CIVIL RIGHTS LEGISLATION in states throughout the country has registered "very productive progress during the first six months of this year, with unprecedented moves leveled against discrimination in private housing, it was disclosed in an announcement of a joint survey made by the American Jewish Committee and the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith.

CHANCELLOR JULIUS RABB told the Austrian Parliament last week that his government would respect the principles of freedom of religion and conscience in its relations with religious institutions.

ISRAEL'S CARETAKER GOVERNMENT groped for a quick solution to the country's melting pot problems which were forcefully brought to the fore by a chain of riots erupting against a background of charges of discrimination and bias against an immigrant element of the population.

UNITED NATIONS SECRETARY General Dag Hammarskjöld indicated last week that he had not gotten very far in his recent Cairo talks with President Nasser of the United Arab Republic on freedom of passage of the Suez Canal for Israeli cargoes.

THE PASSING OF DR. ISAAC Halevi Herzog, Ashkenazi Chief Rabbi, revived support last week for an effort to establish one Chief Rabbi and end the duality of separate spiritual leaders for the Ashkenazi and Sephardi communities.

THE ATTACHMENT OF CERTAIN African tribes to Judaism was discovered by Dr. Israel Goldstein during a visit to Africa. Dr. Goldstein, chairman of the Western Hemisphere Executive of the World Jewish Congress, informed the Jewish News that he was told in Uganda that one tribe had been converted to Judaism during the First World War.

JEWES ARE RETURNING TO West Germany from Israel, Australia, South America and Western Europe at the rate of 180 a month. Heinz Galinski, secretary of the West Berlin Jewish community, reported. Ten thousand Jews have returned to West Germany since the end of World War II. Thirty thousand Jews live in West Germany and 1,900 in East Germany. "The reason for their coming back is that they found it too difficult to adapt themselves to the languages, customs and climates of the newly adopted lands," Galinski said.

Grant Refuses To Repudiate Disputed Anti-Semitic Article

WASHINGTON — Major Gen. U. S. Grant III, grandson of the 18th President of the United States, who disseminated an anti-Semitic article in connection with the U. C. Civil War Centennial Commission of which he is chairman, rejected a request from the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith to repudiate the article, it was disclosed Wednesday.

The centennial commission of which he is chairman is sponsored by the U. S. Government. Maj. Gen. Grant, who is 78 years old, admitted that the article he distributed appeared previously in Father Coughlin's anti-Semitic publication "Social Justice" and in the American Mercury which is known for publishing anti-Jewish articles. However, he continued to defend the article in which "Jew financiers" are charged with exploiting the Civil War.

Accusing the Anti-Defamation League of committing "a great disservice to historical truth and to contemporary goodwill among Americans," Maj. Gen. Grant said that what "international bankers" did a century ago "cannot by any reasonable person be considered a reflection of the many, many good Americans who are Jews." He justified recommending the anti-Semitic article to a group of descendants of Civil War veterans by saying that they "may not have known of the interest and participation of the international bankers."

The article distributed by Gen. Grant, carrying the title "Abraham Lincoln and the Rothschilds," alleged that the Rothschild family, together with Disraeli, plotted in London; Judah P. Benjamin, Confederate cabinet member, was termed their secret agent. An innuendo attempt was made to link Benjamin with the assassination of Lincoln. The ADL had charged Gen. Grant with using "the reprints furnished by Floyd Fleming, the local agents for the infamous John Kasper's seaboard White Citizens Council."

Herman Edelsberg, ADL director, replying here to Gen. Grant, said: "You have reached a venerable age, and you bear a great name. Surely, you do not want to close your public career by bequeathing that name to the fabrications of the warped minds who operate in the anti-Semitic underworld."

Mr. Edelsberg suggested that Gen. Grant consult the many reputable historians associated with the Civil War Centennial Commission. He expressed confidence that any of them will declare the article "a tissue of lies maliciously concocted to foment prejudice against Jews."

Tunisian Jewry Given Assurances By Government

PARIS — Assurance of the concern of the Tunisian Government for the religious and cultural life of Tunisian Jewry was given last week to a delegation of Jewish communal representatives by Vice President Bahi Ladgham, it was reported here from Tunis.

The delegation discussed with the Vice President various problems pertaining to Jewish communal institutions and left a memorandum with him outlining discussions.

The leaders of the Jewish community in Tunis are to convene a territorial congress in the near future at which the problems confronting local Jewry in each town are to be reported and analyzed.

Abba Eban Opposes View Of Former Chief Of Staff

TEL AVIV — Sharp differences of opinion developed publicly last week between Abba Eban, former Israel Ambassador to the United States, and Moshe Dayan, former Israel Army Chief of Staff, as a result of the latter's urging Israel to adopt a policy of returning "hostility for hostility" against the United Arab Republic blockade of the Suez Canal to Israel shipping.

Expressing opposition to Mr. Dayan's view, Mr. Eban said that fewer people now shared the idea of turning to hostilities than before the Sinai campaign. Israel's foreign policy makers, he declared, would hardly find it possible to adopt any other policy than that which they followed today.

Mr. Dayan made his "hostility for hostility" proposal in an article which appeared simultaneously in the Hebrew newspaper Davar, organ of the Histadrut, and in the Jerusalem Post. His article appeared a day after the United Arab Republic made a display of its military power in a three-hour parade in Cairo, at which the Egyptian Field Marshall Abdell Hakim Amir delivered a threatening speech against Israel.

Mr. Dayan, in offering his policy proposal, contended that slogans like "taking diplomatic steps" in dealing with UAR hostility were "foggy" and would not serve any purpose. He added that getting agreement with the UAR by political means "is conditioned by our capability to get the same agreement by economic and military pressure."

He asserted that a repetition of Israel's 1956 Sinai campaign would be "impractical" unless it was carried out in accord with a worldwide policy of seeking a change in the political structure of the Middle East while following the UAR practice "of robbing ships and confiscating goods." The policy of "hostility for hostility," he contended, would deter the UAR from continuing the present hostility policy against Israel. "Even if we cannot bring about a complete reversal of her policy, we can at least exact a high price for any attack on us which would make any attack on us more difficult," he added.

Israel Mourns Death Of Rabbi

JERUSALEM — Chief Rabbi Isaac Halevi Herzog, who died peacefully in his sleep on July 25, was buried the next day in the Sanhedria cemetery as all Israel mourned his passing in one of the most solemn rites ever held in the Holy City.

The regular Sunday meeting of the Cabinet was recessed and all members of the Government joined with yeshiva students, kibbutz members and men and women from all the fighting services among the thousands who lined the route of the funeral procession for Israel's Ashkenazi Chief Rabbi.

Rabbi Herzog, who was 71, died after a remarkable recovery from sclerosis attack last Passover. He had served Israel and world Jewry as a spiritual leader for nearly a quarter of a century. He had assumed the post of Chief Rabbi after the death of Chief Rabbi Abraham Kook.

