JACS Training Program Opens At Jewish Center

The Jewish Community Center will open its 1959-60 Junior Aides (JACS) Training Program this Monday morning. This leadership training program, one of the first of its kind, has attracted national attention. An intensive full-time program will be conducted for six weeks beginning Monday, followed by a workshop series and a volunteer service hours program.

JAC training sessions include lectures and discussions on Group Leadership, Child Development and Behavior, and Health and Safety Practices. Workshops are conducted in games, sports, music, dramatics, story telling, etc.

There are discussion programs on Friday and a recreational program, also.

The program is directed by Art Eisenstein, assisted by Mrs. Leo Borenstein, Mark Forman and Matthew Millman.

Ben Gurion Considers Alternatives In Crisis

TEL AVIV — As the political crisis in the Israeli coalition government continued, Premier David Ben Gurion has been reported as considering calling an early general election.

Although the elections are scheduled for November, it was reported that Ben Gurion had said the possibility of holding them sooner had been considered at a top-level meeting of the Premier's moderate, Laborite Mapai party.

However, a source close to the Premier said Ben Gurion was still determined to oust four Ministers of the two Left-Wing parties, the Ahdut Avodah and the Mapam, from his coalition government.

Last week these ministers and their parties sided against the Premier in the Knesset vote on Ben Gurion's controversial $2,800,000 deal to sell Israeli arms to West Germany.

Although the Knesset vote backed the Premier, the opposition votes amounted to a formal move to split the coalition.

Reports Over 300,000 Jews Driven From Moslem Lands

NEW YORK — More than 200,000 Jews have been driven from Iraq, Egypt and Syria in the last twenty-five years, according to a report, "Jews in Moslem Lands," issued last week by the World Jewish Congress. The report also says that 100,000 Jews have fled from other Arab lands, including Yemen and Libya.

Makes Survey for Congress

The survey was made by Dr. Nehemiah Robinson of New York director of the organization's Institute of Jewish Affairs, for the plenary assembly of the congress to be held in Stockholm Aug. 2 to 12.

"The accession of the Nazi party to power in Germany had dire consequences for the status of Jews in Moslem lands." says the report. Persecution followed because of the hatred of Israel it adds. In parts of the Middle East, the report asserts, only small groups of elderly Jews remain where there once were considerable Jewish communities.

The former community of about 100,000 Jews in the United Arab Republic of Egypt and Syria has been reduced to between 15,000 and 20,000. Considerable communities remain in Morocco, with more than 200,000 Jews, and in Tunisia, with about 67,000, the report states.

No Discrimination in Lebanon

"The only country (of the eleven surveyed) which has not practiced considerable discrimination is Lebanon," writes Dr. Robinson. There the 3,500 Jews of 1933 rose to 10,000 now, he estimates.

A few hundred families reside in Afghanistan, he reports, with about 80,000 Jews living in Iran, 4,000 to 5,000 in Iraq, 4,000 in Libya, 48,000 to 55,000 in Turkey and several hundred in Yemen.

75,000 TOURISTS IN 1958

TEL AVIV — More than 75,000 tourists visited Israel during 1958, contributing more than 13 million dollars in foreign exchange to the Israeli Treasury.

Claims Defeat For Israelis In Inge Toft Affair

CAIRO — The Egyptians were told last week that Israel had suffered a defeat in her attempt to get a ship under Israeli charter through the Suez Canal, according to a New York Times article.

Quoting a Copenhagen correspondent, the influential newspaper Al Ahram said shipping circles in Denmark expected that the Danish freighter Inge Toft would unload her cargo and return to Haifa, Israel.

The Inge Toft is chartered to a New York concern that officials here say is controlled by Israel. She has been held at Port Said since May 21 because her captain refuses to give up her cargo, which the United Arab Republic claims as a prize of war.

This is the first time anyone here has heard that Al Ahram has a Copenhagen correspondent. The dispatch is believed to have been written here as a reflection of the Cairo Government's views. However, a Government spokesman said nothing had been decided officially.

News Causes a Stir

The news story, published a day after the departure of Dag Hammarskjold, the United Nations Secretary General, from a two-day visit here to discuss the canal dispute, caused a stir in diplomatic circles.

In the last few days there had been speculation among diplomats that the Inge Toft affaiar might be decided by letting her return to Haifa with her cargo in a compromise that would let both sides salvage something.

