Dr. Prinz Remarks On Growing Indifference To Jewish Identification

NEW YORK — A growing indifference to Jewish identification and an increasing ignorance of Jewish values pose a "deepening crisis" in American Jewish life, Dr. Joachim Prinz, president of the American Jewish Congress, declared here, addressing 500 leaders of the organization.

The meeting marked the launching of an "American Jewish Congress Month" proclaimed by a number of mayors and governors in various parts of the country. Purpose of "American Jewish Congress Month" is to focus attention on the activities of the organization in the field of civil rights, civil liberties, Jewish culture, and support to Israel, an intensive membership drive will also be undertaken during the month.

Dr. Prinz said that the AJC must meet "the challenge and opportunity offered by the freedom which Jews enjoy in America and other democratic lands of the West" and must combat the indifference of Jewish identification. He also described three other areas of responsibility which the American Jewish community faces today. He listed them as:

The strengthening of Israel and the protection of Jewish rights around the world, with particular emphasis on efforts to secure for Jews behind the Iron Curtain the right to continue their Jewish tradition and to assure their continuity as part of the Jewish people.

Bureau, Council To Sponsor Annual Pedagogic Conference

The Fifth Annual Pedagogic Conference, sponsored by the Bureau of Jewish Education and the School Council, will be held on Sunday at 12:45 P. M. at Temple Emanuel.

Louis L. Ruffman, nationally known Jewish educator and associate director of the Bureau of Jewish Education in New York, will be the guest speaker. "The Teaching of Prayers and the Prayerbook" will be the theme of the Conference, which is expected to include teachers from all communities in Rhode Island and nearby Massachusetts.

Lunch will be served through the courtesy of Temple Emanuel School Board and Sisterhood.

Daniel Jacobs, chairman of Temple Emanuel School Board and Alter Boyman, president of the Bureau, will bring greetings to the Conference, which will be under the chairmanship of Rabbi Akiva Egozi, School Council chairman. Dr. Aaron Klein will lead in the Birhat Hamazon.

Following the main presentation by Mr. Ruffman, there will be discussion groups formed which will center their attention on the Conference theme, in accordance with the various age levels in the schools. Discussion group chairmen include Rabbi Reuben Bodek, Dr. Klein and Seymour Krieger.

The guest speaker is a former president of the National Council for Jewish Education and at present is editor of the journal, "Jewish Education". He recently completed a survey of Jewish education in New York.

Serving as hostesses for the luncheon are Mesdames Max Berman, Samuel Bresnick, Lester Cohen, George Kroll, Samuel Leger, Benjamin Mendelovitz, Clara Proctor, Maurice Share, and Hyman Fishbein, chairman.

AJ Congress Challenges New Jersey Sunday Law As Unconstitutional

NEWARK, N. J. — New Jersey's Sunday closing law — which permits individual counties to ban certain sales on Sunday — was challenged last week as unconstitutional and a violation of religious freedom.

The case marks the first time a local option to enact "blue" laws has ever been contested in a Federal court on constitutional grounds. It is considered a major test case affecting separation of church and state and may reach the U. S. Supreme Court.

Attorneys provided by the American Jewish Congress filed a complaint in U. S. District Court here seeking an injunction to prevent enforcement of the newly-voted Sunday business ban in Essex County. The complaint also asks that the State law be declared unconstitutional.

The American Jewish Congress attorneys represent Harry Morein of 411 Hawthorne Ave., Newark, who operates a retail furniture store here. Mr. Morein, an orthodox Jew, closes his store Friday evening and all day Saturday, opening again on Sunday. He claims that the ban on Sunday furniture sales — which Essex County voters enacted on Election Day — penalizes him for his religious beliefs by requiring him to be closed on a day which he does not observe as the Sabbath.

Mr. Morein is being represented without fee by Leo Pfeffer of New York, associate general counsel of the American Jewish Congress and a recognized authority on church-state law, and Sanford Gallanter, Newark attorney and a member of the Commission on Law and Social Action of the New Jersey Region of the American Jewish Congress.

To Head Campaign—Judge Saul Friedman has been named general chairman of the $200,000 Building Fund Campaign of the Cranston Jewish Center by Milton Jacobs, president. Jack Westerman will serve as honorary chairman.