Also attending the funeral were judges of the Supreme Court, labor leaders, workers and professionals who paid homage to the beloved spiritual leader. Prime Minister David Ben Gurion, who was absent from Jerusalem, sent a message of condolence to the family in which he said their mourning and sorrow was the mourning and sorrow "of all Israel."

Israeli, Arab Youths Clash At Festival

VIENNA — Israelis and Arabs attending the Communist-sponsored World Youth Festival here clashed in a battle with knives and bottles in a Vienna Restaurant brawl, police reported last week.

Police squads moved in quickly to break up the battle before any of the combatants suffered serious injuries. Several of the young people suffered cuts and other minor injuries and some required medical attention. No arrests were made.

College Survey Shows 'No Significant' Sign Of Religious Discrimination

NEW YORK — A survey of the experiences of 1,235 top-ranking New York high school seniors in seeking college admission has revealed "no significant evidence" of religious discrimination, the American Jewish Congress disclosed last week in a report transmitted to State Education Commissioner James E. Allen, Jr.

The study by the American Jewish Congress shows a marked decline in religious bias encountered by college-bound students compared with similar surveys undertaken in 1949 and 1952. The latest study was based on a sampling of high school seniors throughout New York State who applied for scholarships awarded annually by the New York Board of Regents.

A two-page questionnaire was mailed to 4,641 members of the June 1958 graduating class—every seventh name from a list of 32,876 male and female applicants for Regents Scholarships. The sample was compiled by the New York State Department of Education, which also helped to prepare the questionnaire.

A total of 1,235 completed questionnaires were returned. Nearly 70 per cent of the respondents were in the top quarter of their graduating classes and 35 per cent were actually granted scholarships.

Of the 1,235 completed questionnaires, 37.1 per cent came from Jewish students; 30.8 per cent from Protestants; 29.1 per cent from Catholics and 3.0 per cent from those of other religions or with no religion.

Nearly half—43.6 per cent—of the questionnaires came from New York City students. The rest came from other parts of the state. The survey disclosed that Jewish students tended to file more applications to various colleges than their Christian classmates.

An analysis of the comparative acceptance rate for Jewish and Protestant students by the college of their first choice showed that the Jewish rate of acceptance was 74.0 per cent, compared with 84.7 per cent for Protestants.

This difference is held not significant, since the first choices of each group were not comparable. Thus, 38.4 per cent of the Jewish students in the survey applied to "Ivy League" schools—generally agreed to have the highest admission standards—as compared with 26.8 per cent of the Protestant students.

A comparison of the rate of acceptance by the "Ivy League" schools according to religion showed that 67.5 per cent of the Jewish students and 73.5 per cent of the Protestants who applied were accepted.

HONOR AUTHOR
UNITED NATIONS — According to data received here, Bulgaria has followed the lead of the Soviet Union in honoring Sholem Aleichem. "Bulgaria Today," a finely-edited magazine published in English, declares in a recent issue that "among the celebrated scholars who are being honored by cultural circles in all countries this year for their humanistic ideas, an honorable place is taken by Sholem Aleichem, the classical Jewish writer. The centenary of his birth was marked in our country by articles in the press, commemorative meetings, and recitations."

Obituary

MYRON D. MENDELOVITZ
 Funeral services for Myron D. Mendelovitz, 21, of 70 Cypress Street, who was injured fatally July 29, when his car went out of control and overturned in West Roxbury, Mass., were held July 31 at the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

The son of Benjamin and Bella Mendelovitz, he was a senior at Providence College and a Classical High School graduate.

The accident occurred as Mr. Mendelovitz was driving toward Boston on the VFW Parkway, about a half-mile north of the Dedham line. His car swerved across the center dividing island, struck a sign and rolled over several times, tossing him into the roadway.

He had been living in Boston during the summer while working there as a magazine salesman.

Besides his parents, he leaves a sister, Harriet, and two brothers, Harvey and Samuel, all of Providence.

DR. MORRIS L. FIREMAN
 Funeral services for Dr. Morris L. Fireman, 55, an optometrist, of 690 Congress Street, Portland, Maine, who died suddenly July 29, were held July 31 at the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Burial was in Sharon Memorial Park, Sharon, Mass.

A son of the late Abraham and Rose (Oransky) Fireman, he was born in Portland in 1903. He had been an optometrist for more than 30 years.

He is survived by four brothers, Louis and Jacob D. Fireman, both of Providence; Dr. Eli R. Fireman of Cranston, and Hyman B. Fireman of Mattapan, Mass.; and two sisters, Mrs. Bernard Levine of Brockton, Mass., and Mrs. Ruby Kravitz of Dorchester, Mass.

LOUIS SNOW
 Funeral services for Louis Snow, 60, of 157 Dudley Street, a retired salesman, who died July 29 after a long illness, were held on the following day at the Max Sugarman Funeral Home. Burial was in Lincoln Park Cemetery.

Born in Russia in 1899, a son of the late Abraham and Etta (Nulman) Snow, he had resided in this city for about 40 years.

He was a member of Congregation Shaare Zedek.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Jennie (Gordon) Snow; two sons, Gordon of Providence and Leonard Snow of Washington, D. C.; a daughter, Mrs. Charles Silverman of Providence; a brother, Samuel Snow of Cranston; three sisters, Miss Bertha Snow of Providence, Miss Evelyn Snow and Mrs. Charles Reitman, both of Los Angeles; and four grandchildren.

TEST YOUR DEFENSE
 Here is a test of your standard of defense play. With neither side vulnerable the bidding has gone:
 North East South West
 1D Pass 1H 2C
 2H Pass 2S Pass
 3S Pass 4H Pass
 Pass Pass
 You are sitting West and hold the following hand:
 ♠—10, x.
 ♥—K, 7, 6, 5.
 ♦—J, x.
 ♣—A, K, Q, 10, x.
 You lead the king of clubs, and dummy goes down with the following:
 ♠—A, K, x.
 ♥—Q, x, x.
 ♦—A, Q, x, x, x.
 ♣—x, x.

Your partner plays the nine of clubs to the first trick. What do you play next, and why? You may care to puzzle it out before reading on.
 East's nine of clubs indicates a doubleton. You can, therefore, see two club tricks and the king of trumps. If South has got the king of diamonds there would seem to be no way in which the contract can be broken. You must therefore play the jack of diamonds.
 Here are the four hands in full:

North		East
♠—A, K, x.	♥—Q, x, x.	♠—9, x, x, x.	♥—x.
♦—A, Q, x, x, x.	♣—x, x.	♦—K, 10, 9, 8, x, x.	♣—9, x.
West		South
♠—10, x.	♥—K, x, x, x.	♠—Q, J, x, x.	♥—A, J, 10, 9, x.
♦—J, x.	♣—A, K, Q, 10, x.	♦—None	♣—J, 8, x, x.

