Former Lord Mayor Briscoe To Speak At Mass Rally

Robert Briscoe, former Lord Mayor of Dublin, Ireland, will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at the Mass Rally launching the Rhode Island celebration of the 10th anniversary of the State of Israel.

This announcement was made jointly today as the Herald went to press by Judge Frank Licht, general chairman, and Harold Tregar, program committee chairman. The Mass Rally will take place at the Rhode Island School of Design auditorium on Wednesday night, April 9, at 8 o'clock. Doors will open at 7:30 P.M.

The final arrangements to obtain Mr. Briscoe were made by Mrs. Archibald Silverman whom Mayor Briscoe had met in 1942 when Mrs. Silverman was speaking in Dublin.

Mr. Briscoe has been in great demand as a speaker during his short stay in this country. The only way the committee was able to schedule him was to take advantage of a free night during the interim days of Passover. It is for this reason that the committee had to advance the original date scheduled.

As the Herald went to press, complete details of the entire program had not yet been released. These will follow in subsequent issues of the Herald.

Judge Licht and Mr. Tregar made the following statement: "The committee is delighted to have been able to obtain such an outstanding personality and world Jewish figure as Mr. Briscoe for this affair. In order to have a capacity crowd at the School of Design auditorium for this event everybody in the community should now mark this date on his calendar and plan to attend. Also, each organization throughout the state should take immediate steps to form a telephone squad in order to urge attendance on the part of all members."

The General Jewish Committee of Providence is coordinating this first major effort in connection with the Rhode Island phase of the 10th anniversary celebration of Israel. If Herald readers have any questions or need any assistance, they may contact Joseph Galkin, executive director at GJC headquarters.

WORLD BROTHERHOOD

NEW YORK — Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, president of the National Conference of Christians and Jews since its founding in 1928, announced his resignation to devote himself full time to world brotherhood which attempts to fight racial, religious and cultural prejudice throughout the world.

Libbie Braverman

Libbie Braverman To Speak Sunday

The third annual Pedagogic Conference will be held this Sunday at Temple Beth David, according to an announcement by the chairman of the School Council, Benjamin Efron. Taking as its theme "The Teaching of Jewish Holidays, Customs and Ceremonies", the conference will hear an address by Libbie Braverman, nationally known Jewish educator and author.

To Form Small Groups

Following Mrs. Braverman's presentation the teachers will divide up in small groups in accordance with the grades they teach to discuss the address.

Each group will have an opportunity to present a number of questions to the guest speaker.

The conference, which is expected to draw Jewish educational personnel from all nearby communities in Rhode Island and Massachusetts, will be greeted by the president of the Bureau, Alter Boyman, and by the chairman of the host school board, Joseph Gladstone. Rabbi Abraham I. Jacobson, will lead in the Birhat Hamazon.

Guests of School Board

The conference members will be guests for lunch of the Temple Beth David school board. Hostesses include Mesdames Lee Edenbaum, chairman, Rita Reuter, Edith Kilberg, Bessie Bram, Ruth Bertman, and Betty Auerbach.

Cynthia Zaidman and Leonora Schuman will be in charge of registration. Benjamin Efron will be chairman of the conference.

JWV Urges Action In Recent Bombings

WASHINGTON — The Jewish War Veterans today labeled the bombing of Jewish centers in Miami, Fla., and Nashville, Tenn., "a conspiracy reaching across state lines."

The JWV demanded federal and state action to stamp it out.

The JWV position reflected that of Nate Perlmutter, Miami director of the Anti-Defamation League, who linked the bombings with similar incidents in Gastonia and Charlotte, N. C. He said he had in his possession a letter distributed in Nashville by a Florida segregationist.

The letter, he said, announced the recruitment of members to the segregationist group and added:

"There will be bomb lessons and instruction on how to handle fire and gasoline."

The ADL director also disclosed that his group had other evidence linking the blasts.

"We are in possession of highly restricted evidence shared with the FBI which is working on the cases in other cities as well as here."

The JWV asked for the federal-state drive against "terrorist activities" in telegrams sent by National Commander Benjamin H. Chasin to Gov. Clement of Tennessee, Gov. Collins of Florida and U. S. Attorney General Rogers.