To help in the campaign, Judge Friedman has appointed an executive committee which includes Mr. Jacobs, Harold Silverberg, Sheldon Sollosy, Morris Cofman, Al Sydney, Mrs. Mike Miller, Mrs. H. Lewis Gorfine, Harold Tregar and Elliot Dittelman.

The first in a series of Initial Gifts dinners will be held Monday at the home of Morris Cofman of 54 Bennington Road, Cranston.

New Knesset To Convene This Month

TEL AVIV—The new Knesset, Israel's parliament, elected on Nov. 3, will be convened on Nov. 30, it was announced as Mapai leaders pondered a national referendum on change in Israel's proportional representation election system.

Agreement to such referendum it was understood was being considered by Mapai officials as a possible condition for partnership in the new coalition government which will be headed again by Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion.

The Prime Minister had declared immediately after election returns had indicated an impressive victory for his party that he would give priority in coalition bargaining to parties agreeing to vote for a change to the constituency system.

Possible Compromise

Since only the General Zionists, who suffered the worst defeat in the election, are on record for such a change, the referendum proposal was developed as a possible compromise. This would not require coalition partners to vote in the Knesset for the electoral change, but only for a referendum which would leave it to the electorate and not to the Knesset to decide.

At the same time, the Central Elections Committee published the official results of the election which gave Mapai 47 seats and the Mapai-backed Arab lists five seats for a total of 52 seats—nine short of an absolute majority of the 120 Knesset seats.

The National Religious Party won 12 seats; the joint Agudah list, six; the right-wing Herut, 17; the left-wing Mapam, nine; the leftist Achdut Avodah, seven; the Progressives, six; the General Zionists, eight, and the Communist, three.

Final Results

Final results in the Tel Aviv municipality struggle gave Achdut Avodah a second seat, bringing the strength of the left-wing parties to 15.

These included 11 for Mapai, two for Achdut Avodah and one each for Mapam and the Communists. The right-wing total was 14, made up of six General Zionist, five Herut — which gave the balance of power to the two Progressive seats which Mapai must have if the mayoralty of Chaim Levanon is to continue.

Another Possibility

Another possibility which emerged was that of the Progressives demanding the mayoralty based on an agreement with either the left-wing or the right-wing groups.

The Progressive candidate is Chaim Mordechia Stern, general director of Rassco.

Meanwhile, it was indicated in Jerusalem that Premier Ben-Gurion will make an effort to persuade former Prime Minister and Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett to accept membership in the new Israel Cabinet. Mr. Ben-Gurion reportedly was ready to offer Mr. Sharett any portfolio except that of Foreign Affairs.

Jewish Home For Aged Holds Annual Meeting

Special recognition was given to three members of the board of trustees of the Jewish Home for the Aged of Rhode Island at its 27th Annual Meeting held last Sunday. Max Winograd, president, presented Certificates of Appreciation to Morris S. Waldman, Sol J. Schiff and Morton Smith for their service to the Home.

Max Winograd was reelected for his fifth term as president. Also reelected were Mrs. Saul Seigle, Alexander Rumpler, Irving I. Fain, Maurice Fox, vice presidents; Samuel Michaelson, assistant treasurer; Dudley J. Block, financial secretary, and Morris S. Waldman, recording secretary. Max Alperin was elected treasurer.

Maurice Fox, chairman of the budget committee, reported that the expenses for the current year ending Sept. 30 amounted to $224,179.25. The total income consisting of membership dues, Old Age Assistance, Old Age Survivors Insurance, contributions from the Ladies' Association, maintenance fees from residents and relatives, and donations amounted to $233,711.78, leaving an excess of income over expenses before depreciation of $9,532.53. Depreciation of buildings and equipment amounted to $23,797 so that the excess of expenses over income was $14,264.47.

Max Alexander, who completed fifteen years as administrator of the Home, reported that the Home's population has risen to 130, 43 men and 87 women. Looking back over the past fifteen years he pointed out that since 1944 the Home's population grew from 43 with a budget of $29,300 to its present annual budget of (Continued on Page 7)

Schiffs Have Son

Dr. and Mrs. Bencel L. Schiff of 1 Cambria Court, Pawtucket, announce the birth of their second child, a son, Barry Jay, on Oct. 24. Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Harry D. Jagoliner of Blackstone Boulevard.