Israel would get her cargo back and President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic would hold firm to his policy that no ship under the Israeli flag or charter could transit the canal. He would also escape an awkard position for forthcoming negotiations on a loan by the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development to improve the canal.

Cargo to Be Kept

Until last week, spokesman for the Foreign Ministry had been saying that the Inge Toft would be free to go through the canal if she gave up her cargo, which originated in Israel. Then President Nasser made a statement indicating the ban applied to the ship; he did not mention the cargo.

Last week Al Ahram quoted the "Copenhagen correspondent" as saying that "it has become clear that the ship will not be able to go through the canal and that the Israeli cargo will not be permitted to leave U. A. R. territorial waters."

The phrase about territorial waters seems to imply that the Inge Toft cargo is to be seized not because the vessel tried to go through the canal but because the cargo was discovered within the maritime borders of the United Arab Republic. The United Arab Republic of Egypt and Syria considers that it is still at war with Israel because no peace treaty was signed following the 1948-49 Palestine War

Pictures Of Desecration Of Jewish Cemeteries, Synagogues Made Public

NEW YORK — The American Jewish Congress made public last week a series of pictures said to show the desecration of Jewish cemeteries and synagogues in the Soviet Union within the last year.

Copies of the originals were exhibited by Dr. Joachim Prinz, president of the organization, at a news conference at the Stephen Wise Congress House.

Dr. Prinz, who declared that he was satisfied with the picture's authenticity, said that tourists had taken the pictures and that prints had been made for him.

Dr. Prinz said the "pictorial evidence is another indication that the Soviet Government has now apparently undertaken to fragmentize those meager remains of organized Jewish religious life which have still been permitted."

En route to San Francisco on Friday, Frol R. Kozlov, a Soviet First Deputy Premier, denied that any synagogues had been forcibly closed in the Soviet Union. The visiting official called attention to Soviet "ministers and deputy ministers who are of Jewish nationality." He denied that the Soviet Union was suppressing the Jewish religion, saying that the charge was a fabrication.

A report from the United Nations two weeks ago described widespread suppression of the Jewish faith in the Soviet Union and told of the closing of synagogues, desecration of cemeteries and arrests.

One photograph showed a boarded-up synagogue at Kremenchug, in the Ukraine, where Dr. Prinz said 20,000 Jews lived. He added that it was the only synagogue in the city and that Soviet officials had refused to restore it as a place of worship.

Still another photograph showed a mass grave at Babiyar, a district in Kiev. Eighty thousand Jews' bodies are buried in this cemetery, in which tombstones had been toppled over. They were victims of Nazis and Ukrainians, Dr. Prinz said, "and no effort" had been made by Soviet officials to correct the burial ground's condition.

Other photographs depicted a desecrated cemetery in Kiev, which has a population of 200,000 Jews. Another cemetery in which tombstones had been thrown was at Bendery, near Rumania.

In reply to Mr. Kozlov, Dr. Prinz declared that "no one has claimed that the synagogues in the three main cities (Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev) have been closed." He added that "the information available shows that in these main centers, which are regularly visited by tourists, the authorities took some care to avoid steps which might 'leak out.' "

Mr. Kozlov, in his statement, said synagogues were open for worship in the three cities.

Dr. Prinz also declared that restrictions on the baking of matzoh (unleavened bread for Passover) were lifted in Moscow and Leningrad "while remaining in force in Odessa, Kharkov, Kishinev, and Rostov — cities which are not regularly visited by outsiders."

Dr. Prinz made reference to Kharkov, Voronezh, Chkalov, Bubushkin, Bobruisk, Stalino, Chernigov and Novoselitsa, where it has been reported that synagogues have been closed recently.

"We would welcome assurances from Mr. Kozlov to the effect that these synagogues will now be reopened," he said. "We would welcome assurances that those Jewish communities where the inhabitants have been intimidated by the authorities and made to sign declarations promising that they will not assemble for prayers even in private, will now again be granted this minimal human right."

Kozlov Calls Reports Slander

NEW YORK — Frol R. Kozlov, a Soviet First Deputy Premier, visiting America, in response to a question by a reporter based on a letter in the New York Times from Donald Harrington and John Haynes Holmes, prominent New York clergymen, and Norman Thomas, the United States Socialist, called the reports a slander on the Soviet Union.