"State and federal agencies should join in stopping what appears to be the beginning of organized, nationwide terrorist activities," the telegrams said. "Urge you use fullest powers at your command to find those guilty of perpetrating this outrage."

"Swift and dynamic action is the only deterrent to the state of anarchy. We offer you our fullest support."

Elect Handwerker Center President

Louis Handwerker was elected president of the Jewish Community Center at the annual meeting held Wednesday.

"The Center—Past, Present and Future," a special program, was a highlight of the meeting, under the direction of Robert Kaplan.

Other officers and directors were elected at the meeting. For the first time, the Center will be operating under a board of directors with officers numbering only 36 in contrast to the old board of 75.

Set Dates For Observances Of Israel's 10th Anniversary

Friday night, April 25, and Saturday morning, April 26, have been designated as Temple and Synagogue night and morning in the forthcoming Rhode Island phase of the Israel's 10th Anniversary celebration this spring.

The dates were set at a meeting last week of the committee on temple and synagogue participation in the observance of Israel's founding ten years ago. Bertram L. Bernhardt, temple and synagogue committee chairman, said the observance by this group will be on a state-wide basis with all the temples and synagogues in Rhode Island participating. He also pointed out that very week-end will be the actual time of the celebration in Israel.

Mr. Bernhardt said that members of all faiths will be invited to attend services in the state's temples and synagogues at that time. It also is hoped, he added, to have some Christian services conducted at the same time in observance of Israel's celebration.

Local observances, Mr. Bernhardt said, will emphasize the unbroken continuity of Jewry's relationship to Israel as reflected in two millennia of prayer, liturgy, and literature. They will point up the creative potentialities for progress and peace that inhere in modern Israel as a reservoir of intellectual, scientific, educational and religious energies so essential for democracy's fight in the Middle East area.

Mr. Bernhardt said it is hoped that Christian churches and their leaders will cooperate both on the national and local levels in Israel's 10th anniversary celebration. Among the members of the Tenth Anniversary Committee are 21 outstanding Christian leaders representing various denominations and all sectors of the country.

Three of them are honorary co-chairmen. They are Professor Reinhold Niebuhr, one of America's outstanding theologians; the Rt. Rev. Msgr. John O'Grady, secretary of the National Council of Catholic Charities; and Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam, a former president of the World Council of Churches.

Hammarskjold May Visit Near East

UNITED NATIONS — Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold is seriously considering the possibility of visiting the Middle East later this month. If the trip materializes, he hinted strongly last week, he would visit Iraq, possibly Saudi Arabia, and some of the other countries of the region.

The announcement of this tentative plan here was made in answer to a question at a press conference. Hammarskjold was asked about the truth or falsity of a report—which was considered highly reliable—that he would send Dr. Francisco Urrutia of Colombia as a personal political representative to look into the situation regarding the new Arab federations. He was also asked whether if he did not send Dr. Urrutia, he was contemplating going himself.

Hammarskjold replied: "The denial about a plan to send Ambassador Urrutia was quite correct. That report was pure invention. As to sending someone else, nothing can be said about that today. As to myself, there may be time between my visit to Moscow and my visit to London, and I have looked into the possibility of visiting the Middle East.

"As you know, I have been in the Middle East many times, but because of the situation, because nothing called for my visit, I left certain countries off my travel map. It might be a good idea, therefore, to look into the situation in the region—it might be helpful to fill out the picture in that region. If my trip there comes about, however, it will have no political significance."

Hammarskjold was scheduled to be in Moscow Mar. 16, and in London on Mar. 31. Thus he will have at least a week between his visits to the Soviet and British capitals.

White House Arranges Serving Of Kosher Meals At Conference

NEW YORK — For what was believed to be the first time in the history of the American Jewish community, the White House officially arranged for kosher meals to be served to the delegation from the Synagogue Council of America to the recent national bi-partisan conference on foreign aid at the Statler Hotel in Washington, D. C.

In the midst of one of the most distinguished assemblies in modern times, which included President Eisenhower, Vice-President Richard M. Nixon, former President Harry S. Truman, and many other national leaders, a group of officials of the six rabbinic and congregational organizations affiliated with The Synagogue Council of America were provided a specially-prepared table at which kosher meals were served under the supervision of a mashgiach.