Becomes Bar Mitzvah

Walter Dale Klein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry Klein of Puritan Drive, Warwick, became Bar Mitzvah on Saturday, Nov. 7 at the Congregation Shaare Zedek synagogue. A Kiddush and luncheon followed the services and a dinner-dance was held in his honor that evening at the synagogue. Guests were present from New York, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

Axelrod-Goldenberg

Miss Muriel Leah Goldenberg, daughter of Mrs. Harry Goldenberg of 169 Sumter Street and the late Harry Goldenberg, was married to Saul Axelrod, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Axelrod of 7 Cabot Street, Salem, Mass., on Nov. 1 at a 6:30 P. M. ceremony held at Weinstein's Lake Pearl Manor in Wrentham, Mass. Rabbi Morris Schussheim officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Leonard Goldenberg, was gowned in antique Chantilly lace, fashioned with a molded bodice and sculptured neckline accented with seed pearls, with long tapered sleeves and a bell shaped skirt which ended in a full court sweep train. Her fingertip length illusion veil fell from a queen's crown of pearl orange blossoms. She carried a Bible with an orchid and streamers of stephanotis.

Mrs. Leonard Golenberg was matron of honor and Arthur Axelrod, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Ushers were Morton Goldberg, Melvin Rabinowitz, Newton Fishman, Matthew Cooper, Sumner Sharff and Sam Shoer.

After a wedding trip to Florida,

Mrs. L. Joseph Lovit, the former Miss Betsey Carole Sundel, was married at the Ledgemont Country Club in Seekonk.

the couple will reside in Center-ville, Mass.

Announce Birth of Son

Mr. and Mrs. David Rice of Rochambeau Avenue announce the birth of a son, Jay, on Nov. 1. Mrs. Rice is the former Ann Barles.

Give Party

Lovit-Sundel
 The Ledgesmont Country Club in Seekonk was the scene of the wedding of Miss Betsey Carole Sundel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob H. Sundel of 1600 Highland Avenue, Fall River, Mass., to L. Joseph Lovit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Lovit of 626 Hood Street, Fall River. Rabbi Samuel S. Ruderman officiated at the ceremony which was followed by a reception.

Escorted by her father, the bride was gowned in imported satin fashioned with a Peter Pan collar, diamond buttons on the bodice and a bell shaped skirt with side shirring. Her ballerina length veil fell from a white satin Dior bow.

Mrs. Richard Strauss, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Miss Diane Bernstein was maid of honor. The attendants' gowns were of garnet peau de soi styled with Sabrina necklines, self buttons, three quarter length sleeves and bell shaped skirts of unpressed pleats. They wore headpieces to match.

Herbert Jay Lovit was best man for his brother.

After a wedding trip to Florida, the couple will reside in Brookline, Mass.

The bride was graduated from B. M. C. Durfee High School in Fall River and attended Syracuse University where her sorority was Iota Alpha Pi. Mr. Lovit, who is employed by Wilbar's, Inc., in Boston, is an alumnus of Durfee. He attended Northeastern University and served two years in the U. S. Army.

Home For Aged

$224,000, and that the Home grew from a 45 bed facility to a 145 bed facility. He also noted the trend of the Home's becoming a community nursing home and said that already half of its present residents belong in the category of the chronically ill and the physically handicapped.

Mr. Winograd, in his annual message, pointed with pride to the establishment of the Physio Therapy Department during the year. Looking ahead to the next fifteen years, Mr. Winograd pointed to the need for more comprehensive facilities and services for the recreational, cultural, and educational activities of our residents, under professional leadership and with the help of volunteers. He also asked for consideration of special housing for the chronically ill and mentally impaired and as a future program, he asked that the Home consider the establishment of an apartment type of housing, adjacent and affiliated with the Home where elderly people can retain a certain independence and status, and yet participate in the recreational and health facilities and religious activities of the Home.

In the absence of the chairman of the nominating committee, Abraham E. Goldstein, his son Lewis M. Goldstein, also a board member, read the report of the nominating committee which was accepted by Bernard B. Abedon, who installed the officers and also welcomed the newly elected Board Members.

The following members were added to the Board of Trustees: Cyril L. Berkelhammer, Ben Blacher, Philip Glanzman, Leonard Y. Goldman, Sol Koffler, Joseph K. Levy, Ben Rossman, Joseph Thaler, Dr. Joseph Smith and Samuel Wintman.

