A YOUNG ANTI-SEMITIC IN Columbus, Ga., who boasted he was a lover of Hitler was given a maximum prison term of six to ten years for smearing swastikas on a synagogue and setting fire to a local museum.

THE JEWISH AGENCY SECURED a loan of $2,380,000 in West Germany for new housing projects in Israel, it was announced in Geneva by agency officials.

AN AGREEMENT UNDER which Israel is to get from the United States a quantity of 90% enriched uranium for use in a research reactor now nearing completion was signed in Washington last week between the two countries. The document was signed by Yaacov Herzog, Israeli Charge d'Affaire, and G. Louis Jones, Assistant Secretary of State for Near Eastern Affairs.

TWO YOUTHFUL RELIGIOUS zealots from New York were each fined the sum of $50 by a court in Liberty, N. Y., for picketing kosher resorts in the mountain resort area for providing mixed bathing facilities to men and women. The two were of a group of 50 pickets picked up by state troopers while they were demonstrating before one of the hotels. The charge against them was breaking the peace.

ISRAEL IS THE "51ST STATE" of the United States and as such is emulating that country "in the arms race and in other aspects of foreign policy." Radio Moscow charged in an Arab-language broadcast beamed to the countries in the Middle East.

YOSEF TEKOAH MINISTER Plenipotentiary and Acting Permanent Representative of Israel to the UN may step into Ambassador Eban's role as head of the Mission, it was reliably reported at the UN last week.

SENATOR JOSEPH S. CLARK, Pennsylvania Democrat, asked his Senate colleagues on the Civil War Centennial Commission to insist on immediate retraction by General U.S. Grant, 3rd, of anti-Semitic remarks he made in an article on the Civil War.

THE RUMANIAN GOVERNMENT has released Rabbi Portugal, the noted scholar and pietist, who had been languishing in prison for ten months, according to reports reaching Tel Aviv. Known as the Skulenor Rabbi, Rabbi Portugal gained fame throughout the Jewish world for his efforts on behalf of Jewish war orphans whom he rescued from non-Jewish hands.

ISRAEL IS BEING USED AS A testing area for a new type of study inaugurated by the United Nations Children Fund, in an effort to find out whether there is a relationship between improved dieting and a lessening of infant mortality. A survey of this type, the first ever undertaken, is being conducted in Israel now.

Rabbi Donald Heskins

Rabbi Donald Heskins Appointed To Sinai

Rabbi Donald Heskins has been appointed as full time religious leader of Temple Sinai, suburban reform temple, for the coming year.

Perviously assistant Rabbi at Temple Beth Ahabah in Richmond, Va., Rabbi Heskins was ordained at the Hebrew Union College in Cincinnati, Ohio, in 1957.

Rabbi Heskins will be serving in the capacity of principal of Temple Sinai's religious schools. Registration for both Hebrew and Sunday school will be held on Sept. 13, 10 to 12:30 P.M. at the Garden City elementary school.

Regular Friday night service tonight will be held at the Greenwood Club in Warwick. Rabbi Heskins' sermon will be on "The Work of Our Hands," a Labor Day message.

Israeli Strip-Tease Proves Unsuccessful

JERUSALEM — They came and they saw but strangely enough they gave the bulk of their applause to a fully clad South African singer.

They had come to a night club here to see what was advertised as the first strip tease dance in Jerusalem since the redoubtable Salome captivated her audiences with seven veils in Biblical times, but their eyes apparently played second fiddle to their hearts, for their cheering for the African singer was an avalanche as compared to the mild applause for the strip teaser, a young and pretty new immigrant.

GJC Initial Gifts Committee To Hear Rabbi H. A. Friedman

Rabbi Herbert A. Friedman, executive vice chairman of the United Jewish Appeal and an authority on refugee problems, will be the guest speaker at the meeting of the Initial Gifts committee of the 1959 General Jewish Committee campaign which will be held on Monday evening, Sept. 14, at the home of the chairman, Merrill L. Hassenfeld at 4 Woodland Terrace.

Rabbi Friedman, as chaplain with the U.S. Army's Ninth Infantry Division in 1945, was the only Jewish religious adviser in the liberated city of Berlin. He spearheaded efforts to provide food, clothing and shelter for thousands of refugees.

Henry J. Hassenfeld, GJC president, said that the work of the Initial Gifts committee will be concentrated in a two-week period from Sept. 14 to Sept. 27 at which time the campaign will open.