The White House demonstrated meticulous care in assuring that every detail of food and serving was under proper rabbinical supervision. Kosher meals also were served at the head table to Rabbi Theodore L. Adams, SCA president.

In his address to the 1,500 leaders at the conference, Rabbi Adams, in stressing the moral foundations of America's foreign aid program, cited various rabbinic and Talmudic sources to illustrate the Jewish spiritual approach to aiding one's needy neighbor. His references to rabbinic midrashim and to Maimonides made a deep and favorable impression on the attentive audience, many of whose members subsequently made a point of extending personal congratulations to Rabbi Adams.

THIS WEEK WE ARE HAPPY TO PRESENT

Mrs. Samuel Michaelson

An active leader and worker in Jewish communal affairs for many years, Mrs. Michaelson has spearheaded the women's organizational and charitable campaigns in Hadassah, the Home for the Aged, GJC, Bonds for Israel, and the Zionist Organization, to name but a few. There is scarcely a charity that has not been materially aided by her support. An apt summary of her activities might be: Where there is a charitable drive, whether for Providence or Israel, there is Mrs. Michaelson.

Alter Boyman

When the history of the Jewish community of Rhode Island is written, Alter Boyman will be seen to have played a major role in every phase of its growth. A staunch leader of the Labor Zionist movement—indeed, its key figure—Mr. Boyman has contributed his support, his time, his counsel, to the development of the GJC, Miriam Hospital, Jewish Education in R. I., JFCS, and others—all others, we might add. The title of "community leader" fits him well.

8 Nazis Coming Back Says Jewish Leader

BERLIN — The extent to which well known former Nazis are being placed in high posts of the West Germany Republic is "really frightful," Heinz Galinski, president of the Jewish community of Berlin, declared in an interview here this week.

He charged that in response to neo-Nazi developments, even the Social Democratic Party does not always take a strong enough stand. This is particularly true in the various provincial governments where the Socialists are part of a coalition government, he said.

Speaking of the role of the Central Council of Jews in Germany — of which he is a leader — he said that it was opposed to "liquidation" of Jewish communities in Germany, though it took no stand on propaganda urging Jews who left Germany to return. The Council, he also noted, favors the integration of Jews into the German economy, a program which Chancellor Konrad Adenauer has promised to aid. Finally, he noted that the Council would soon establish youth centers, such as now exist for Jewish young people in this city in Munich, Frankfurt and Dusseldorf.

Moes Chitim 1958

The Jew by religion and tradition is a charitable individual. At this time of the year throughout the world, Jews are making donations so that other Jews who are less fortunate economically may properly celebrate the Passover. Here in Providence our community also heretofore participated in this fine tradition. For years, many groups have solicited and distributed Moes Chitim Assistance. Due in part to the decrease in the number of solicitors on account of death and physical infirmity, and a lack of interest on the part of the young people of our community in Moes Chitim, there has been a substantial decline in the amount raised in recent years which has severely threatened the concept of Moes Chitim.

This tradition should be preserved as a link with the historic past of our people so that we can help everyone in need celebrate Passover. A progressive step in this direction has been effected with the newly organized United Moes Chitim Fund of Greater Providence, representing a merger of the Ladies Hebrew Union Aid, Congregation Shaare Zedek, Congregation Sons of Abraham and the Providence Moes Chitim Association. This appeal deserves the support of our people since it will eliminate multiple appeals, decrease fund raising costs and increase the amount of assistance to be given to recipients.

A successful campaign drawing the widest possible community support will insure that all of the residents at the State Institutions and Howard and Exeter School, the families in the community who find themselves in need of outside assistance and those who are temporarily short of funds due to business conditions will be able to enjoy a happy Passover. We on the other hand who are in a position to give will be heeding the call to be our "brother's keeper".

EDMUND WEXLER, President

More Technical Training Needed For Jobless Youth Of Israel

JERUSALEM — Within five years the number of jobless young people between the ages of 14, when they leave school, and 18, when they enter the army, may well rise to 50,000.

