Says Israel Will Break Nasser's Hold On Oil

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister David Ben Gurion pledged that Israel would break dictator Nasser's stronghold on oil supplies to Europe by building an oil pipeline from Elath to the Mediterranean. He also told the 500 American Jewish leaders that world and Israel Jewry must be prepared "for the great day when the gates of Russia are opened and hundreds of thousands of Jews will come to Israel from the Soviet Union. And come they will!"

He told both the UJA delegation and the people of Israel that their goal for Israel must be to build "a safe, free and independent homeland for every Jew who wishes to or needs to come here" and to build "a great civilization, which will be the pride of Jews everywhere."

The Prime Minister said Israel would continue its pursuit of means to use atomic energy as a source of power and continue its promising efforts to tap solar energy. He predicted Israel would become a great maritime nation and a world center of research and learning.

A session held at the Bronfman Amphitheater of the Hebrew University attended by 3,500 persons, heard pledges by American Jewish leaders, including Edward M. M. Warburg, UJA honorary chairman and Samuel H. Daroff of Philadelphia, to continue American Jewish support in the settlement of immigrants to Israel. Daroff reported that sums announced at the conference, together with cash collected in U. S. Jewish communities, boosted the UJA mid-year total in cash to $35,700,000.

A nine point program for Israel's second decade was presented by Dov Joseph, Jewish Agency treasurer. Among the highlights were admission of 50,000 immigrants a year until Israel's population was 3,000,000; completion of Israel's master plan for water development; settlement of the Negev; continued agricultural expansion; building of 100 new factories and thousands of homes for immigrants; afforestation; absorption of immigrants and expansion of welfare services.

A warning that the Israel public and the American Jewish community may grow apart "unless a growing together is deliberately fostered" was given by Rabbi Herbert A. Friedman, executive vice-chairman of the UJA. He said a bridge of understanding between

Young Israel Leader Denounces Tactics Of Splinter Group

FALLSBURGH, N. Y. — Moses H. Hoenig, president of the National Council of Young Israel, speaking at the 46th annual convention of the organization, denounced "those little irresponsible splinter elements in the United States, which are engaging in a vicious, dishonorable and destructive anti-Israel campaign.

"These irresponsible groups are not only degrading and besmirching the sterling name of the State of Israel by offensive methods, but they are also casting unjustifiable reflections on the sincerity, honor and dignity of orthodox Judaism in the United States," he stated.

Hoenig also stated that "these purveyors of strife and hatred constitute a negligible minority in American orthodoxy and do not possess any scintilla of authority or power to speak for the vast majority of orthodox Jews who are answering in their devotion to the free and democratic State of Israel."

Hoenig continued by asserting that "there is complete freedom of religion in Israel and the religious parties are afforded adequate representation, in all governing bodies of Israel. The religiously observant Jews of Israel must accept a policy of co-existence and patience with those who do not adhere to their religious views in order to prevent any internal conflicts and tensions. This co-existence approach will ultimately contribute to the building up of a fountain of good will, respect and recognition for spiritual values in every phase of communal and governmental endeavor in Israel."

To Print Sholom Aleichem's Works

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — Obviously attempting to counteract criticism against official anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union, the USSR delegation here last week distributed information about plans being made now in Russia to celebrate the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Sholom Aleichem, famed Yiddish writer, next year.

Observers here noted particularly that the original article announcing the Sholom Aleichem anniversary plans appeared in a Communist propaganda organ, "Soviet Weekly," published in English by the Russian embassy in London. Prof. Hyman Levy, of London, a well-known mathematician and formerly one of the leading Jewish Communists in England, quit the Communist Party this year after visiting the Soviet Union, where he found anti-Semitism rampant in official circles.

The article in "Soviet Weekly" announces that, last year, a Russian language edition of 165,000 copies of Sholom Aleichem's "From the Market Place" was sold out "within a few days." Next year, the USSR's embassy publication declares, the Russian State Publishing House will issue in Russian a six-volume edition of selected works from the writings of the famous Yiddish writer. "Well-known translators," states the announcement, "are working on new translations."

The anniversary publications will also include works by "Soviet Jewish writers and critics," among these a number of essays on Sholom Aleichem, a novel based on the life of Sholom Aleichem by Abram Kagan, and a biographical novel "by the late Soviet Jewish writer Uriya Finkel."

Golf Tourney Under Way; List Opening Matches

The 1958 Golf Tournament, sponsored annually by this newspaper, gets under way this weekend in four division match play competition that promises to produce some of the closest matches in the seven year history of the event.

The tourney will be played at the new 18-hole Sun Valley course in Rehoboth, off Route 44, the Providence-Taunton highway, just about eight miles from the center of Providence.

