this if for no other reason.

A subject of dispute for several years, the announcement is perhaps the first evidence of what observers feel will be the new "tougher policy" shaped by Ben Gurion now that Mr. Sharett is deposed.

As We Were Saying:

Urban America Undergoes Important Plastic Surgery

By ROBERT E. SEGAL

You use the terms, "urban renewal," "slum clearance," "Title I," and nice people yawn and go on to something more exciting. But through such processes, the crowded urban face of America is getting badly-needed plastic surgery.

What's more, these programs will improve soundness of body and sanity of mind, brighten outlooks, cut crime, lessen fire hazard and—if honorably conducted—will help reduce racial and religious discrimination.

Thomas Jefferson took a long look ahead and moaned way back there when only a couple of hundred thousand people lived in America's urban areas, "I view great cities as pestilential to the morals and the liberties of man." Since his day, the American people have made the big switch-over from farm life to city and town existence. And they have proved that our third president was painfully accurate in his observation.

Behold our urban blight: a classic Chicago slum area study a few years ago showed 20 deaths per 1,000 population as against 10.2 for the rest of the city; an infant mortality rate in the slum area of 95.6 deaths per 1,000 births as against 56.7 for the rest of the city; juvenile delinquency was eight times worse there than in the rest of the city; the district had 900 fires per square mile against 113 for the whole city.

Savings to City

A Cleveland study shows good housing for persons in a five-block area means savings to the city of

Political Science Prof Examines 'Jewish Vote' Question

Is there such a thing as a "Jewish vote" in the American elections? Jewish organizations assert there is no such thing. The opinion that a "Jewish vote" definitely exists is expressed in a book which has appeared under the title "The Political Behavior of American Jews."

The author of the book, Lawrence Fuchs, Assistant Professor of American Politics at Brandeis University, obviously timed the publication of his volume for the forthcoming Presidential election campaign. He gives an historical account of American Jewry's political behavior since Colonial times and traces Jewish voting in recent elections. Although he is of the opinion that such a thing as a "Jewish vote" does exist, he makes certain reservations.

If one means by "a Jewish vote" that all Jews react the same way to candidates and issues, Dr. Fuchs says, then the answer is that there is no Jewish vote. However, if one understands by a "Jewish vote" that being Jewish sometimes influences one's political attitudes and behavior, then such a Jewish vote "certainly" exists in Dr. Fuchs' opinion.

He explains that in this sense there is not only a "Jewish vote" in the United States, but also an Irish, Polish and even a Baptist and Episcopalian vote. To the question "will Jews vote for a Jew?" the author replies that sometimes they will and sometimes they won't, depending on a wide range of factors. The author cites various historical facts, including Jeffersonian leanings of the earliest American Jews, and the general Jewish preference for Republicans from 1900 to 1928.

He devotes a good part of the volume to the causes of the shift of the Jews to the Democrats, which began in the mid-1920's. He establishes that the Jews as a group shifted to the Democratic party at the very time they were advancing economically, thus going counter to general class trends in American politics.

Israel Doubles Soviet Oil Import; Plans $3.5 Million Aid Grant

NEW YORK—The development of Israel advanced on two fronts today—Russia signed an agreement more than doubling shipments of oil, and the State Dept. proposed a $3,500,000 program to aid humanitarian and cultural projects there.

The Soviet petroleum export trust and the Israeli fuel and electric corporations signed a two-year contract for the export to Israel of $18,000,000 to $20,000,000 of oil needed for power plants. Israel has been importing oil from Russia for four years, but never on so large a scale.

The new nation has been hampered by Egypt's refusal to permit shipments of oil from the Persian Gulf through the Suez Canal. The Russian oil is shipped from Odessa on the Black Sea through the Dardenelles and across the Mediterranean to Haifa.

The announcement from Moscow said the negotiations were "purely on a commercial basis," implying that the deal did not impose on Soviet relations with the Arab nations.

In Washington, the State Dept.

asked Congress for approval of a program to extend aid to Israel for a number of projects, including help for orphans and aged and handicapped adults, construction of cultural centers, archeological research and higher education.

The projects were outlined by Bernard Katzen, New York lawyer who went on a special mission to Israel for the State Dept.

Similar programs are being carried out in 12 other countries.

But Sen. Ellender (D-La.) objected to many of the projects outlined by Katzen. Ellender, who visited Israel in 1954, said there were "much more important projects" on which the funds could be spent. He mentioned water and irrigation projects.

Ellender added:

"The Jews of America and the world will have to subsidize Israel from here on out because the people there will never make a go of it."

Both Secretary Dulles and Israeli Ambassador Abba Eban praised the Katzen proposals.

$11,000 annually in fire protection costs and $25,250 in hospitalization and medical care for tuberculosis. Examples like this are abundant.