The report does not deal with the fate of probably yet another fifth of the total who, it is true, do find employment, but dead-end employment and casual work of all sorts, like running errands, hawking and portering, writes Arthur Saul Super in the Jerusalem Post.

Unskilled Workers

Youth who take up these occupations grow up to be unskilled workers later on. A goodly proportion of unskilled jobs in our present economy are those provided by various emergency schemes. These are not the most morale-building forms of activity. No one who has seen such workers at their toil can fail to note the demoralization that such work brings in its train, Super wrote.

Moreover, the presence in the labor market of a large reservoir of unskilled workers, who have to be absorbed for social more than good economic reasons, has a direct bearing on our low standards of productivity, the Jerusalem Post article stated.

Avoid Machines

The use of mechanization and complicated equipment which, in the hands of skilled operators, could speed up various processes, is deliberately eschewed in order that the work to be done can be shared out among a larger number of less-skilled or entirely unskilled workers.

The answer lies in the provision of a much greater budget for further technical and vocational training, Super declared. Can the state afford it? No country will be able to afford not to give its children a full technical education extending right through adolescence.

Develop Technology

Israel, certainly, to maintain her security, must keep strengthening and developing her technology; for defense purposes, so as to have the cadres available to handle the complex weapons and machinery of modern war.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Hollow Walls

By BERYL SEGAL

On his recent Person to Person show, Edward R. Murrow took his TV audience to the home of Charles Van Doren. He is the young man who about a year ago astonished America with his great wealth of knowledge and remarkable memory when he appeared on a quiz show. Within a few short weeks Charles Van Doren rose from relative obscurity to national fame. That quiz show also brought him a small fortune.

But fame and fortune, apparently, have not spoiled the talented young man. He is now back to his teaching at Columbia University, back to his books and his writing.

While taking the viewers from room to room, as is the routine on the Person to Person show, Mr. Murrow asked the host where he keeps the tools of his profession, his books.

One would expect floor-to-ceiling shelves filled with books in the home of a Van Doren. But no books were in evidence in Mr. Van Doren's study nor in any other room visited. In reply to Murrow's question Mr. Van Doren pushed back a panel in the wall and revealed a most unusual way of storing books.

The walls separating room from room are hollow. The space inside serves as a receptacle for his library containing hundreds of books. Saves space, protects books from dust, and the walls are neat.

One section of the hollowed wall contained books written by Van Dorens: grandfather, grandmother, father, and son. Sixty odd books all authored by a Van Doren. Charles Van Doren is carrying on the family tradition of writing books, and above all the tradition of love and reverence for books.

All together it was a delightful visit at the home of an interesting couple, the young Van Dorens.

As I listened to Charles Van Doren talk of books, of his grandfather, and of his father's recent book, I was saddened by the memory of a story I read about a son of another literary father. No one ever showed the home of that son on television, but the walls in the home of that son are also hollow, to judge by the story. Hollow and empty. No books but a void.

The story was told last spring in the Yiddish newspapers of New York and was reprinted widely in other Jewish publications. Let me tell it briefly.

One morning a man was on his way to work in the early hours of a spring day and he came upon a pile of books near the edge of the sidewalk waiting for the trash collector's truck. The large number of books in the pile and their neat appearance attracted the passerby. Such books are not usually thrown out and left to the mercy of the Department of Sanitation.

The man must have been a lover of books, a sensitive soul who was hurt at the sight of books being humiliated in such a manner.

He did not rush on his way as you would expect a New Yorker to do, but he stopped to examine the books. They were all in Hebrew print, and the man, a non-Jew, could not read them. But even then he did not abandon the books to their shameful fate. He knocked on the door of a Jewish neighbor, and together they collected the books and took them inside, saving them from the municipal incinerator.

These books, it later developed, once belonged to a well known Yiddish poet. They were volumes from his library containing his own published poetry as well as autographed copies of books written by colleagues and friends which he must have treasured all during his lifetime.

Now that the poet was dead the books were homeless orphans. The poet's son, unlike Charles Van Doren, had no room for his father's books in his home. What is worse, he had no use for them, no feeling for them, no reverence for them and no pleasure in them.