The letter called attention to seeming discrimination against Soviet Jews. It said lists of Soviet scientists by nationalities omitted mention of any Jews.

No Reply on Scientists

Mr. Kozlov did not mention the omission of Jews from lists of scientists. His statement said:

"These reports on Jews are a slander on the Soviet Union and on its policies toward Jews. In the Soviet Union, Jews, like any other nationality, occupy their worthy place in society. We have ministers and deputy ministers who are of Jewish nationality. We have some prominent men of science, including Lenin Prize winners, who are of Jewish nationality. Some of our ablest artistically creative people are Jews.

Calls Charges Slander

"As to the accusation regarding the slights toward the religious feelings of Jews, that is completely a fabrication. They are completely free in the practice of their religion. No synagogues have been closed in the Soviet Union. These charges are slander. There are synagogues in Moscow, Leningrad and Kiev for example.

I "personally know a rabbi in Leningrad. When I worked there, he approached me and asked that the necessary ingredients for matzos (unleavened bread) be put on sale there. We did sell these ingredients and the Jews were free to celebrate the holiday (Passover) in the traditional way.

"I had many friends with whom I studied and who are still my friends of Jewish nationality. The same is true of the other members of our Government.

"God give it that the Jews in any other country should enjoy the same life as they do in the Soviet Union."

MRS. RAYMOND LAURANS

Funeral services for Mrs. Ann Vondele Laurans of 482 Lloyd Avenue, wife of Raymond Laurans, who died on July 4, were held Sunday at Temple Beth El. Burial was in Congregation Sons of Israel and David Cemetery.

Rabbi William G. Braude officiated. Rabbi Samuel Ruderman of Temple Beth El in Fall River participated in the services.

Mrs. Laurans, who was prominent in civic and religious organizations, was born in Media, Pa., in 1914, a daughter of the late Sarah and Isaac Rudnick of Media.

A graduate of the Taylor Hospital for Nursing in Gridley Park, Pa., she lived in Fall River from 1937 to 1945, taking up residence in Providence in the latter year.

Among the organizations in which she was active were the National Council of Jewish Women, the Jewish Community Center, the Girl Scouts of America, the Jewish Home for the Aged, the Miriam Hospital Women's Association, of which she was once a member of the board of directors; the General Jewish Committee; Hadassah, the Women's Association of Brandeis University, the Sisterhood of Temple Beth El, of which temple she was a congregant, and the Parents' Association of Lincoln School.

Survivors, in addition to her husband, are two daughters, Patricia W. Laurans, 20, and Lynne H. Laurans, 14; two sisters, Mrs. Ida C. Feldman of Cranford, N. J., and Mrs. Esther E. Reber of Philadelphia; two brothers, Al Rudnick of Media, and Samuel Rudnick of Vallejo, Calif.

THE BODY OF THE LATE RABBI JOSHUA WERNER WAS FLOWN TO ISRAEL FOR BURIAL — Rabbi Joshua Werner, blessed be his soul, now rests in peace like our biblical Joseph. His body was removed from the Lincoln Park cemetery, Monday, June 22nd and was flown by plane to Israel, the land of his people. The month of Sivan, reflection of the giving of our Torah is the month he was put to rest. The center of his activity for almost a generation was Providence where he left an indelible imprint of his spirit and influence. To the many that loved him, he was above all the incomparable teacher in the time honored and noble sense of master and moreh derech, so rare in our day.

The funeral which took place in Tiberias, Israel, was attended by many great Rabbis who knew him for his devotion and love to Torah. He was put to rest with great honor. The day he was buried was declared officially as a day of mourning for the city of Tiberias. The legacy which Rabbi Joshua Werner bequeathed to posterity is indeed a glorious one in service, devotion, self-sacrifice and achievement. Perhaps his greatest gift to American Jewry was himself. For it was in the unique qualities of personality that his true greatness was best reflected.

Rebitzen Werner and her friends who have strived to arrange these last honors for the dead goes an indefineable satisfaction of having placed a great teacher in Israel among other great men in their respective generations. May he rest in peace in his new home, the garden of the eternal resting place.