Whatever South now does he cannot make his contract. His best play would be to put up the ace of diamonds and discard a losing club. He then finesses a heart. West must not take the trick; it will be easily seen that if he does, South can make his contract. If he refuses the trick, however, South must now play a club which West takes and follows with a diamond, forcing declarer to trump. Declarer then ruffs his losing club, plays the last trump from dummy, and must concede a trump trick to West. West can now force declarer again by playing clubs, as there are no more trumps in dummy. Declarer is thus obliged to concede a fourth trick to West's long trump.

There are two keys to the defense. First, West must realize at Trick 1 that the contract is unbeatable unless his partner holds the king of diamonds, and he must lead the suit accordingly to force declarer. Secondly, even then South can make his contract unless West holds up his king of trumps until dummy's trumps are exhausted.

This hand, which occurred in play, was shown to a number of master players only one of whom reached the right conclusion. Any reader who failed to work this out need not, therefore, feel too depressed about his game, and any reader who came to the right conclusion may justly feel that his understanding of defense is in the very top class.

Engaged — Mr. and Mrs. Moses Rosenberg of 74 Eaton Street and Chepachet announce the engagement of their daughter, Gail Lois, to Stanley Woolf, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Woolf of 13 Balcom Street.

Miss Rosenberg is a graduate of the Forsyth School for Dental Hygienists and is entering her senior year at Tufts University. Mr. Woolf is entering his senior year at Brown University. A June 1960 wedding is planned.

KNESSET PASSES BILL
JERUSALEM — Civil courts will have exclusive authority to issue orders for adoption of children under a bill which passed its first reading in Knesset.
 Rejecting objections of Religious Party deputies, Pinchas Rosen,

Minister of Justice, who introduced the bill on behalf of Government, said that Jewish religious law does not cover adoptions of children, only guardianship. He said that there was therefore no conflict between Israel's civil and religious courts in this area.

The Pennant Killers

While the 1959 season is not a successful one, artistically, for the Red Sox, loyal fans of the Boston club have the bitter-sweet satisfaction of knowing that it was their team that actually knocked the Yankees out of the American League pennant race, and ground their title of world champions to ashes.

The shouting isn't over, but the verdict on the Red Sox' significant accomplishment is official, as far as the Yankee players themselves are concerned.

Mickey Mantle, the impotent leader, says quite candidly that the five straight defeats in Fenway Park killed New York's pennant hopes. And Yogi Berra, whose smoking bat and clutch hitting are all that is reminiscent of the old Yankees, observed thoughtfully on the way home from that ill-fated excursion to Boston that the Sox had put the Yanks in a situation from which there was virtually no recovery.

When the Sox won those five games, the papers told of the last time this had happened — right in Yankee Stadium, in July of 1939. But there was far less significance to the event 20 years ago, even though at the time it was a more exciting occurrence, since it marked a resurgence by Boston that could lead to a pennant.

The excitement lasted less than a week. From an 11½ game deficit, the Red Sox climbed within 6½ games as the result of their sweep, then to 5½ after the All-Star game, as they won another game while the Tigers were beating the Yanks. "We're Pennant Bound!" screamed the papers over pictures of Joe Cronin and Jimmy Foxx and Ted Williams.

But then the Yankees righted themselves, the Boston streak ended, and all the excitement ended. New York won by 17 games. So the Red Sox actually accomplished nothing.

There was another time though, that the Red Sox were primarily responsible for costing the Yankees a pennant. The situation was much like that of last month. The Sox were in or near the cellar. The Yanks were still in the pennant race, and came to Fenway Park late in the season figuring to improve their fortunes.

The year was 1933, just before the coming of Tom Yawkey. The Sox were managed by Marty McManus, and Fred Hoey was doing the play-by-play of the Red Sox and Braves games. Joe McCarthy was in his third year with the Yanks, and among his players were Ruth, Gehrig, Gomez, Ruffing, Dickey, Lazzeri, Chapman, Combs and Pennock. No pushovers, these — and they were the defending champions, too!

But an inspired band of Red Sox, playing as if they would be tossed to the lions if they failed, played the Yanks right off their feet, won all five games, and brought to an end the hopes of the New Yorkers. They were through, and never challenged again that season.

More than that, the 1933 disaster inaugurated a three-year dry spell of no Yankee pennants, marking a total of six seasons out of seven in which the then-Bronx Bombers failed to win. Imagine that?

So history has repeated again this year. Red Sox fans may gleefully anticipate whether Yankee domination is now finally ended; while Yankee fans may shiver and wonder if some demon historic omen can be attached to the five straight.

Many fans have asked, during the past week, how come the Red Sox could bring up a player (Mahoney) who was hitting only .211 in the minor leagues. It seems incredible to some, who figure a .200 hitter in Triple-A ball cannot hope to bat more than about .150 in the big time.

Well, in this case, there is something to be said for the Red Sox point of view. Mahoney and Pumpsie Green represent a top-notch defensive combination, one that could be of considerable help to the pitchers.

While the Red Sox are not a pennant contender this year, a significant parallel can still be drawn. You've heard of weak-hitting teams winning pennants. It has happened quite frequently, seems to be happening again in the American League this year. Team batting average means practically nothing in a pennant

Foods To Remember

Summer brings everyone outdoors for picnic meals, whether on the porch, patio or under the trees of your own garden or other picnic grounds. It is well to vary the salad dressings to be used on a moment's notice.

Try the following suggestions:

- FOR VEGETABLE SALADS
Add to French Dressing or Mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons grated Cheddar Type Cheese or Danish Blue Cheese per 1/2 cup dressing
 - A dash of paprika or white pepper
 - 1 teaspoon minced fresh dill or parsley
 - 2 tablespoons minced Pastrami. Smoked Tongue or chopped liver per cup of dressing

- 1 tablespoon minced green pepper or red radish

FOR FRUIT SALADS ADD

- 2 tablespoons sour cream per cup dressing
- 1 tablespoon orange or pineapple juice
- 1 tablespoon powdered sugar
- A dash of ginger or cinnamon
- 1 tablespoon minced fresh peppermint or 1/8 teaspoon grated orange peel

BASIC FRENCH DRESSING (Home-made)

- 1/2 cup salad oil (or equal portions olive and vegetable oil)
 - 1/2 cup wine vinegar
 - 3 tablespoons brown sugar
 - 1/8 teaspoon salt
 - A dash of onion salt or powdered garlic (optional)
 - 1/4 teaspoon paprika
- Combine in a covered jar or bottle and shake well before using.
- Variations in flavor are achieved by adding any or combinations of two or more of these herbs: Oregano, finely crushed; basil, marjoram, sage, saffron.

SWEET DOUGH FOR CINNAMON ROLLS

- 1/2 cup milk (scalded and cooled to lukewarm)
 - 1/2 cup vegetable shortening, margarine or butter
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 cup warm water
 - 2 packages granular yeast
 - 1 tablespoon sugar
 - 2 eggs, lightly beaten
 - 4 1/2 to 5 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- Cinnamon and sugar mixture as desired (1 teaspoon to 1/2 cup sugar)
- Seedless raisins, dark or light as desired.