The following District Representatives were reelected: for East Greenwich; Herman L. Silverman; for Newport: Mrs. Max Adelson and Edwin Josephson; for Pawtucket: Herbert Pansy and Ben Sinel; for West Warwick: Max Margolis; for Woonsocket: Paul Bernon, Arthur I. Darman, Benjamin M. Falk, Philip J. Macktez, Israel Medoff, Samuel J. Medoff, and for Westerly: Edward Leibovitz was appointed to succeed his late brother, Philip Leibovitz.

The report of the Ladies Association was given by Mrs. Saul Seigle, president, outlining the achievements of that organization during the past year and their contribution to the finance and the welfare of the Home.

Rabbi Donald Heskins of Temple Sinai, Warwick, gave the invocation and also the benediction at the close of the meeting.

idea" to arrest the "decline" of the Zionist movement in America by creating an American-oriented Zionist group "uniting all those forces in the American Jewish community committed to the idea of Israel as the central element in the concept of Jewish peoplehood."

Full participation in the effort to make the promise of equality which America offers to all its citizens, come true for those citizens who because of race, religion or national origin are denied it.

Meanwhile, in Washington last weekend, Germany's Ambassador to the United States and the president of the American Jewish Congress agreed that efforts to wipe out anti-Semitism and strengthen democracy in Germany must be pursued with full vigor if the Federal Republic is to gain the confidence of the free world.

German Ambassador Wilhelm G. Grewe and Rabbi Prinz spoke at a press conference here at which Dr. Prinz presented the German diplomat with the first copy of a 63-page study by the American Jewish Congress entitled "The German Dilemma—An Appraisal of Anti-Semitism, Ultra-Nationalism and Democracy in West Germany."

The study reports that Germany has made "immense progress" in her development from Nazi dictatorship to the democracy of the Adenauer regime. But it warns that while the government has accepted the obligation to make material amends to the victims of Nazism, anti-Semitism remains a popular sentiment among the German people.

"For 2c Plain"

By HARRY GOLDEN

Rudolf Bing
and Maria Callas

Now comes Mr. Rudolf Bing, the general manager of the Metropolitan Opera Association, and unquestionably a man of extreme talent. Not only does he not excuse or forgive rudeness and temperament and selfishness, but he refuses to suffer them as well. His predecessors at the Met, Messrs. Johnson and Gatti-Casazza suffered. Opera and concert impresarios are supposed to suffer. Not Mr. Bing.

On what meat does he feed that he has grown so great? That he refuses the right of artists to kick up a row? Mr. Bing should read the biographies of Gatti-Casazza or Sol Hurok. Both books are epics of suffering. Mr. Hurok has put his life toward one service--dragging the American public into the concert hall. He played cat and mouse with Feodor Chaliapin and what a run-around! And he stood in the wings the night Isadora Duncan, disappointed when a proper Boston audience gave her only indifferent applause, suddenly shouted, "You Bostonians know nothing about Art. This is Art!" And she bared her breasts.

Hurok and Johnson and Gatti-Casazza knew this was part of the job. Wilbert Robinson, who used to manage the Brooklyn Dodgers, knew it too when he saw three Dodger base runners on third base at one and the same time. And John McGraw knew it when his outfielder Casey Stengel refused to chase a fly ball because he was undernourished. And Connie Mack, how he knew it when he had Rube Waddell! What would have happened to Pinky Higgins of the Boston Red Sox if he had fired Ted Williams the afternoon the slugger threw his bat into the crowd? Ted Williams spits at the stands. So what? Did you ever watch his rhythm as he swings his bat? How soon before we have another Williams?

And how soon before we have another Maria Callas?

The nerve of Rudolf Bing! His arrogance is aggravated by the fact that the Met has never earned a dollar--it is supported by public donation. In the old days, it was supported by the millionaires who had boxes in the Diamond Horseshoe. When the income tax pushed these donors away, the general public became the Met's patrons.

Who is Mr. Bing to dictate standards of behavior and chase Lauritz Melchior and Helen Traubel and a few less famous stars, and now Maria Callas--the first great artist since Geraldine Farrar; Maria Callas who has brought excitement back to the opera with a gift of warming the bones of us who love New York and the Met?

Who is this Rudolf Bing?

● HAVE GRAY FLANNEL, SLIGHTLY RUMPLED

Success is a relative term. I once saw a man jump out of the eleventh story of 74 Broadway because he lost a fortune in the stock market. After his widow paid off all his obligations, one hundred cents on the dollar, she had a little over fifty thousand dollars left--ten times more than 99 per cent of all humanity ever accumulates in a lifetime. Yet for him, life was over. The widow had better sense. I saw her a month later with a handsome football player.