THIS WEEK WE ARE HAPPY TO PRESENT

An Orchid To...
Mrs. Harry Smith

Ann Smith is a most familiar and popular figure in Pawtucket, particularly the Ladies Aid and Sisterhood of Congregation Ohawe Sholam, where she is to all intents and purposes a youthful "elder statesman". Mrs. Smith served this organization as president, is now honorary president, and has held innumerable offices and chairmanships during her 22 years of activity. During her tenure as president she proposed and the Ladies Aid and Sisterhood conducted its first child welfare drive.

Mrs. Smith also was president of the Pawtucket Chapter of Hadassah for three years, and received a citation for her sparkling work in promoting the sale of Government Bonds during the war.

A Carnation To...
Joseph Engle

The genial Joe Engle, a true sportsman in every sense of the word, is a popular man wherever he goes, and his stature in the community is high.

Mr. Engle is now in his second term in the significant post of chairman of the board of Touro Fraternal Association, of which he has been a member and board member for many years; and he is a past chancellor commander of Knights of Pythias Post 24. He also serves on the boards of Temple Beth-Israel and the Jewish Home for the Aged; and he has been active with the General Jewish Committee and other communal organizations. In addition, he is president of the American Hebrew Benefit Association, with which he has been associated for some 30 years.

The
Sons

An old man was worried because his sons were constantly quarrelling. One day he asked each one in turn to break a bundle of sticks tied together by cord. No one could. Then the father gave each son a single stick. "Now try," he said. Each son broke his stick with the greatest of ease. "See, my sons," he said, "the power that is in unity. Alone you will surely fail."

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

DEBT INTEREST BOOSTS LIVING COSTS

Only 10 years ago interest on your personal debts took an insignificant fraction of all the dollars you spent on services.

Today just interest on your debts is taking a large, a record and a rising chunk of every service dollar you spend.

A couple of years after World War II personal debt interest was at the bottom of the list of your service expenditures. The only item taking a smaller percentage of your dollar was foreign travel — and Americans weren't voluntarily touring the world in 1947.

Today the average family is spending a larger percentage of its service dollar for interest than for all religion and welfare, or for all care of apparel, or for all private education and research. It's taking almost as large a percentage as all recreation!

In the late '40s the average American family had only a picayune load of personal debt. There wasn't much we could buy during and right after World War II, so we had no incentive to borrow.

Today our personal debts are soaring toward a new peak and there's no doubt we'll add billions to our debts this year.

A decade ago the level of interest charges on the loans we did have was spectacularly low. During World War II interest rates had been frozen to help the U. S. Treasury borrow cheaply, and the rates remained low until the start of the '50s. In the early postwar years the country was filled with idle cash, and lenders were eagerly seeking borrowers, were willing to lend at almost any price.

Today interest rates are at the highest levels since the panic of the '30s, and are still rising. The top credit risks in our nation are paying twice or more than twice what they paid for loans 10 years ago.

If, at the start of this column, I'd try to tease you into reading it by asking you to guess what item in all the services you buy had risen most in cost in the past decade, your answer probably would have been rents or household operations, or maybe you would have pinpointed medical care, appliance and auto repairs, the like. And, obviously, we are buying more shelter, medical care, repairs, etc., than ever before, and what we're buying is costing more than ever before.

But, tucked into a just-released study of postwar trends in consumer services by the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City are a

Brody-Geller

Rabbi Abraham I. Jacobson officiated at the wedding of Miss Esther Joan Geller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hyman C. Geller of 116 Garden City Drive, Cranston, to Melvin Brody, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brody of 128 Tyndall Avenue. The 9 p. m. ceremony was held on June 6 at the Commodore Room of Johnson's Hummocks.

Gowned in white Italian silk with a portrait neckline and trimmed with lace, sequins and pearl appliques at the waistline, with a full skirt ending in a chapel train, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She carried a prayerbook centered with a white orchid and stephanotis.

Miss Sheila Glantz was maid of honor, and Mrs. Maud Geller was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Judith Krasner, Mrs. Sylvia Geller, Rochelle Brody and Linda Brody, sisters of the bridegroom. The attendants were gowned in pure pink silk.

Leonard Brody was best man for his brother. Ushers were Philip Geller and Lawrence Geller, brothers of the bride, Sheldon Abrams, Paul Botvin, Gerald Reuter, Sheldon Land, Arthur Rubin and David Brody.

After a wedding trip to Miami Beach, Fla., the couple will reside at 547 Laurel Hill Avenue, Cranston.