Combine warm milk with shortening, sugar and salt, stirring till blended. Dissolve yeast in lukewarm water, adding sugar to stimulate yeast action. Sift flour into a mixing bowl, add eggs to first liquid mixture and stir lightly then combine with the yeast mixture and stir into the well in center of flour to form a dough that is without flour lumps. Turn out dough on a well floured kneading board and pat or knead till smooth and elastic. Place kneaded dough in a well-greased bowl, brush top with melted shortening, cover with wax paper then doubled kitchen towel. Place in a warm spot to rise till double in bulk, approximately 1 hour. Punch again with melted shortening, sprinkle generously with cinnamon and sugar mixture (adding raisins if desired) from outer edges of dough to center as evenly as desired. Roll up from long end. Cut into 1-inch thick rounds and place cut-side down, on a greased and lightly floured baking pan or cookie sheet. Cover with towel and let rise till double in bulk. Bake in pre-heated oven 15 to 20 minutes at 425 deg. F. or till nicely browned. Sprinkle more cinnamon and sugar mixture on tops of rolls before baking if desired, or press a few raisins into center tops for added flavor after baking then return to top shelf of oven after heat is turned off or till raisins are slightly puffed and browned.

Yield depends on size of kneaded rolls and thickness after shaping.

Mrs. Rubin Zeidman

Since the inception of Temple Beth Am. and Warwick Jewish Community Center that preceded it, Eunice Zeidman has been in the forefront of planning and activities at the new congregation. She is now in her second term of office as president of the Beth Am Sisterhood, and was vice-chairman of ways and means. Mrs. Zeidman has been greatly interested and active in the establishment of the religious school, and she has been very helpful in organizing activities involving the children. The building fund for the new Temple also has occupied much of her time. In addition, she has participated most actively in various community service campaigns.

Max Resnick

One of the real leaders in the busy chain of events that has led to so much progress at Temple Beth David in recent years is Max Resnick. Mr. Resnick has put in 15 years of hard work and concentrated effort on behalf of the Oakland Avenue congregation. In 1944 he was one of the organizers of the Temple's Building Fund, and he was closely attached to the building campaign from that time on. He is a member of the Board, and has taken many active parts in activities at Beth-David. Mr. Resnick also is active in community affairs, and holds membership in many organizations.

CLOSE SYNAGOGUE
 NEW YORK — A condition of near panic among Soviet Jews has developed as a result of the forcible closing of the Great Synagogue of Chernovitz in the Ukraine, last month, the New York Herald Tribune reported last week.

Citing "a reliable report," the newspaper said that news of the closing of the historic synagogue in a city in which Jews are more than half the population spread swiftly through Jewish centers of the Ukraine and European Russia. The news has created "something near panic among the Jews of the Soviet Union who regard it as an evil omen for their future," the newspaper stated.

Highlight of the afternoon is a Tombola (a combination raffle and auction), the proceeds of which will be donated to the Children's Wing of the Hadassah Medical Center in Israel.

Reform Judaism
 Told To Develop
 New Attitude

London — Reform Judaism must develop a new attitude toward Jewish Religious Law based on the premise that the objective is not to defend a legal system but to help Jews live a significant Jewish life under modern conditions, Rabbi Solomon Freehof of Pittsburgh, president-designate of the World Union for Progressive Judaism, declared here.

"Jewish law even traditionally is case law rather than counsel," Dr. Freehof told the 400 delegates and accredited visitors from 20 countries attending the Union's week-long conference. "We must carry on this process in the light of present needs and in the form of guidance rather than direction."

"Large parts of Jewish law have ceased to be observed by the great majority of Jews," he stressed. "This breakdown has gone much too far for it to be possible, even if it were desirable, to restore the Halacha in its entirety as Orthodox or Conservative Judaism would wish." Several other speakers called for the formation of an International Rabbinic Council under the auspices of the World Union which would give guidance in matters of religious practice.

Tamarack To Open
 New Night Club

A new $1,000,000 night club, the most exciting addition to Tamarack Lodge in its history, will be officially dedicated with a series of special ceremonies Sunday evening, Aug. 16, at the Greenfield Park, New York resort.

Outstanding stars of television, motion pictures, Broadway and the sports world, will be present for the spectacular proceedings at the inaugural of the 1200-seat facility, which has been officially named "Club On The Green."

Dave Levinson, owner and host at Tamarack Lodge, said the dedication will culminate three years of planning. The Club has been in modified operation since mid-July while finishing touches were applied in preparation for the gala debut.

CONTINUES AS PREMIER

JERUSALEM — Prime Minister David Ben Gurion, acceding to President Ben Zvi's request that he continue as caretaker Premier, informed the Cabinet last week that he would preside at Cabinet meetings but would not take part in any Ministerial committees which include the four Ministers of the left-wing Mapam and Ahdut Avodah parties. The Prime Minister resumed his duties after a three-week vacation.

He reiterated in his letter his contention that the four Ministers had violated the principle of collective responsibility in voting against the sale of $3,000,000 worth of Israel-made arms to West Germany.

little of the expected resistance develops. The nettle does not sting if grasped firmly."

Dr. Marrow's statement was an outgrowth of United Nations under Secretary Ralph Bunche's startling statement two weeks ago that his son's application for membership in the West Side Tennis Club had been turned down on racial grounds.

Discusses Levels Of Prejudice

NEW YORK—Non-Negro membership in social and sports clubs such as the West Side Tennis Club of Forest Hills must not always be attributed to discrimination, whereas the absence of Jewish members generally can be, Dr. Alfred J. Marrow, chairman of the New York City Commission on Intergroup Relations, said last week

He said that as there was a sparsity of Negroes who were able to afford private club memberships, each case had to be looked into carefully. "But where Jews are concerned," he added, "the religious discrimination is clear-cut. Men who are the best of friends in business will blindly accept their divisiveness when it comes to joining country clubs. Christian or Jewish, they go to their separate clubs."

Dr. Marrow discounted assertions that the "Jewish clubs" were equally guilty of discrimination. "I don't think there are many Jews who would hesitate for a moment to join a country club that happened to be predominantly Christian," he commented, "but the reverse is not true. So the Jewish clubs are solely defensive clubs."

Dr. Marrow, 54, is a manufacturer, industrial psychologist and expert on human relations problems as well as a public servant. In interviews last week, he stressed his belief that prejudice was acquired as "part of our culture" and insisted that as culture was man-made, it therefore could be changed by man. He saw little value in appeals to "brotherhood" and "fair play" and said they might give the illusion that things were improving when they were not.

"Experience during World War II under the FEPC law and our more recent experience in interracial housing developments, demonstrates that a go-slow policy worsens the conditions it seeks to improve," Dr. Marrow said last week. "It gives the opposition an opportunity to organize the attack. It implies that the policy makers are not confident of the success of their recommendations and therefore want a go-slow policy to protect themselves."