The abilities of the respective golfers in the first three groupings are so close, according to their handicaps, that all the competitors in these divisions will start from scratch. The largest of the divisions — the fourth — with a wider range of scores, will be played under handicap rules. (Handicaps are listed opposite each man's name on the tournament score sheet at Sun Valley.)

The opening round may be played any time from now through Sunday, July 20. All first round matches must be completed by the end of that day. This, in effect, allows a ten day spread for the first round, including two week-ends. Matches not completed by the deadline will be forfeited.

One week also will be allowed for the second round, and it will be up to the golfers to arrange their matches during that period.

Those who are eliminated during the opening round will be listed for the consolation "Beaten 8" competition, for which trophies will be awarded. The first round for this tournament must be completed by the end of the second week (July 27).

Rules of the tournament are few, and simple. First, U. S. G. A. golf rules will prevail.

2. All putts must be holed out, no matter how short.

3. Golfers may use preferred lies, but in no event will the ball be moved nearer the hole.

Trophies will be awarded the winners and runnersup in each of the four divisions of play, and to the four "Beaten 8" winners.

Here are the opening round pairings (the first man listed in each pairing is responsible for con-

Recession Hurts N. Y. Federation

NEW YORK — Because of the recent economic recession, the Federation of Jewish Philanthropies of New York will sustain a deficit of over $2,000,000 for its 1957-58 operations while its 116 affiliated agencies will experience the heaviest demand for their services, Gustave L. Levy, Federation president, declared in the organization's 40th annual report.

Levy placed the cause of the impending record deficit on three factors, a reduction in campaign contributions; an increased allotment to agencies to meet increasing community needs, and a reduction in the cash collections of outstanding pledges. He pinpointed the downturn in business "on a broad front" as the major reason for Federation's financial difficulties. He added that "we are not alone in this experience. It is the experience of philanthropic organizations generally throughout the country."

As a result of the recession, Levy said he foresaw an increase in the number of people who would seek the services of Federation's institutions and a decrease in patient and client fees. "In any period of economic crisis it is inevitable that there will be an increased number of people seeking help," Levy said.

"Our employment services already feel the pressure for greater service. Our family services, similarly, for we know that financial troubles have a way of breeding family troubles."

'Other Side of Coin'

Levy also emphasized that reduced wages will result in smaller incomes for Federation agencies for the services they render. "One of the things we have been most proud of has been our agency fee schedules based on ability to pay," he said. "This has meant that in recent years our agencies have had a good client income. And it means that the other side of the coin faces us today."

Government and voluntary agencies will have to work together, Levy emphasized, to devise means so that voluntary agencies will not be jeopardized in future periods of recession or depression. Pointing to the fact that Federation institutions serve 700,000 persons of all races and faiths, he said that the Federation-sponsored network of agencies, "by their very existence, have relieved Government of an enormous job and an enormous expense."

Levy asserted that the financial problems of Federation affect an organization that renders more than $60,000,000 worth of services to the community.

Suggests Use Of Confessionals

CHICAGO — Rabbi Henry E. Kagan suggested at the Central Conference of American Reform Rabbis convention that "private religious confessionals" be made available to Jews. Dr. Kagan is chairman of the CCAR Committee on Psychiatry and Religion. He is rabbi of Sinai Temple in Mount Vernon, N. Y.

Frequently, Dr. Kagan said, "serious-minded Jews complain that we do not have something in Judaism similar to the confessional booth in Roman Catholicism." This complaint he said reveals that the need for confession is natural to every human being.

He cautioned, however, against instituting a "compulsory" confessional that "may become mere dogmatic routine where neither the conscious nor the unconscious motive for a sinful act can be explored in the few minutes a penitent talks to a concealed confessor."

With the support of many psychiatrists, clergymen are devoting more and more of their time to the field of pastoral counseling, it was pointed out at the CCAR parley.

Through pastoral counseling, the clergy attempts to help the individual resolve conscious problems by the application of religious insight.

Problems of daily living, such as those that stem from marriage, parenthood and work frequently become so difficult that an individual feels he must discuss them with some one.

When such problems have a moral, ethical or spiritual aspect that can be dealt with through the application of religious insight, the individual may be helped by a series of discussions with his clergyman.

the two Jewries was "indispensable" to the continued development of Israel.

"Our fellow Jews wherever they are dispersed and distressed must continue to be rescued and the land of Israel must be strengthened economically so it can absorb these people," he said. He added that American Jewry "understands and willingly accepts the fact that these twin problems cannot be overcome in a few years" and requires "our thinking in terms of a generation of support."

President Ben Zvi told the visitors that in "the historic achievement of taking in nearly a million immigrants, American Jewry had, through the UJA, "played an unforgettable role."