Ginsburg-Roth

Miss Barbara Faith Estelle Roth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Roth of 23 Alabama Avenue was married to Marvin Leonard Ginsburg, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel I. Ginsburg of 152 Easton Avenue, Warwick, on June 7 in the Commodore Room of Johnson's Hummocks. Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a pure silk gown with a portrait neckline, and embellished with iridescent sequins and pearls, and with a basque waist, three-quarter length sleeves, and a chapel train. Her imported silk illusion veil fell from a crown of pearls. She carried a prayer book with a white orchid and a shower of stephanotis.

Miss Cornelia Ann Powers, gowned in blue peau-de-soie with a jewel neckline and flared skirt, was maid of honor. She wore a matching tiara and carried a cascade of pink roses and blue delphinium.

After a wedding trip to Miami Beach, Fla., the couple will reside at 131 Adelaide Avenue.

Kaplan-Schechter

At a 9 o'clock candlelight ceremony Saturday evening, July 4, in the ballroom of the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel, Miss Sheila Avis Schechter, daughter of Mrs. Mandel Schechter of 55 Cyr Street, Providence, and the late Mr. Schechter, became the bride of Gerald Kaplan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Kaplan of 17 Davis Avenue, Cranston.

Rabbi Saul Leeman of the Cranston Jewish Center officiated at the double ring ceremony, which was followed by a reception and dinner.

Given in marriage by her uncle Louis Krakowsky, the bride wore tulle over taffeta with a molded bodice and hand-clipped flowers embroidered with sequins and seed pearls circling the scoop neckcouple of statistics which underline the startling jump in this generally overlooked item of personal debt interest. Specifically:

In 1947 around 31 cents of every spending dollar went for services. Of this, only half a penny went for interest on personal debts.

In 1957, 37-1/2 cents of every spending dollar was going into services. Of this, 1.7 cents was going into personal debt interest — more than the 1.3 cents going for religion and welfare, the 1,2 cents going for apparel service, the 1.1 cents going for private education and research, the .6 cents going for foreign travel. Back in 1957 interest was taking almost as big a percentage as recreation (1.8 cents) and it could be that by now the interest chunk is as big or even bigger.

You don't see this on a price tag, of course. When you buy a car or an appliance on the installment plan your attention is centered on the total price and the monthly payments due. Part of the cost is loan interest, though, and the pennies in interest mount into dollars over 24 or 36 months.

What's more, this cost is heading clearly and sharply upward. We're taking on more loans to buy more goods and the loans we're taking on are becoming more expensive.

If ever you broke down what debt interest is costing you, I'll wager you'd be amazed to see what a part it is playing in your climbing cost of living.

The "Finished" Fighter

The furore caused by Ingemar Johansson's scandalous training methods in his successful pursuit of the heavyweight championship of the world has died down. In the various clubs, the fighters have been warned that what is good for the champion is definitely not for them. The managers are insisting that their time-honored (?) methods are still the best, and that their hirelings will conform, or else.

And that's that.

The matter is closed.

When Rocky Marciano was champion, I frequently complained in this space that he was being overworked and overtrained, and was leaving his best fight up in his training quarters. I argued that Rocky was becoming a butcher in the ring, rather than the knockout artist he once had been, and I blamed it on the awesome extent of his overwork.

The events of the recent championship fight have borne out those beliefs completely, as far as I am concerned.

There are those who say Marciano definitely is planning a comeback. If true, that would be regrettable. But his retirement also was regrettable, and it was caused by his complete weariness (mental and physical) with the nature of the grind he was being subjected to most of the time. Rocky himself hit the keynote of my complaint when he commented after Johansson's victory that if he had trained like that, he would still be fighting. I'll add to that the personal feeling that he might still be champion.

We've read so much about the new champion's dancing and female companionship during his training that we might be inclined to think he did no training at all. What is not played up is the fact that (1) Johansson was in good condition when he established the training camp; (2) he got up early for extended road work every day; (3) he went 15 rounds in the ring almost every day.

Physically, Ingemar followed a sound program. Not even his fiancee could interrupt that. The time he devoted to the girl and his family came after the requirements of his training.

This brings me back to Rocky Marciano — the only man before Johansson who was truly a one-punch knockout artist.