And so the son committed the abominable thing of abandoning the father's spiritual legacy to the ash and trash collector's truck. He did not try to sell them or give them to some library or public institution. The son, apparently, placed little value in his father's books, neither financial nor cultural value. Worthless things that you throw away at spring cleaning time.

Were this desecration of a father's library an isolated incident, we would hardly be justified in wailing over it. But it is not. Many are the homes where books left by a deceased parent find no refuge with the sons and daughters. They are pushed into a corner of the cellar or attic to make room for "Gone with the Wind" or "Marjorie Morningstar". It is the tragedy of our times. Books that spoke to the fathers are no longer meaningful to the children. They find no

Year of Years (?)

SPRING FEVER — I like the story, relayed from Florida, about the sweet young thing who came to see the Yankees play an exhibition game, and had eyes only for Mickey Mantle. She was puzzled, though, and complained to her escort that she couldn't see Mickey's famous shin splints. The slightly shaken male solemnly replied: "Oh, I guess he isn't wearing them today."

This could be the year of years in the American League!

For years now, the cry among the league's contending teams has been to build up to the Yankees as the only means of breaking New York's stranglehold on winning pennants.

Now—just a month before the start of the 1958 campaign—it begins to appear that several clubs have strengthened themselves to the point that they can provide some very real competition for the AL Champs, and even go all the way to the World Series.

Chicago's White Sox are wildly optimistic, and probably would begin printing World Series tickets if the Commissioner permitted them to do so. Detroit's Tigers, cautiously optimistic at the outset of spring training, now are throwing off all restraint to their enthusiasm. The Bengals have a fine club, and more and more they are coming to believe that this is their year of destiny.

Even Boston's Red Sox justly consider themselves an improved club, and with the proper breaks, minus those injury breaks, could make their presence felt—could even win.

Baltimore's Orioles are making no bones of their intention of crashing the first division, and if you care to listen, they are willing to prove it to you. Ditto, Cleveland's Indians.

Now, it is not uncommon for ball clubs to exude confidence in the spring. Even Kansas City and Washington have it in abundance in the training camps. This year, though, it is apparent that on several fronts, at least, this high spirit is becoming, and justified. Indeed, this could be the year of years in the American League.

In this early analysis, I am impressed first with the excellence of the pitching staffs that each of the contenders has built up for the 1958 drive. These are truly formidable hurling corps, and they apparently spell an end to the days when most clubs had just two or three dependable starting pitchers, and just so-so second liners. Today, the real solid contender has as many as five good twirlers, backed up by strong middle and late inning relief departments. This is the big change that has been wrought, this is why so many clubs have a right to their spring optimism.

The Yankees, as usual, are deep. For starters, there are Ford, Turley, Larsen, Sturdivant, Kucks, Shantz, Duren. For relief, Grim, Maglie, Ditmar, Cicotte, plus several rookies trying to break in somehow.

The White Sox, who claim to have the league's best staff, offer Pierce, Donovan, Wynn, Wilson, Keegan, Fischer as starters, Moore as an effective relief man, along with Howell and Staley.

Boston has a fine staff, and could be a terror if all of them clicked at the same time. Brewer, Sullivan, Sisler, Nixon, Susce, Fornieles, Baumann are on the front line, and Delock and Kiely high-light the reserves.

The Tigers present Hoelt, Lary, Bunning, Foytack and several outstanding rookies, notably Shaw, among the starters, with Tom Morgan and Hank Aguirre heading the relievers.

When in the past did you ever see so many teams so deep in competent moundmen? If you can name such a year, you beat me—I can't.

Let's do a quick analysis on the overall potential of these pennant contenders, even if it spills over into next week's column. Making it as brief as possible, here goes:

Red Sox

Boston's hopes for pennant rest on the entire team clicking, while the other front-liners falter and to put it simply, don't click. Imagining what might happen if Sullivan, Brewer, Sisler, Baumann, and possibly Nixon or Fornieles or one other starter, put together a good year, and Delock and Kiely lived up to their promise! With all this, plus that solid outfield, and the infield bolstered by the addition of Runnels and Buddin — man, wouldn't it be something if that combination could be resolved into one perfect-functioning unit!