The United Jewish Appeal is one of the 53 beneficiary agencies of the General Jewish Committee campaign and campaign leaders are determined to surpass the

Rabbi Herbert A. Friedman

$600,000 goal recently announced by Mr. Hassenfeld.

Serving as associate chairmen of the Initial Gifts committee are Martin Chase, Samuel Friedman, Arthur Galkin, Ira S. Galkin, Stanley Grossman, Arthur Kaplan, Leonard I. Salmanson, Sol J. Schiff and Harold Weiner.

Jordan Willing To Accept Refugees For Settlement

JERUSALEM—The Kingdom of Jordan is willing to accept all the Palestine Arab refugees for permanent settlement. Jordanian Premier Hazza Majali said last week according to Jordanian broadcasts.

About half the estimated 900,000 displaced Palestine Arabs now live in Jordan, mostly in the north and central areas of the old mandated Palestine territory which Jordanian forces occupied during the fighting in 1948.

The Jordanian offer was seen here as keyed directly to the forthcoming Casablanca conference of Arab foreign ministers to discuss the refugee question, and as a move to forestall any attempt to establish an Arab (refugee) state in the Arab-held parts of Palestine.

Proposal Made by Lebanon

A proposal along these lines was made by Lebanese Minister of Labor Pierre Jumeil, the chief Lebanese government authority on the refugee problem.

The Jordanians, however, were believed to be more concerned over suggestions that an "All-Palestine" government be set up in the Gaza Strip which would, in effect, give the United Arab Republic a claim to control of the areas of Palestine now held by Jordan.

Heir To Irish Throne Takes Step Toward Adopting Hebrew Faith

DUBLIN — The heir to the ancient Irish throne of the House of O'Brien of Thomond, His Royal Highness Raymond Moulton Nathan Seaghan Donogh, has taken the first step, along with his wife and two boys, towards the adoption of the Hebrew faith, it was revealed here.

The revelation came from the Office of the Lord Mayor of Dublin, Philip Ambrose Brady, who had attested to a document proving, historically, the heir's claims to the Irish Throne and which document was witnessed by the "Past-President of the United Hebrew Congregation, Dublin," Benj. Shaw, P. C.

Youth Asks For Opportunity To Express Views

STARLIGHT, Pa. — Resolutions calling for youth representation on Jewish community councils, synagogues and other policy-making agencies were adopted here last week by the 350 teen-age delegates attending the 36th annual international convention of Aleph Zadik and the 15th annual meeting of the B'nai B'rith Girls.

The young delegates expressed concern that adults were legislating decisions affecting youth while giving youth no opportunity to make their views known.

Of major concern to the BBYO delegates, too, was the current level of Jewish education.

A resolution approved by the Aleph Zadik Aleph convention body labelled as "generally inadequate" Jewish education at present. The resolution went on to ask those concerned with Jewish education to provide more courses dealing with Jewish history, a comparison course on the differences among the various denominations of Judaism, and courses on rituals, literature, Israel and current Jewish events.

The BBG convention body adopted a separate resolution calling on local chapters of the organization to establish nationally-coordinated programs of Jewish study to "help raise the level of Jewish education."

In other BBG-approved resolutions, the young delegates:

1. Asked school systems throughout the country to include Hebrew as a regularly-accredited, academic language.
 2. Called on local chapters to undertake programs dealing with a study of current teenage ethics and morals.
- Elected to head the organizations for the next year were William Goldman of Akron, Ohio, for Aleph Zadik Aleph, and Sara Miller of Flushing, N.Y., for B'nai B'rith Girls.

 THIS WEEK WE ARE HAPPY TO PRESENT

An Orchid To . . . Mrs. Ida Resnick

 This is the time of year when the wonderful ladies of the Festival Committee conduct the bridge that helps them finance their activities for the year. The organization's finances are the main concern of Ida Resnick, who has served as treasurer of the Festival Committee for many years, and who, it is hoped by her fellow members, will continue in this capacity for many years to come.
 While she has poured herself, heart and soul, into the work of the Festival Committee, Mrs. Resnick also has maintained a lifelong interest in the Ladies Hebrew Union Aid, and at one time was the vice-president of this group.