American Families Sought For Israel

NEW YORK—Room for a dozen more American families is available in Orot, a cooperative farming village in Israel, founded five years ago by a group of American pioneers, according to word brought to the U. S. by Itzhak Korn, secretary of Tnuat Hamoshavim, the federation of cooperative villages.

The families being sought as candidates for this highly successful venture will bring the community up to its full complement of 60 units. The average age of settlers is between 30 and 35 years, although older couples with teenage children are acceptable.

Tnuat Hamoshavim, in cooperation with the Jewish Agency and Histadrut, who are co-sponsors of the plan, helps the newcomers take root on a seven acre homestead, complete with home, barn, poultry house and livestock. The holdings include five dunam of citrus groves.

Orot, which means "beacons," is located near Rehovot and other well established communities south-east of Tel Aviv.

A minimum cash investment of $2,000 is needed, the balance of capital costs being advanced on easy terms.

Israel Advances In Public Health Field

MINNEAPOLIS—Israel Barzilai, Minister of Health in the Israel Cabinet, declared here at a session of the World Health Assembly that his country had made really "remarkable strides in the field of public health, raising life expectancy in the last decade to better than 70 years. He also disclosed that Dr. Jonas Salk, American discoverer of anti-polio vaccine, had been invited to visit Israel.

Israel's health picture was simultaneously described in a United Nations survey as being far above the comparable level of the other countries in the Middle East, and as favorable with those of the most advanced countries.

An Orchid To . . . A Carnation To . . .

Mrs. Israel Mandell
 Mrs. Mandell is an ardent Hadassah worker, and for two years served as president of the Providence Chapter. During her administration — just two years ago — she was instrumental in organizing the new Cranston-Warwick Chapter of Hadassah which is flourishing so well now. She is still actively engaged with the Providence Chapter.

Formerly, Mrs. Mandel was a devoted worker at Miriam Hospital. For more than ten years, with the Women's Association, she was actively involved with hospitality. She also was chairman of the important Donor affair one year.

She has long been a familiar figure in the annual campaign of the Women's Division of the General Jewish Committee, and to a lesser degree, in other organizations, as well.

Joseph K. Levy
 Not long ago, the Providence Junior Chamber of Commerce named Joe Levy as an honorary member. This honor is not lightly given by the Junior Chamber. Only once previously had it been made — and then to Senator Pastore.

The reasons are at least partly obvious. Mr. Levy is a member of the board of directors of United Fund, and two years ago was chairman of the UF East Side solicitations. He is also a board member of Big Brothers of R. I.

One of the leading figures in the General Jewish Committee, he has served as general campaign chairman and a member of the board of directors; and he serves on the advisory council of the Jewish Community Center.

SYD COHEN

THIS WEEK'S QUIZ was suggested by the tie game played by the Red Sox and Yankees last Saturday night. The question:

How long does it take for the teams to change sides between innings? To put it more succinctly, how long does it take from the time the third out is made to the time the pitcher winds up for his first pitch in the next half inning.

Answer at end of this column.

You Can't Win Department

A new twist was added in the 11th inning of Saturday night's game to the proposition that when you're hitting, everything you hit falls in there safely, but when you're in a slump, your hardest shots will be caught.

With the lead run already in, Billy Klaus tried to get out in a hurry so that Boston might try to get the inning completed and win the game (if they held the Yanks scoreless.) Forthwith, Billy swung at an inside pitch and tried to nudge it back to the pitcher. Trouble is, he hit it harder than intended, and the ball went through the box and out into center field, scoring an insurance run that was about as helpful as a canceled policy!

And how about Gil MacDougald, suffering through an agonizing and prolonged slump that had shaved his average by 70 points! Hitless in five games, during which he hit some terrific smashes that were caught, Gil breaks his bat on a pitch in the All Star game, only to see the ball drop into the outfield for the hit that wins the game.

All Hail Malzone!

Receiving more recognition all the time is Boston's Frank Malzone. Frank polled the top vote among all the All-Stars of the American League, with all his votes coming from the seven opposing teams (you couldn't vote for someone on your own club). Then he gets the hit that ignites the winning rally by the American League during the All-Star game, and scores the winning run.

Now comes further acclaim, this time from the umpires. Columnist Bob Addie of Washington says that the arbiters consider Malzone the best two-strike hitter in baseball. He quotes one ump as saying: "When you get two strikes on Malzone he really guards that plate. He seems more dangerous when he has two strikes."

Speaking of Piersall, Yogi Berra has his own private nickname for the spectacular center fielder. It's "Rocky" . . . . One thing you can say for Jimmy — he certainly has the fans trained. When he chose to back pedal for a long high fly off the bat of Norm Siebern last week, instead of the safer and more routine procedure of turning and trotting back to meet the ball, he made an over-the-head catch that looked difficult, then stumbled and fell as his feet reached the gravel warning path; and the fans cheered him for a full half minute, as if this were one of the great fielding plays of all time, instead of the stupid and dangerous maneuver that it was . . . . Well, over in the other league there is a player who admits openly that he likes to put on a show for the fans, and therefore never makes a play look easy if it can make it appear difficult. He's good at the technique too. The name is Mays.