Rocky always was in fighting condition. When, for example, he wanted to spend the day in Providence, he would run several miles from Brockton, hitch-hike a ride for a while, then get out and run some more, and so on until he arrived. In addition, Marciano was a clean living man who never had to abstain from anything when he went into training. His weight was always constant, varying only a few pounds from the day he started training to the day he entered the ring.

Yet, what Al Weill and Charley Goldman did to their champion was, in my book, criminal. As soon as he signed for a bout, Rocky was hied away for "preliminary" training. After a couple of weeks of this, he went into actual training. They polished up his powerful right hand, they taught him all about the niceties of boxing, they improved his left, they "gave" him combinations, they shortened his famous blockbusters. They trained him, and trained him, and trained him some more; and then they trained him all over again.

Two weeks before the fight, Rocky would be ready to go, and would have to taper off a bit before resuming full scale work. Mike Thomas would send back stories about the new Marciano, the "finished" fighter. And he was right. Marciano was finished. He was overtrained to the point where his punches lost their thunder, their sharpness, their timing.

The ones who suffered the most were, strangely enough, Rocky's opponents. Where a sharp Marciano could end a fight with one of his famed "wild" swings, the "finished" Marciano could not put that punch across. Instead, he butchered his opponents with punches that did not land solidly, but still hurt; punches that, while they caused agonies of pain, were not solid enough to finish off his opponents. The knockout artist lost his ability to knock out; he inflicted terrible beatings instead.

Who can ever forget the night at the Auditorium when Rocky, while taking a step backward, threw a right that lifted his opponent right off the floor and deposited him flat on his back some feet away. There was no getting up from that one.

And this same Marciano, overtrained and stale, found it impossible to land a clean punch on a workhorse like Lee Oma (I think that was his name) in Philadelphia before a nationwide TV audience. Oma offered no resistance, but refused to quit. And he suffered horribly. So did Roland LaStarza . . . and even Ezzard Charles . . . and many others.

Palais-Tobin

The Garden Room of the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel was the scene of the wedding on June 9 of Miss Jane S. Tobin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tobin of Coombs Street, Rumford to James B. Palais, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Palais of Salem, N. H. Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception in the Garden Room.

Miss Maxine Bronstein was maid of honor, and Richard W. Hoffman was best man.

Gowned in Alencon lace and silk organza, the bride was given in marriage by her father. She carried a Bible marked with orchids and stephanotis.

Following a wedding trip to New York City, Mr. and Mrs. Palais will reside at 285 Edgewood Avenue, New Haven, Conn.

Miss Glassman Honored

Miss Sheila M. Glassman was the guest of honor at a luncheon given on June 17 at the Grist Mill, Seekonk, Mass., by Mrs. Louis D. Gleckman of 179 Calla Street. The luncheon was attended by 120 guests from New York, Connecticut and Massachusetts.

Miss Glassman will become the bride of Robert Gleckman on Labor Day.

25th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Jacobson of 112 Sayles Avenue, Pawtucket, were honored at a surprise 25th wedding anniversary party given by their friends on June 12 at the El Marocco Supper Club.

Guests attended from Rhode Island, Massachusetts, Ohio and New York.

First Child Born

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Schwartz of 4 Mount Avenue, announce the birth of their first child, a daughter, Judy Lynne, on June 12. Mrs. Schwartz is the former Ronnie Goldman.

Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schwartz of 71 Hartshorn Road. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan Goldman of 198 Governor Street. Great-grandparents are Mrs. Saul Wax and Mrs. Louis Goldman.

Entertains Co-Workers

Mrs. Gladys Morein entertained her co-workers of the Outlet Shoe department on Monday, June 22, at the Bradley Cafe, in honor of her niece Sara Barbara Greenberg and her fiance, Robert George Paige.

Podiatrists Honor Dr. Myron Keller

Dr. Myron Keller, a practicing podiatrist in Providence for 26 years, was honored by the R. I. Podiatry Society at the annual banquet held recently at Lindy's Restaurant, Cranston. Dr. Frank Goldstein, retiring president, presented an award to Dr. Keller.

A former president of the Society, Dr. Keller has served as treasurer for several years, and has again been re-elected to that post. He is also editor of the Society's monthly publication, "R.I. Podiatry Journal."