A Carnation To . . . Morris Espo

 Morris Espo's civic and communal activities are widespread, and seemingly endless, as the following brief summary shows. Mr. Espo served as vice-president of the Blackstone Valley Jewish Council for many years, and as vice-president of the BV UJA. He was vice-president of Temple Emanuel for numerous terms. He has, also, always been close to Pawtucket's Congregation Ohawe Sholam.
 Mr. Espo is an active board member of the Pawtucket Boys Club; and he is a trustee of the Salvation Army. As a member of B'nai B'rith, he has been keenly concerned with Anti-Defamation activities.

Levitt-Schretter
At a 1:30 P.M. ceremony on Sunday, Aug. 30, Miss Janice Rae Schretter, daughter of Mrs. Irving Schretter of 45 Alvin Street and the late Irving Schretter, became the bride of Arthur Bernard Levitt, son of Mrs. Joseph Levitt of 2300 Grand Concourse, Bronx, N. Y. and the late Joseph Levitt, at the Congregation Sons of Abraham synagogue. Rabbi Abraham Chill officiated at the ceremony.

Howard Alan Schretter gave his sister in marriage. The bride wore a white bouquet taffeta princess style gown with a sweetheart neckline, a molded bodice highlighted with lace appliques, and falling into a bouffant skirt ending in a chapel train. Her fingertip length veil fell from a pillbox of organza and sequins accented with a drop pearl. She carried a Bible marked with white roses centered with pink sweetheart roses and a shower of stephanotis.

Matron of honor, Mrs. Richard Robbins, wore a waltz length antique blue silk gown in Marie Antoinette style with a matching headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink carnations and white pom poms.

Lionel Levitt was best man for his brother. Ushers were Gerald Russian, Richard Katz, Richard Robbins and Dr. L. Fred Raphael.

The mother of the bride wore a Dior blue silk peau de soie sheath gown, and the mother of the bridegroom was dressed in sapphire blue chiffon. Both wore white orchid corsages.

Dear Relatives and Friends:

Our youngest son, Earl, will celebrate his becoming a Bar Mitzvah by chanting the Sabbath Shacharis and Musaf services at our home, 134 Brown Street in Providence, on September 19, 1959 starting promptly at 10 o'clock in the forenoon. In honor of their brother, our son Hershel will read the Torah portion of the week and our son Arthur will chant the preliminary service.

It will make us very happy if those of you who can conveniently walk to our home will join us on this occasion, and, following the services, take Kiddush and lunch with us.

Whether or not you can come in the morning, we would be honored by your presence at the reception at our home starting at 8 o'clock that evening. No formal invitations are being sent.

WHY BETTER BUILDERS INSTALL OIL HEAT!
And Why YOU Should, Too!

The better builders, who represent the vast majority of Rhode Island contractors, put the best in homes they build to make the home sell faster, satisfy the buyer more. So it's natural that they'd install oil, the fuel that provides better, safer, more dependable heat for less money.

These are the same reasons why you should insist on oil heat. If the home you're building or buying has oil heat you know it's a quality built home.

If it doesn't have oil heat — change it — it's so easy and costs so little. Get a free estimate now.

The Stuff That Makes Pennants

Quick now — and I mean real quick, because this is such an easy question! Which team in each major league has gone the longest period of time without winning the pennant? And in what year did each last win? Answer at the end of this column.

Stuff That Makes Pennants

The collapse of the Yankees, among other significant factors, has made it possible for some other American League team to win the 1959 pennant. That the White Sox have moved into the breach and hoisted their flag atop the standings merits cheers and hosannas for Al Lopez and his men — as well as a deep bow in the direction of the eighth place Washington Senators.

Right behind the steady day-in, day-out play of the Chicagoans comes the contribution of the Senators as a major factor in putting the White Sox in their present lofty status and enviable flag position. And as has happened so often in the past, it was a deal that was not made that turned the trick.

When the trading deadline approached in mid-June, Bill Veeck, Al Lopez, and their lieutenants were desperate. The Indians were rolling smoothly along in first place, the Tigers were coming up fast, the Orioles were only a few games off the pace, and the Yankees were unsteadily moving closer to the top. They were only five games away.

The White Sox, in second place, were going nowhere. Their hitting was horribly bad, and their idea of a long ball seemed to consist of getting the ball over the infielders' heads.