"Whenever a basic change in discriminatory practice is contemplated there will be strong antagonism. But once the change has become a fact we shall see that

Take Israeli Books
From Exhibition

WASHINGTON — American books on Israel and on Jewish subjects were among the volumes removed from the American national exhibition in Moscow by Soviet authorities when the exhibition opened recently, the State Department confirmed.

Books that Soviet inspectors insisted on purging included: "Great Ages and Ideas of the Jewish People" edited by Leo W. Schwartz; "Israel and Its Glory," a pictorial volume edited by Abe Haraman and Yigal Yadin; "The Politics of Israel" by Marven H. Bernstein; and "The History of Jewish Khazars" by D. M. Dunlop.

ASK DECLARATION
NEW YORK — Six national Jewish organizations asked Congress last week to make a clear cut declaration of its opposition to giving mutual security aid "to Saudi Arabia or any other country that creates discrimination because of their race or religion among American citizens in the granting of any rights otherwise available to U. S. citizens."

The organizations are the American Jewish Congress, Jewish Labor Committee, Jewish War Veterans of the United States, Union of American Hebrew Congregations, Union of Orthodox Jewish Congregations of America and the United Synagogue of America.

On the other hand, how many teams can you name that have not been strong down the middle, especially at second base and shortstop? The answer has to be "None".

The good defense cuts down runs that prevent big innings, takes pitchers out of jams that are the difference between winning and losing ball games.

Viewed in this manner, the recall of a weak-hitting, but strong fielding shortstop makes plenty of sense. Besides, a young player like Mahoney figures to improve his hitting considerably, with good coaching and normal development, as he goes along.

But Abe Kaplan, manager of Jake Kaplan's Foreign Cars Ltd. on Reservoir Avenue, has found a fly in this soothing ointment. Abe, a staunch Red Sox fan who digs deep for his facts on baseball, did some checking of Mahoney's record at Minneapolis, and came up with the surprising observation that the rookie shortstop wasn't a regular even down on the farm. Mahoney's hitting was so bad that Roy Smalley, a veteran former big leaguer, was playing short and Mahoney was riding the bench, and being installed late in the game for defensive reasons.

Abe asks, quite naturally, what good is a guy like that going to do the Red Sox? The answer to that will have to wait for future developments.

Christmas and Chanukah

The question whether joint Christmas-Chanukah celebrations should be observed in the public schools has always been a controversial matter within the Jewish community. This year the controversy is reaching unprecedented height. Some organizations, such as the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, are inclined to think that Christmas-Chanukah observances have proved to be wholesome intercultural experiences for school children.

However, the majority of the important Jewish organizations are totally opposed to the observance of Christmas and Chanukah in public schools either jointly or separately. They argue that any observance of Christmas or Chanukah in public schools violates the American principle of separation of church and state. The American Jewish Committee takes the attitude that while joint religious holiday programs are not recommended, it should nevertheless be recognized that they enjoy a measure of support in some communities. And the Committee urges Jewish communities to refrain from raising the issue just before or during the Christmas season since the atmosphere is so charged with emotion at this time of the year.

The truth of the matter is that the question of joint Chanukah-Christmas celebrations in public schools has always been a puzzle for Jewish parents and a headache for many public school teachers. It may be good to have a Menorah and a Christmas tree in the classroom and to keep children under the impression that the difference between Christmas and Chanukah is that Christians call their gifts Christmas presents and Jews call them Chanukah presents. But there is no denying the fact that while Chanukah is a holiday signifying liberation, Christmas is a deeply religious holiday. For many Jewish parents the Chanukah-Christmas celebration in the classroom means that their children no longer ask them why don't we have a Christmas tree in the house. However, for other parents it also means that their children participate in one-act Nativity plays and in group singing of Christmas carols. It is a sensitive issue, and it is highly regrettable that there is no unity of views on this issue among Jewish organizations.

"One Man's Opinion"

The Christmas -- Chanukah Farce

By BERYL SEGAL

The young mother of grade school children was genuinely elated. At the P.T.A. meeting of her school she was appointed to the Christmas — Chanukah celebration committee. Now she is looking for material for a play, ideas for decorations, and songs—good Chanukah songs to match the Christmas carols.

Isn't it wonderful! We will have a Christmas tree and a Chanukah Menorah lit side by side. The room will be decorated with symbols of both holidays. The children will present two plays, one for each holiday, and they will sing songs of Christmas and Chanukah together. What better way to teach tolerance and understanding of your neighbors' beliefs?

The young mother was going into details of the program when she realized that I did not share her enthusiasm and took no pleasure in the narration.

"What's wrong?" she asked. "Don't you like it?"

"Like it? I consider the whole Christmas - Chanukah celebration in the public schools a farce and a mockery."

"But, why? I thought you would be delighted with the idea."

The young woman was perplexed. She was given to understand that these celebrations are highly desirable, and was, in all sincerity, convinced that she was helping to bring closer that blessed day of tolerance and brotherhood and inter-faith understanding. She demanded my reasons for disapproving such celebrations.

Public Relations Idea

This is what I said:

The idea of celebrating Christmas and Chanukah together was conceived by smart public relations operators, without consideration of the propriety or appropriateness of such joint observances.

As a result, the Christmas-Chanukah celebrations are offensive to the spirit of both Christmas and Chanukah, and cause nothing but pain to both Jews and Christians who truly and reverently respect the spirit of the two holidays. Ask your Rabbi, be he Orthodox or Liberal, and hear what he thinks about these celebrations. The ministers and pastors of the Christian faith take no pleasure in them either.

Christmas and Chanukah have as much in common as the man in the moon and I. Any program for observance of both holidays together is in poor taste, is forced, and, to use the Yiddish saying, sticks like a dry pea on a smooth wall. Christmas and Chanukah have nothing in common. No common idea, no common origin, no common historic background, no common tenet. The only excuse for throwing them together in one observance is that they come within a few days or weeks of one another. The time element is entirely accidental and of no historic significance. Surely a flimsy reason for joint celebrations, and could only hatch in the minds of those who either do not know or have no feeling for the spirit of holidays.

Major And Minor

Christmas is the holiest of days for Christians, and marks the birth of a faith that changed the course of world history.

Chanukah is a minor Jewish holiday, and commemorates a single episode in Jewish history.

Christmas is observed with great solemnity, and on that day all work, all secular activity, even the affairs of government itself, come to a standstill.

Chanukah is no holy day. The eight days of Chanukah differ in no respect from all the other days of the year except for the lighting of the candles. They are marked by no festivity in the Synagogue, nor feast at home.

To believe aught by watching the Chanukah candles and by listening to a Chanukah story or play the Christian children will gain understanding of the Jewish faith is very naive. Indeed it would be a great miracle if they did, a miracle greater than the miracle of Chanukah itself.