Why do we have an acute slum and blight problem? The greed of landlords milking the last trickle of profits from run-down property is one answer. Another factor is the concentration on military priorities during two world wars with a concomitant failure to build badly-needed housing. Add to this the flight to the suburbs and the mounting traffic mess (34 million motor vehicles in the U. S. 10 years ago as against 60 million today!)

Well, something has had to give. And slowly, it is. The enabling legislation we have is not perfect, but Uncle Sam stands ready to match with $2 every $1 a determined city puts on the table to take over the blighted areas. Once the jungle is acquired, the property is sold to private enterprise for clearance and for housing and commercial development with the appropriate restrictions.

A Complete Change

In this way, our cities have a chance to do considerable replanning, to remove congestion, to provide new parks and playgrounds, to reorganize streets and traffic, to replace deteriorated structures, and — best of all — to provide adequate, attractive, health-giving housing for thousands.

There are flaws in the procedure, of course. In New York, for example, it is indicated that some of the people to whom the blighted areas have been sold stall by continuing to rent places in disrepair and establish profitable parking lots on the cleared areas. Again, it is somewhat disappointing to record that only 81 of our American communities have moved ahead on urban redevelopment programs, some of them going only so far as the blueprint stage.

Then, too, when the city announces it plans to clear the area, old residents, with an understandable sentimental tug for the familiar haunts, are distressed. In some instances, opportunistic politicians make hay over such anxiety.

But by large, we are on our way. America has too much at stake to permit slums to fester forever. Neither the obsolescence of property nor the greed of humans must be permitted to win out. Radical surgery is prescribed.

And as the physical advances are recorded, the city dweller is dealt a better hand by fate and civic design. In that reshuffling, members of minority groups who face an unfair added handicap when they look for habitation now stand to gain considerably.

Call Sobeloff Peace-Loving, 'Easy-Going'

The finally concluded uproar over the appointment of Simon E. Sobeloff to the Fourth District Court of Appeals, surrounded a man who the New York Times calls "a warm, rather easy-going, uncontentious fellow who does not make enemies."

The battle, which culminated last week in Senate approval of Sobeloff's appointment by President Eisenhower, surprised those who knew the jurist. Although he has been in public life since he was a page in the House of Representatives at age 12, Sobeloff has managed throughout his career to remain friendly with both his own party and members of the Democratic opposition.

Sobeloff, 61, was born in Baltimore and worked his way through the University of Maryland Law School. He is married to the former Irene Ehrlich, and they have two married daughters.

After serving in the Baltimore city government, Sobeloff was named U. S. Attorney for Maryland in 1930. He is closely associated politically with Maryland's liberal Republican Governor, Theodore R. McKeldin. In 1952, McKeldin named Sobeloff Chief Judge of the State Court of Appeals, and Sobeloff later became U. S. Solicitor General.

Was Appeal Attorney

In the job, Sobeloff acted as appeal attorney for the Federal Government, in which role he argued for the government on the implementing decree of the Supreme Court segregation decision. It was this action which was in large part responsible for the bitter southern opposition to Sobeloff's current appointment.

The Times ends its sketch of Sobeloff with an anecdote illustrating his ability to avoid stirring up any more of a fight than was unavoidable while the Senate was discussing the confirmation of his appointment.

"When asked for comment on anything even slightly in dispute," the paper relates, "he has told the story of the minister who rushed into the condemned man's cell and urged him to renounce the devil in all his works. 'I'm sorry,' Sobeloff has the condemned man reply, 'but in my position I can't afford to offend anybody.'"

Southern Jews on Spot; Many Join Bigot Groups

NEW YORK — A graphic picture on how the Jews in the South are affected by the tension developed over the issue of integrating the Negro was presented in a private report by the National Community Relations Advisory Council.

Jewish merchants and employers of Negro labor find themselves inexorably involved in the economic squeeze between the white supremacists and the Negro. These Jewish businessmen are confronted with a cruel choice. Either to go along with the White Citizens Councils and lose the Negro patronage, at the same time becoming objects of Negro enmity. Or defy the Councils which represent in many places the entire power structure of the community.

The choice is often made the more galling by the fact that some of the White Councils are openly anti-Semitic, while others repeatedly repudiate responsibility for anti-Semitic propaganda peddled at their meetings.

The local White Citizens Councils are tending toward federation, and such a federation will be unique among demagogic organizations of its type if it does not take on anti-Semitic coloration.

Meanwhile, the general identification of Jews with the dominant white elements tend to feed anti-Semitic feelings among Negroes not only in the South, but also in other parts of the country.

Actually there have been variations in Jewish attitudes in the South.

While the public school cases were in litigation, there was apprehension over the possible consequences to Jews of an open conflict over segregation.

Most Southern Jews and most Southern Jewish communities sought to remain aloof, neutral from the situation. After the first Supreme Court ruling, declarations of support and commendation were made by the Southern rabbinate.

With the advent of the White Citizens Council movement, came a reversion to neutralism. However, some of the rabbis continue outspokenly to support the idea of integration.