A power hitter was sorely needed if Chicago was to be able to make a run for the pennant; or so it seemed. So Veeck and Lopez put their heads together, and decided to make a play for Roy Sievers of Washington. Roy had done little up to that point, was hobbled by injuries, and had scarcely played. Despite that, the Senators were the darlings of baseball with their tremendous home-run hitting trio of Killebrew, Lemon, and Allison. Sievers seemed to be expendable.

Veeck did not fool around. In exchange for Sievers and one other player (fairly inconsequential, as I recall) Chicago offered a quarter million dollars in cash, and such talent as Al Smith Jim Rivera, Billy Goodman, Ray Moore, Earl Torgeson and Earl Battey or John Romano. I believe Chicago also was willing to throw in a relief pitcher like Turk Lown or Jerry Staley.

The Senators thought over the deal, hemmed and hawed, finally decided in the negative. By so doing, they positively broke the hearts of Veeck and Lopez . . . and booted Chicago upward toward the pennant.

Had the trade been consummated, there appears to be little doubt that the White Sox would now be struggling along in second place, while the Indians would be starting to work out details for selling World Series tickets. Here's why.

Roy Sievers, the much-sought-after key figure in the deal, was as of a week ago, batting .217, with 35 runs batted in and 17 home runs. This is hardly the kind of performance the White Sox were anticipating when they tried so hard to make the deal.

In contrast is the performance of many of the players Chicago tried to palm off on Washington. Here are a few examples.

Al Smith hobbled along to mid-season, then suddenly lost the leg troubles that had plagued him for several years. He began fielding with the brilliance of his 1954 season with Cleveland, and his hits began coming in crucial spots. He alone has as many RBIs as Sievers.

Jim Rivera blossomed out in August in much the same brilliant form he had displayed in his early years in the big leagues. Sensational catches and timely hits have made him one of the best of the White Sox' second line players, and helped immeasurably in the making of a solid and dependable bench.

Billy Goodman, the man who couldn't fit into the plans of the unlamented Mike Higgins, has been hitting the cover off the ball. A check of his record reveals that in one recent 14-game stretch, Billy batted .372!

Ray Moore has been a whale of a pitcher for several weeks; Romano has come through with many clutch pinch-hits; while Lown and Staley comprise the best relief pitching combination in the American League, at least.

Where would the White Sox be now if these players had been traded away for Roy Sievers? One thing is certain — they would not be in first place.

If Calvin Griffith, president of the Senators, ever looks back ruefully at what might have been, he can rest easier in the knowledge that his uncle, the late Clark Griffith, handed at least two pennants to the Yankees with similar refusal to make a deal a dozen years ago.

The Yanks at that time offered a flock of ball players for the one Washington player they thought would clinch the pennant for them in 1947. Griffith was openly enticed by what was offered him. Had any other team made the offer, he would have grabbed it. But Clark hated the Yankees with such a fierce passion that he passed up the chance to add tremendous strength to his cellar-dwellers rather than give the New Yorkers a player who might have helped them win another pennant.

One of the players whom the Yanks offered Griffith in that deal was a left handed smoke-baller. Name of Joe Page.

It is generally agreed that without Page, New York probably would not have won the 1947 pennant, and most certainly would not have won its brilliant race with the Red Sox two years later, in 1949.
That is how the ball bounces. When the Yankees were winning, they profited mightily from a number of deals that were never made. This is a good omen for the White Sox, who are racing toward a pennant because of the failure of a trade they tried so desperately to make.

ANSWER TO QUIZ — The Chicago White Sox in the American League, and the Pittsburgh Pirates in the National, have gone the longest without winning a pennant.
The White Sox last won exactly 40 years ago, the year of the infamous Black Sox scandal, when several members of what is said to have been one of the greatest ball clubs of all time managed to throw the World Series to Cincinnati; while several others, who took no active part in the giveaway, were found guilty by virtue of not having reported their knowledge of what was about to, and did happen.

The Pirates took their last flag in 1927, when, despite a fine team that was headlined by Paul and Lloyd Waner, the Buccs lost four straight to the team that still ranks as THE greatest of all time — the 1927 Yankees.