That fellow killed himself because he thought he had failed. On the other hand, many a man has reached the highest pinnacle of happiness with five dollars. At a critical moment in his life he has asked a friend for a five-dollar loan and has come away with the five-dollar bill. That's success.

I believe I went through the greatest humiliation possible. One morning in the 1930's, I stepped up to the ticket window at Red Bank, New Jersey, and I did not have the twelve dollars necessary to buy a commutation ticket for a month. I had to pay eighty-five cents for each trip, back and forth. When the conductor collected that eighty-five cents, it was humiliating. And after the third or fourth time, I did not even try to act nonchalant with the explanation, "I forgot my commutation ticket, so give me a receipt for this cash so that I may get a refund." After three or four times, I was no longer fooling the con-

ONE MAN'S OPINION

American-Jewish Life, 1923

BY BERYL SEGAL

The minutes of the General Jewish Committee kept by John A. Solomon reveal to us a Providence altogether different from the one which we have learned to know. For those not yet born at the time, and for those too young to remember it at all, the Providence Jewish Community presents an unbelievable picture.

Here is the city of thirty-five years ago:

The ground was just then broken for the Jewish Orphanage of Rhode Island on Summit Avenue. It has grown, reached its peak, outlived its usefulness and has been abandoned as an orphanage. Its few remaining children were given out to private homes and the only thing remaining of the home, is Camp Jori, the Jewish Orphanage of Rhode Island. The building and the site of the Orphanage is now the home of the new Miriam Hospital.

The Miriam Hospital itself was not yet in existence at the time. The Ladies Association was in possession of the building, but its equipment was not yet bought and the tools of a hospital not yet installed. That was yet to come in 1925.

That hospital was in existence since 1925 and was removed to the present quarters in 1955.

The Jewish Home for the Aged was still in its old frame building on Orms Street where it was founded in 1912, and it served about 25 residents. Its present location was at that time still a grassy lot for holding picnics and for boys to play on. The new building was built in 1930, and an addition was added on in 1955.

The Jewish Community Center was not yet in existence. It was known as the Hebrew Educational Institute, and its main function was a Talmud Torah for the young. Its present location on Benefit Street was considered a perfect place for the youth of the North End and the East Side, and as for the present site on Sessions Street, no one even dreamed of it as a place for the Center.

There was a Talmudic Society in Providence, and the North End Talmud Torahs were well represented at that conference. Jews were studying themselves and were teaching their young considerably.

And yet, teaching was the concern of the General Jewish Committee at the time.

We find Mr. Leo Grossman complaining bitterly:

"Mr. Grossman laid stress on the small proportion of children attending the local Talmud Torahs or receiving any Jewish instruction whatsoever, and requested that some steps be taken for a larger enrollment and betterment of these conditions."

The secretary goes on to say that he was instructed to write the two Rabbis represented, Rubinstein and Schussheim, to make a general survey and to use their efforts for the improvement of Jewish Education.

Religion in the Public School system was the concern of Mrs. Archibald Silverman, who was also a member of the General Jewish Committee.

At every meeting we find Mrs. Silverman giving her impression of the visits to the various schools, particularly John Howland and the Peace Street schools, just before Christmas time.

"Mrs. Silverman speaking for the Committee on Education, stated that she had interviewed Superintendent of Schools Winslow on religious training and Christmas plays in the public schools. She was told by Mr. Winslow that he personally was opposed to religious training, as he believed it was impractical.

"Mr. Winslow further said that there was no definite rule in the public school curriculum requiring religious training, this being a matter of discretion with the teachers, each being free to act as he or she thought best with classes."

Such were the problems in the Jewish Community at 1923, and such are they today.

When the story is written on the Bureau of Jewish Education by Dr. Harry Elkin, he must begin with this Committee on Education, Mr. Grossman on the Talmud Torahs, Mrs. Silverman about Christmas plays in the public schools--these are the eternal problems confronting the Bureau of Jewish Education today. Jewish parents are not too careful in the education of their children, and public school teachers are too carried away with their duties.