A short time ago, this column introduced baseball's newest Jewish ballplayer, Don Taussig, highly rated outfielder of the Giants. Almost lost in the shuffle of baseball news this week was the brief item included with the news about the Giants: ". . . . optioned Outfielder Don Taussig . . . to Phoenix."

This deal has a slightly confusing note. Taussig was good enough to stay with San Francisco for a half season, then is demoted all the way to Class A! That doesn't seem to make any sense. We'll keep an eye on his progress, anyhow.

In a front page story in this issue appears all information leading to the official start of the Herald's 1958 Golf Tournament, which will be played at the new Sun Valley course in Rehoboth, off the Providence-Taunton highway.

After a one week delay because of the July 4 holiday weekend, the committee met earlier this week at the home of Lou Chase, where Lou, Justin Robinson, Walter Rutman and this column put the finishing touches on the arrangements.

It won't hurt to repeat that the first round of match play may be played at any time, starting now, but must be completed by Sunday, July 20. Matches not completed by then will be forfeited. All contestants must turn in their cards at the pro's office upon completion of their rounds, and it would be helpful if the winner notified the Herald of the result.

By the time this is read, the trophies will have been selected, and we hope to publish a photo of these awards while the tourney is in progress. Trophies will be presented to the winners and runners-up of all four divisions, plus the beaten 8 winners. Those who lose the opening round go automatically into the beaten 8 tourney which starts the second week of the tournament. We hope all such golfers will schedule their matches promptly. There are attractive prizes at stake.

One of the awards will be the Alfred Venetsky Memorial Trophy, which is presented annually in this tournament by the Fall Class of 1949 of Redwood Lodge No. 32, A.P. & A. M. This will be the third year that this award is made. Si Fain, entered in the tourney, is

Answer To Quiz
Because of the proceedings in the 11th inning last week — the inning that never was completed — I timed several innings of the Sunday game between the Red Sox and Yankees. You may say it's trivia and grossly unimportant; but I was annoyed with Casey Stengel for stalling at a time when there was obviously no chance that the inning could be completed before the 11:59 deadline, and I just wanted to prove it to myself.

So, here are the findings.
Almost two minutes goes by from the time the third out is made to the time the pitcher winds up for his first pitch in the next half inning. There is no more than a five second variation in this figure — from 1:45 to 1:50. I timed about seven innings, and this figure never varied. It takes just under two minutes, in other words, for the teams to change sides.

Incidentally, no half inning during Sunday's game was completed in less than 3½ minutes, and only one of the many I timed wound up that fast.

Komros-Berick

Temple Emanuel was the scene of the wedding of Miss Ada Belle Berick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick F. Berick of 121 Blaisdell Avenue, Pawtucket, to Dr. Leonard Komros, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman Komros of Providence, on June 29. Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception at Weinstein's Lake Pearl Manor.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in silk chiffon organza with draped cummerbund and a neckline designed with seed pearls and rhinestones. Her fingertip veil of French silk illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls. She carried a Bible with an orchid and a streamer of stephanotis.

Sara Berick Weiss was matron of honor. She was dressed in a ballerina gown of white nylon over blue and wore a matching blue headpiece. She carried a bouquet of yellow and blue roses.

The mother of the bride wore a blue dress with tiers of lace and chiffon. The bridegroom's mother was dressed in gray lace over pink with a sweetheart neckline. Both wore orchid corsages.

Dr. Jack Komros was best man. Ushers were Norton Weiss and Jack Wilkes.

Dr. and Mrs. Komros will live at 96 Colonial Road.

Fear Outbreak of Polio In Israel

JERUSALEM — A 70% increase in polio cases last week prompted Israel Barzilai Minister of Health, to summon an expert committee to fight the threat of a possible epidemic.

The peak of the current outbreak was recorded in Jerusalem and the Galilee where most of the 60 cases during May occurred. Health officials expressed confidence that urgent measures placed in operation would stop the outbreak and that there was no reason for alarm.

CCAR View of Religion in School

The Central Conference of American Rabbis, national organization of Reform Jewry's spiritual leaders, recently came up with some interesting viewpoints on religious instruction in the public schools.

Meeting in Chicago, the group argued pro and con the merits and demerits of instruction in moral and spiritual values for our nation's youth outside of the synagogue and the home.

What is perhaps for the first time, a major American Jewish organization showed that there are two possibly acceptable sides to this thorny issue. In all previous discussion, leaders of U. S. Jewry have almost unanimously expressed their unalterable opposition to the teaching of religion in our public school system.