Four Bandits Get $3,500 Payroll
The entire Providence detective division last night screened the city, with emphasis on the Wanskuck section, for trace of four fast-working gunmen who snatched a $3,500 payroll at gunpoint from a Charles Street plant at 2:15 p.m.
Four employees of the International Insignia Co. at 387 Charles St. chased the fleeing . . . about five feet, nine inches tall. The gunman backed her against the wall as she pleaded, "Don't shoot me—don't shoot me."
Meanwhile, the second man was ransacking Miss Petrochi's desk hurriedly.
"Where is it? It's not here," he demanded.
The man with the gun turned around and the secretary dashed through the nearby door into the factory.
The two women hurriedly told the workers about the holdup and John Bonetti, 27, of 192 Morris Ave., Pawtucket, and Milton Javery of Cranston, Continued on Page 19, Col. 6
. . . To The Employees Of INTERNATIONAL INSIGNIA CO.
It was our intention, when we learned about the robbery last Wednesday, to settle the claim that very same day, thus permitting the employees to be paid according to their normal schedule.
However, because the bandits inconsiderately timed their holdup just as the banks were closing, we were unable to obtain the funds that day, and they could not be paid on time.
WE DID THE NEXT BEST THING
Shortly after 9 o'clock the next morning—even as the public was reading about the payroll theft in the story that appears (in part) above—INSURANCE UNDERWRITERS INC. visited the International Insignia Co. and replaced the entire payroll. We regret the delay occasioned by the thoughtlessness of the bandits.

Inquiry Shows No Discrimination Against North Africans In Israel

JERUSALEM—There is "absolutely no deliberate discrimination" against North African immigrants in Israel on government and public level, according to the findings of a special parliamentary commission of inquiry that was appointed by the government to study and report on the recent wave of rioting by North African immigrants in the Wadi Salib section of Haifa.

The probers said they were "convinced that among large sections of the North African community, particularly those from Morocco, there exists a deep feeling of inequality and discrimination," primarily among those who have not been fully absorbed economically, but that in fact the commission found no such discrimination in any public or state institutions.

The investigators said that, "if, on lower levels, there are de facto situations of inequality and discrimination," there exists on the planning and policy level a genuine desire and clear tendency to give special care and priority to Oriental immigrants "to aid their integration in all areas of life in Israel."

Linked to Insecurity

At the same time the commission found with respect to the situation of the North African immigrants that some of them, "despite equal conditions offered all citizens and all immigrants," were "de facto, unable to compete on an equal level with other citizens, particularly in the field of primary education."

The investigators accused the organizations of North African immigrants of contributing "considerably to the feelings of discrimination" by "basing themselves not on efforts to improve social and economic conditions" among their members but on developing a sense of security.

The commission, at the same time, paid tribute to the Israeli Army as a force in the integration process. The report said "not even the most vehement witnesses charged any discrimination in the Army."

Voicing regret over the fact that "numerous and various sections of the settled Israeli public still have many prejudices," the commission counselled formation of a special coordinating authority to "hasten the fusing of the immigrants from various countries."

It recommended speeding of current efforts in the fields of housing, education and establishment of new settlements. It urged that priority be given to the clearance and elimination of slums and temporary transit camps.

The board of inquiry also counselled special assistance to immigrants from underdeveloped countries with a view to promoting their "speedy attainment of the ability to utilize equal opportunities."

Apropos the recent outbreaks, the commission said not only would it be wrong to link the North African immigrants in general with the Haifa disturbances but even the Wadi Salib dwellers themselves since "only a small handful of Wadi Salib residents participated in the riots," among them women, children, teenagers and criminal elements.

Appointed by Knesset following the July 9 rioting, the commission consisted of District Judge Moshe Etzioni, Prof. Shmuel Eisenstadt, Rabbi Yitzhak Abu Hatzira of Ramleh, Yaakov Klebanov and Ramm Salomon.

ONLY IN AMERICA

BY HARRY GOLDEN

A fellow in Washington, D. C., writes me a letter and sends along with it one of his poems:

"How does man know his sweetest hour

Until his last is passed?"

Which seems to me pretty reputable verse. Every hour is sweet and the present hour the sweetest of all. But I'm not sure this is the whole truth. Let's investigate. There are moments that are sweet and they are also unique and we know we will never have the same moment again.

All of us anticipate. That anticipation is often more fun and more exciting than that which we wait for, for no one supposes we can simply spend our lives in anticipation. You must end by fulfillment or disappointment or end forever the purpose of anticipation. And some of our fulfillments are sweet indeed.

A good book is a sweet thing. The memory of it is always there, an experience added to all the rest, but an experience unalloyed with anxiety or tragedy. And good friends are sweet to have too.