As legislative chairman for the Society since 1933, Dr. Keller was responsible for re-writing and obtaining passage of the Podiatry Practice Act, now being used as a model law in many states. As chairman of the speakers bureau, he helped organize Chapter 1291 of Providence Toastmasters International, which provides training for members of the Society as public speakers.

line. The full skirt was enhanced with scrolls and flowers of organdy ending in a sweeping train. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a crown of matching sequins and seed pearls. She carried white orchids and stephanotis centered on a family Bible.

Mrs. Lester Finklestein, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She was attired in a pink organza cocktail dress with a fitted bodice and a powder puff skirt. She carried cascades of rubrum lilies.

The bridesmaids, who were gowned in pink organza with fitted bodices and full skirts, included the Misses Linda Kaplan and Freda Konisky, cousins of the groom; Suzette Herz and Brynne Levinson. They carried rubrum lilies with carnations. The flower girls were Miss Gayle Frances Krakowsky, cousin of the bride; Miss Susan Rothstein, cousin of the groom, and Miss Jackie Sue Storti, cousin of the bridegroom. They carried colonial bouquets of pink carnations with white marguerite daisies.

Richard A. Kaplan, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Among the ushers were Stephen Broomfield, Charles Cohn, Lester Finklestein, brother-in-law of the bride; Alan Gilstein, the bride's cousin; Jordan Konisky, cousin of the bridegroom; Warren Rabinowitz, Arthur Rothstein, the bridegroom's uncle; and Burton Weiser. Neil Jay Finklestein, the bride's nephew, was the ring bearer.

The bride's mother wore a cocktail dress of pink lace with a full panel back. The mother of the groom was clad in a cocktail dress of pink organza with a tiered skirt. Both wore white orchids.

The couple are honeymooning in Miami Beach.

Jewish Students In The Midwest

In back of this is a curious distortion of the function of college. An acute and responsible observer remarked: "Let's face it. Jewish parents send their daughters here to marry nice, bright Jewish boys." The single-mindedness with which their dutiful daughters pursue this goal does a lot of mischief. It induces them to downgrade the academic side of their experience and to shrug off their own intellectual potentialities. It sends them pell-mell into segregated residence halls not only because the Jewish boys drop in there on Sunday afternoon, but also because it is an implicit advertisement of economic status. Anxieties about dating and marriage rage unabated. A girl who doesn't have a Saturday night date will hesitate to venture from her room and risk public ignominy. A recent Hillel stag dance was a colossal failure. Only a brave handful showed up. Hillel to be sure, does not disdain the role of matchmaker. "Meet your spouse at Hillel House," a sign at Hillel proclaimed with more candor perhaps than good taste.

As a result of the preoccupation with social life and marriage, there is a high turnover rate for women students. If a girl is not going steady by the time she is a junior, the heavens have caved in. She is too old for the undergraduates — they have palled on each other by this time anyway — and somehow there is limited contact with the graduate students. (Many of them are married, and the unmarried ones are often either cloistered types or cannot comfortably mediate between the austerities of their position and the frivolities of undergraduate life.) As a result, hundreds of Jewish girls transfer from Wisconsin after their sophomore years and return, chastened, to local colleges or try their luck at another "out-of-town" college.

For the Jewish fraternity boys, every new freshman class is a great new coming out party. "How's the new talent?" they ask their friends among the "older" sorority girls, in their eyes romantically obsolescent at 19 or 20.

But a reaction is setting in. The university has recently modified its dorm regulations enabling more out-of-state students to live on campus. Rabbi Max Tichtin, the able Hillel director, remarked, "There is nothing in the Jewish religion which pre-ordains segregation." Some of the students are getting increasingly critical of their parents' irrational fears. The conviction is building up that Jewishness is strong enough to survive contact with other religions and folkways. Just as there is a good deal of demonology in Christian thinking about Jews, there is a tendency of some meek-spirited parents to assume that should their daughters come in contact with Christian boys they would be irrevocably lost to Israel.

One of the pleasantest hours of my visit at the University of Wisconsin was spent in an eating cooperative which was religiously integrated, although its tone was set by some spirited Jewish intellectuals from New York and Chicago. There was about them a sense of the absurd and grotesque, a talent for mockery which can only be described as Yiddish. They regaled me with anecdotes about the ROTC ("you march up and down in the Quonset hut, and guys with little stripes yell at you"); the football team ("animal farm"); fraternity boys ("they metabolize a lot, but their ends are trivial"). What struck me was the awe — even joy — with which some of the Wisconsin agriculture and engineering students (ususally identified with bucolic naivete) listened to these epigrammatic thrusts. The next day I watched a Hillel dance group; one of the male dancers was a Wisconsin gentile who became involved through a friend at the co-op.