Tolerance and understanding are gained by learning not to offend either faith, and is attained by not celebrating either holiday in the public school. Leave both Christmas and Chanukah to the home, to the religious school, to the house of worship. Celebrating them in the public schools is a disservice to both faiths, and what is more, a disservice to the public school. The exclusion of all activities of a religious nature from the classroom is a basic principle of the public school system. If a school does transgress against this principle it goes against the best traditions of the American tax-supported system of public education. To insist that because Christmas song and story are admitted to the school, therefore Chanukah, too, should be given a place, is shortsighted and shallow reasoning. Two wrongs do not make one right.

Some Justification

But a teacher in a public school can justify to some degree the singing of carols and the drawing of Santas, and the telling of Christmas stories. The school, the teacher will argue, must be alive, must reflect the street and the market place, must be in step with the child's surroundings. As the child goes to school it sees street lamps, store windows, and public buildings decorated in gay Christmas colors. Over the radio and on television the Christmas carols and Christmas motifs are on every station and every channel. As I write these lines I hear the news broadcaster tell of the historic Boston Common all aglow with lights of the huge Christmas tree, and the air is filled with the voices of 100 boys singing carols under the baton of Charles Munch, the director of the famed Boston Symphony Orchestra. Look about your own town and city and village, and see the spirit of the season all about you. How can the school, the teacher may ask, close its eyes to all this? The school might as well ignore the snow flakes in winter, the blossoms in spring, and the golden colors of the fall leaves.

But Chanukah can make no such claims. Chanukah can afford to stay at home where the festival rightly belongs. Chanukah does not have to intrude itself on the public school. Let the child feel the spirit of the lights within the family circle, and let the child hear the story of Chanukah by the warm glow of the candles and sing the songs of the day, and carry away happy memories of the day. Such a child and such parents need not fear the carol songs, and the Santa pictures, or the holly in the public school.

HMO Adds Psychiatry Department

Mrs. Benjamin Brier, chairman of the Hadassah Medical Organization, announced this week that Mrs. Charren will be decorations chairman for the Hadassah Medical Organization donor luncheon to be held Jan. 10.

Mrs. Brier also announced that Hadassah, which maintains a medical organization in Israel, has now added a psychiatry department, to be headed by Dr. James Mann, formerly of the mental health department of Boston State Hospital. The new department will teach psychiatry and psychosomatic medicine at Hebrew University's Hadassah Medical School, as well as diagnose and treat patients at the Hadassah hospital in Jerusalem.

The H.M.O. chairman further reported that Hadassah's medical organization is helping Israel "to win its war against physical, emotional and social disturbances.

The Medical Secret of Hadassah is . . .

Tender Loving Care

Hadassah has a healing secret — TLC — meaning "tender, loving care" which is actually prescribed on medical charts, especially in its polio and children's wards in Israel. TLC, say the Hadassah staff, is an indispensable weapon in the fight for good health. To watch Hadassah's doctors and nurses fondle and soothe, guide and instruct the thousands of patients, young and old, who are treated in its hospitals, clinics and health centers, is to understand why the name of Hadassah has been blessed in the land since its beginning in 1912!

Called in 1947 to install the Museum of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America in the Felix M. Warbury Mansion, Dr. Kayser has been curator and director of exhibits there ever since. He holds the title of associate professor of History of Jewish Art at the Seminary.

It was through Dr. Kayser's efforts that the Temple obtained the $13,000 loan exhibit to be opened at the dedication ceremonies.

GJC Third Report Luncheon Tuesday

The third in a series of report luncheons for the 1955 campaign of the General Jewish Committee will be held next Tuesday noon, December 6, at the GJC headquarters in the Strand Building.

As in the past, sandwiches and coffee will be served to the workers dropping in to make their reports on solicitations.

Alvin A. Sopkin, campaign chairman, said that the job of reporting cards is an important phase of the campaign and it must be done conscientiously. He said that campaign officials hope for a good turnout at each of the report meetings until all of the cards assigned to workers in the various divisions are covered.

"I urge each worker to get busy and follow up each prospect in order to get 100 percent coverage and to insure a successful campaign," Sopkin said.

B-G's Dilemma Is Nothing New

Jews throughout the world have been doing some soul-searching as to whether Ben-Gurion's decision to sell war material to West Germany is to be commended or condemned. There are really two questions involved: The first has to do with Jewish attitude towards Germany; the second has to do with Israel as an exporter of war materielle. Seemingly, the first question might be easier to answer if the goods exported had been citrus fruits or chemicals for peaceful uses. Certainly our whole tradition looks upon Zion as the source of Torah and the word of the Lord—ideas for righteous living and peace rather than thoughts of war and destruction. No one wants to picture Israel in the long run as an arsenal and exporter of munitions.

Let us revert to the first question — as to whether the Jewish State should conduct business with a country responsible for the death of 6,000,000 Jews. Many people argue that West Germany is not Hitler's Germany; that it is a new western European nation guided by ideals of Democracy. German leadership makes this claim even in the face of a certain amount of anti-Semitism which keeps asserting itself. This is the view of the man who takes over the presidency of Germany in two weeks—a man who himself spent 20 months in prison as an anti-Nazi.

Historically, if the Jews made hatred a part of their religion against every nation which mistreated them, they would have virtually no connections with any other nations on earth or with any other religions on earth.

We do not believe that Ben-Gurion is attempting to lay down a permanent policy or attempting to tell the world or Germany that all is forgiven. Rather he sees what every observer sees, namely, that Germany has recovered so rapidly in the last few years that she is today the leading nation of Europe economically; that France has found it necessary to "forget" 1870, 1914, and 1939 and enter into an economic union with Germany. Maybe this is opportunism. But there always is a chance that something decent in nations will emerge. Israel cannot openly court the dislike of any nation at the present time.

The answer, then, boils down to this: Who is answering the question—an historian whose view of mistreatment goes back to ancient Egypt? a philosopher who sees a different mission for Israel? a refugee from Germany whose family was destroyed? a statesman right in the midst of Israel's struggle for survival?

ONLY IN AMERICA

It's Not The Heat

BY HARRY GOLDEN

Every summer has to be the worst ever. And if it isn't the worst ever, we'll still insist that it is. And if it isn't the worst summer ever, imagine the disappointment of people who go away on vacation. Spending 10 days in a mountain resort or zipping around a Canadian lake in a new aluminum power launch is no fun unless the folks back home are sweltering. The first thing the vacationer wants to get after he's deposited his luggage, is the home town weather report.

The heat, however does more than cheer up the vacationer. It involves home-town pride. You visit friends or associates in another city, and the place is like a furnace. Your host tells you with some amazement that this has never happened before. He can't understand it. It's so hot. It's always been cool here, he says with an apology that this is the first time it's ever happened. But that's the way the heat affects people.