GRANT LICENSE

ISTANBUL—The Turkish Ministry of Commerce has granted licenses for the importation of $1,000,000 worth of tires from Israel. Because of an adverse balance of trade, Turkey has been extremely reluctant to grant important licenses for Israel manufacturers.

SAFAD — Amcor will erect a 250,000 pound plant here for the production of electric refrigerators, automobile spare parts and automobile bodies, it was revealed here this week. At a later stage, the plant will be expanded to manufacture bicycles and watches. The plant is to be commissioned within six months, it was announced.

Alsop Hits 'Utter Vacuum' Of U. S. Policy in Mid-East

"The United States has not the shadow, or even the beginning of a shadow of a Middle Eastern policy," according to a report by Joseph Alsop published in the "New York Herald Tribune" after he had traveled throughout the Middle East.

Alsop claimed that despite the tremendous strategic and economic significance of the Middle East, American policymakers are following the idea of "letting the dust settle." The well-known columnist compared this procedure with the since-regretted similar policy which was followed in the Far East.

Claims by the U. S. State Department that UN Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld's recent peace mission to the Middle East was a "triumph" of American foreign policy were attacked by Alsop. He complained that this is like "claiming every successful foray of the fire brigade as a triumph for the municipal housing program, on the ground that even though houses are not getting built, at least they are not being burned down."

Uncoordinated Policy

Calling the non-existence of any American Middle Eastern policy "ludicrous," Alsop reported that when our diplomats in the area are asked what our policy is "they throw up their hands in amusement or despair."

He said that there is a liaison officer who is supposed to relate the viewpoints of various American embassies to each other, but that despite this, "almost every American Embassy in the Middle East sees the problem utterly differently from all the other embassies, so that you wonder if they all belong to the same country."

Alsop stated that there are four main factors which create the extremely dangerous situation in the Middle East. The first, and the least understood, he said, is the "vacuum of American policy."

Second, the Herald Tribune columnist said, is the rise of Arab nationalism with its threat to Western positions and Western oil interests.

The third factor is the "unceasing Arab-Israel tension," and the last is Soviet intrusion.

These forces have combined, Alsop wrote, "to produce a rancid, rising ferment of a really frightening kind." The British, who have the most at stake, are no longer able to control the situation, the Alsop analysis stated.

Thus, he explained, "the utter vacuum of American policy in the Middle East means that the only power, the only influence that might be used to pacify and control the situation is not being used."

Special Events Held For Day Campers

The season's special events at the Jewish Community Center's Day Camp began with a trip to Fenway Park to watch the Red Sox in action against the Cleveland Indians. For the first time in several seasons, older campers who are members of Camp Adventure this past week enjoyed an evening program and sleep-over at the camp grounds, which provided an exciting 48-hours program for all concerned.

This week, Camp Adventure members enjoyed an evening performance of "Plain and Fancy" at the Warwick Musical Theatre and are looking forward to more programs during the month of August.

The camp's second period will begin on Monday, and, once more, a near-capacity enrollment is expected. Some openings exist in most camp divisions. Parents interested in enrollment information should contact the JCC office—UNION 1-2674.

Announces Changes

A change of schedule at Warwick Musical Theatre will provide a change of pace for local theatre-lovers. Straight drama will be the rule for the next three weeks after "Plain and Fancy's" final curtain Saturday night.

The sensational "Mr. Roberts" comes to Warwick for a week starting Monday and that will be followed with a two-week billing of the "Teahouse of the August Moon."

Resident producer "Buster" Bonoff also confirmed today the engagement of Judy Tyler to appear in "Anything Goes" the first week in September.

"Student Prince" originally was scheduled for next week. It now will run Aug. 27 through Sept. 1, and ticketholders for "Student Prince" (except season ticket holders) have been asked to exchange their tickets to avoid box office complications.

Warwick to Change Picnic Schedule

Due to inclement weather the picnic scheduled for last Sunday at Goddard Park by the Warwick Jewish Community Association was postponed. Notice of a future date will be published later.

At a meeting of the organization held recently Sam Stayman, religious chairman, announced that High Holiday services in September will be held in Legion Hall in Lakewood. A student rabbi from New York will conduct the services.

David Wayne Next At Somerset

David Wayne in "The Ponder Heart" will be the attraction the week of July 30 at the Somerset Playhouse.

"The Ponder Heart", which has just completed a run of several months at the Music Box Theatre in New York, was written by Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov, adapted from the story by Eudora Welty. The play concerns a blissful, gracious and overly big-hearted lunatic whose capacity for childish happiness challenged the normal code.

David Wayne, who will play the starring role of Daniel Ponder, made his Broadway debut in 1938 in "Escape This Night". He was a personal success as "Og", the leprechaun in "Finian's Rainbow", and then scored as Ensign Pulver in "Mister Roberts". His most famous role, has been that of "Sakini", the interpreter, in "The Teahouse Of The August Moon".