The Central Conference of American Rabbis did not go on record as favoring religious instruction in the public schools. But it did openly suggest that Jewish leadership in the battle against such a program has placed the American Jewish community in an awkward position — has erroneously and by malicious interpretation put many Jews on record as being "Godless," "against the Bible," "enemies of religion," and the like.

In the eyes of many Reform spiritual leaders, the merits of Jewish participation in the battle for church-state separation have been thus more than counterbalanced by the demerits. In a word, some of these leaders, like Rabbi Arthur Gilbert, of New York, expressed the feeling that the preventive is more terrible in its effect than the disease, itself.

An interesting outgrowth of the plea by some of CCAR's membership for modification of U. S. Jewry's opposition to religious instruction in the public school system is an upcoming Central Conference-sponsored survey of the Reform rabbinate on this question. How Reform spiritual leaders feel about it, and how their congregations see it, may well shed new light on U. S. Jewry's traditional battle for separation of church and state in our schools.

Assist Aged To Continue Normal, Independent Living

TEL AVIV — A pioneering program in care for the aged — cash grants to help aged men and women to continue normal, independent living in communities rather than enter institutions — has been undertaken with marked success in Israel by the Joint Distribution Committee.

In an experimental reversal of usual assistance programs, a small monthly sum has been granted to some 425 men and women waiting to enter homes operated by Malben, the JDC welfare program on behalf of aged, ill and handicapped newcomers to Israel.

In announcing the "Grants for the Aged" project, Louis Horwitz, Malben director, pointed out that "this new development in the Malben program is an outgrowth of the newest studies in Israel, the United States and elsewhere regarding care for the aged.

"With life expectancy on the increase," he declared, "placing aged people in institutions is no longer accepted as an 'ideal' solution. Our goal now is continued fitness for a productive life, and participation in normal community activities during old age.

"In Israel we have a particular responsibility to help assure the aged newcomer a useful role in the life of the State.

Financed by JVA

Malben, like other aspects of JDC's overseas program is financed chiefly by funds received from the United Jewish Appeal.

Malben does not plan to build any new institutions for the aged, Horwitz indicated. However, with approximately 5,000 men and women in its homes, villages and infirmaries for the aged, a waiting list of 900 eligible aged immigrants still remains.

Since there is no more room in existing Malben institutions, the "Grants for the Aged" project will make it possible for additional persons to receive aid. However, Horwitz pointed out, any of the men and women now receiving cash assistance will of course receive institutionalization in the future if it is required.

The first practical step taken was the "Grant for the Aged" scheme. Under this, 425 aged immigrants are currently receiving a small monthly sum which will help them to go on living independently in the community. They have therefore been eliminated from the waiting list. However, in the case of future infirmity, they may re-apply to Malben for admittance.

In close coordination with municipalities, health and welfare organizations, every means is being explored to establish a secure place for the senior citizen in the normal community. To this end Malben social service department works closely with local social service agencies throughout the country to determine the possibility of each aged applicant's remaining in his community.

Screened Carefully

Careful medical screening by the Malben medical division is the determining factor as to whether the aged applicant is sufficiently healthy to remain in the community, must be placed in an institution for aged, or is in need of the skilled care that can only be rendered in one of its four hospitals for chronic diseases.

With the intake in Malben institutions for aged limited for the time being to infirmed oldsters, existing infirmaries annexes in the various institutions are being expanded. In addition, there has been and will continue to be coordination between old age homes and hospitals so that infirmed oldsters may at any given time receive that type of care which they most urgently require.

Aged who are mentally ill are taken care of by existing institutions. Malben cares for a small number of mentally confused aged in a special ward in its Shar Menashe hospital.

Analyze Israeli Economy

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. — Israel's economic achievements during the past year, as well as the serious economic problems which it is still facing, are outlined in a report issued here last week by the United Nations.

The report emphasizes that Israel is now producing about 70% of its own food and an even higher percentage of certain manufactured goods needed for internal consumption. At the same time, the report stresses, Israel's wholesale price index is rising steadily and defense expenditures are climbing.

"At the present stage," the report declares, "the country is still far from achieving an external financial equilibrium. Without further external financial aid, it is doubtful whether the progress so far achieved can even be maintained, especially in the face of a continuing — possibly heavy — influx of immigration."

Israel's total foreign obligations, states the report, was $299,600,000 by the end of March, 1957, as against $89,600,000 in foreign currency balances, with a net outstanding liability of 210,000,000.

Sees Added Burden

"This," the report adds, "is likely to become a burden on the economy, and additional difficulties are to be expected by 1962, when payments under the German Reparations Agreement will have ended." The report calls attention to the fact that, as of Sept. 1, 1957, almost half of the total of $822,000,000 provided for in the German-Israeli Reparations Agreement of 1952 has been paid out in goods and services.