There are many theories offered on how to beat the heat. Some people have elaborate plans for just keeping their head wet. There are others who urge plunging your wrists in ice cold water every two hours. Some say don't think about it while others fall back on an old favorite—"It's not the heat, it's the humidity." But this is the weakest of all theories. Usually it's not the heat, it's the humor.

When Mark Twain lived in Hartford, on the hottest day of the summer he still hitched up his horse and buggy and went down to the Heublein Hotel where he lunched with Charles Dudley Warner, the editor of the Hartford Courant. They had a regular round table and held forth to whoever wanted to assemble. In fact it was Mr. Warner who said, "Everyone talks about the weather but no one does anything about it." Twain quoted him and everyone has quoted Twain since then. There's a great deal of sense in what he said. No one's ever called off a wedding because of the heat although a great many people will never tire of saying it's too hot to work.

Nor did the heat ever slow down a politician. In 1924, the Democratic National Convention was held in Madison Square Garden in New York City during one of the worst heat waves of the 20th century. This was long before the days of air conditioning. Madison Square Garden was like nothing so much as a Turkish Bath. And the Democrats continued to call the roll in the struggle between Alfred E. Smith and William Gibbs McAdoo. "Alabama casts 24 votes for Underwood." The heat never got the best of them, but after

DINING NOTE: Milton Berle sat at a corner table in the Plaza's Oak Room the other day, in almost horizontal position. He lolled back in his chair, with his legs draped comfortably over the next chair until it was time to leave. "The menu says '35c Service Charge,' extra," Berle explained. "As long as I'm paying for it, I'm enjoying 'Service.'"

LANGUAGE DEPT: Michael Todd Jr. has added garlic and peppermint to the 40 assorted odors in his Smell-O-Vision film, "Scent of Mystery." His assistant director in Spain, Pietro Mussetta, had to synchronize the work of the Spanish, British, Italian and American film crews. After an hour of language woes Mussetta roared: "Undoubtedly the worst enemies Italy had were Julius Caesar, who took England, and Christopher Columbus, who discovered America."

TV NOTE: Hermione Gingold was in El Morocco the other day where she said she's just back from Hollywood. "I've been doing an Alfred Hitchcock series," said Miss Gingold. "I'm a mystery, at last; until now, as everyone knows, I've been an open book."

LEGAL DEPT.: Federal Judge Sugarman is dismissing an action brought by the Securities & Exchange Commission against the Javelin Co. and individual defendants. At the original hearings the SEC document referred to one of the defendants, Edward A. Collins, as "alias 'Dog-face' Collins." His lawyer protested that the SEC was taking unfair advantage of his client's infirmities.

SOCIAL NOTE: The Angier Biddle Dukes are in Moscow with Alfred Katz, the public relations man. Mrs. Duke was curious about some of the social customs and Katz told her: "One difference is that the Russian mother pats her daughter gently on the head and says, 'Darling, you'll have to wait until Mr. Left comes along.'"

PUBLICITY NOTE: Paul Butler, chairman of the Democratic Committee, was discussing the FCC regulation on granting equal time to all political candidates. He complained that Republican legislative leaders garner much press space after their weekly conferences with the President when they're interviewed on the White House steps.

100 and some odd ballots, they knew they had to start campaigning and they compromised on Mr. John W. Davis.

In the middle of this struggle William Jennings Bryan mounted the rostrum to make a speech. He was in his shirt-sleeves and kept waving a palmetto fan across his face and feelings ran so high and the Garden was so hot that Bryan was booted, which is a sad thing to remember about the "Great Commoner." William Jennings Bryan never did have any luck with the weather. At the Scopes Monkey Trial in Dayton, Tenn., in which he served as a witness for the prosecution, it got so hot in the courtroom that the trial moved outside on the lawn. The intense heat and the intense emotions resulted in Bryan's death a week later.

The heat has always had unfortunate consequences. Carrie Nation's raids were always carried out during the dog days. Carrie was an early day prohibitionist, nicknamed "the Smasher" and she had a novel way to make a saloon-keeper close shop. It was called "hatch-etation." She simply slammed a hatchet into everything.

Carrie Nation came to New York during a hot spell when the lungs almost collapse from the heat. She wanted to quarrel with John L. Sullivan, the Heavyweight Champ, now in retirement, because he had said mean things about her. Carrie Nation and the heat didn't do John L. Sullivan or Manhattan any good. Bartenders closed up shop as soon as they heard she was in town and Sullivan was afraid to see her. The man who had fought and bested some of the toughest men in the world said, "Not on your life. Tell her I'm sick. Tell her the heat's got me."

(Copyright 1959, by Harry Golden)

Butler said: "I'm considering asking for equal time on the White House steps."

POLITICS: A tourist who visited the capitals of the Caribbean countries asked a Venezuelan and a Cuban why there are so many revolutions in that area. The Venezuelan replied: "That's because so many of us haven't been president yet."

LOCAL NEWS: Jim Hoffa vows that Gottfried Schmit, the court-appointed monitor of the Teamsters Union, never will collect the $105,000 fee . . . Anna Rosenberg, the former Asst. Secy. of Defense, is recuperating at Doctors Hospital after minor surgery . . . Claudette Colbert and Robert Preston will co-star in a TV version of the Bergman-Crosby movie, "Bells of St. Mary's" . . . The groundbreaking for the new Zeckendorf Hotel was celebrated by the presence of the mayor, a 20-piece Meyer-Davis band and a champagne buffet.

MOVIES: Jean Renoir is directing a movie, "Luncheon on the Grass," in the Riviera villa built by his father, Auguste Renoir, 50 years ago. The director said: "The more advances that are made in film technique, the worse motion pictures are. We depend too much on technique and gadgets, rather than creating stories and lives. My father did it here just with a brush, paint and canvas."

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

MOBSTERS MOVE ON WALL STREET!

The gangsters of the underworld have moved into Wall Street on a scale never before known.

Mobsters with links traced to the dreaded Mafia, the Lindbergh kidnaping, the notorious "Gangland Convention" at Apalachin, N. Y., in 1957 — these and others have been discovered in firms selling securities to the public in the past 18 months!

"Never has the danger to the naive little investor from the criminal element been as great as it is today," warns Louis J. Lefkowitz, the crusading, hard-hitting Attorney General of New York State.

"The securities profession is one of the most honorable in New York. Millions of Americans in every State and city are now interested in buying stocks. The criminals have decided this is a perfect set-up for them, and they are using money they've made in bootlegging, prostitution, narcotics, in so-called legitimate financial enterprises to make more quick, dirty money. The danger these elements pose must be recognized!"

Just as New York is the heart of the securities business in our nation, so Lefkowitz' office is the heart of the state's securities policing system. The Attorney General's office is within walking distance of Wall Street's skyscrapers. The staff of the state's securities bureau is now working around the clock in a crash attack on known and new racketeers. To find out what is going on, I've just completed a series of interviews with Lefkowitz and his chief lieutenants. Here is the first of the reports.