Or watch young boys and girls scurrying to get into their graduating robes; listen to their plans for their future; or look out from the rostrum at Commencement and feel their attention and pride and you cannot doubt that being graduated is one of life's sweet moments. Of course! A graduation marks the successful end of four years of work and it is one of the few times in life that the precise goal set is reached. A man may not work in the profession for which he feels the best skilled, he may not make the money he thinks he needs, or even live where he thinks life would be most pleasant, but if he sets his goal upon graduating, this he can achieve.

The careful packing and re-packing of luggage, the preparations, all completed long before, and the bon-voyage party convince us that when the ship whistle screeches and the lines are tossed from the deck back to the wharf and the ship begins to pull slowly from the wharf, life has reached and passed another sweet moment.

The moment when the house lights dim to half and the audience suddenly quiets and within a second the curtain will raise slowly is a moment that never falls.

Any one who's ever been promoted from one position to the next never forgets it. I got a two-dollar raise once when I worked in a hat factory and it seems to me the happiest money I ever made. Now that raises come as "cost-of-living increments" a lot of joy seems to have passed from life. When the boss used to walk down a long row of desks to you and say, "We like your work and there'll be more money in your pay envelope next week" and the thrill of honest merit is not replaced by the security that every sweater of Frank Crosero, the director.

Tami Grimes, who's been working at the Cambridge Art Festival, is having her praises sung by Cyril Ritchard, who's sure she'll be a star. Ritchard, incidentally, lives in an apartment house on Central Park West. Recently he received a call from a lady who said she wanted to enlist his efforts in fighting Tammany Hall. "Tammany Hall?" replied the Australian-born star. "Why, I don't even know him. The only Tammany I know is Tammany Grimes."

All the reports on the romance between the Aga Khan and Tracy Pellesier describe her only as the step-daughter of Carol Reed, the director. Her mother is the famed beauty Penelope Dudley Ward, who played Lady Windemere on Broadway . . . Dorothy Stickney, whose Edna Vincent Millay show has been a hit on tour, is seeking a small theater here for the N. Y. run . . . Harold Arlen returned to Broadway last week for his two musicals, "Saratoga" and "Free and Easy."

Garson Kanin, author of "Blow Up a Storm," was invited to a party given by Leueen McGrath. Soon after Kanin met all the guests he confided to the hostess: "In this room are a man and a woman I'd last seen together 16 years ago—when he punched her in the mouth and knocked out all her front teeth" . . . The party, he February you move up one notch automatically.

The sweet moments of life are not the Christmas moment, the surprise gift or the sudden spurt of fellowship. The sweet moments always arrive because of the things a man has worked and earned. Work surrounds most of our sweet moments as a frame surrounds a picture, and the picture and our sweet moments are better for the frame and the work.

With one exception. There is one Christmas moment in life. A moment that comes upon us unexpected and without doubt becomes life's sweetest moment. That moment is when a man wants one woman above all other women in the world.

Farm boys who have spent their days pushing a balky mule at the other end of the plow, and milk 30 cows before dinner every evening, suddenly lose interest. The cows bleat because he takes so long. The mule stands in the middle of the field swishing his tail while the farm boy leans on the plow. But if the mule is confused, the boy isn't because he knows the world has opened into a variety of infinite possibilities and beauty, all inspired by—a girl.

The city boy, so purposeful in school, so sure of himself at his job without a wasted effort, takes a subway at night, neglecting his books, just to make a long trip so he can walk around the apartment house where she lives. He has no other purpose other than his aimless appreciation. Calculus is a closed system and love is an open system and as long as a man stays honest with himself, as all the poets and the philosophers urge him, there never will be any question as to which is the more preferable system.

For years Bernie Green, the press agent, always was able to grab newspaper space for his pop-singer clients by sending out announcements that they were planning to do a concert at Carnegie Hall. Then, one day, into his office came Vivienne della Chiesa. "I'm doing a concert at Carnegie Hall and need promotion on it," she said. Green couldn't handle it.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

WHAT'S YOUR DOLLAR WORTH?

What's your dollar worth?

If you've been listening to Washington's stern warnings about inflation in recent months, you'll probably answer:

"The dollar is worth only 48 cents."

By that you would mean that measured in terms of the official index of consumer prices, the dollar which bought 100 cents of goods and services in 1939 will buy only 48 cents of goods and services today.