In general, the report states, "inflation is one of Israel's greatest obstacles to achieving its aims in a reasonable amount of time." While the statistical tables in the report show vast progress in almost every field of Israel's economic activity, internal as well as external, it declares that "the inflationary process characterizing its economy makes it increasingly difficult for Israel to achieve a level of consumption — private and public — properly related to the income produced in the country itself."

The UN report says that "a feature of Israel's growth in recent years is that consumption has been exceeding net output." Israel's "net national product" in 1956 aggregated 2,337,000,000 Israeli pounds, but its total consumption exceeded that figure by 202,000,000 pounds. Most of that discrepancy was due to what the report calls "public consumption," which almost doubled in 1956 over the 1953 level, while private consumption in that period rose only by 34%.

Cost of Living Rose

General wholesale prices rose last year to an index figure of 151, based on 1953 costs, while the cost of living index rose to 137. During the period from 1953 to September 1957, the number of unemployed in Israel decreased from 17,680 to 8,920, in spite of the fact that the total population had risen considerably.

"Government expenditure," the report declares, "has been steadily increasing, not only in absolute figures but also relatively to gross national product." The figures show that government expenditures were 88.37 million Israeli pounds in 1950, and had risen to 662.56 million by 1956, by which time those expenditures had gone up to 26.4% of the gross national product.

The figures for government expenditures are even higher, the report indicates, because they "do not give a full account of the defense expenditure." Furthermore, the report states, the figures for the central government's expenditures do not include monies spent by municipalities or by the Jewish Agency "and certain other public bodies."

Investment Growth

Private investments have gone up from 185 million Israeli pounds in 1953 to 265 million in 56, the report establishes. It also shows the increase in "gross domestic capital formation" in the country, which includes dwellings, non-residential buildings and other construction, transport equipment, machinery and other equipment, and stocks in share corporations.

This figure almost doubled in the last four years, increasing from 332.8 million Israeli pounds to 623.2 million. Manufacturing production increased by 143.59% in the four years while agricultural production went up during those years by 156.48%.

The figures concerning Israel are part of an overall report, entitled Economic Developments in the Middle East, 1956-1957, issued by the United Nations as a supplement to its world economic survey for 1957.

The inflationary cycle is worldwide according to the world survey. The report also shows that, in the entire Middle East region, Israel ranked first in figures for per capita consumption. Israel's figures show the country's inhabitants having "a total caloric intake of 2,860 per day," with Turkey next and Egypt third.

Pledges Support Of Jewish Rights

NEW YORK — Ambassador Mongi Slim of Tunisia has assured Dr. Maurice L. Perlzweig, representative of the World Jewish Congress, that his Government had no desire to curtail the opportunities of the Jewish community in his country to exercise the right of association, and that any revision of the statute under which the Jewish community operates would be made only after full and sympathetic consultation with the community.

Recalling that among those who had been interned before independence with President Bourguiba and himself were a number of Jewish leaders who had been in the forefront of the struggle, the Ambassador declared that the Tunisian national movement had been fighting for the freedom of all Tunisians, including the Jews.

Dr. Perlzweig had conveyed the apprehensions of many Jewish leaders that contemplated changes reported in the press might establish a precedent which would create difficulties for other Jewish communities facing similar problems. He expressed the hope that these apprehensions were unfounded. The Ambassador undertook to communicate immediately with his government.

Ask Aid In Moving Graves In Harbin

LONDON — Local authorities in Harbin, North China, have ordered the removal of all graves within the city limits, including the Jewish cemetery which contains 3,500 graves, the World Jewish Congress reported last week.

Thus far, only graves still tended by relatives or friends are being moved. Unless the others are moved, at community expense, they will be levelled without exhumation to make way for new building projects. However, the community has no funds available for this purpose and has appealed to Jewish communities throughout the world and to the United Hias Service for assistance. (United Hias is a beneficiary of the United Jewish Appeal.)

(In Rome, the Union of Italian Jewish Communities issued a notice to all Italian Jewish communities to inform all former residents of Harbin of the problem and to enlist their aid.)

General Dayan Stirs Controversy With Series Of Speeches

JERUSALEM — Premier David Ben Gurion, in his capacity of Defense Minister, ordered Brig. Moshe Dayan, former Chief of Staff now on leave, to forego public appearances "in the interests of hygienic politics."

Ben Gurion announced his order in Knesset during a debate on a Herut motion of non-confidence in the government for its permitting Brig. Dayan, a member of the armed forces, to make political speeches. The Herut motion was defeated 63 to 27.