The presence of Runnels should make infielders hustle harder, and Buddin, who some day should be a star shortstop, can't be as bad as his freshman year, even with Serviceman's Rust slowing him down. He was doing very well near the end of the season before his Army duty, it will be recalled. Thank heaven that "ace" pinch hitter, Zaichin, is gone. Every little bit helps.

Summary—If this team clicks on all cylinders, if the key performers hit well, pitch well, field well . . . and if the Yanks falter as they did last year, Red Sox could win pennant. Too early to bet on it, of course, but potential definitely is there.

Tigers

A fast start is a necessity, and Detroit has picked up one reliable fast starter—Pitcher Morgan, who throughout his big league career has always been brilliant in first half, dies in second half. Tigers' momentum could carry club down the stretch if it gets into good position and stays there. Billy Martin has added spark that has coaches and players bubbling with optimism. Hitting should be terrific, with Kaline, Kuenn, Boone, Martin, Maxwell, Frank Bolling, also dangerous, and plenty of power on bench in Zernial and Skizas. In chummy Briggs Stadium, this could be American League's wrecking crew.

Summary — Given one more starter out of its rookie crop to assist big four, and successful con-

German Jewish Leader Protests
Anti-Restitution Drive On Radio

BERLIN — For the first time, a German Jewish leader used the medium of radio to protest publicly what he called a continuing propaganda to slice the restitution payment program for victims of the Nazi era.
Dr. Heinz Galinski, head of the Berlin Jewish community, in a sharp radio speech, emphasized that the same sources trying to cut payments to Jews have never said a word about the payment of "colossal" sums in pensions to former Nazis and even to SS experts in butchery.

The anti-restitution campaign was launched in a speech by Justice Minister and former Finance Minister Fritz Schaeffer, who said that West Germany could not afford the payments at their present level and that attorneys were becoming rich in handling compensation claims cases.
Despite disavowals by Bonn officials from Chancellor Adenauer down, hundreds of anti-Semitic letters have been sent to Jewish leaders and newspapers. These letters express regret that the Nazis failed to make "a final solution" to the Jewish problem.

STAMPS ISSUED TO COMMEMORATE GROWTH OF ISRAEL'S VITAL SHIPPING INDUSTRY

To commemorate the growth of her vital shipping industry Israel has issued an attractive series of four postage stamps (shown here). The stamps, printed in Israel and designed by Mrs. Miriam Karoly of Haifa, depict the history of Israel's sea progress. The ten-pruta stamp contains an illustration of an ancient boat of Judea used in Biblical times; the twenty-pruta stamp, the frigate "Nirit," which transported immigrants to Palestine during the British Mandate; the thirty-pruta stamp, the modern merchant ship "Shomron," which carries cargo to and from foreign ports, and the 1,000-pruta stamp, the new passenger steamer "Zion," which affords tourists up-to-date accommodations.

More Than 500 Americans Settle In Israel In 1957

NEW YORK — More than 500 Americans settled in Israel during 1957, it was reported here last week by Louis Segal, chairman of the Aliyah Department of the Jewish Agency in New York. He emphasized that this is the largest figure in any year since 1951.

The report disclosed that the total number of immigrants from the United States, Canada and South America who came to Israel since the establishment of the state is estimated at 10,000 persons. He emphasized that the Jewish Agency and the Israel authorities are making every effort to facilitate the settlement of Americans in Israel. Among recent steps taken in this direction, he said are better exchange rates, abolishment of cumbersome custom regulations and a more liberal policy in granting import licenses.

Segal reported that among the Americans who emigrated to Israel in 1957 were the following: 102 chaltzim; 164 professionals; 47 skilled workers; 52 middle class immigrants and 68 retired persons. He stressed that these American immigrants are bringing not only valuable training and technical know-how but also a significant amount of capital to Israel. He estimated that the combined declared capital of American middle class immigrants to Israel in 1957 amounted to over $250,000 while retired immigrants brought a combined capital of some $300,000 and an annual income from social security and pensions totaling $65,000.