In the meantime, life was going on during the last 35 years. Ask any 35 year old and he will tell you. He is of course not as well versed in Jewish law as his father was, but neither is he a stranger to Jewish life. We have a Bureau full of people at the meetings and only four or five of us are of the pre-35 year brand. The schools are bigger and they employ more teachers. The teachers are better paid and are American born.

Leave it to them. They will settle their problems.

(Mr. Segal's opinions are his own. His views are not necessarily those of this newspaper.)

new song, "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?"

MEMOS: Mrs. William Zeckendorf, Jr., daughter of Trygve Lie, is about to receive her final naturalization papers...Mary Ellis will return to the London stage, doing the Kim Stanley role in Anita Loos' play, "Cherie"...Miss Stanley's draw, as a genuine star, will keep the play running on Broadway, if the show can find another theater...Paramount signed Bud Yorkin, producer-director of Fred Astaire's TV spectaculars, to a long-term deal...Bill O'Dwyer's imminent return to New York City is expected to affect the local political scene.

JEWELRY NOTE: Joan Crawford attended a dinner party at Tobe Davis' last week, and came displaying a huge diamond necklace, a huge bracelet and a huge diamond ring. They were recently designed for her by a French jeweler. The screen star noticed the stares at her gems, and said, "It's really quite simple. It just happens that I like things big."

SOCIAL NOTE: One of James Michener's friends in Honolulu is an elderly widow living on the fixed income from a trust fund. Her trustees insisted that because of inflation she has to change her style of living. The first luxury to go should be her membership in the exclusive Pacific Club. No, she replied--she'd move into one tiny room, dismiss her servants, give up her car and even skip meals, but she never would surrender the unique pleasure she gets when she walks into the Pacific Club in Honolulu.

The Lyons Den

by Leonard Lyons

SCHOOL NOTE: Spyros Skouras heard a friend scoff at the importance of college speeches. Skouras revealed this story, about one college speech which influenced two national elections. The film executive had heard it from both parties involved: Then-President Truman, visiting in Missouri, chanced to listen to a broadcast of a speech by Gen. Eisenhower to the students at Defiance College, Ohio. In that speech Gen. Eisenhower said that any person educated by the U. S. government owed a duty to that government, no matter his age.

Truman immediately phoned Eisenhower, and asked him to come to Washington the next day. The President quoted that Defiance College speech, and persuaded Eisenhower to give up the presidency of Columbia University and accept the job of heading the NATO forces.

HOLIDAY NOTE: George S. Kaufman, who is a principal character in Moss Hart's autobiography, always knew of Hart's background of poverty. They once were at a Christmas tree-trimming party, where Hart told the children in the household: "After parents trim the tree, the children mustn't see it 'til morning. It's supposed to be a big surprise. My father never let us kids see the tree until the next morning"... "That must've been quite a stunt," Kaufman said to him, "with all of you living in that one room."

SPORTS DEPT.: Bob Hope played a golf match against Dr. Cary Middlecoff, the dentist-golfer. He lost, of course, and was amazed by Dr. Middlecoff's success with long putts. "I know how Dr. Middlecoff does it," said Hope. "When he reaches the green, he looks at the hole, says 'Open wider, please'--and then putts."

SONG DEPT.: Jimmy Byrnes, the ex-Governor, Senator, Supreme Court Justice and Secy. of State, has a party routine; He knows all the lyrics to the song, "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly?" He learned it when he first ran for the Legislature. It was a close contest and depended upon alleged fraudulent registrations in the name of "Kelly." The ballot-checkers could find no "Kelly" at the address given. Throughout that district Byrnes and his supporters began campaigning with the then

Raking It In

It's a great life when you're the current World Series hero. No need to go further to establish that as a fact than to follow Larry Sherry as the star rookie relief pitcher of the world champion Dodgers picks up all the marbles, pockets full of them, in the wake of his brilliant October exploits.

A St. Louis baseball writer, Bob Burnes, interviewed the busy Sherry as Larry stopped in the Missouri metropolis for one of his innumerable speaking engagements. Since so many readers have asked me about the pitcher since it was revealed here that he is Jewish, I thought the article resulting from the interview might be interesting. So, here it is.

Larry Sherry, World's Series hero of the Dodgers, has been on the move constantly since leading the Los Angeles club to the championship over the White Sox.

First there was a quick round of television appearances in New York and Los Angeles. Now he's on a tour as a representative of a clothing company, appearing in stores around the country.