Dayan, who resigned as Chief of Staff and is on leave from the Army studying at the Hebrew University, made a controversial re-entry into Israel's public life.

Dayan, a hero to Israel's youth, made a series of speeches on the problems which the youth of Israel must solve. In doing so, he has trodden on the toes of the old-timers and functionaries of Mapai, whose young members consider Dayan one of their future political leaders; according to The Jerusalem Post. The Post article continues:

Dayan's future political chances seem rather slim. He has antagonized the moshavim, the kibbutzim, the industrial workers — in fact the majority of voters.

He proposed sending out Israel students to contact American youth and interest them in Israel. He blamed Israel youth for its inactivity.

Dayan claims — contrary to the prevailing complaints against the Jews of the Diaspora—that Israel is duty-bound to build a bridge to all Jews, since their Jewishness is independent of whether they intend to immigrate to Israel, or whether they buy Israel Bonds, contribute to the U. J. A., invest in Israel or not.

Moreover, the Jewry of the Diaspora has done its duty toward the new immigrants through its financial aid. It is the Israeli who has failed to give his share in full measure, in the cultural and social assimilation of the immigrants.

Live With Immigrants

There were too few teachers and educators who apart from teaching the immigrants grammar and mathematics were prepared to live among them and introduce them first and foremost to a new way of life.

Some of Dayan's fellow students at HU defended their lack of idealism — at least their failure to leave the cities — as being part and parcel of the atmosphere which the ruling parties had created.

Israelis have also failed, Dayan charges, in the field of national economic development which is lagging seriously because of shortage of funds, while at the same time there is a constant increase in per capita consumption.

Beehive Stirred

What stirred up the beehive was the charge in Dayan's speeches — that all political parties, his own Mapai not excluded, bear responsibility for playing it up to the voter by programs promising more consumption instead of more savings and investment in development.

The old-timers who lead his party feel that such a charge is actually directed against them and naturally try to fight back.

Press Comment

Examining the debate sparked off in Mapai circles by the entrance of Moshe Dayan into the political arena, Hatzofe, religious newspaper, avers that the emergence of this young group which maintains that the State is above all, must attract the attention of all sections of the public and especially that part of it which gives priority to the spiritual, moral and social values in which it sees the essence of the State. "Many of us want to see the resurgence of halutzit, provided it comes by way of individual freedom and is not dictated from above," said Hatzofe.

Herut writes that "this internal debate cannot be deemed serious so long as it does not revolve round the question: Whither? Such a party as Mapai cannot build the nation, redeem our homeland or spur on voluntary activity, for it itself needs healing. The only medicine that will save it is a stretch in the Opposition that may teach it to influence people with ideas, not by strength of office. It is not clear whether Mapai in the Opposition will be able to generate ideas; it is only clear that if it continues to rule it will remain rich in assets but poor in values."

Dayan Must Choose

Ha'aretz, non-party newspaper writes that Dayan must choose between the Army and politics. If he chooses the former, he should forego making speeches on wages, efficiency dismissals, development, etc. Ben Gurion did a yeoman job of insisting that the army be purged of all party influence; he should not retreat now, even if this means a ban on speeches by Army men who may be able to turn voters toward Mapai; Ha'aretz declared.

Herut writes that its movement for which the Army is the apple of its eye, shall not put up with attempts to Mapai-ize the Israel Armed Forces.

Haboker said Dayan should not have been permitted to make public appearances even if there was no express ruling in the matter, for men involved in security should not mix in party politics.

Urges United States To Give Guarantee

New York — The United States Government was urged last week "to make a public declaration guaranteeing the territorial integrity of Israel and the Arab states."

The suggestion was voiced by Dr. Joachim Prinz, spiritual leader of Temple B'nai Abraham, Newark, and president of the American Jewish Congress, prior to his departure for a month-long visit to Israel, following which he will proceed to Geneva to attend a plenary session of the World Jewish Congress executive throughout the world.

The Geneva meeting, which will be held July 23-27, will deal with problems affecting Jewish life throughout the world. Dr. Prinz stated. These problems include the grave threat to the position of Jewish communities in the communist world and particularly in the Soviet Union where a policy of ruthlessly destroying Jewish cultural and communal life is being perpetuated. "It is of decisive importance for the future of the Jewish people," Dr. Prinz stated, "to bring pressure on the Soviet regime so that it will do away with its discrimination against the Jewish minority and grant it the same facilities to maintain its identity that are granted to other minorities in the USSR."

Policemen Eject London Rioters

LONDON — A number of Neturei Karta and Agudas Israel members were ejected from a meeting here last week for creating a disturbance during an address by Zalman Shragai, Jewish Agency executive member. The demonstrators, who attempted to disrupt the meeting, were carried out by policemen.