In other areas of the university — the literary magazine, dramatics, Student Union — Jewish students participate in integrated settings and with healthy results.

At the risk of getting homiletic, I should like to point out some harsh truths which parents of college-age children might well ponder. First, segregation at campus schools tends to reinforce old and ugly stereotypes. When Jewish students herd themselves behind a chromium curtain, gentiles experience not individual Jews but a mass, and it is easy to come away with the old bogies unchanged. (The stereotype at Wisconsin is that Jewish girls are rich, spoiled, with tipped hair and expensive tastes, an image which is, for the most part, nonsense.) Secondly, Jewish fraternities and sororities are by no means indispensable to the good life. Finally, there is a simple, ineluctable responsibility that the Jewish college student has to be part of his community and not to withdraw into a ghetto, however elegant and expensive.

At its creative best, Jewish life involves a delicate equilibrium between participation in the American community and withdrawal to purely Jewish shores. This is the Jewish destiny and the Jewish burden. Individual conscience and values must draw the guide-lines, but the spur should never be xenophobic terror. It has been demonstrated again and again that the healthiest kind of Jewish life is one which has security enough to venture from behind its walls. It's essential as Americans, and it makes sense from a Jewish point of view.

The Fourth of July

BY HARRY GOLDEN

The Fourth of July was a big holiday on the lower East Side of New York. I would say it was the biggest, the one that involved everyone. I never think of the Fourth of July that I do not remember a song that was popular for a year or two when I was growing up:

What's the matter with Johnson?
He's all right.
What's the matter with Jeffries?
He can't fight.
It was on the Fourth of July
That Johnson knocked out Jeffries eye.
What's the matter with Johnson?
He's all right.

This song described the heavyweight championship fight which took place in Reno, Nevada on July 4, 1910. Jack Johnson was the heavyweight champion, perhaps the best Negro athlete to step inside a prize ring. Jim Jeffries was the former champ and he came out of retirement for the bout, but Johnson knocked him out in the fifteenth round.

More than the fight, the song allies itself in my memory with July 4th on the East Side and what it meant to us — most of newcomers to America. For instance, my father, who was a Talmudic scholar and a philosopher, wrote a lengthy letter about the fight for the Yiddish Press. I believe this may have been the first sports item that ever appeared in an American foreign-language newspaper. My father did not offer a blow-by-blow description but rather he tried to explain how this boxing match reflected the American milieu, and —"let us understand it."

Because we were immigrants, it was only natural that we over-celebrated. Everybody had a flag. Flags hung from every window and from every fire escape. Workmen carried them in their pockets and peddlers displayed them on their pushcarts. I have never seen so many flags.

The noise on July Fourth started early, as soon as the sun peeped over the tenement roofs. We had torpedoes which cost twelve for a penny, little round balls that you threw on the pavement. And firecrackers that came in long strings and you lit the first one and the string writhed and squirmed along the street. And the rockets that we set off from the roof. This bombardment never let up. And at night the East Side looked like some strange enchanted city when everyone waved sparklers as they trailed through the streets.

In every neighborhood park there was a city-sponsored band concert. They played all the patriotic marches of John Philip Sousa, relieved occasionally by a Strauss waltz and a Roumanian "doyna" (gypsy melody).

Of all the holidays celebrated in the new world, the East Side understood the Fourth of July the best, because we discovered with great pride that the words on the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia were from Leviticus (25:10) "Proclaim liberty throughout all the land, unto all the inhabitants thereof." And there was always an afternoon oration in one of the parks, usually by a Tammany Sachem with the medallion and sash of his status adding to the color of the occasion.

Times have changed a lot. Firecrackers are outlawed now and most of the parades and celebrations are sponsored by the merchants or the business organzations or the veterans' groups. Sometimes the holiday seems a little solemn which is perhaps as it should be. But we seem to be too intense and nervous about our patriotism; we are not as relaxed as we were when we sang:

What's the matter with Johnson?
He's all right.
What's the matter with Jeffries?
He can't fight.
It was on the Fourth of July
That Johnson knocked out Jeffries eye.
What's the matter with Johnson?
He's all right.