Demand Close Of Gulf To Israel

GENEVA — In a slashing attack on Israel's rights and an assertion of a continued state of belligerency, Saudi Arabia last week insisted that the Gulf of Aqaba remain a close inland Arab waterway. This position was outlined here by chief Saudi Arabian delegate Ahmed Shukairy at an 87-nation conference on world maritime nations being held here.

Mr. Shukairy also said that the presence of Arab delegates must not be construed as recognition in any manner of Israel. He challenged the assumptions that the laws of the sea must be kept by states which do not recognize each other. The doctrine of freedom of the seas together with freedom of navigation and commerce, he added, must all "give way to the exigencies of war."

Vatican Approves Priest's Remark

ROME — Osservatore Romano, official organ of the Vatican, commenting on a charge by a Rome newspaper that a priest had introduced the race question in a dispute with the newspaper, declared this week that it was not improper to emphasize the "unsuitable presence" of Jews in a public debate on another religion.

The issue was raised by Paese Sera which asked the Italian Press Federation to take action against the priest-editor, Don Pisoni. In replying in the Catholic newspaper L'Italia to an attack on the Pope in Paese Sera, Don Pisoni noted that two members of the Paese Sera editorial staff were Jews.

Osservatore Romano asserted "it is no crime of racialism to underline the unsuitable presence of Jews when an issue is debated which concerns another religion, particularly since Pope Pius offered Jews the solidarity and protection they deserved as persecuted creatures of God." The Vatican publication added that "these in-advertencies" did not "diminish the gratitude which Jews did not fail to express to the Holy Father for his deeds."

Zionist Group Reaffirms Policy

LONDON—The reorganized World Confederation of General Zionists concluded its three-day meeting here last week in complete agreement on future tasks of the body and with election of a new executive headed by co-chairmen Dr. Israel Goldstein and Mrs. Rose Halprin.

The parley unanimously reaffirmed its policy of non-identification with any political party in Israel, asserting this was the only way to avoid strife over problems which are within the exclusive competence of Israel's citizens.

However, it expressed the conviction that it was necessary for Israel to safeguard the equality of rights for private cooperative and collective capital in the expansion of the nation's economic resources.

The delegates also reasserted their belief that the World Zionist Organization was the most effective medium for carrying out the traditional Zionist tasks of Hebrew education, immigration and Halutzut. They reaffirmed support for the Hanoar Hatzioni youth group, hailed its role in building Israel and pledged aid in development of the Zionist-oriented youth groups and day schools in countries outside of Israel.

On the organizational level, the Confederation indicated a readiness to accept as members all groups in any country which are prepared to accept its principles and program. Each group joining the Confederation would retain full autonomy in local organizational problems, although regional bodies may be organized to facilitate unification within large geographic areas.

The main headquarters of the Confederation will continue in New York, with three regional offices to be located in Europe, Central America and Caribbean countries and South America. The highest authority will be the World Conference of Confederation, which will deal with all activities of the body, including a selection of candidates for the World Zionist Executive, the Zionist Actions Committee, and other bodies connected with the World Zionist Congress.

Provision has been made to add to the Confederation's executive representatives of new groups joining it in the future. The American representatives on the new executive include Mrs. Jacobson, Mrs. Judith Epstein and Judge Louis E. Levinthal.

versions (to shortstop) by Martin and (to center fielder) by Kuenn. Tigers could overcome weak points and romp to pennant. Fast start, and unsteady performance by Yanks, would turn the trick. Potential very high.

White Sox

Manager Lopez, lolling in luxury on cloud 9, is depending almost entirely on pitching and speed to win pennant. White Sox figure on good steady hitting from Lollar, Fox, Goodman, Smith, Landis, with hopes that rookie Jackson will develop into club's power hitter for clean-up spot. Team can run bases better than any, has spirit and confidence.

Summary—If pitching lives up to Lopez' expectations, and if all those single hitters smash a few doubles, and if Yanks have poor year and Tigers don't get started, here is next champ.

Yanks

Team without an apparent weakness. No club can beat them on even terms. Yanks must slump somewhere in order to be caught. Can match White Sox pitcher for pitcher, can match Tigers hitter for hitter, and have some left over. Young and fast, probably will have Ray Narleski by opening of season. That really would be a shame, shouldn't happen. Club is overstocked, though, must make a deal.