Shragai, appealing for religious Jews to migrate to Israel and thus assist in the development of religious life was a speaker at the first Mizrahi-Hapoel Hamizrahi meeting ever held in the Stamford Hill district, a stronghold of Neturei Karta sect members. After analyzing religious problems in Israel, Shragai said that "perfection" in religious matters was still far from achievement, possible because "religious Jews in the Diaspora do not emigrate to Israel."

Leaders Say Shah Helps Jews In Iran

NEW YORK — American Jewish groups warmly welcomed the arrival in the United States of the Shah of Iran, a staunch friend of the Western Powers whose liberal treatment of the Jews of Iran is indicative of his progressive inclinations.

Jewish leaders pointed out that under the reign of the young ruler the lot of the Jews in Iran has greatly improved and is better than at any time in contemporary history. Various world Jewish organizations have been permitted to build their networks of schools, vocational training centers and social and medical services in the Jewish community. These have gone far to wipe out illiteracy and the worst diseases indigenous to the area.

Under the young Shah, Jews of Iran have begun to return to Israel, reviving the legendary glory of Cyrus of Persia under whose rule the first great return of the Jewish people to the Holy Land took place. Then, the Jews started out, with the support and gifts of that great Persian king, to rebuild the Second Temple. Since 1948, when Israel was established, over 20,000 Iranian Jews reached the Jewish State. American Jewish leaders expressed their hope that this living bridge will pave the way for friendship between Iran and Israel.

The Joint Distribution Committee, with funds provided by the United Jewish Appeal, is now operating in Iran, giving aid to 17,000 Jews and feeding 5,000 children in its canteens. ORT (a beneficiary of the United Jewish Appeal) operates schools in Teheran, Shiraz and Isquahan where 1,900 Jewish students receive vocational training. The Alliance Israelite Universelle teaches 8,000 Jewish children in its 23 schools in Iran, while other educational institutions provide education for 3,000 more children of school age. The Jewish community in Iran, which numbers about 80,000 persons, dates back to the destruction of the First Temple.

Church Drive Starts For Stricter Laws

DENVER — A church movement for adoption of a Sunday closing law, which may affect kosher markets which are closed on Saturdays and open on Sundays, is underway. Rabbi Manuel Laderman, president of the Denver Rabbinical Council, announced.

Rabbi Laderman said he had discussed the problem with leaders of the Denver Council of Churches, which has organized a campaign for a stricter closing law. He said he hoped exceptions would be made for Jewish businessmen who observe their own Sabbath by closing their places of business on Saturdays. He said it was deplorable that so few Jewish shopkeepers closed their stores on Saturday.

The spiritual leader also criticized Brandeis University for playing football on Saturday, contrasting that policy with the refusal of Brigham Young University, a Mormon Church-sponsored school, to play baseball on Sunday in the regional college tournament at Omaha.

Rabbi Laderman said it would be no great loss to Jewish prestige

Editor's Mailbox

To the Editor:

There has been considerable said, in recent months, in letters sent to the Jewish Herald, regarding the Vaad Hakashruth. There is in my mind (and I suppose in the minds of many others) a grave doubt as to whether all these writers are sincere, especially when one associates "bacon and eggs" to a synagogue. Though they all quote Rabbinical passages, I wonder if they are "Le Shem Shemayim" (for the sanctification of the Almighty). I am beginning to think that the remark, "Oh, liberty, what crimes are committed in thy name," should be paraphrased to "Oh, Torah, what sins are committed in thy name."

In my humble opinion, if one has suggestions as to how the Vaad Hakashruth can be improved — and I believe it can — let him come forth with constructive suggestions, and not desecrate that which has been holy to Jews from time immemorial, and there should be no knocking of personalities. The public is disgusted with this.

I believe that the Jewish Herald will be pleased to lend its columns as a forum, and if honest constructive suggestions are made, the truth will prevail.

We should endeavor, not to destroy, but to build up and improve that which we have.

Harris Miller

If Brandeis University would cancel its football program rather than play on Saturday, particularly in view of the Jewish-sponsored university's unimpressive gridiron record.

the NEVELE fulfills your every vacation inclination

The New Family Plan Rates make staying at home a wasteful extravagance.

The Nevele is a 500-acre, picture-windowed, air-conditioned Playground... whose every building is connected by glass-enclosed Arcade and Tunnel (a weatherproofed wonderland)... where the days are filled with a tang of playing and living on the NEW 9 HOLE GOLF COURSE, Outdoor Pool and Aquabana, Bridle Path, Tennis Courts, Lake and WAIKIKI Indoor Pool and Health Club. For entertainment, leave it to Director ART KAHN who so suavely directs the Big Time Shows.

Stroll or Siesta, you will agree that vacationing at the Nevele is like walking into another world where Nature always gives a Command Performance.