The mobsters have infiltrated many securities firms and are placing in jeopardy legitimate houses headed by financially weak or unwary but still honest men.

Hundreds of thousands of gullible Americans in states across the nation have been defrauded out of many millions in recent months.

Confidence in the vitally important securities business is being undermined by the criminals, and suffering particularly are the over-the-counter firms, which in the overwhelming percentage of cases are, of course, 1000 per cent honest.

Sound dramatic? Sure. For it is. Here are names of men actually found involved directly or indirectly in sales of securities since 1958.

Carmine Lombardozi: he has been linked with the once legitimate firm of Philip Newman Associates of 420 Madison Ave., N.Y.C. — a firm which has been permanently barred from New York for selling virtually worthless stock in Monarch Asbestos. Lombardozi, an ex-convict, was at the Apalachin Gangland Convention. It is said that at the convention his underworld death sentence was commuted to a $10,000 fine.

James Carlton Graye: he was head of a firm bearing his name at 15 Maiden Lane, N.Y.C. which was banned from New York for selling virtually worthless stock in Atlas Gypsum Corp., Ltd. Graye, alias James Webb, has a criminal record dating back to 1927, has been convicted of auto theft, robbery and escape.

Stanley Younger: he was connected with several firms, including Provincial American Securities, Lincoln Securities Corp., J. C. Graye, Alan Russell Securities, Inc. Open Avowal Of Anti-Semitism Not Permissible Says Paper

LONDON — Anti-Semitism is primarily economic in Britain and social in the United States but in both nations "it is no longer permissible to avow it openly," the Spectator. Britain's leading Conservative weekly, asserted in an article last week comparing such prejudice in the two English-speaking nations.

The weekly said "active anti-Semitism" in Britain is "most virulent" and open among small businessmen who feel the pressure of free enterprise and "put a Jewish name or a Jewish face on the competitor, or creditor, or employer who exercises" such competitive pressures.

In an open society, the Spectator declared, "exclusiveness takes on almost magical significance. To be exclusive, you must exclude someone—Negroes are automatically banned, Jews are ignored on key occasions and in key groups, first generation Americans with East European names are expected to keep in the background."

"The one cheerful sign on this unpleasant landscape," the weekly asserted, "is that, although anti-Semitism still exists in both nations, it is no longer permissible to avow it openly. The insecure and frustrated cohorts of race snobbery are in retreat."

Another comparison deals with the impact of the "exaggerated respect for written constitutions," in the United States as against the situation in Britain where written rules hardly exist. In the United States, the Spectator declared, "there are few institutions from the top universities to the bottom poker club which do not have an agreed quota for Jews." In the British way, "most organizations carefully have no written, or even spoken, agreement on the subject," the weekly reported. "It simply happens that Jews are not elected."

Jewish Woman To Play Important Role In Plans Of Conference On Aging

NEW YORK — A Jewish women's leader will play a major role in planning the first White House conference on aging, to be held in Washington, D. C., in January, 1961.

Mrs. Charles Hymes, of Minneapolis, president of the National Council of Jewish Women, has been named chairman of the 22-member subcommittee on national organizations of the national advisory committee for the conference. Her appointment was announced last week by Arthur S. Fleming, U. S. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.

The NCJW has been developing pioneer services to older people since 1946, when its nationwide golden age club program was launched. Employment solicitation projects, sheltered workshops and assistance to the homebound are among other services to the elderly of Council Sections.

In a statement issued at the Council's national headquarters in New York City, Mrs. Hymes declared that the White House conference will be "a milestone in American social progress. She expressed confidence that it will stimulate needed broad programs "to help make the later years an interesting, respected and productive period of life—a time to which people can look forward."

Three thousand state, organizational and governmental delegates are expected to participate in the conference.

of perjury, and was sentenced to two years in a Federal penitentiary on a charge allegedly in connection with the Lindbergh kidnapping.

Arthur Tortorello: he was found in the Philip Newman Associates setup and is reported by the Attorney General's office "to be a member of the Brooklyn mob as well as henchman for Carmine Lombardozzi."

Enough. The fact is, says Lefkowitz, that "a network of ex-criminals has been operating and the public must be warned!"

How could a mob take over such legitimate firms as Philip Newman, Lincoln Securities, etc?

With understandable incredulity, I asked the Attorney General, "How do they manage to get in?" Here is the pattern he gave me.

(1) A first and common move by the mobsters is to seek an established, legitimate front which is vulnerable to a take-over.

The gangsters may find a firm which is in financial difficulties and arrange to have a seemingly respectable outfit lend the firm money. This was the procedure allegedly used in the case of Philip Newman Associates, Inc. of 420 Madison Ave., N.Y.C.

Or, the gangsters may move in by threatening employes with bodily harm. This was the procedure reputedly followed in the case of Lincoln Securities Corp. of 42 Broadway, N.Y.C. Said Lefkowitz, "We received testimony from persons apparently in fear of their lives."

(2) A second move of the mobsters is to put one of their own hoodlums in control of the firm.

For the president of Philip Newman Associates, the man chosen was "one George Wagner, a convicted gambler who was completely inexperienced and had just left a job as a used car lot auto salesman."

For sales manager of Lincoln Securities, the man chosen was Murray Taylor, who as Taylor or Murray Bleefeld, had served time in the Federal penitentiary allegedly in connection with the Lindbergh kidnapping and had been convicted of arson.

(3) A third move by the mobsters is to collect a staff of "loaders" — or high-pressure salesmen.

"This is done just by 'talk on the street,'" revealed Lefkowitz. "These loaders have regular meeting places in key office buildings in Wall Street and uptown Manhattan. Word gets around that so-and-so needs loaders and has a hot deal, and they come to be screened by the top man and told what the deal is. A top-notch loader can make as much as $3,500 a week. They're all paid in cash, all use fictitious names."

(4) Then the swindlers set about getting themselves a block of worthless or near-worthless stock to promote to the public.

When Philip Newman Associates was barred, it was selling stock in Monarch Asbestos, now thought to be worthless. When Lincoln Securities was barred, it was selling shares in Shoreland Mines, Ltd., also now thought to be worthless.

A test tube case was the stock of Mono-Kearsarge Consolidated Mining Co. of Salt Lake City, of which more than a half-million dollars was sold by a firm named Jean R. Veditz Co. of 160 Broadway, N.Y.C. at prices from 18 to 27 cents a share before Veditz was enjoined.

Veditz testified that he had bought 450,000 shares of the stock at 12 to 14 cents a share from one Charles Pennington of Montreal. "But many checks made payable to Pennington were cashed by Veditz in Canada and Veditz refused to explain them," said Lefkowitz. "We found no trace of a Charles Pennington in Montreal."

"The pattern is to locate a dead or near-dead corporation shell and arrange to take over the stock for a minimum amount."

So now the gangsters have a front, high-pressure salesmen, stock to sell. Now they're ready to create a market and pull in the suckers.

This quite terrifying pattern will be traced next week.