"I hope to be home for Christmas," he said when he stopped off in St. Louis this week for appearances at two downtown department stores, plus a round of interviews for newspapers, radio stations and television. "I'll have some time to catch up with my family, get some rest and (he added with a grin) catch my breath."

He revealed that he was booked solidly for appearances at various banquets around the country from mid-January to mid-February. After that, he hopes to take another deep breath and prepare to head for training with the Dodgers.

Asked if he thought the arduous winter schedule and the almost complete separation from baseball would hurt his chances with the Dodgers next season, Sherry said he didn't think so.

"I put on weight if I don't watch myself," he said, "so I'm keeping an eye on my diet. Right now I'm only a couple of pounds over my normal playing weight. In addition, I've been able to get home to Los Angeles often enough to do some throwing a couple of times a week. I even had a command performance to pitch before royalty last Sunday."

That, Sherry added with a grin, was in connection with the visit of 17-year-old Princess Marie Cecilie of Prussia to the Los Angeles area.

"They gave her the big treatment out there," he said, "and after she had taken it, she revealed that she wanted to see a baseball game and a typical American home."

What Sherry modestly did not mention was that the Princess had expressed a third wish—to be photographed with World's Series hero Sherry.

"I don't know if she ever saw the American home," he said, "but she saw the ball game and we had our picture taken together. She is a nice kid and I admired her courage in speaking up. Buzzie Bavasi asked me to pitch part of the game and I did."

The game was at Wrigley Field in the Los Angeles winter league with the Dodger juniors playing the Westwood juniors. Sherry hurled two innings for the Dodgers, who won the game, 3 to 1.

As to being away from baseball, Sherry thinks it might help him. "This is my first break away from constant competition in better than two years," he said. "I pitched winter ball after the 1957 season and also after the 1958 season. I wasn't tired of it, I'll never get tired of baseball but I think a little rest will do me good."

After the 1958 campaign, he watched the first two games of the Braves-Yankee World's Series on television at the home of his wife's folks in Pueblo, Colo., then headed for winter ball in Venezuela, not dreaming that a year later he would be the central figure in the Series.

"Four years ago after a bad season at Newport News," he said, "I was ready to quit baseball. My brother, Norm, talked me out of it. After the 1958 season, I wasn't too happy about going down to Venezuela and I was determined that I'd either make it or break it in the next twelve months."

LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE RATES REDUCED!

Once again, rates have been reduced on Long Distance station-to-station telephone calls. Rates for all such calls which travel over 675 miles have been cut — some by as much as 25 cents, for the initial three-minute period. And there are reductions in many overtime charges.

FOR INSTANCE, the three-minute rate from Boston to any point in California is only $1.75, station-to-station, nights after six o'clock and Sundays.

brother's help, he worked on his slider. "I had thrown it some" he said, "but didn't have the confidence in it that I did in my fast ball and curve. In the winter league, where you don't play every day, you get a lot of time to work on things. By the time I came back to the States, I had enough confidence in my slider that I wasn't afraid to throw it in a jam."

When the Dodgers called him up in midsummer, he was convinced he was ready. "All I wanted was a chance and Walt Alston gave it to me," he said.

The turning point was in a game in St. Louis in July when he came on in the second inning with the Dodgers trailing, 3 to 0. Sherry not only blanked the Cardinals the rest of the way but hit a double, single and home run to lead the way to a 4 to 3 triumph.

Red Schoendienst, who resides here, stepped up as Larry was speaking. "I've batted against you only once, a couple of years ago, and you were throwing hard then," Red remarked. "I watched you in September and you were still throwing hard but you were pitching more intelligently. You knew what you were doing."

Asked about his hitting, Sherry said, "Well, I didn't hit for average but when I did connect, I got some good wood on the ball."

He already has talked to General Manager Bavasi and Manager Alston about starting next summer. Bavasi thinks he will be of more value to the club as a starter and Alston is willing to give it a try, too.

"I'd like to be a starter," he said, "but if I can help the Dodgers more in relief, I'll be in the bull pen. Or if they want to use me both ways, that's all right, too. I just want to pitch."

Sherry revealed that the only time his arm felt weary in the final game after the Dodgers had built up a long early lead. He came on in relief of Johnny Podres, who ran into trouble.

"I felt a little tired around the seventh or eighth inning and I told Alston to keep an eye on me," he said. "The boys kept pepping

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

by Sylvia Porter

"1929 — 1959"

While the stock market surged through the roof in 1928 and early 1929, the American economy was heading straight for the cellar.