But why automatically accept 1939 as the yardstick? True, 1939 was the last year before the outbreak of World War II and thus it marks a turning point in history. But 1939 was neither a normal year nor an especially happy one. What's more, to millions of Americans now earning paychecks, spending and saving money, 1939 was "before their time"; they were still at school, only indirectly concerned with the dollar's value.

So let's say you measure the value of the dollar against what it was buying in 1947-49. That period marked the end of World War II and the first postwar inflation spiral. Also, during those years millions of today's jobholders went to work for the first time. If you took 1948 as a yardstick, your answer would have to be:

"The dollar is now worth 83 cents."

Clearly the dollar has continued to lose value in the past 10 years — or putting it another way, prices of goods and services we buy have continued to climb. But just as clearly, the pace of loss in its buying power has been a lot slower since 1949 than since 1939.

In the current bulletin of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago is a short analysis which dramatizes the fundamental but often ignored fact that the worth of the dollar today depends on the year against which you choose to compare its worth.

More specifically, changes in the dollar's buying power are measured by changes in the consumer price index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics. This index includes a long list of goods and services which are priced every month by the BLS. To permit comparison, the index assumes the average of prices checked at a specific date — called the "base period" — to be equal to 100. Now here's the record of changes in consumer prices against the averages in various base periods.

THE DOLLAR WHICH WAS "WORTH"

100 CENTS IN	TODAY IS "WORTH"
1913	34 cents
1920	69 cents
1929	59 cents

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

1933	45 cents
1939	48 cents
1948	83 cents
1953	92 cents
1958	100 cents

There's a reason for choosing each base year, of course. For instance, 1913 marked the start of the index, 1920 marked the peak of the post-World War I inflation, 1929 marked the year of the stock market collapse, 1933 marked the bottom of the great depression, etc.

But notice how different are the values of today's dollar as compared with the different base years!

I can "prove" to you that, as of today, the annual rate of loss in the dollar's value (the rate of inflation) has been only 1 percent if I go back to 1920. That would be a most comforting record. Or I can "prove" to you that the annual rate of loss in the dollar's value has been almost 4 percent if I go back to 1939. That's hardly a loss to shrug off.

It cannot be denied that the dollar is worth less today than in the past. But how much less is it worth?

Choose your year for comparison, and you can decide and prove by the official statistics how much less it is worth!

Cohen-Cohen

Miss Bernice Charlotte Cohen, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan B. Cohen of 33 Taft Avenue, was married to David E. Cohen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Cohen of 14 Rogers Road, Great Neck, Long Island, N. Y. at an 8 P. M. ceremony on Saturday, Aug. 29 at Temple Emanuel. Rabbi Eli A. Bohnen officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception at the temple.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in ivory peau de soie with a fitted bodice and a sabrina neckline outlined in re-embroidered Alencon lace, short sleeves and a bouffant skirt with lace appliques ending in a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of silk illusion fell from a crown of pearls. She carried a cascade of roses and stephanotis with an orchid.

Miss Barbara T. Cohen, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor.

Murray E. Cohen, brother of the bride, was best man. Ushers were Malcolm Basner, Shepard Forman, Anthony Frank, David Goldberg, Harold Shupack and Neal Small.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will make their home at 639 Albany Avenue, Brooklyn, New York.

Your Capacity For Greatness

YOUR times call for a new kind of greatness. This is an invitation to that greatness in you. It is an invitation that comes from many people in many places, close to home and in far distant lands. Some of these people are desperate and live in constant fear. Wherever these people are, whatever their particular difficulty, they have this in common: They are Jews and depend upon us for help.

HE messenger of this appeal, which carries the pleas of tens of thousands, is our General Jewish Committee -- the one all-inclusive organization, that looks after our community's welfare as well as the one that meets our obligations in Israel and overseas. For what is our campaign in the last analysis, but one long, sustained cry for help which cannot and will not cease until it is answered.

A million silent voices are calling upon you not just to give, but to be great in your giving. They echo the searching, probing question that you must ask yourself, "Do I really care what happens to my children, to my neighbors, to a Jew fleeing Rumania, to a Jew building Israel? Whom do I wish to emulate in rescuing my people "with charity for all" -- Moses? Lincoln? What is the measure of my own greatness?"

ONLY you can answer this question. There's no doubt about it. You do have the capacity to be great. Show it by your gift and your devotion to the 1959 Campaign of the General Jewish Committee of Providence. What each person thinks of himself and what others think of him is decided by the way he lives and what he does.