The analysis presented here has been concentrated on each club's strong points, overlooked its deficiencies. This has been deliberate, because of the theme expressed at the beginning. If all four of these teams play the ball of which they are capable, this could easily be the greatest year in American League history. All are strong enough to make an excellent showing, and if all did it together, . . . man, wouldn't that be something! What a race!

As for the pennant, any club that gets hot and stays hot, could dethrone the Yankees.

Troubled Children Need Warmth, Love

While much remains to be done it is important to recognize that we have made progress during this century in our understanding of troubled children and children in trouble. We have learned a great deal about mental health and illness, about the relationships between emotional and physical well-being, and between good adjustment and the ability of a child to learn and function. We have also learned that a child's sense of belongingness and his behavior are linked to his consciousness of being loved.

In addition, we have begun to see the possibilities in the early recognition of children's problems in our schools and the need for preventive services. We have become aware of the importance of working with parents as well as children and have expanded our concept of family service. There is also increased perception of the need for minimal economic security to families where the father has died, become chronically ill or disappeared.

Other signs of progress are the fact that our schools have initiated some remedial work for children whose emotional problems block them from learning, and that there now exist a few institutions in which treatment services are available for badly disturbed children. We have also moved from dreary, large custodial institutions to foster-home care for many of our children and have begun to see the possibilities of adoption for some children. Such achievements, however, should not obscure the fact that we apply modern knowledge to current practice slowly and in piecemeal fashion.

The difficulty in arriving at a solution of such problems as to who shall provide the services for children, what kinds are necessary, and how they can be secured, is that we have not developed community master plans for ministering to our children's needs. The public agency does not specify the services it needs or will support—and children are too often slotted into any place that has a vacancy. Children who need foster care are put into institutions, and those who need treatment are dumped into large custodial institutions. Children who need long-term care are left for long periods in shelters and detention homes uncertain as to what the future will bring.

The growing gap between the development of diagnostic services and the availability of treatment based on the diagnostic recommendations presents to both clinicians and the community a most serious challenge. There are troubled children who have been diagnosed repeatedly but have never been admitted to treatment. Our courts are often, against their will, forced to ship such children off to overcrowded, largely custodial institutions where they cannot hope to get the treatment needed. Ironically, when these children return to the community and get into further trouble, the fact that they have received diagnosis is used as evidence to show that the treatment they presumably received (but never did), failed. And the children's court is again charged with "mollycoddling young criminals."

Such situations, repeated many times, have contributed to a gross misunderstanding on the part of the community. Reports that a child has been studied are equated with treatment. When this boy or another later becomes involved in some crime, a hue and cry is set up by those who demand that coddling of young criminals, or new-fangled treatment, be cast aside, and that the community return to the good old-fashioned remedies of the slipper, the switch, or the rubber hose.

The existing agencies and institutions which have the responsibility for caring for our troubled children, whether schools, private agencies, public institutions, or courts, must not be regarded as remote, sacrosanct, or secret territory. The community should be informed of what treatment is necessary and available for the children, and what treatment they are or are not receiving. The truth should be presented to the public by those professional groups who have a knowledge of the facts so as to stimulate its concern for the problems of its troubled children.

It is a strange paradox that in this country which attaches such great meaning to human values, less status is accorded those professions that serve human beings than those that deal with the accumulation or protection of property. We find, for example, that the police officer who deals with the prevention and control of youth problems generally has less status than the one who does "straight" police work. Courts dealing with the problems of children and family life are usually regarded as less important than those dealing with property matters. This attitude is reflected by our communities, our states and our Federal government, which have been niggardly in their support of schools, of services to troubled families, and of Courts dealing with social problems.

No one senses more quickly than a child the difference between what a person says and what he is or does, between principle and practice in the community. We cannot help our children to have proper values unless we are prepared to live by them and to work for them. There is no single answer for children in trouble. Much of the answer, however, lies within ourselves.

Books are the conversation carried on between one generation and another. When this conversation ceases night begins to fall. When walls are no longer hallowed by books treasured by ancestors, they and the homes within them become depressingly hollow.