When the climactic convulsion occurred in Wall Street 30 years ago this month, it didn't set off the world's most violent depression--as most of you probably think.

The stock market crack-up simply BELATEDLY recognized and mirrored a depression that had long been in the making.

Nothing I've written so far comparing the stock markets of 1929 and 1959 even approaches in importance the aspects emphasized in today's report: the differences in the American economy itself.

On the surface, the America of 1920-29 looked great, I suppose. The overall statistics, for instance, showed personal incomes rising, industrial production climbing, employment increasing, prices dipping, profits zooming, mass consumer markets developing.

But the prosperity was gold-plated, the glitter was phony. For beneath the over-all statistics these things were happening:

Personal incomes were being concentrated more and more at the very top. Between 1920 and 1929, the share of the income pie going to the upper one per cent of Americans actually increased by half.

The rise in wages and salaries was lagging far behind the productivity of workers and the rise in corporate profits, rents and interest. In that decade, hourly wages rose two percent, while productivity of workers in factories skyrocketed fifty-five percent.

The growth in our population was shrinking. Farm prices were declining. The pace of auto sales was slowing. In the late '20s the housing and major durable goods industries went into a tailspin.

ductor or myself. But I went down like a man, and I gave the last quarter I had in this world to a waitress as a tip.
 So what is a success? At this writing I have about 110 books and 43 phonograph records more than I had when I came to Charlotte, North Carolina, years ago.
 This is success.

● ON BEARDS

Among the Jews of Europe the beard was counted a thing of piety, wisdom and male beauty. In the process of Americanization the beard got lost. But almost as soon as the last beard was cut off, whiskers came back into popularity. The beard is used to sell Schweppes Quinine Water by Commander Whitehead, who sports a luxuriant, carefully tended hedge. Fidel Castro and all his lieutenants have certainly done the beard no harm. And Ernest Hemingway and many other writers now have beards, behind which they peep at us from their book covers. Like my old father always said, "The Jews have no luck."

Every time I see a color advertisement now of the Schweppes man, I feel very sad. I am thinking of all the magnificent beards that went to waste on the Lower East Side when I was a boy.

YOUR MONEY'S WORTH

Everything was set for a classical business downturn—when suddenly the gambling fever hit, and the stock market took off on the wild-est credit-happy upsurge ever known in history. And this, as "Fortune" magazine remarked some years ago, "postponed the inevitable reckoning and converted what might have been a routine recession into a cataclysm . . ."

And today? I need not load you with statistics, for you know that we have become a middle-income nation without parallel. The income picture is not in the shape of a pyramid as in 1929, with the vast majority at the bottom and the very few at the top. It is in the shape of a diamond, with the vast majority of us in the middle and fewer at the top and the bottom. And it is the huge middle-class which has been buying stocks with its own cash.

You know that the spurt in wages and salaries in this decade has outpaced the rise in just about anything else. You know that the housing industry has been zooming along at record highs, auto sales are heading for a peak year, the post-steel strike rebound will carry us to a new business peak.

And most important, you know we have unemployment insurance and social security to keep billions flowing into the business stream in good times and bad. We have insurance to protect our banks and minimum wage laws to raise the standards of our lower-income groups. None of these reforms was in existence in 1929; they were unthinkable to our nation then.

Behind the stock market of 1929 was economic rot, a steady shrinking in buying power of the majority and an attitude that the government's best role was the least role.

Behind the stock market of 1959 is a broadening in buying power of the majority and an entirely new attitude toward the responsibilities of government.

I do not say that this protects us against stock market slumps. Last month saw the biggest percentage decline since 1931.

I do believe that America on the threshold of the '60s bears no resemblance to America on the threshold of the '30s. And that leads into another key difference between 1929 and 1959.

IS TED THROUGH?

Bad news for New England fans is contained in a rumor out of New York, purporting to have it straight from the horse's mouth that Ted Williams has definitely decided to retire.

The story goes that Williams has already informed Tom Yawkey of that fact, saying that he doesn't think he has it any more. The Red Sox, it says further, for some reason are keeping the news quiet, while New England writers and fans are drooling over the tremendous pinch-hitting exploits that still lie in Ted's bat.

This column hopes strongly that this is only a rumor, and a false one, at that. Nevertheless, the story is disquieting.
